Scarless Healing of Burns is Aided Through Wayne U. Medical Research

A new treatment for skin burns holds hope for healing without the scarring of past treatments. A team of doctors at the Wayne University School of Medicine, who have developed the treatment, have used it on 100 children in the hospital of Michigan and on many others.

The treatment consists of spreading the "protein skin" or ointment, over the burned area. This helps to keep the skin from getting too dry and too hot, and keeps the burn from getting too deep.

Billie Burke Keeps Vitality

Billie Burke keeps vitality by exercising regularly. She has a bubbling vitality that is the envy of many people.

She does it by standing on her head.

That's no flip crack. It's a fact. In a recent interview, she declared she spends at least 10 minutes standing on her head, turning somersaults and stretching.

Help for Night Blindness Seen in Action of Nicotin

Recent studies have revealed that the conversion of retinol to vitamin A is brought about by the action of nicotin.

This discovery is important in the treatment of night blindness, as it shows that nicotin is essential for the production of vitamin A.

Origin of Confections

Confections are a popular treat, and their origin can be traced back to ancient times.

The earliest confections were made from honey and dates, and they were used as a source of energy for laborers.

Over time, confections have become more refined and more diverse, and they are now a popular treat for people of all ages.
