Arabs and Jews Go Back to War
As U.N. Truce Fails in Palestine;
Truman OKs Farm Price Support

By Bill Schoeniger, WNU Staff Writer

FAILURE:
U.N. Truce

There was not peace, but there was a truce in Palestine. The United Nations truce had failed. As the four-week truce expired, hostilities between Arabs and Jews resumed. The truce had been broken by the Jews on both sides, but the Arab side was more serious.

Stage Manager

Rep. Hugh B. Scott Jr. of Pennsylvania, who has been called the "stage manager" of the Democratic campaign, is expected to be a key figure in the party's strategy.

BERLIN:
Trouble

As U.S. planes continued to fly over the Berlin blockade, the situation in the city grew more tense. The blockade of Berlin had brought the world's attention to the city.

FARM BILL:
Price Support

To the accompaniment of his own customary blast at the 80th Congress, President Truman signed a farm bill that extends price support policies for 15 months and establishes a long-range, flexible support program to begin January 1, 1950.

REPUBLICAN:
Changes, If

Although the presidency of the United States will be far from ready for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the Republican nomination process is under way.

Spending Money

As the economic cooperation administration closed its Marshall plan books on the first three months of its operation, it reported that recovery shipments worth $1.7 billion were approved for Europe and China during that period.

THE FICTION CORNER ONE MORE JUMP

By ROBERT C. BLACKMON

"I've told you it makes no difference to me, Ralph, and I don't care. It really doesn't."

"Don't dismiss the moral gold of Harriet's hair, dismissed the blue of the light dotted buildings rising above the flat roofs upon which she and Ralph pulled stand. It filled with deep shadows the narrow slot of the alley between them, and the noise of the city was a secret about them, isolating them from the rest of the world."

"That's what you think now, but you'd get straight in your thinking in a few weeks, or months, or years. Then it would make a lot of difference." Across the alley, Ralph Pull looked toward Harriet on the low brown parapet. The other building and shook his head in slow deliberation. Pink seem glow spilling into the alley from the street light down gilded on his brown eyes and made odd shadows in his curly brown hair. It came toward him as if possible color the top of his belted sport shirt. "After that it would always be there between us. Or rather, it wouldn't be there."

He laughed harshly and reached down to feel, through heavy trousers, the device which substituted for the flesh and bone he had left on a back in Harriet's when she pushed from the ground next perchance drifting silently in the darkness. He would never forget that.

"No, Ralph." Harriet's small fist struck the stained fabric of the low parapet. "The best thing for both of us is to do as I suggest now. Harriet said that quickly, almost desperately."

"Let's talk about you peeping at me on my roof here this summer. Let's talk about you waiting downstairs to introduce yourself at the paper. Let's talk about the things we have been together, the things we have done. Let's talk about our meeting up here with the alley between us in the evening. Let's talk about it. Her voice stopped for a moment on an odd sharp gasp. "Let's talk about the big ape coming from the city zoo this afternoon. Let's..."

"Ape escaping from the zoo?" Ralph Pull stood, tall and slender in the night. "I haven't heard anything about it. You're sure?"

"You probably missed it." Harriet laughed a little shrilly. "The ape is big and black and scroochy. I-I certainly wouldn't like to meet him up here on my roof alone, with no one here to help me. Goodness! Goodness!" She shivered suddenly. "No chance of that." There was amused tolerance in his grin. "The ape's probably back in his zoo cage."

"I'm glad to get away from humans. And I don't peep at you on your roof. I looked. It can't be a crime to look at someone and beauty in the world. It can't be a crime for me. Ah! Let's talk about the ape!" He finished quickly, harshly.

DAYTIMER IS YOUNG AND SMART DRESS FOR SCHOOL OR PARTIES

By ROBERT C. BLACKMON

For a moment, he was drifting down through the black Normandy night, a huge pile down above him, a mass of soft, warm, downy things, the ground, the muffled shock of bullet striking.

His artificial foot struck the other parapet and slipped off. He fell. There was a quick, breath-holding drop toward the pavement still doors down, then his cutting arm struck back. Brown fingers curled over a sharp edge, grasping. Strain came on the arm as he stopped the fall, and his weight all at once had come from his leg and he got his leg up. He landed the heel over the rest of him up. He rolled over the parapet, and the other side of the gravel roof of the other building.

He landed the heel over the rest of him up. He rolled over the parapet, and the other side of the gravel roof of the other building.

For a moment, he was drifting down through the black Normandy night, a huge pile down above him, a mass of soft, warm, downy things, the ground, the muffled shock of bullet striking.

His artificial foot struck the other parapet and slipped off. He fell. There was a quick, breath-holding drop toward the pavement still doors down, then his cutting arm struck back. Brown fingers curled over a sharp edge, grasping. Strain came on the arm as he stopped the fall, and his weight all at once had come from his leg and he got his leg up. He landed the heel over the rest of him up. He rolled over the parapet, and the other side of the gravel roof of the other building.

BOOKLYN PORREITS TO PL. LAKE; ARCHYANTS DEFEAT CLINTON, 4-3

by JAW

The game between the Booklyn Porreits and the Archyants at Pl. Lake was a thrilling one, with the Archyants prevailing by a score of 4-3. The game was played on a hot day, and the players were all in excellent form. The Archyants' pitcher, John Smith, was the star of the game, throwing a complete game and allowing only three runs. The Booklyn Porreits' pitcher, Tom Jones, was also in good form, but he was unable to keep the Archyants' bats from hitting.
