Oklahoma Ranch Rodeo Sunday A Big Success

The flavor of Oklahoma invaded the town of Manchester on Saturday when the Oklahoma Ranch Club, managed by Bob and Minnie Merithew, staged their annual rodeo. There was a parade on Saturday, a fitting introduction to the rodeo on Sunday.

Early Sunday morning beneath a summer blue sky flecked with fleecy clouds, activity started. The many trailers and camps of those who remained overnight, teemed with activity. Horses were fed and given a last grooming, and the pungent odor of frying bacon permeated the air as many partook of a group breakfast.

Stands were opened, the chuck wagon functioned, eager people gathered early to be assured of a good position, horses were warmed up and everywhere was good "horse" talk. Gear was inspected and the eager children were ready for the morning events even before the management.

At one p. m. the rodeo opened with the Grand Entry. This picturesque procession boasted 206 participants as the banner floated in the breeze and Old Glory proudly flew at the head of the procession, a scene of American life and pleasure. The bright club colors, the various riders in their colorful array, shining gear, brilliant serapes and eries of pure exuberance filled the eye and ear.

"Tom" Goodridge acted as rodeo marshal and the various attendants, pick up men, chute tenders and assistants mingled with the riders and participants in a medley of color and action. The natural amphitheater glowed with color and warmth and attracted a large crowd from far and near. The program of events and winners are as follows:

Evelyn Feldcamp Weds A. C. McKeen of Detroit

In a ceremony at 7:30 Saturday evening in Emanuel Evangelical and Reformed church, Evelyn Feldcamp spoke her marriage vows to Alexander C. McKeen of Detroit. The Rev. Kari Rest performed the doubling ceremony before an altar of white gladioli and candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Feldkamp of Manchester. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John McKeen of Detroit.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of ivory slipper satin featuring an illusion neckline, fitted bodice, and long sleeves fitted in points over the wrists.

Her hooped skirt ended in a long train and a fingertip veil was held by a crown of satin. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and white mums.

As her sister's matron of honor, Mrs. Norman Fielder of Manchester wore a gown of lavender marquisette over taffeta. She carried a colonial bouquet of lavender mums and white roses and wore a headpiece of lavender and white mums.

As flower girl, Sharon Peltier of Detroit wore a full length gown of yellow organdy and carried a colonial bouquet of white mums and yellow roses.

Gerard H. Hilbers of Detroit was best man. Lauren P. Feldkamp of Ann Arbor, brother of the bride, and George Davidson of Detroit seated the guests.

John Neuderfer, the soloist, sang "Because" and "I Love Thee Dear" before the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" following the ceremony. Mrs. Royal Davidter accompanied at the organ.

Mrs. Alexander C. McKeen, the former Evelyn Feldkamp.

A reception for 125 guests followed the ceremony. Cutting the cake was Mrs. Kenneth Feighner of Detroit; pouring punch was Mrs. Lauren Feldkamp of Ann Arbor; and Gertrude Fugenschuh, of Detroit was in charge of the guest book.

Others assisting were Judith Whaley of Pontiac, Sue Merriam, Pat Schwab and Mary Jean Engel of Manchester.

For traveling the bride wore a two piece navy shantung dress with navy and fuchsia accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Mr. and Mrs. McKeen will be at home at 1439 Hollywood avenue, Dearborn, after a 10-day wedding trip.

Before her marriage Mrs. McKeen was honored at several showers. Miscellaneous showers were given by Mrs. John McKeen of Detroit; Mrs. Kenneth Feighner, Gertrude Fugenschuh and Judy Whaley, all of Detroit; and Mrs. Charles Walz of Manchester. A personal shower was given by Pat Schwab and Sue Merriam, both of Manchester.

The bride is a graduate of Manchester high school and Henry Ford Hospital School of Nursing and is now employed at Ford Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Cass Technical high school and the University of Michigan School of Engineering. He served 18 months with the U. S. Air Force and is now employed at Cadillac Motor Car Company.

The event, according to John Walz, is to start at 12:30 p. m. rain or shine and will feature the latest in farm tools and machinery. Farmers are invited to try the machines on display among which will be the new Oliver diesel power "77" tractor. Also on display will be a good supply of plows, drills and other types of equipment.

C. J. Keck of Manitou Beach, Oliver field man, will be present to demonstrate some of the machinery.

This is the second field day held at Johnny's Service. The first was held in 1949.

Ruthman-Jensen Vows Exchanged
Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Clark were the attendants at the marriage of her sister, Mrs. Julia Jensen to August Ruthman at the Methodist parsonage at Fowlerville. Rev. John Cargo officiated at the service which took place Saturday afternoon, August 18, at 4 p. m.

Consumers Powers Requests Increase In Gas Supply

Authority to supply natural gas house-heating service to 10,000 additional customers was asked of the Michigan Public Service Commission today by Consumers Power Company. Vice President M. W. Arthur said the petition was filed as soon as the Consumers Management felt it reasonable to proceed. The fact that the filing came one day ahead of the effective date of an order of the Petroleum Administration for Defense intended to restrict the connecting of natural gas house-heating customers in 15 states including Michigan, he said, was coincidental. He pointed out that the Public Service Commission could exempt Michigan from the P.A.D. order by certifying that it is exercising its authority to control the use of natural gas and that service to defense industries is not endangered.

GOV. WILLIAMS

The Constitution of Michigan provides that the Governor may shorten the sentence of a state prisoner when it appears that the law is working an injustice or a hardship.

This power is given to the Governor as a sort of ultimate protection for the individual citizen in extraordinary cases.

Last week I felt conscience-bound to use this power of commutation in a very unusual case. I commuted the sentence of Thomas W. Flynn, Berrien county labor organizer, Flynn was sentenced to pay a $750 fine and serve one and one-half to four years in prison for doing $60 damage to an automobile.

Excessive Penalty Flynn's case is one in which the penalty far exceeded the crime. An ancient Michigan law was applied in an unusual manner and excessive punishment resulted.

There is no question that Flynn was guilty of a law violation. He was convicted of participating in tipping over an automobile during a picketline row near St. Joseph in 1948. No one was injured in the altercation, but the automobile was damaged to the extent of $69. Anti-Poisoner Law There is a law on the statute books of this state which makes willful damage to an automobile punishable as a misdemeanor.

Other cases like that of Flynn have been prosecuted under that law. Had Flynn been prosecuted under that statute, he would have been subject to a jail sentence, probably about 30 days, and a fine. But he would not have been sent to prison for a long time as a felon.

But Flynn was charged, tried and convicted under another statute originally enacted to punish the poisoning or killing of cattle, horses and other livestock. Under this law obviously intended to apply to quite different circumstances, Flynn was convicted of a felony. It was the first time this cattle-poisoning law had been applied to a case of this nature.

Court Ruling Thus Flynn, for an act involving damage and committed in the heat of a picketline row, got a penalty which the Legislature thought appropriate for those who maliciously administer poison to horses, cattle or other beasts.

His sentence was more severe than in many cases of calculated crime for profit. But the technical legality of the unusual prosecution was established. The supreme court, by a split decision, ruled that his trial under the old cattle-poisoning law was legal. The parole board after reviewing his case, reported to me that it was not within the framework of our usual deliberations, and declined to make a recommendation.

It was evident that the courts and the corrections system were powerless to correct the excessive penalty imposed upon this man.

Governor Acts The framers of the Constitution foresaw that this kind of situation would occur from time to time. That is why they gave the Governor the powers of executive clemency.

My order commuted Flynn's sentence to the time he had already served in the state prison automobile at Jackson—a little more than 30 days. That is about what he would have served had his prosecution been conducted in a normal manner. His $750 fine has been paid and it still stands.

I feel that this heavy punishment for yielding to anger and violence in a picket line will be amply sufficient to deter others who are tempted to use violent methods in labor disputes.

Family Hardship I was influenced in this case by the fact that Flynn's family has suffered severely from his imprisonment as a felon. His wife is bedridden in a hospital at Jackson with a severe spinal ailment. She is unable to support herself and her 13-year-old daughter.

Flynn is a citizen of good repute who has never been in serious trouble with the law before. His probation report shows he is a frequent churchgoer in his home community of Sawyer.

the public, Farrell said. Commenting on the program, Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, said: "The teamwork between an important industrial concern and a university research staff which is contemplated by the project is exactly the kind of mutually beneficial program that we envisioned when we launched the Phoenix Project. That the study of tree and plant physiology should result in immense benefits to mankind will be the common goal toward which both of our institutions will strive."

Scientists know that the presence or absence of trace elements—iron, boron, copper, zinc, manganese, molybdenum—is of tremendous importance to the growth of virtually everything humans eat. Beyond that, little is known definitely.

"Operation Tracer" will attempt to discover how plants assimilate trace elements, and determine which elements, how much, and in what form they should be applied to make corn, potatoes, wheat, peas, etc. grow faster and better.

Although only small amounts of nutrients are needed by plants, spectacular increases in yields have been obtained when they were added to deficient soils.

Iron sulfate sprayed on soy beans in Iowa doubled the yield. Without zinc sulfate, sweet midwest soils in Michigan. But with the application of 100 pounds per acre, yields of more than 8 tons per acre are possible.

The program calls for a full time director, assistant director and other personnel. It is expected the director will be named shortly. Headquarters for "Operation Tracer" are now located in the School of Natural Resources, Ann Arbor. Some phases of the work will be carried out in other sections of the state.

Considerable new equipment, including electronic machines, will involve radio active materials.

From Your Congressman

A Weekly Report From Congressman George Meade

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—An effort to incorporate in the Mutual Security Act my proposal for creation of a bipartisan commission to study means of throwing the full force of American private initiative into the world-wide combat against communism was defeated in the House of Representatives last Friday night.

This proposal did, however, receive the support of exactly one-third of the members of the House present at the time of the vote, which was 63 to 126. It was offered as an amendment to the Mutual Security Act. The effect of this amendment was the same as the bill I introduced on April 23.

The Mutual Security Act, authorizing $7,500,000,000 for military and economic assistance to free nations of the world and creating virtually a new department of government to administer a combination of our foreign aid programs, was adopted by the House by a vote of 260 to 191.

This bill still must be acted upon by the Senate and by a conference committee of the House and Senate. I am firmly convinced that the tremendous scope and expense of the administration's foreign aid program demands penetrating study of what is best for our national interest, and the blueprinting of a definite policy. Therefore, I shall continue to press for the adoption of my study proposal by the Senate. I will also seek to get action on my bill in the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

On both Thursday and Friday of last week I sought in speeches on the floor of the House and in letters to every member of the House to impress upon my colleagues the critical need for assaying our present position in foreign affairs and our future course.

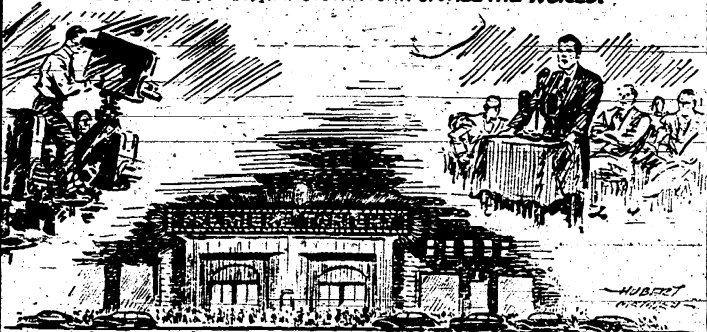

In part, this declaration was as follows: By facilitating American in-tribution. We can aid our friends overseas by exporting our capital and our mass-production methods if the barriers now restraining overseas investments are removed.

The removal of these barriers will not be easily accomplished. This problem has thus far defied solution—although there has been nothing to prevent the State Department, the ECA or other executive agencies from solving it if the capacity to do so exists in them.

This problem will not be solved unless we assemble the best minds in this country both as members of a commission and as members of its staff—equip them with adequate funds, and fact-finding powers, and delegate to them the task of finding out what ought to be done.

It seems to me it is logical and intelligent for us to find out what we ought to do before we start doing it. Spending public money is not enough. We cannot buy friends. Our economy cannot support the rest of the free world indefinitely.

The Hoover Commission cost about $2,000,000. The program the Mutual Security Act inaugurates may well cost a hundred billion dollars over the next 10 or 15 years. It would be folly and false economy to refuse to spend a comparatively insignificant sum to find out if our objectives cannot be more economically and effectively accomplished. It requires so great intelligence to spend and spend.

We have given away over a hundred and twenty-five billion dollars to aid other nations in the last decade. That has not solved anything. Before we give away another hundred billion in the decade ahead of us let's see if there is not a better way of fighting communism. I believe exporting our free economic system is a better way. I believe we can do it if we harness the best brains in the country in a bipartisan commission to grapple with this problem.

Success cannot be assured. But we can try. If we have faith in our American principles, we will.

TAKE STEPS TO BUSINESS SUCCESS

Senator Moody Speaks

The United States is engaged in a tremendous mobilization program, the objective of which is to strengthen our defenses and those of our European allies as to deter Communist aggression or to contain it should it be launched.

This program will tax our resources to the utmost. It will impose severe strains upon our expanding production capacity, and it will eat heavily into our reserves of raw materials.

The bone of our defense structure is steel, and the muscle is power. In both these categories we are facing critical shortages.

Thus, it is that a project which for many years has been regarded as a useful and desirable adjunct to our national economy now becomes vital. Never regarded as a luxury, it now becomes a necessity.

There probably is not a member of this Congress who has not heard all of the arguments for and against the completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway. I submit that the few arguments in opposition to it fade into insignificance and unreality in light of present circumstances.

So essential, in fact, is this proposed inland waterway to the defense program and to the establishment of an economic and military bulwark in Europe that its construction is urged by: The Joint Chiefs of Staff, the permanent United States-Canadian Joint Board of Defense, the National Security Resources Board, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, jr., Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, Chairman of the Munitions Board John D. Small, Chief of Army Engineers Major-General Lewis Pick.

These esteemed gentlemen were motivated, I believe, by the following considerations:

Expansion of the steel industry to an annual output of 130,000,000 tons under the mobilization program will increase iron ore needs to more than 150,000,000 tons annually.

This will require importation of upwards of 40,000,000 tons of ore annually, principally from Labrador and Venezuela.

Since a substantial portion of imported ore will be destined for the steel mills of the Great Lakes area, which represent more than 70 percent of national capacity, the Seaway would be the logical route. It would also be the most economical—offering savings of $2 to $3 a ton over combination sea-rail transport.

Seaway construction would be economical of critical materials as the entire project would require only 160,000 tons of steel, as compared with 4,000,000 tons which the railroads propose to use in new construction in 1951 alone.

The Seaway would greatly enhance the security of the United States and Canada as well as the countries of western Europe. It would afford a safe inland route for the shipment of iron ore from Labrador in wartime, a route comparatively secure against Soviet submarines.

The Seaway would reduce exposure of trans-Atlantic shipping to enemy action by shaving 1,000 miles from the open water route.

The Seaway would relieve congestion of rail facilities and coastal ports in time of emergency and provide an alternate route should enemy action disrupt or destroy existing facilities.

Should the Sault Ste. Marie locks be rendered temporarily inoperative by hostile action, the Seaway would provide a second avenue for the bulk movement of ore.

A substantial portion of the so-called "hard goods" which the United States is sending to its NATO allies is produced in the Midwest. Transportation, either in American or foreign bottoms, would be cheaper via the Seaway.

Annual shipments of grain, averaging 10,000,000 tons, to European countries would move at substantial savings via the Seaway route.

Opening of Midwestern ports to European vessels would contribute to the economic well-being of our NATO associates.

I have confined my observations to the transportation phase of the St. Lawrence Seaway, leaving the hydroelectric power development to my esteemed colleague from Vermont. I wish to state for the record, however, that in my opinion the power development project is of equal importance and is as urgently needed for the national defense as the Seaway itself.

In conclusion, I should like to emphasize once more the self-liquidating aspect of the Seaway proposal. I submit that no other project which might be included in either the Foreign Aid or the National Defense programs in the foreseeable future has this highly desirable attribute.

Hindsight has shown us that the TVA project, which was conceived as a regional development, actually was in the na-

Perfect—Peach and Plum Jelly

By Frances Barton

Peaches are good... and plums are good... but have you ever tried them together? If not, then you're missing a real treat in store for you.

For a perfect peach and plum jelly, you need a perfect balance of fruit. When those fruits are ripe, they make a jam that will be a real treat to your appetite and taste buds.

So if you're looking for a new treat in store for you, why not try this perfect peach and plum jelly?

The standard method of jelly making is a real boon to all busy housewives. It makes it possible to preserve the full rich quality of your peach and plum jams in only a 1 minute heat. Then too, there is a yield of half-grain more glasses when precious fruit juices aren't boiled away. Try this recipe while peaches and plums are in abundance.

Peach and Plum Jam. Yield: about 10 six-ounce glasses. 4 1/2 cups prepared fruit, 5 1/2 cups sugar, 1 box powdered fruit pectin.

To prepare the fruit: Peel and pit about 2 pounds fully ripe peaches and chop very fine or grind. Pit (do not peel) about 1 1/2 pounds fully ripe plums. Chop fine. Combine fruits and measure 4 1/2 cups into a large sautpan. To make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in sautpan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with a spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with 1/4 inch hot paraffin.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Sunsets over water make very effective pictures.

You'll Do It Sooner or Later

IF you've never known a picture taker, no matter how casual his interest in snapshotting, who didn't sooner or later get around to trying a snapshot. If he doesn't, it may be because he doesn't know it can be done with simple equipment. But it can.

It is difficult to establish any hard and fast rules for this snapshotting subject because such natural phenomena are more often characterized by beauty than uniformity. Normally, with the sun hidden by clouds, but still above the horizon, you could use an average snapshot exposure. This means that it is within the scope of the box camera fan. Later on, during the after-glow, a longer exposure—and therefore an adjustable camera—will be necessary.

Color film, of course, is the ideal medium to capture the sunset hues in all their glory. It's heartening to know that if you miss the exposure a little, you'll still get a picture. Slight underexposure will merely deepen the colors a bit while an overexposure will make them more delicate. Of course, you can go too far in either direction. But your chances will be good if you try the early parts of the sunset at about 1/50 at f.5.6, increasing the exposure as the scene darkens.

When using black and white film, you'll need to rely a little more on the contrast between cloud and sky to make an effective picture. With a sunset that is a riot of vivid oranges, reds, and yellows, regular snapshot film is best. Ordinary snapshot film will yield good results, in fact, may give a more striking effect than would a panchromatic type film since its contrast you want.

There are many ways in which you can enhance the beauty of a sunset sky. How you choose to do it will depend on the particular picture. However, framing the picture with tree branches is always effective and usually possible to do.

—John van Guilder.

Soldiers Get Technical Insight

What makes an Army tank go? These soldier-students at the Armored School, Fort Knox, Ky., are learning part of the answer by studying a cut-away model of the cross drive transmission. The workings of the model are matched with the actual tank gears so that the soldiers get a true insight. Today's modern Army emphasizes technical training.

Rapid Food and Fiber Consumption Forces U. S. Farmers to New High in Production

BACINE, Wis.—With the nation presently consuming at a greater rate than its farms could produce in 1950, it is estimated that the 1952 demands will be even greater than 1951 production. Farmers faced with an ever increasing shortage of manpower are looking to American industry for the labor-saving equipment necessary to meet the new and greater demands.

In wheat alone, the decline in carry-over, has fallen from the desirable 500 million bushels to 83 million bushels. The U. S. civilian population is increasing at the rate of 2 million persons per year, and civilian per capita food consumption shows a 13 per cent increase over the 1935-39 average. Partial military mobilization calls for a big increase in food needs and the volume of agriculture exports is up 50 per cent.

The Massey-Harris self-propelled combine shown harvesting soybeans above, is part of American industry's answer to squeezing the most out of agricultural production.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Top Michigan Republicans who attended the annual picnic of M. Ziegler and United States Oakland County Republican Rep. George A. Dordero, of Roy-men, Young Republicans and al-Oak Lincoln Clubs, heard a scathing rebuke of a "stagnant party" from Republican leader W. McKay Skillman.

The papers are full of the Fair Deal appeals of Gov. Williams and Democratic Senator Moody, Skillman said, "but who is heard in opposition?"

"Continuance of a subservient, docile, anemic and ineffectual Republican Party can result only in a one-party system of government, and that would end our liberties as we know them."

Skillman said he spoke freely now because he was not and would not be a candidate for partisan political office.

In Skillman's audience were State Chairman Owen J. Cleary; National Committee woman, Rae Hooker of Mt Pleasant; Auditor General John B. Martin, Jr. Republican candidate for the Senate; Treasurer D. Hale Braker;

Michigan's National Guard is $2,000,000. The expense of keeping our citizen army trained and updated on modern warfare runs $18.47 per day during the two-week stay for each of the nearly 7,000 guardsmen in field training.

Maj. Gen. Ralph A. Loveland, guard commander, told the men, "get the most out of your training activities... it's taxpayers' money that pays for all this..."

Michigan's taxes always are news. The joint legislative committee, considering the state's muddled taxation system and mounting deficit (a predicted $75,000,000 by June, 1953), has asked for suggestions from a citizen advisory committee. The citizen committee requests more information.

Michigan Boy Designers Win

WINNERS in the annual model car competition of the Fisker Body Craftsmen's Guild are Jackson Melichar (left), of Traverse City, who took first state and regional honors in the Senior Division (ages 16 through 19), John Wolfe (center), of Detroit, and William G. Billmeier (right), of Saginaw, shared in duplicate top state awards in the Junior Division (ages 12 through 15). Young Billmeier's father is a General Motors' employe and Craftsman's Guild regulations provide for duplicate awards when a GM family member qualifies. Each of the three boys received a cash award of $150, and Melichar's model went on to take regional honors, and a chance to win a university scholarship in the national competition.

The legislative group states: The tax structure is full of inequities, either more money is needed, the present money must be better distributed or state spending must be reduced.

County fairs are experiencing a banner year. A general 10 percent increase in attendance over last year is the average report by fair officials.

Work on the new state office building is going ahead on schedule. Houses on the block-square plot west of the Capitol building are being razed and the site prepared for digging. What will be housed in the new building? The only sure bet is that the Highway and Conservation departments and Civil Service Commission will win berths in the modern structure.

Conservation Department experts predict a record-breaking number of fishermen this year. They expect deer to exceed the 1,856,000 resident and non-resident permits sold last year.

Permits to hunt deer in the special December seasons are being distributed to license dealers. Those intending to hunt deer of either sex December 1-5 in the Northeastern cherry country or antlerless deer December 1-10 in Allogan County must hold a permit in addition to the regular license.

Potatoes will continue to be sold under federal grade standards and consumers will likely find no difference in the quality of Michigan potatoes from other states.

Growers, however, will be able to build up a "repeat" order business by offering consumers high quality. Other states ship only their highest quality product in Michigan because paying freight rates on lower quality products does not pay. Prentice feels growers can meet this competitor by marketing equal quality at a lower price.

A watermelon eating contest is now this year. The Old Timers Show will be the scene of the Shon's Shering contest at which skill and expert timing will vie for honors and prizes.

WD TRACTOR 3-Bottom Mounted Plow

Fall plowing gives the WD and its new 3-bottom plow a chance to show what they can do. Let us prove to you that the WD will do the work of a much heavier tractor and that the new square-built plow is built to take it.

Two Allis-Chalmers features:

1. HYDRAULIC TRACTION BOOSTER automatically puts extra weight on the WD rear wheels as the drawbar load increases. Takes off the extra weight as soon as you pass the tough spot.
2. THE PLOW IS FREE-SWINGING. It follows contours and is free to dodge rocks. Short-coupled hitch gives quick penetration at the ends and mounts the plow bottoms close to the rear wheels for uniform depth control.

Let us prove it in your own fields.

An above average yield per acre for all Michigan field crops has been predicted by the federal-state crop reporting service. Yield for hay and potatoes may be the highest on record.

There are 40,000 Federal employes in Michigan. Divided by $3, it works out to nearly 400 Federal employes per county. What on earth can they find to do?

Polio the crippler is with us again—or yet. According to Health Department officials "this looks like an 'average year,' as no epidemics have been reported. They said 416 cases have been reported in the state thus far. There were 300 cases in the same period last year; 687 in 1949. The 1950 total was 2,029 cases.

Quality Potatoes More Important With Order Out

What will discontinuance of the potato marketing order on Aug. 15 mean to Michigan of "Irish" potatoes?

Clarence Prentice, Michigan State College extension specialist in marketing, believes it will mean little. However, the grower marketing a quality product, free from waste and defects, will be in a better position to gain and hold a high demand for its product.

Past experience with a certain brand or pack is the most important point housewives make in determining what package of potatoes to buy when they market. Prentice cites a Michigan State College research survey which shows this factor rating well above the price of the package.

Growers in Michigan and five other neighboring states last month voted against continuance of the marketing order which established a committee for making regulation on the size and quality of potatoes that could be marketed in any year.

Last year, operation under the order was thought necessary because of support prices. But since supports are no longer available to potato growers, many of them apparently saw no value to the order.

Vloch Leaves MES Commission
John R. Vloch, farm labor specialist in this area for the past 8 years, has resigned his position with the Michigan Employment Security Commission to accept a position as executive secretary of the Michigan Bean Producers Association in the Saginaw area. He will assume his new duties on August 27, 1951, and will be working with approximately 60,000 bean growers in 25 counties promoting the bean industry.
Mr. Vloch wishes to express his thanks to all farmers and cooperators in this area for the fine cooperation extended him. Farmers in this area have gone a long way in solving their farm labor problems through their broad foresight in better housing, better planning and better relationship between workers and themselves. It is a credit to the farmers in this area in achieving these goals and he feels in general, the farm labor situation in this southeastern area is in better shape today than it has been in years past.

Mr. Vloch's office will be located in the Goff Building in Saginaw.

CREAMY SHERBET HOLDS TOP FOOD VALUES
You know a couple of weeks ago we were discussing all the things that can be done with buttermilk or sour milk, well, here's another good idea for the summer cook. And don't let the fact that you may not be a buttermilk drinker cause you to shy away from this recipe—you wouldn't even know the buttermilk is there if you didn't see it.
Buttermilk supplies the same protein, calcium and riboflavin you get in whole milk, and frozen orange concentrate is for all practical purposes equal to fresh orange juice in Vitamin C content.
The finished product is unusually creamy and light of texture with a thoroughly pleasing freshness of orange flavor. You can put it together just about as fast as you can measure.
Florida Sherbet
One envelope unflavored gelatine.
One-half cup cold water.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
One six-ounce can frozen orange concentrate.
Three six-ounce cans (two and one-fourth cups) buttermilk.
Combine gelatine with the cold water in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water and heat until softened gelatin is dissolved. Add the sugar and stir to dissolve. Remove from heat, and stir in the orange concentrate and the buttermilk. Stir well and turn into freezing tray.
When mixture is partially frozen, remove to mixing bowl and beat with electric beater until

Social Security News For Farmers
"Do I, as the operator of a small farm, come under the Social Security Act?" This is a question which is being asked quite frequently, according to Sidney Laurens, manager of the Social Security office, Jackson, Mich.
It is true that some farm people came under the Social Security law on January 1, 1951, but not farm operators. They will continue to be excluded because farm self-employment is not covered under the amended Social Security Act. Hired farm workers came in under the Social Security Act the first of the year, if they earn $50 or more cash wages in a calendar quarter and are regularly employed by one farm operator.

The term "regularly employed" has a special meaning for agriculture workers under the Social Security Act. In order to come under its protection, the worker must establish a working relationship with his farm employer by working several months on a full time basis. After the working relationship is established, the worker must be paid at least $50 in cash wages, and work in at least 60 days of every three month period to get continuous social security credit.
Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Willey of Toledo and Mrs. John Schied of Ida called on the Walter Trolz family Sunday afternoon.

Rodeo . . .

Bruce Vaughn, Swanton, Ohio, on Pat, 2nd. Muffi Beagle, Jonesville; 3rd. Lois Tudor, Detroit, on Sandy.

Bareback Bronc Riding: 1st. John Gee, Toledo, made the only qualified ride. 2nd, 3rd and 4th money was divided as ground money among the following riders who did not make a qualified ride: Bill Cox, Genoa, Ohio; Dan Harrison, Sylvania, Ohio; Roy Ostrander, Adrian; Duane Vaughn, Jackson; Sonny Simmons, Wyandotte; Joe Frantz, Taylor Center; Chuck Muirhead, Saginaw; Arnold Lane, Jackson.

Saddle Bronc Riding: 1st. Bob Kimberly, Evansport, Ohio, and Russ Cook, Toledo, Ohio. These two riders tied on first and second money which was divided equally between them. Eight other riders did not make a qualified ride, but the third and fourth money was divided equally between the following: Joseph Frantz, Taylor Center; Joseph Porath, Wyandotte; Kenneth King, Sylvania, Ohio; Dick Chapman, Ann Arbor; Don Porath, Wyandotte; Ray Ostrander, Adrian; Wilson Kimberly, Defiance, Ohio.

Brahma Bull Riding: 1st. Dear Morey, Sylvania, Ohio, made the only qualified ride. Second, third and fourth money was divided equally among the following: John Gee, Toledo; Dean Hall, Ann Arbor; Bob Hamlin, Ann Arbor; Billy Stevens, Toledo.

John Gee and Tod Shadley of Toledo, Ohio, gave an exhibition of bull dogging as an added attraction.

There were 206 horses in the arena during the Grand Entry and 304 entries in the different events and classes. The high money of the day was won by Vernon Asquith of Stockbridge, who roped and tied a calf in 26.2 seconds, winning $124.00. All together there was approximately $650 paid out in prizes. The ropers did not make the time this year that was made last, as the top man in 1950, John Rodriguez, made a catch in 15 seconds flat. However, this year Brahma calves were used which are the best and fastest for roping.

There were not so many qualified bronc and bareback riders this year but far better bucking horses were used. This year the spectators saw the best bucking horse ever to appear at the Oklahama Ranch Rodeo. For the first time the rodeo used Brahma bulls for the bull riding event and this provided more excitement for both the spectators and riders.

The bulls and bucking horses were furnished by Milo Morgan, who used this same stock at Soldiers Field, Chicago, two weeks ago in a five day rodeo. The stock came direct from Springfield, Ohio, to the Oklahama Ranch Rodeo.

Modernized Home Keeps Civil War Era Charm

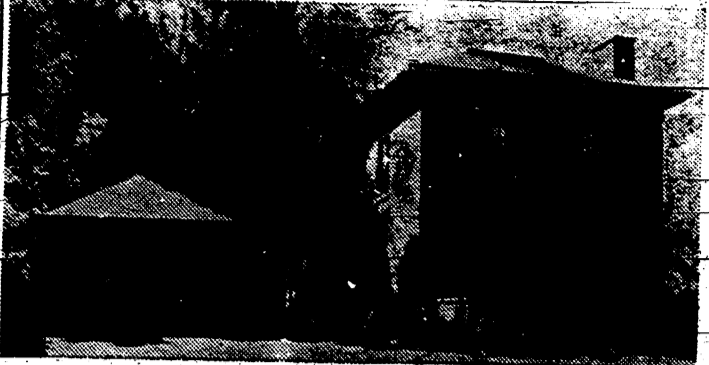

Remodeling brought this 80-year-old home up to date without losing any of its Civil War era charm.

Despite its old style of architecture, small rooms and inconvenient layout, Practical Builder magazine, the house was made completely modern inside and out.

An unusual feature of this modernization project was the construction of the garage and breezeway of the same odd-sized sand and clay brick as contained in the original building. An adequate supply of this obsolete brick was obtained by purchasing and dismantling another building erected in the Civil War period. In this way, the addition was made to look like a part of the original structure.

The problem of how to remove the "undesirable" front porch without making the front of the house look bare was solved by taking away the porch superstructure and leaving the stone foundation and railing. This provides a patio for flower planting and a place for relaxation.

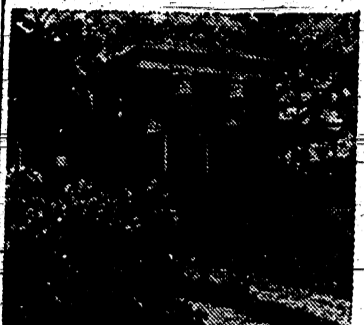

At the same time, the house was made weathertight by application of a new roof of fire-resistant asphalt shingles. Asphalt shingles in a subdued color were selected to "reduce the height" of the house to give it a more compact appearance. Bright-colored asphalt shingles are often used to give squatty houses an appearance of greater height. The roof color is the dominating note in exterior color planning.

Improvements also included relocation of the front entrance and numerous interior alterations. Replacing a closed stairway, new stairs and baluster, finished in mahogany, blend nicely with the new mahogany vertically planked interior of the living room. Tastefully decorated throughout to accentuate its classic simplicity and beauty, the house provides an excellent example of what can be done to combine the best features of "new" and "old" in home modernization.

A Gift That Pleases "Him" and "Her"

THE FREQUENTLY difficult task of selecting a silver gift that appeals to both men and women has been solved by International Sterling's new individual steak knives. The women are delighted with their beauty while the men are mighty glad because the blade, made from the finest carbon steel, has a keen edge that really cuts. The metal-bound and leather-finished chest holds eight knives. The gift is available in all International Sterling patterns.

Consumers Power Co.

Over a period of years Consumers Power Company and its subsidiary, Michigan Gas Storage Company, have invested $80,000,000 to provide a plentiful supply of natural gas in the outstate Michigan area. It certainly would not be fair to our customers or to the company to accept unnecessary Federal regulation at a time when some of the benefits of the long range program are about to be realized.

In addition to restrictions on the use of gas for space heating, the PAD order also restricts the sale of gas to new industrial customers and for increased requirements of present industrial customers. Consumers' assertion that there is ample gas available to take care of all industry in its territory including the increasing requirements of its present customers as well as new defense plants coming into the area. It declares there is no reasonable basis for any limitation on the sale of gas in its territory except for space heating, and that it is unreasonable to require approval of Federal agencies before arrangements can be made to serve industrial needs in outstate Michigan.

Under a plan proposed by the company, the 10,000 householders would be chosen by lot from among those applying for house-heating service within a specified period. The company estimates that 50,000 additional householders in its service area want to use natural gas for house-heating.

Consumers supply natural gas house-heating service in a large part of Michigan area including Bay City, Flint, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Marshall, Muskegon, Port Huron, Saginaw, and Toledo, Ohio. Presently, 222,000 natural gas customers of whom more than 100,000 are now using natural gas for house-heating. Connection of additional householders to the Michigan Public Service Commission's gas system, according to the petition, the company's ability to supply natural gas for house-heating has been strengthened by these developments.

begins. After the Federal Power Commission has acted in gas allocation proceedings now pending, it may be possible, according to the petition, for Consumers to take on still more house-heating customers.

The company points out that it is faced with higher costs of gas, and unless additional business is attached whereby increased revenues may be obtained to partially offset increased costs, it will not be able to earn a fair return. "This may be the fact even though additional business is attached," the petition asserts, "but unless additional business is attached, the petitioner will inevitably be faced with substantial losses and will be required to apply for an increase in its rates."

Bus Schedule

William Rinehart and Melvin Lamb.

According to Supt. Downing the school buses will start their run at 7 a. m. and arrive at the school at 8:30. He asks that parents help and try to have the children out in plenty of time so that buses can keep on schedule.

There will be two sessions of kindergarten again this year as between 45 and 50 children have enrolled to date. Of this group six kindergarteners will attend the afternoon session. They are Linda Goddell, Kathleen and Madreen Kirk, Ruth Eversole, Ann Dayss and William Rinehart. These children will be picked up sometime between 11:45 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. and will arrive at the school at 12:30 p. m. They will be taken to school by Mrs. Jean Wheeler who took the rural afternoon kindergarteners last year.

A new school bus, 48 passenger Ford Wayne body, will be added to the bus system here and will be put on Russell Widmayer's run when it arrives according to tentative plans. The reason for the new bus being used as Bus No. 1 is because of the hills on the Sharon run.

Mrs. Pat Patterson and Jerry and Dale Randall attended the Consumers picnic on Saturday.

Fascinating Fashions

Best fashion news we've heard is the word that the sheath dress is travelling over into fall—in sleek fall materials, and fall colors. . . . This simple, extremely becoming style has done yeoman service in so many wardrobes this summer, that a lot of us are beginning to feel it is the true basic "little dress." It can be strapless, it can be sleeveless with a low, scooped-out throat-line or sleeveless with a high, chaste collar, but always it is simplicity plus.

"A sleeveless, grayed-black shantung sheath dress, which I wore this summer," Peggy Lobbin of CBS's "Rosemary," remarks, "can well be carried over into fall."

Peggy plans to accessorize it in a number of different ways: with two emerald green chiffon scarves, she can achieve a dramatic effect for informal dinner wear, for instance.

One of the scarves she ties around her waist as a sash in place of the dress's belt—and the other she knots casually through one shoulder for a lively splash of color. A very very brief red velvet bolero and belt with large, sourish gold buckle, gives her still another dramatic effect.
