

Washington Merry-go-round

LIKE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS WASHINGTON. — The American people are now beginning to realize that the road to peace after war is never easy. Beating our swords back into plowshares sometimes is more difficult than facing the swords of battle.

But one encouraging milestone on the road to peace now is under way in New York where the smaller nations of the allied world, who for months have had to sit and take it from the Big Four, now debate on an almost equal footing.

Many may have forgotten it, but this issue of free debate caused a bitter battle at the San Francisco conference. Molotov the wanted to settle free debate. He proposed that the general assembly of the United Nations not even be permitted to discuss or criticize decisions of the big powers sitting on the security council.

Australian Foreign Minister Ewart, spokesman for the little powers, opposed. He went further and demanded that the general assembly under the regular principles of democracy have the power to review the security council. He was rebuffed, not only by his own "majority" but also by the isolationist-minded senators of the U. S. delegation.

In the end, the general assembly was given the power to discuss, discuss, criticize, and recommend—but not to carry out. That is what it is doing at the present sessions.

Behind the iron curtain, public opinion still is tightly controlled. When it is controlled, there will be no longer worry about what we need the USA and the USSR, respectively, the Russians in New York and the Americans in Moscow.

There are few weaker spots in the White House than Truman's press aides. Yesterday Charlie Ross, the President's secretary, was seen in the White House. He is the only one of the most gentlemen in Washington, Ross is by no means a secret agent and never a spy.

Harry Truman could place an ad in the papers, probably he would read something like this: "Wanted—Good press secretary, willing to work long hours, must be practicing newspaper man, not afraid to say 'no'. Low salary, but private car and plenty of prestige. Call National 1414 or write H. T. 1000 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C."

EXTI — "320 club" is folding up for many reasons and Gen. Omar Bradley, the Veterans Affairs secretary, is deeply concerned over their ability to recruit members.

In These United States Toy Cars, People and Trees Recreate Accidents in Court

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Toy cars, miniature replicas of people and even diminutive trees recreate the setting of traffic accidents in the court of Guy Shearer, police judge pro tem. "We're not playing with toys around traffic court," Judge Shearer insists, adding that the project is intended as a means of speeding up cases.

Deciding that action on traffic court cases was unnecessarily slow, conflicting evidence in a minor case often requiring nearly two hours for presentation, Judge Shearer decided to modernize and streamline the procedure.

Judge Goes Shopping. The judge went shopping, studying the business district for several hours before he finally found seven toy cars in a dime store, paying 10 cents each "out of his own pocket."

When a traffic case is called, a map covering the particular type of scene where the accident occurred is set up and witnesses are asked to place the model cars where the street-side vehicles were at time of the accident.

Threat of A-Bomb Impels Easterner To Head for West

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y.—The threat of an atomic bomb has impelled something like this: The United States has the atom bomb, but soon other nations will have it. If there were a war between two of these nations armed with the atom bomb and the United States, that would be the enemy's main target.

Corner Shelf and Colorful Cookie Box

There is magic in the flowing curves of this bracket shelf. Place it at eye-level in a corner of a small room and you have a feeling that the corner has melted away and the walls pushed back to add space.

The shelf is 18 inches deep and fits into the corner of a room. You can make a wooden cookie box for the shelf.

Pattern and directions for making the corner bracket shelf and the colorful cookie box are available for free.

Disaster fighters

Few Americans realize that the protection of thousands of lives and billions of dollars' worth of property rests in the hands of the peacetime Regular Army.

Army Engineers are constantly at work along our great rivers, building dams and levees, dredging channels and using the latest scientific methods to control flood waters.

And when the rivers burst their banks, those same Engineers are ready to battle night and day, raising sandbag barriers and rescuing flood victims.

Many of the nation's best young men are joining the Regular Army, knowing that they will have an opportunity to work with the most modern equipment and do a constructive job of unusual value to their country.

Duke McCabe, private detective, is guarding the wedding present at the festive mansion. He senses that old Miss Adelaide is afraid of something more serious than that. He sees the bride and groom-to-be, Victoria and Curt Valencourt, and 'Vivacious' mother, Ruby, and her brother and sister, Stephen and Victoria. There is a stranger, a man dressed in a tuxedo and a woman in a dress.

He recognized her immediately. It was Mrs. Bigelow. She dressed the situation with Ann Marriot, his secretary and fiancée, while they are dining at a fashionable night club.
