

THE MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE

VOLUME SEVENTY-EIGHT $1.50 a Year in Advance MANCHESTER, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY MAY 17, 1945 $1.50 a Year in Advance NUMBER THIRTY-FIVE

NEW TREND EVIDENT IN PENSION PLANS

Reflecting a new trend of public thinking toward government and capitalism is the retirement system for employees of Michigan local governments—county, city, village and township—as enacted during the 1945 session of the Michigan state legislature.

Here was one of the few bills of major importance that emerged from a war-time assembly devoted, for the most part to matters of war-time financing.

As it affects every citizen in his relationship to his local government, we believe you will be interested in information about it. Credit for its passage goes to the Michigan Institute for Local Government of which State Treasurer D. Hale Brake of Stanton is the president and to a special legislative committee headed by Roy Hilliard, county clerk at Mason.

The measure is as modern as the V-E triumph over fascism. Here is why.

William A. Lydston, editor of the American Institute of Public Opinion, recently pointed out in "What America Thinks" that the political thinking of our time has been dominated by the quest of common man for two kinds of security: (1) economic security for the individual and the family and (2) national security for the United States in the family of nations.

The present United Nations Conference is a manifestation of our yearning for national security, the social security act, the British Beveridge plan, the Wagner act, unemployment insurance and retirement systems for government and industry are all expressions of the desire for national security.

The struggle for security, both by the individual and by the nation, prompts man to turn to one of two philosophies as the method by which he hopes to achieve security. One philosophy is that of democracy where individuals through cooperative participation in government keep the aggressors from enervating them. Democracy safeguards freedom of the individual—freedom of speech and press, freedom of assembly, freedom of religion, and freedom from want against the rise of an unbridled individualism, the laissez-faire philosophy.

Triumph of the Allied powers over Germany, which we celebrated recently last week, was a victory of democracy over the absolute state modified by Soviet socialism, of course.

Both Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia have carried their concepts to new extreme in the two way quest for security of the individual and the nation. Under Nazi control the individual was degraded to barbaric levels through curtailment of the expression of man's urge to create.

It was the fear of insecurity which prompted nations to strive to embrace the false philosophy of authoritarian rule. Marshall Field, in his recent book "More Than a Word," says that the leading essential of "that freedom-operation balance which we call democracy" is "protection." He explains: "By 'protection' I naturally mean material economic security such as is made possible by an effectively functioning economy."

POSTHUMOUS AWARD OF SILVER STAR MEDAL

For gallantry in action, Major General William H. Gill, has awarded the Silver Star Medal posthumously to Staff Sergeant Robert W. Devorak, son of Mrs. Anna C. Devorak, St. Mary's Rectory, Manchester, Mich.

Sgt. Devorak went to the aid of a wounded man who was on the forward slope of a hill completely covered by enemy machine gun cross fire. Sgt. Devorak reached the wounded man and was able to carry him to safety, although he himself was mortally wounded while doing so. His courage and heroic self-sacrifice are credit to him and to the armed forces.

NEWS ABOUT OUR BOYS IN SERVICE

T. Russell E. Wolf of Manchester has been assigned to the 399 Inf. Regt. of the 109th Infantry Division and is now serving with that organization on the Seventh Army sector in southern Germany.

Sgt. Bob Leeson who is now with the 799th Engineer Forestry Co. in Germany writes that he has found that a single word is sufficient to describe things in Germany today. That word is "Cannibal." Most everything in that country today, he finds, is a "cannibal." However, Bob says the Spring weather here is beautiful and that's at least not-cannibal.

Pfc. Merle D. Holley of Manchester is now in the Pacific with the 24th Ordnance Battalion where it is reported that these veterans are now repairing airplanes from a 17-year-old wreck. A 72 foot, 70 ton armored tank recovery vehicle.

DON'T FORGET YOUR POPPY ON MAY 28TH

Everyone who buys a poppy from an Auxiliary worker should know what becomes of the money he contributes and everyone should realize he is ever-increasing need for these contributions as this second World War goes grimly on, taking its toll of lives and limbs.

The sale is carried out entirely by volunteers, so that every penny that is received goes directly to the relief of disabled veterans and the families of the dead and disabled.

These men and their families are the chief concern of the Legion and Auxiliary. It is for their sake that the volunteers are so eager to sell their poppies, with the hope that the dimes and dollars contributed will help to make their lot in life somewhat easier.

The government spends billions of dollars to try to bring adequate aid to the disabled veterans and their families, but the Legion and Auxiliary are able to bring their personal attention and understanding to the many cases to which they bring relief. This is a big factor in rehabilitation and in keeping families together until the veteran is able to return home and help in their support.

When you wear a poppy, you show the world that you are mourning the war's dead and doing your bit for the war's living victims.

Household Hints

A vacuum cleaner with an extra long cord may be used to collect the fluffy seeds of dandelions in your lawn.

When using a screw-top can to save old paints or varnishes, smear hand soap on the threads and the cap will not stick. The soap will help make the closing air-tight.

Cellar walls should be looked after frequently to keep water and dampness from seeping in and rotting out or undermining the foundation of the house.

Wash egg beaters with cold water immediately after using. Wash graters with hot water.

A quick and easy way to clean windows is to take a paper towel and rub over the windows on a damp day.

Ice coffee is a real treat if a dip of ice cream is added to it just before serving.

A leak in the garden hose, otherwise unobtainable and good, may be repaired by applying an ordinary rubber patch from an automobile tire repair outfit. Then wind a rubber tape over the patch for additional strength and there will be no more leaking.

Light blues, grays and greens will give an effect of coolness and space in a room.

A high throat count in sheets, weave, and a good appearance that will last.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. In a healthy person this is done without any trouble. But if they become clogged with waste matter, they are unable to do their job properly. This causes a variety of ailments, such as rheumatism, backache, headache, dizziness, and general weakness. It is important to keep your kidneys in good working order. A simple and effective way to do this is by taking a course of treatment with a kidney-purifying medicine. This will help to cleanse the blood and remove the waste matter that is causing the trouble. It is a safe and reliable method of treatment and is recommended by leading medical authorities.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

Col. Robert L. Scott

The story that has been told of the flight of Col. Robert L. Scott and his crew from the Japanese in the Philippines is a true and inspiring one. It is a story of courage, resourcefulness, and faith. The crew, consisting of Scott, his pilot, and several other men, were stranded in a remote area of the Philippines. They had no food, no water, and no way out. But they did have faith in God. They prayed for help, and help came in the form of a small plane that landed nearby. The crew was rescued and taken to safety. This is a story that should be read by all who believe in the power of God.

CHAPTER XXIX

But from the patrol that had been in the Mekong and from the "probables," we knew that we had not yet let one Jap escape from the December 26th attempted bombing of Feiching. I felt so good I wanted to radio the General, but I waited until we checked up on those who were missing, so that I could go and tell him in person.

Our victory had not been without loss. Lieutenant Couch, who had led the rear attack on the bombers, had failed to return. His wing man had seen him pulling up over the tail of the bomber formation after shooting down one of the Japs; but they had concentrated their fire on the plane and had shot him down in flames. No one knew whether or not the Carolina pilot had gotten out to sea with which that attack had been planned. I had driven out to see parachutes opening.

Another pilot, Lieutenant Money, had been seen to shoot one bomber down, and then, in another head-on attack, had either collided with another of the enemy or had exploded it so close to his own ship that the observing pilot had not been able to see Money's P-40 glide.

None of us in China was fooling himself—we knew that what little we had accomplished against the enemy would have very small bearing on the outcome of the conflict. But under General Chenault we had made the most of what we had. We had developed fighters with an urge for combat and the aggressive spirit of battle. We had bases in China from which to attack other bases in China, and we had more equipment we could hold our bases and we could take the bases farther East, from where we could bomb the heart of Japan.

I expect I wouldn't have been much good in combat that day if it had not been for the Chinese. They were the only ones who could do one thing at a time. Even when I landed and they were in the air, they would be right on my heels. I had seen them in the air on Christmas Day bombing. I just kept on thinking.

That afternoon at two o'clock I got all our ships in the sky again. I rode on Holloway's wing over the Mekong valley. "Here they are," he said, "they're waiting for you." "Well, sorry," he said, "I hear there was a fight over Feiching this afternoon and I see blood on your face, so I know you made contact. What happened?"

Trying to look real stern, I told the General that nineteen Japs had come in, just as he said they would. "General," I said, "with a few exceptions, they were higher than they and were waiting for them." "General," I said, "with a tremor of pride in my voice, 'we shot 'em all down.'"

The General was looking more like a well-dressed man. He asked about our losses and I told him about the few missing pilots. He thought a minute, then started to get up. "Sorry," he said, "you'll look over behind you in that pretty box, you'll find a bottle of Haig & Haig, pinch bottle, that the 300g starters sent us for Christmas. We're going to open that and celebrate."

We were celebrating when Doctor Tom Gentry came back and began to ask the General why he wasn't in bed with his fever. The General looked so happy, I guess, that Doctor took his temperature again. Then he gave me a funny look. "Normal," he said. "Some times I think if you all shot down a few Japs every day, the General would even get to where he could hear as well as he could when he was a boy in Louisiana."

Early next day I went over again with Holloway, just in case the Jap came again. We learned that the factory had not been without loss. Lieutenant Money had been found dead, close to the wrecks of two burned airplanes—a Mitsubishi Japanese bomber and his P-40.

Couch had a better luck and was in the hospital. I went up to see him as soon as we assigned the "airial umbrella" of P-40's that were going to patrol the skies for a recurrence of the Jap raids. Lieutenant Couch was badly burned, but was resting easy. He told me that the bomber he had shot on his way up to attack and he'd taken a plane in very close to make certain that the Jap burned. This had been a mistake, he knew, for the guns of three of the enemy had

OVER-WORKED COWS NEED HERD TONIK

Cows that are run down, or milking under forced production, need the "lift" that they will get when you mix one pound of Dr. David Roberts' HERD TONIK with each 100 lbs. of ground feed. An over-worked cow must have a tonic just as an over-worked machine requires extra care and lubrication.

You can prepare 300 lbs. of feed with a $1.25 package of HERD TONIK. But it is better to buy in larger quantities so as to have it on hand for herd treatment... and you save money, too.

3 lb. pkg. (for needs 1 cow) $ 1.25
10 lb. pkg. (needs for 5 cows) 5.00
50 lb. drum (needs 25 cows) 25.00

Honored Servant

When the department of Chinese at Columbia University was endowed by Gen. Horace Carpenter in 1901, he named the benefaction after his Chinese valet, Dean Lung. So the Dean Lung chair became and has remained the only chair of learning in the world founded in the name of a servant.

Where time later I walked over to see them still standing in the ship they bowed as I passed, by standing at what we would call "attention" and nodding the head in respect. As I smiled at them—aged children, old men and women, who I thought were school teachers—they raised their thumbs high to us and yelled, "Ding-hao!" And they pointed with pride to my twelve flags.

The sun was going down now, even from the vantage point up there at twenty thousand feet. Holloway and I were patrolling. We called to the other ships behind us and as we saw them go into the Luby circle and the rest-case that we had piloted we had a glow of pride on the ground. I started to roll over the sun and yelled, "Ding-hao!" And they pointed with pride to my twelve flags.

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

The American major in charge of affairs in an occupied town in Italy was questioning some of the citizens of Adano. "What does this town need most?" he asked one.

"Much to eat," replied the Italian.

Another Italian said: "It needs a bell more than anything. The spirit is more important than the stomach, and that bell which the Fascists took away from Adano was our spirit."

The town got its bell.

A BELL FOR ADANO—a best seller for many months—was written by John Hersey, brilliant war correspondent for Time and Life after covering the Sicilian campaign. The New York Times says: "It is the finest novel about American participation in the Second World War that we have seen."

Noses of an Innocent Bystander: The Wireless: Radio's coverage of the San Francisco fair is all news. The news analysts are lining the pockets of their minds inside out and presenting perplexing peace problems with admirable clarity. They are driving home the issues which will affect every American home. Nothing more exciting than the Nazi shortwave's blab-blah blab-blah of Germany's dying gasp. Commentator Rankin's advice: delivery packs a wallop. His recent radio report of FBI's interest in the Communist Record. Rita Hayworth's quip-handling with Chubby McCarty left the chuckles rolling at a swift pace. Talk about crimson faces. A current best-seller means that America is sliding into "collectivism." The tone's author appeared on the Ch. Round Table and was asked to give a clear definition of "collectivism." He flunked the query.

Momus for a Bearskin: In a literary weekly John Mason Brown has embroiled a delightful bit of literary lace: "Praise has never made anyone wiser. We like to hear even when we do not believe it. We tire of it only when it is bestowed too long on other people. It is music we do not object to having played offstage. Although it may shame our consciences and insult our minds, it does no damage to our ears."

Between the Book Ends: Top-flight reporter Ira Wolfert has captured the sordid tragedy, farming courage and shining hopes of the current struggle via "American Guerrillas in the Philippines" (Simon & Schuster). This slim-bang chronicle of Lt. D. Richardson's exploits creates a dramatic glow. Most timely is A. E. Kahn and Michael Sayers' "The Plot Against the Peace" (Dial Press). Here are the names of the fascist peace-breakers and their tactics. "Morris L. Ernst's 'The Best Is Yet' offers a sizzling series of essays. His most convincing makers land on the few specialists in our midst. Such 'journalists' can cover their depravity with left rhetoric, but they can't hide their shame.

Quotation Marksmanship: A Ward: Let us all be happy and live within our means, even if we have to borrow money to do it with. R. C. Sherrill: The telephone is the best thing that has ever happened since the invention of the wheel. Dorothy Parker: She said her words with every courtesy of each of them, as if she respected language. The Jones Journal: and on to remain Your New York Correspondent who, in this babble of tongue, just found out that Eden means gettin' even. Molotov means hammer, Stalin means steel and Truman—means business.

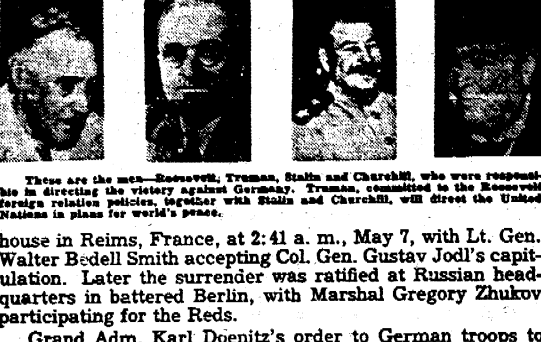

Stalingrad recited under a murtorous barrage. Late one night, a creaking ferryboat, piloted by a wheezing old boatman, was smashed by a shell. The old man and a young lieutenant aboard were thrown into the river. The lieutenant packed soldier started to go down. "Here," shouted the old man, "take this life preserver" and looped it over the officer's shoulder. The lieutenant tried to push it away. "Stop, you fool!" screamed the boatman. "I'm old—my arm is missing. I'm through. But you're young and can fight. Take the preserver. Hold Stalingrad!"

Counter-Attack: Little Inna Santiago is a six-year-old orphan. Her father—killed at the front. Her mother—by a Nazi bomb. On Red Army Day all the other children in her kindergarten class were busy writing letters to their fathers or brothers. Inna came sobbing to Natasha Zemskaya, her teacher. "I have to Daddy and no one to write to." Natasha comforted the child and told her to write to Lt. Alexander Kolesnikov. So she received an answer. "Don't you cry, little Inna," wrote the lieutenant. "From now on I'm your brother. I am sending you a little gift. Be a good girl. Love, Alex." Each week Alex wrote to his dearest sister. Suddenly the letters stopped. After several weeks, Inna received a note. It was signed by a hundred soldiers and said: "Alex has been killed, but do not feel bad. His last wish was for you to become your brother. So now you have a very large family of a hundred brothers. Be a good girl and write to us. Love."

Rya Ehrenberg, Soviet newspaper man, writes of his talk with a German sergeant: "He the sergeant limped out of the forest, leaning on a walking stick. The most expressive thing about him was that stick. On it were carved the names of the cities he had been in: Rodez, Warsaw, Liege, Namur, Rheims, Paris, Smolensk, and Vyazma. "Observing that I was scrutinizing the stick, the Nazi said, 'We've been everywhere. But where have we got to?'"

VICTORY IN EUROPE! Germany Forced to Capitulate After Six Years of Fighting; Allies Face Big Job in Pacific

Eleven hard and bitter months after General Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies smashed through the ramparts of "Fort Europe" to set foot on French soil, Germany's once proud Wehrmacht, weakened after six years of the bloodiest war in history, bowed the knee unconditionally to the Allied powers.

Offered to Russia as well as the U. S. and Britain after earlier futile efforts to split the Allies by approaching the Anglo-Americans alone, Germany's surrender took place at General Eisenhower's headquarters in the little red schoolhouse in Reims, France, at 2:41 a. m., May 7, with Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith accepting Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl's capitulation. Later the surrender was signed at the headquarters in battered Berlin, with Marshal Gregory Zhukov participating for the Reds.

Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz's order to German troops to cease firing came as a sort of anticlimax as the bulk of the Allied avalanche. April 29, 1,000,000 Nazis surrendered in northern Italy and western Austria; May 4, another 1,000,000 gave up in Holland and Denmark, and on May 5, 400,000 quit in southern Germany.

As the stupefied German officer formally admitted defeat, neither they nor the better countries' new ministers entertained any illusions as to the character of the Allied terms, with Foreign Minister Count Ludwig Schwegel von Krogh telling the people: "Nobody must deceive himself on the harshness of the terms. Nobody must have any doubts that heavy sacrifices will be demanded from us in all spheres of life." "This did the European war come to an end," he said. "The German army, striking at the unprepared western powers, rolled through Poland; leveled the lowlands and France, and then turned back to the east again to challenge great Russia.

As the German capitulated, he added them by the thousands of arms which we have won and the peace to be given to every man who has fought for his freedom. It is fitting that we as a nation give thanks to our God, who has strengthened us and given us the victory."

HARRY S. TRUMAN, President of the United States of America, so hereby apprised that on May 12, 1945, at a day of prayer.

"I call upon my countrymen to dedicate their hearts and souls to the memory of those who have given their lives to make possible our victory."

the news with restraint. As Germany's fall was submitted, people looked to the east, where the Japs still remained to be defeated and the entire resources of the navy and well over 600,000 troops may be needed to assure victory.

With America scheduled to take over the occupation of central and western Germany and western Austria in accordance with Allied plans to maintain strict supervision over the country until a thoroughly democratic administration can be established, U. S. military authorities figure on the detention of 400,000 Nazis.

The first big break that signified Germany's disintegration was the U. S. 1st army's surprise capture of the Ludendorff bridge spanning the Rhine below Cologne, permitting Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges to build up a

THESE EVENTS LED ALLIES TO VICTORY—

The beginning of the gigantic life-and-death struggle known as "World War II" is generally set as September 1, 1939, the day the German army rolled into Poland. Two days later France and England declared war on Germany.

Hitler's tactics fattened Polish resistance in less than a month. Then began the half year of "phony war" at the Maginot line. In the spring of 1940 German troops overran Norway and Denmark, forcing out the British. Early in May the campaign that heightened the public mood opened in Holland, Belgium and France. Italy capitulated on the middle of June. Italy came in on Germany's side. The British expeditionary force barely escaped destruction at Dunkirk.

In 1941 saw the massed air attacks on Britain by which Hitler hoped for a quick victory. The B-29 and the Nazi bombers until winter, when weather brought a shattering defeat. The B-29 and the Nazi bombers until winter, when weather brought a shattering defeat.

During the spring of 1941 Nazi troops smashed into the Balkans and Greece. Bulgaria joined the Axis. The German army captured the city of Stalingrad in the winter of 1942. Japs Face Allied Power

We have won a war, but there is still another one to win. Before we win the war against Japan, there is the gigantic problem of supplying and moving the troops from the European theater to the Pacific.

The army estimates that 1,000,000 men will be needed to defeat the Japanese. Our entire navy and air forces will be required. Some men will be released from service—the individuals will be determined on total service, overseas service, combat service and number of dependents. The bulk of the army will not be released.

Twice taken to war in 25 years and twice defeated, with nothing to show but the anguish and suffering of the masses of the German people in American and British occupied territory accepted unconditionally on September 8, 1945, that had never been broken. The Red's stood guard, however, the population tread in apprehension over fear of reprisal for the Nazi devastation of Russia in four years of other warfare, previously, many of the people had tried to escape to the west, only to be turned back.

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS Jumper-Jacket for Summer Sports

Who will be the rock of the year for 1945, a year when turkeys are about as scarce as wild turkeys that feed out of your hands? Sam Bradford, the Irish, panned owners of the St. Louis Cardinals, known more for rookies and has had more good batters than any one else in baseball. Year after year, the Cardinals have come up with recruits who proved to be better than many well-known veteran stars.

Bradford kept his eyes on the kids' team salaries are never too high, but St. Louis is fast being the greatest place in the country, so far as attendance is concerned. You can understand Sam Bradford's enthusiasm when he figures out that the Cardinals are the best of 1945, but one of the best of all time.

Of the aforementioned it is by way of leading up to a recent remark made by Bradford as he said: "I mean he can't see Cardinals for another National League campaign. The experts were saying that the Cardinals were a good bet for the 1945 season and that the all-time record of four straight 100-year victories was as good as at hand. Bradford was thinking about the Cardinals in general but of a fresh-faced kid playing left field.

Better Than Mussolini

"He's a better prospect right now than was Stalin when he reported to us," remarked Bradford—Bradford was reporting on a pitch dug into note pads almost before Sam's words were dry in the hot St. Louis air.

"Better than Mussolini? Say, wasn't that talking in a lot of territory?" "Well," Bradford hastened to reply, "I mean he can't see things. He's a good leader; he can play the outfield as you saw in the game. He's a good leader; he can play the outfield as you saw in the game. He's a good leader; he can play the outfield as you saw in the game."

POSTWAR FARMING SHOULD BE UNREGULATED THE MOST PRACTICAL post-war solution of the so-called farm problem is to permit the farmer to raise what he knows his acres will produce to best advantage, without direction or restriction from Washington. The government's job is to be that of assuring him a fair price market at home and abroad. The farmer would prefer that the government assist and forward Christian Soldiers and the grades in Your's a Grand Old Flag.
