MICHIGAN ENTERTAINS FORTY-ONE GOVERNORS

Mackinac Island—Happy in the knowledge that Michigan's famed hospitality had been warmly acclaimed, Governor Harry F. Kelly stood at the end of the long concrete dock at the harbor here.

The last boat of the day, bound for Mackinaw City, had just departed. Passengers included most of the 41 state governors and members of their families and official retinues.

With one hand clasping in characteristic fashion a sturdy cane to ease the weight on a leg maimed in World War I, the governor raised a straw hat over his head. He waved it from left to right. Nearby was Arnold Lee, a personal secretary, Mrs. Kelly, whose thoughts are usually on her home and children, had stayed at the governor's residence which roosts upon the bluff, next to Fort Mackinac, and presented a commanding view of the Straits.

It was about 7:30 p. m. on July 4. A mild breeze with cooling clouds blew from the southwest. The sun was dipping thru clouds for a patriotic salute in the western sky and on the

The 37th governors' conference, originated by President Theodore Roosevelt and the third to be held on Mackinac Island, thus came to a fitting conclusion. Like any social function, in honor of guests from a distance, the 1945 Governors' Conference involved a multitude of interesting details and most careful planning.

The example, the war-time headache of transportation, Michigan wanted its guests to visit Detroit, automobile capital of the world. The committee struck upon the happy idea of securing reservations on a lake steamer from Detroit to Mackinac Island. A good idea except for one thing: No boat space was available.

The hurdle was surmounted by inducing an industrial firm to switch its convention date and to surrender its cruise reservations. The governors' arrival at the conference, held by waterway, offered an opportunity for the first time in years whereby governors could visit and get acquainted prior to speaking at business sessions.

was performed with customary smartness, even to choice steaks and rare Havana cigars. Henry Ford II was host at a luncheon at the Dearborn Inn and a tour of Greenfield Village. Other automobile models of Ford, Mercury, and Lincoln lines—a piece of good showmanship. Other automobile manufacturers united to honor the guests at the Detroit Athletic Club.

Upon their arrival at Mackinac Island, the guests were transported by horse-drawn carriages thru the small business district, whose buildings have been transformed by white paint, to the parkway leading to the Grand Hotel. The hostelry had been freshly decorated, and hundreds of red geraniums were in bloom along the world's longest porch of a summer hotel. Flags added a touch of moving color.

Bruce Anderson, the hooptopner from Lansing, Bay City and Niles, rolled up his sleeves to get baggage upon wagons and hurry them to the hotel sans chance to the guests' rooms. Seeing Bruce swing his luggage atop a wagon was a sight to behold.

Commissioner Oscar Olander had detailed 25 members of the Michigan State Police for island duty. Sixteen were apparently selected for the assignment. To meet any emergency that might arise, Olander's men brought along radio transmitters and a walkie-talkie. Two men patrolled the hotel corridors throughout the night. Special fire equipment was on hand. Arnold Renner, state fire marshal had attended to that.

Michigan Bell Telephone company, represented by the personable Sam McCool, imported a mobile transmitter for emergency use. The press corps, numbering about 75 in all, filed scores of messages day and night.

A typical Michigan touch was afforded by a wooden stand filled with Michigan apples and sweet cherries. This treat, with a small flag, reminding guests to "Buy Michigan," was one of the thoughtful courtesies of the state department of agriculture. Commissioner Charles J. Fitz surveyed the scene and found it to his liking. Clarence Bolander, his deputy had attended to details with smiling efficiency. Strawberries or jellies were available every meal.

Michigan's official family was on hand. With their wives were Ileana, Governor Vernon J. Brown, Secretary of State Herman Dieckman, State Treasurer D. Hazel Brake, Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene B. Elliott, Auditor General John Morrison, and Attorney General John Detmers,

MANCHESTER WINS ONE AND LOSES ONE GAME

On July 1, the Manchester Independents went to Saline where they were taken into camp by the 20. Flinder and Hough allowed 15 hits for 11 runs while Hough allowed 12 hits but only three runs.

On July 4 Saline and Manchester again met and Manchester gained revenge by winning from Saline by a score of 10 to 1. Hough allowed but five scattered hits and also collected three hits at the plate.

and Highway Commissioner Charles Ziegler.

For the most part the governors were easy to meet. They chatted with visitors cordially. The atmosphere was one of informality to a surprising degree. It prompted one Michigan state official to observe: "The bigger the man, the easier it is to meet him."

While the secretary of State, Herman Egan, an affable individual was officially the chairman of the house committee, W. F. Doyle was the manager who got things done. As "King of Mackinac Island" by virtue of his elected title of chairman of the Mackinac Island Park Commission, Doyle was law unto himself. Even Harold Titus discovered this when he sought to induce Captain C. J. Ailers to take him for a ride on the conservation patrol boat. Titus had to get a written permit from Doyle. The payoff is this reminder: Titus is a member of the conservation commission.

Conference tales include how the Mackinac county highway department sent machinery to grade the island roads and by mistake hanked the curves for speed. It was a narrow escape. How a Fort Brady military detail from Sault Ste. Marie brought a cannon to the island for a military salute, and then forgot to take it off the boat; how a conference guest, who asked to pay a $15 hotel bill, informed the management he thought the state was paying him for his honor.

The Michigan "party" involved the wartime hazards of food. It may be that Grand Hotel guests will have to subsist only on fish and hamburgers for the remainder of the summer—a calamity which seems unlikely to occur. The fact is the government rationing has exceeded well. The menu in public canteens has been reduced to a bare minimum. Choice meats, such as beef, mutton, pork, veal, lamb, baked pork chops, veal

WHICH WILL BE TIME FOR WINTER COVER CROPS

Winter cover crops are among the best ways to improve soil fertility on American farms. They provide food for livestock, hold the soil against erosion, and add to the soil's moisture, and when turned under in the spring, increase the soil's supply of available nutrients.

Government reports show that the planting of cover crops is especially important in the east central and southern states. The south, with a single decade, increased its acreage under cover from a few hundred thousand to several million acres. There is still room for more cover crops, however.

Postwar farming profits, as well as production of fiber and oil, are essential to victory in the present and increased production of cash crops derived through increased soil fertility. The best way to make more winter legumes such as Austrian winter pea, hairy vetch, and clover, which are easy to grow.

The secretary's report was read and accepted. The treasurer's report was read and approved. The secretary's financial report was read and accepted.

The next order of business was the election of three trustees to fill vacancies on the board. One was caused by the resignation of R. B. Haslam. The terms of Clayton Parr and Herman Kuebler had expired. The secretary read the law relative to the qualifications of voters in school elections.

Clayton Parr was nominated by William Kulekamp. Three others were further nominated, a motion was made by George Merriman and supported by L. P. Wurster that the nominations be closed, and the secretary be instructed to cast a unanimous ballot for Mrs. L. P. Wurster.

Herman Kuebler withdrew his name from nomination. Mrs. Geo. Merriman nominated Luther Ecker and William Kulekamp nominated Herbert Widmayer.

The president appointed L. P. Wurster, Wm. Kulekamp and George Merriman as tellers. They were sworn in by J. C. Haslam. Total number of votes cast, 71; Kuebler receiving 17, Widmayer 5, scattering 1. Luther Kieger was declared elected.

After a short discussion relative to funds left by graduating classes, a motion was made by Mrs. Willard Mann, supported by Mrs. Walter Schabke, that funds left by graduating classes be turned over to the student council, same to be used where most needed in the school. Carried.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION ADJUSTS TAX RATE

Several of our home owners have been wondering what the fellows were doing who were training about town a few weeks ago measuring lots and inquiring about various homes, who started they were from the board of equalization.

It seems that these fellows are members of a county board of equalization appointed by the chairman of the board of supervisors. These members have equalized the assessment throughout the county.

Manchester township's assessment has been raised $123,536 which means that we are supposed to pay $2,478.00 in taxes above the amount assessed by the supervisors. What particular qualifications the members of the equalization board had to set valuations more fairly than our superiors we don't know. In one sense, however, this board had to act in this manner to conform to a decision made by the attorney general of the state of Michigan.

Bid for Early Ratification of United Nations Pact in Senate; U.S. Spending Hits Peak for Year

Released by Western Newspaper Union

With indications of overwhelming approval the senate moved to consider ratification of the United Nations pact for security organization, with a vote expected in the next few days. The bill, which marked the rejection of the League of Nations after World War I, was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Connally (Dem., Tex.) last week.

Sen. Connally (Dem., Tex.) introduced the bill for early ratification, declaring that although no effort would be made to railroad the thing through, "I don't want to see the Senate divided, split-party and honor-struggle all through July and August just because some members want to make speeches for consumption back home."

With no major battle looming, discussion of the power of the U. S. representative on the security council to vote for use of armed force without prior congressional approval may be academic, with proponents suggesting later legislation extending congressional approval to the council.

Under the present provisions of the security organization, however, there is little likelihood of armed force being employed against any of the major powers since anyone of the Big Five—the U. S., Britain, Russia, France and the Soviet Union—may veto any military measures against themselves.

By permitting the U. S. to retain conquered Pacific possessions for defense bases on the discretion of congress, the framers of the security organization also asserted clear vigorous objections which might have been raised against the trusteeship phases of the new charter.

As the U. S. representative, Edw. Stettinius Jr. will have the lion's share of the job of representing the U. S. on the all-powerful security council.

Big Business's Personality Boy. Stettinius has risen high in U. S. politics since leaving the U. S. Steel corporation to first take over administration of the nation's medical bill in 1944 totaling 4 billion dollars and a capital investment in hospital plant and equipment of six billion. Medicine today is one of the big businesses of America. The direct cost of medical care paid 3 billion of last year's bill, expenditures by federal, state and local governments were 490 million and the balance was contributed by industry and philanthropy a survey revealed.

Waterfall Drop. According to estimates of Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the waterfall population of the U. S. stands at 105 million. This is approximately 20 million less than the 1849 figure. The apparent decrease may not be exact. Dr. Gabrielson points out as the population may have been overestimated in 1849.

Ending June 30, fiscal year 1945 found the U. S. spending more money than in any other similar period in the nation's history. Red Points at Sea

Extensive use of power allows itself by its own excesses. History is bustling with undeviating examples. Lately one is Hitler, who contrived his own defeat by carrying his power to lengths which caused an overwhelming opposition to rise against him. Statesmen, labor leaders or other humans seem unaccountably as if it were used only as long as it is useful.

THIS spring's disaster relief operations emphasize how the American Red Cross is continuing to handle its domestic operations on the one hand while conducting the greatest overseas program in its history on the other. Basil O'Connor, chairman of the American Red Cross, said just before his departure late in May on an inspection tour in the Pacific war theater.

The Red Cross this spring experienced one of its busiest seasons in recent years, disasters occurring on an average of two a week. The loss of life by mid-May was nearing 200. In April alone, 111 were killed in storms in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri and Texas and 526 were injured. Loss of life in the Midwest and Texas was held to a low figure by prompt evacuation of families by Red Cross chapters and volunteer firemen and army engineers.

Two hundred and forty Red Cross chapters were in action in the 24 affected states as the disasters spread. Colin Herrick, acting national administrator of the Red Cross, estimated after a tour of the disaster zones that Louisiana was the most hit of the flood states and that various areas in that state would be feeling the effect of the floods and storms for many months. In Concordia parish, for instance, 96 per cent of the land was under water and practically every farm was evacuated. It was in this area that hundreds of head of livestock were moved out by barges.

Help Rebuilt Homes. The Red Cross matched building inspectors and relief workers into the flood and tornado zones in March and April and priorities were obtained from the War Production Administration to help rebuild their homes and barns. This work continued through June.

After a quick survey of the areas in May, department of agriculture agents informed Red Cross that the nation's food shortages would not be materially increased by the floods. In the Ohio valley, the food waters receded in time for the farmers to plant, and in the lower Mississippi valley early crops ruined by the floods were replanted. In the Mississippi tributary valleys of Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee the floods delayed but did not prevent spring planting.

More beef and vegetables will be available next winter as a result of American Red Cross disaster relief work in the Midwest and lower Mississippi valley. Thousands of head of cattle were evacuated by Red Cross and coast guard workers and high ground in March, April and May. Feed for evacuated "stragglers" livestock was purchased by the Red Cross and the feeding operations supervised by local chapters. In addition, the Red Cross distributed 10,000 packages of garden seed to food sufferers.

"GAY GADGETS" BY NANCY PEPPER G.I. JIVE

We've been checking out your part in the war effort and congratulations are in order! You've made a grand record for yourselves in all the salvage drives; you're investing your allowance and your earnings in stamps and bonds—and, most of all, you're building up G.I. Joe's morale with plenty of small and big packages.

Club Spirit—Lots of teenagers are banding together in clubs to send packages to a different boy each week. Seven girls in one club each week they chip in and make up a super package for one of the home-bound boys and get a letter in return. The way to a man's heart is through his stomach. If it is a stomach that is empty, he won't be able to think of anything else.

None broke at that point as a result of this work. At Fort Smith, Ark., gasoline shortages developed when bulk gasoline plants of major oil companies were flooded. The Arkansas river was boistered, but the Red Cross chapter managed to keep its power boat and workers at the task of evacuating families in nearby Moffitt, Okla., and the Paw Paw bottoms, several miles from the city itself.

At Memphis and New Orleans coast guard and navy officers put helicopters and assault boats at the disposal of local chapters when the Red Cross called for quick assistance in evacuating families and livestock in the path of rising waters in the Mississippi, St. Francis, White and Black rivers.

At Little Rock, when the flood crested there April 20, housewives helped wrap the food in a manpower shortage by joining prisoners and volunteers in sandbagging levees.

Pyle, director of General Electric's plastic division, said that the plastics industry is growing so fast that it is estimated that in the next 10 years plastic products will find their way into our everyday life in ever-increasing numbers.

Dr. Pyle mentioned that they are not broken with a hammer to others as brittle as sandstone; plastics will treat them as they would treat others that are made of hard as glass; certain plastics flow and do not melt at high temperatures; plastics are the best electrical insulators and others are semiconductors; some plastics can be exposed to ultraviolet light and others will change color and there are no matters of size or hours.

Japanese Female Sniper Is Captured by Marines. NEW YORK, N. Y.—The capture of a Japanese female sniper of the war to date was disclosed by Lt. Cmdr. Robert C. Thomas, deputy district officer of the aircraft carrier Franklin. She told a fund rally that the prisoner, who he described as 20 and attractive, was taken by Marines about a year ago in the Marshall Islands.

General's mother named him Dwight because she disliked the sound of boys' names. He was named after her when her son Arthur was called Art and her son Edgar was called Ed. She believed there was no short cut for Dwight.

Gen. Eisenhower never made any secret of the fact that he despised history. He never was far from a book when he was in the field. He never was far from a book when he was in the field.

Among little known facts about Eisenhower is that he is a handy man with a skillet. He enjoys cooking many dishes for friends. Of course, his best culinary job was cooking the Nazi goosesteer.

Before Eisenhower left for Europe to take up his duties as Allied supreme commander, he said to Gen. Marshall: "General, I haven't got time to thank you yet, but I'll thank you when I see you again."

Portrait of Gen. Eisenhower. The general's history-making deeds speak most eloquently of his devotion to America. But when asked about his views on the war, he answered succinctly: "Democracy! Look what it has done for me. Took me off a Kansas farm, gave me the best education in the world; gave me a chance to make a career for myself."

YODORA DEODORANT CREAM. One of Eisenhower's strongest and most appealing characteristics is his deep and sincere loyalty to his country. When he was in the field, he was often asked by his subordinates: "What are your views on the war?" He would answer: "I am a democrat. I believe in the rights of all people. I believe in the rights of all people. I believe in the rights of all people."

A Bell for Adano

John Hersey. THE STORY THIS FAR: The American troops arrived at Adano, a small town, with Major Victor Joppolo, an Army officer in charge. Joppolo, an NCO, was in charge of security. The Major set out to win the trust of the citizens and promised to replace the garrison and to protect the town. The Major set out to win the trust of the citizens and promised to replace the garrison and to protect the town.

CHAPTER VIII. "Giuseppe," the Major said, "I want to see that father because you said he was the most respected of all the fishermen. I want to see the father going out to sea so that Adano will have something besides pasta and tomatoes and olives to eat. That's all there is to eat here."

"That's your kid Giuseppe," Giuseppe said. "Do you want me to get another interpreter?" "Giuseppe, a boss, you're not a kid Giuseppe," the Major said. convenient for secluded rest, the house serves as an island emblem of the chief executive. It safe, its walls are lined with possible up-to-date conveniences, Mrs. Kelly justly excited about the house, she prefers the family cottage near Gaylord... Political gossip centered on what Governor Kelly will do in 1946. That Lieut. Gov. Veroneo J. Brown will run for the governorship is certain. Secretary of State Herman Nigman, friendly to Mr. Brown, is likely to seek re-election. Whether Dr. Eugene Keyes runs is another matter.

Michigan's son, Thomas E. Brown, is still courting public favor as a possible contender for the presidency. Yet the star of former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, veteran of this war, is ascending rapidly. Stassen made a very favorable impression at the Governors' conference.

Whether Truitt, sister of former Governor Murray D. VanWagoner was the recipient of a big birthday cake which was presented by Governor Dewey at a conference reception given by the booth newspaper, Guy Jenkins, dean of the Lansing correspondents, and M. A. Gorman, newspaper editor at Flint, had arranged the surprise.

It may be a bit hard to convince the man on the street that the Governors' Conference was not a waste of time. Its legislative appropriation. But to anyone familiar with the cost of advertising this amount for national publicity, coast to coast, by newspapers, radio and newsreels, it is quite a bargain. It just depends on how you look at things.

U. S. FARMERS WILL PROFIT BY BRETON WOODS PLAN THE BRETON WOODS agreement, the principles of which have been written into the San Francisco Security pact, is a long step in the direction of that world distribution problem that has been so badly needed. It can make possible the feeding of the hungry in whatever country they may be.

It can provide markets for American wheat, corn, meat and other products of American farms. It makes of the world one market for world production. It provides distribution. In the past, for example, when famines hit China, and her people were dying by millions, the government could do but little, if anything, towards providing food, though the food in American warehouses and on the farms was rotting for lack of customers. With the Breton Woods agreement in operation there will be a fund through which China can secure credit on long-time terms, and a stabilization exchange rate.

The fund through which China can secure credit is created by all nations, including China, in proportion to the estimated ability of each, to a total of several billion dollars. It is a revolving fund to be loaned as credit to nations as they may need financial assistance in the promotion of international trade. It should prove an impetus in the development of world production; create an opportunity for the utilization of a nation's natural resources, and by so doing increase living standards. As living standards increase demand for commodities increases, and a wider variety of American farm products wanted.

The American farmer will have a larger, and more stable, market. He will be producing food for the world when the world needs it, and not be confined to America only for his customers. Yes, the Breton Woods agreement is the first long step in a system of world distribution from which no people can profit more than the American farmer. In addition it means more economic stability throughout the world, and that, in turn, is our best guarantee of world peace. The real results will be a gradual development.

WOODROW WILSON FATHER OF SAN FRANCISCO PACT TO WOODROW WILSON, more than to any other one individual, should go whatever credit may be due for the conception of the San Francisco Security pact. It is a realization of his dream. Some months ago I wrote in this column that Dumbarton Oaks was but the League of Nations covenant with the addition of teeth in the way of force, and the probable signature of the United States. After eight weeks of discussion, with a few changes of phraseology, and a few trivial additions, the San Francisco pact emerged as Dumbarton Oaks. President Wilson wanted teeth in his League covenant. They were taken out as a compromise to European statesmen. He wanted the signature of the United States, which the senate, led by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, refused.

The San Francisco pact is what Wilson asked and worked for, but did not see realized. It took another world convulsion, a change in the attitude of the United States toward internationalism, and more adept diplomacy, to bring it about. Yes, Woodrow Wilson was the real father of the Security pact.

THE LADY was wrathful. The railroad had told her she could not have a compartment on a train leaving that day, or any day within a month at the best. That to her, a true American citizen, with money to pay for what she wanted. She was sure American freedom had gone to pot. There were no stinks on the hotel, no imported wines. She could have only two pairs of shoes a year, when she wanted a dozen. The hotel would let her have only a single room when she wanted a suite. It was high time the cuffs of Washington was told where to head in. It was a safe bet that woman did not say war bonds, give blood or roll bandages for the Red Cross, or make contributions to war charities. She only thought of war as American. She was an exception that proves the rule of what Americans really are.

MOST OF THE European countries, including England, are headed toward government operation of international trading. The government to do the buying and selling in foreign markets. Socialistic forces will, if they can, destroy private enterprise in that field, and also in the operation of railroads and other utilities, the mining of coal and other minerals and the operation of heavy industries; the production of consumer goods and merchandises to be handled by private enterprise. America might have been affected.

Sunflowers New Cash Crop for Farmers Sunflowers may soon rival corn and soybeans in food value as well as a cash crop. With sunflower oil selling at 14.5 cents a pound and an acre producing a ton of seed, the farmers around Monticello, Ill., expect to produce more than corn or soybeans. Sunflowers have long been recognized as an excellent source of protein and oil. America imported 130 million pounds of sunflower oil between 1932 and 1934, mostly for edible purposes. One hundred acres of seed, it was harvested by a clipper combine, self-propelled, formerly used for soybeans. Tests made at the University of Illinois showed that the seeds contained 33 per cent protein and were easily digested. The oil was excellent for salads and cooking.
