VOLUME SEVENTY-NINE MANCHESTER, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 20, 1945 $1.50 a Year in Advance NUMBER ONE

STATE POLITICAL POT BEGINS TO SIMMER

Return of war veterans to Michigan civilian life is already promoting speculation about Michigan's 1946 state campaign.

Least Governor Vernon J. Brown is the favorite for Republican nomination for the governorship. Friends of Secretary of State Herman Daman insist that Daman will support Brown and will run for re-nomination.

Among the other persons mentioned for lieutenant governor are the G.O.P. ticket are, in alphabetical order: State Senator George Higgins, Farmdale, State Senator Ivan Johnson, Mt. Clemens; Dr. Eugene B. Kayser, Dearborn, a former contender; State Senator James Miliken, Troy; and Howard Nugent, Ingham Ave., speaker of the House of representatives.

Tom Reed, Shelby former lieutenant governor and State Senator, Don VanderWerp, chairman of the senate finance committee.

Should the Republicans make a straight bid for veterans' votes by including a veterans' work program in their platform? Some observers feel that the Kelly administration with its $60 million fund for veterans and its Office of Veteran Affairs, headed by Col. Philip Peak, has already a strong record of veteran service and that no ticket recognition is necessary.

Widespread unemployment in Michigan, one year from today, would have an adverse effect on the chances for Republican victory in November. Possibility of a Democratic comeback at Lansing is in the 1946 picture. Republican voters cast their ballot as a "pro test".

One reason why Michigan politics have changed recently during the industrial upset. There was the rise and fall of employment in the auto and steel industries. Ford, Packard and Fiat. There were enough independent voters to swing the election when they were aroused sufficiently to go to the polls.

Consider then the prospect of employment following reconversion. According to the Commission for Economic Development, the national employment should be 24 per cent higher than in 1940 and only 12 per cent lower than the peak of wartime production. Grand Rapids, for example, needs a 100 per cent increase in production to equal 1940 production. Grand Rapids, 12,761 in 1940 as compared with 10,816 in 1945. These figures were obtained from employers.

A recent survey by the Associated Press showed most Michigan industrial cities to be in good shape for postwar production. Banks are loaded with commercial deposits and private savings. Studenaker's announcement of a 15-cent increase to hourly-rated workers is said to be first news in the demands for substantial wage increases. Unions have flexed their muscles with General Motors, Chrysler and Ford for a 20 per cent pay boost. The O.P.A. has taken the stand that any pay raise granted after August 15 cannot be included as a labor cost advance in computations under its new cost-price formula.

Eighty-eight Michigan towns are without a physician. Compared with previous days the state has about 2,287 doctors — Lansing, Flint, Pontiac and Clark among upstate towns seeking the Michigan State Fair — U. S. crop forecasts for Michigan: 20 per cent more yield of corn, oats and barley than last year, 26 percent above a ten-year average. One big "hit": An early frost.

One of the "hush-hush" experiments of the state department of health, under leadership of Dr. William DeKline, commissioner, has been a study of ways to prevent infantile paralysis. Because of the state's prevalence there in 1954, Detroit was chosen for one of the tests. Media are now wondering whether they're on the right trail. Detroit's 1954 cases were abnormally few.

If Michigan scientists have stumbled upon the solution, it'll be an international event in the field of public health. But don't expect an announcement tomorrow or next month. It's unlikely that one season's findings could be accepted as a definite proof.

Fileless county fairs are heralded by DPT. Clarence Hart, secretary of the Saginaw County Fair, credited the new wartime discovery for absence of flies there last week. One application kills flies for nearly two months—hard to believe. Flycatcher traps are also a possibility on the farm.

The Pennsylvania-Central Airlines which serve many Michigan towns recently pioneered in a reduction of passenger rates whenever you may travel cheaper by plane than by rail-road. Here is the comparative cost between Detroit and New York City: Airline $22.50; rail-road, $27.89. Tax is additional. The railroad fare includes Pullman service.

LOCAL FARMERS JOIN IN DYNAMIC KERNEL PLANTING

Perry Hudson, the "dynamic miller" of Tecumseh, informed us that the Dynamic Kernel Foundation reaped 2,998 bushels of wheat in its 8th planting crop, originally sponsored by Henry Ford. Participants may have a good idea of the purpose, at only $1 per bushel with the understanding that they will complete one-fourth of the 1946 yield to their own church. The foundation's title of 446 bushels valued at $750 will go to the Tecumseh Friends Church.

Wesley A. Jacob, Margaret J. Kidd, Wesley Proctor and Lawrence Cameron have secured wheat for the planting and tithing to their own church.

TEAM WORK BUILT
OUR GREAT NATION
Farm Organization
To Receive Benefits
Henry Ford, and the many thousands who work with him in the Ford Industries, typify America, and the American spirit of team work. Those industries started with the ability and genius of one man, an ability and genius which would have largely been futile without the assistance of thousands of co-workers in office, laboratory and on the assembly line. At the same time those co-workers would have been helpless without the ability and genius of Ford. The combination has added billions to our national wealth. Directly and indirectly that combination has created millions of jobs throughout the world. It has provided with homes, the necessities and many of the luxuries of life.
It has paid for the rearing and education of millions of children. It is all typical of America and the opportunities America offers.

What is true of Ford and the Ford Industries is also true, in a large or small way, of every production in the manufacturing world which is managed by one, two, a hundred or many thousands. All contribute to the national increase. All provide for the needs of families, and all build for the future. Each contributor is an essential part of the growing American standard.

No that growth each contributed either the genius and ability of a leader, or the strength of the workers. The only exceptions in this world effort of all for advancement are the armies in the American Civil War, and the armies of other nations who demand being fed, clothed and sheltered.

Henry Ford, and those who work with him, will pass, but what they have created will remain to benefit future generations. The plans and the spirit will go on. The billions they have added to the national wealth will still be here.

Such is the way of America.
What it has established as a people, to grow in numbers, in wealth, in living standards.
To it all contribute. The pioneer who tilled the forests or broke the sod of the plains to establish farms and communities, built for future generations. The farmers who conserve their soil work, not alone for themselves but for future generations as well.

What it all means in the way of living standards for us of today, and what it will mean for those of a future, can be measured with a few simple figures. In 1916 the average annual wage paid to American workers was $247. One hundred years later, in 1936, the average wage for workers had increased to $1,132. Each dollar earned in 1936 would buy four times as much as did each of the $247 of 1916. Our living standards had increased to four times what they were one hundred years ago.

No other nation can show better than a small fraction of such an increase. We have led the world in production, in numbers employed, and in technological skill, together with scientific development and genius in leadership and management. These things have absorbed all but a small fraction of the increased returns paid the workers.
The Hear, Fords and their millions of co-workers drive America forward under our private enterprise system.

Back of each factory job in the United States there is, as an average, done to a minimum dollar investment in buildings and tools. Without that investment there would be no jobs, and there

A Bell for Adano

By John Hersey

THE STORY THIS FAR: The American troops arrived in Adano, Italy, in the morning. The sergeant in charge of the company was Major North. The sergeant in charge of the company was Major North. The sergeant in charge of the company was Major North.

CHAPTER XVIII
Life in the p.w. cage was not very pleasant for Major North. None of the men had blankets, and the nights were pretty cold, so they slept in close rows, keeping their bodies as warm as they could. But no one would sleep next to the Fascist. The Fascist was a German from being a mistake.

Major North told him that he was the sergeant in charge of the company. He said that he was the sergeant in charge of the company. He said that he was the sergeant in charge of the company.

For a couple of days Major North moved over and lived with the Germans. They made plans for the escape. There was nothing elaborate about the plan. They just decided to lift the Major up over the wall. They asked him if he had the courage to do it.

So in the middle of a dark, clouded night, the Germans made a pyramid of their bodies and let Major North climb up to the top of the wall. He sat on the barbed wire on top of the wall, quiet as a cat, until he was sure that the sentry outside had marched to the other end of his post.

The Top Sergeant at the message called up Sergeant North at eight-thirty the next morning and told him that North had escaped.

Sergeant North borrowed Corporal Chuck Schultz and a jeep from the M.P.'s and went burning. By that time Sergeant North had so many voluntary informers and informants that the job of tracking Major North was not too hard.

He soon found out that Major North had been sheltered for a few hours in a house on Via Roma. He had then left town by the Via Roma. He had stopped in at a farmer's house near the Casa Zambano to change into peasant dress.

Major North had then been seen at several points along the Vicenza road. One farmer had given him a lift in his car. Major North had evidently had enough of the hills, and was trying now to get to Vicenza, where friends would be able to hide him.

Sergeant North picked him up three miles short of Vicenza, at about ten-thirty. He had been passing Major North all morning, so that he was not particularly alarmed when Sergeant North's jeep drove up alongside him, and even when it stopped, he waved cordially and shouted: "Good day, good day," in what he thought was a thick peasant accent.

Sergeant North mimicked the accent: "Good day, good day, farmer." Major North, who still did not recognize North, shouted again: "Good day." North shouted: "Good day. You are the first farmer I have ever seen with pince-nez glasses on." Then Major North knew North. Major North's spirit, which had been strained by the arrest and by the days in the cage and by the escape, suddenly broke. He turned and ran out across the fields, squealing crazily, just like a soldier who had broken under shelling.
