RURAL AMERICA HAS IMPORTANT PART IN PROTECTING HOME FRONT

Even if forewarned of war, our armed forces cannot prevent attack for there is no sure way of keeping enemy planes from getting through our defenses. The enemy's first objective will be to upset the life of the civilian population, as well as to destroy war efforts and to kill and injure people.

It is the task of the civil defense program to organize and train millions of Americans in such a way that they will be prepared to render the best possible service at the moment it is needed.

Another important aspect is the training of the people in such a way that they will be able to cope with the emergency. This is done through the use of the "Home Front" program.

With care, trucks and tractors available farm people are equipped to aid any stricken area within their reach. Mobile support, rescue and evacuation work are phases of civil defense that rural folk are especially qualified to do.

Organized civil defense can do these things. The second item is to organize the people in such a way that they will be able to cope with the emergency.
