Supt. Downing Resigns Post

Superintendent V. W. Downing has informed this office that he has resigned as superintendent of the local schools and has signed a two-year contract to serve as the superintendent of the Litchfield schools. The contract offered him an annual salary of $5,800. The local board had offered $5,500 to Supt. Downing which is an increase of $500 over the amount paid him this year.

The Litchfield school system received much publicity last year when the superintendent there was found to be padding his school enrollment records to gain increased school funds from the state.

It is understood that there have been several applications for the position vacated by Superintendent Downing. Mrs. Downing expects to move to Litchfield and give up her post here as kindergarten teacher as it would be a long distance to drive back and forth to teach here. Supt. Downing will begin his work in July at the Litchfield agricultural schools.

Lawrence Schied Is Reelected To Fire Chief Post

Lawrence Schied was reelected chief of Manchester's volunteer fire department. There are seventeen on the department and the boys reported being called out to nineteen fires during the past year. Paul Eisele was named assistant fire chief to replace Rolly Grossman.

Chief Schied noted that there were no particularly large fires during the past year. Royal Davidter is captain and Herbert Widmayer is the secretary-treasurer.

Earl Alber, Willard Mann, Lyle Widmayer, Herbert Widmayer, Russell Widmayer, Harry Johnson, Frances Heckaman, Homer Kappler, C. H. Eisenbauer, Harold Alexander, Royal Davidter, Paul Eisele, Bill Kramer, Rolly Grossman, Johnny Wallace, Clarence Schaible and Schied make up the local force. An Open Letter To The People Of Manchester

The time has come for us to say good-bye to the people of Manchester.

For eleven years the Downings have lived and worked among you, both in the schools and in the community. We are now called to another field for work among other people.

During the past few weeks we have received letters, had phone calls and have had many personal appeals urging us to continue our work in the Manchester Schools.

For these expressions of sincere interest we are deeply grateful and the warm feeling that we have for Manchester will always be a cherished memory.

To the members of the Board of Education, the faculty and student body, and to the patrons of the Manchester Public Schools, the Downings wish to express their sincere, yet regretful farewell.

Our new work calls us to the Litchfield Rural Agricultural Schools on a two-year contract beginning July 1, 1952.

Sincerely,
Vernon Clythene Downing & family

GOV. WILLIAMS

REPORTS TO THE People

The Legislature has adopted another tax bill and sent it to my desk.

This bill would change the name of the three percent sales tax now charged on liquor purchases. The new tax would be called not a "sales" tax but a "handling" tax. The effect would be to take the proceeds from the tax on liquor out of the sales tax pool, and thus withhold it from the schools, cities and other local units of government. The bill would result in a progressive loss to the schools ranging from $500,000 to $2,000,000 a year.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction issued a report recently saying that we should invest $400 million dollars in our school system to bring it into line with the needs of our increased child population.

Under such circumstances, it doesn't make sense to take money away from the schools. However, the state is in grave financial trouble and I will have to examine this bill carefully on its merits before making a decision whether to sign it.

I have signed more than 30 bills during the past week. Most of these were of relatively minor importance but some you should know about.

One bill amends the Fire Prevention Act to authorize the State Police to move in and control situations where communities are threatened with gas explosions.

Another important measure establishes new criminal penalties for those who injure or kill others while hunting. Imprisonment of not more than two years or a fine of not more than $200 is provided for hunting accidents involving recklessness but not malice.

This was one of the measures I recommended in my message to the Legislature last January. Most reckless hunters cannot be prosecuted for homicide because there is no malicious intent. This new law will make it possible to punish those whose recklessness amounts to crime.

A companion bill which I also signed into law prohibits hunting while intoxicated and provides for confiscation of the weapons of drinking hunters.

I was also glad to sign a bill making the Michigan Cherry Commission a permanent agency. Under the old law the Commission would have expired on December 31, 1953.

This agency has done a great deal to promote the marketing of Michigan cherries, one of the farm crops of which Michigan is justly proud.

Another bill which I signed into law makes it a misdemeanor to refuse to give up a telephone party line in case of emergency.

This new law results from cases in which homes burned down because neighbors refused to interrupt a telephone conversation so the fire department could be called.

All telephone directories must contain a printed warning of the new law.

I am always glad to meet school children who come to visit the Capitol. Every week crowds of them come to Lansing to see the Legislature at work and to file through the Governor's office.

But I didn't realize how many of them have visited us until I got a report the other day showing that I have shaken hands with about 10,000 school children who have visited the Capitol since January 1.

It's a wonderful thing to bring the children of Michigan down here to see for themselves how the state's business is conducted. I wish every civic or political science class in the state could come here and visit their capitol.

It always gives me a personal lift to meet them. They are living proof that the great heart of Michigan is strong and that the future of our state is bright.

I signed into law three bills which will be of special interest to local communities faced with tremendous property losses because of record high water levels.

One of these bills authorizes counties to zone lake-front property to prevent construction of new buildings dangerously close to the water-front. Another gives to townships the authority to build breakwaters and similar control structures. The third gives to all political subdivisions the right to spend money to control beach erosion.

There still remains a fourth bill which I urged the Legislature to act upon. No action has been taken by the State Senate to revive this bill which died in committee.

This bill would increase the authority of the State Water Resources Commission to cooperate with local communities in meeting the problem of high water levels.

At a series of meetings held in Lansing we set up an emergency state flood control council.

The council, composed of various state agencies, will concentrate on distributing warnings to areas which are affected by high water conditions. They will provide technical information needed by the local communities desiring to establish a local program to cope with the problem.

Finally, the council will mobilize the resources of the state and federal governments and private organizations so they can be promptly brought to the aid of those areas hit by floods.

Inside The Capital

By Lieut.-Gov. William C. Vandenberg

Michigan Republicans are finding, in their early campaign year surveys, ample evidence of a demand for forthright and honest leadership. They appear to have substantial cause for forecasting a decisive victory in November.

The Party is prepared to go into the campaign unified and strong. There is widespread dissatisfaction with bewildered, loose-end government which seems to have as its purpose the exploitation of the people for the benefit of the favored few.

Those who work for a living, whether in factories, in the fields or in other endeavors have seen their buying power become stagnant, while national income and production mounted sharply. They have learned that blind tax and spend policies, in the state and nation, are doing them great harm. They are tired of donating a week out of every four to support drones and their fantastic schemes. Leadership of high order, which will meet the problems of the day head on, and which will cut the activities of government to a pattern which the people can afford, rather than to the wishes of those on the public payroll, was never more needed.

It is essential, for the good of those who earn their living and pay the bills, that pranking government be replaced by sound government. The management of the affairs of a great state is a trust of vital importance. It should not be entrusted to pixies, whose inclinations lean toward having fun rather than leadership.

Responsible government will seek ways of cutting expenses, rather than searching for ways to raise more money. Education, institutions for the care of the mentally and physically sick and the healthy development of agricultural and business production and employment deserve full support. Agencies created for the pleasure of cliques deserve elimination.

The people deserve some consideration. They haven't been getting it.

Republicans Endorse Nomination

Kent County Republican Convention March 18, 1952

Kent County Republicans, in convention assembled March 18, 1952, unanimously endorse the candidacy of John B. Martin, Jr. for nomination on the Republican ticket for United States Senator.

As a former State Senator and the present Auditor General of the State of Michigan, John Martin has proved himself an able and honorable public servant. He is a staunch Republican, an ardent and implacable foe against corruption and waste in government, and against socialistic trends and centralization of governmental power.

A veteran of World War II, a family man of the highest personal integrity, a leader of strong and pleasing personality and exceptional platform ability, he is in every way fitted to follow in the footsteps of our late, great, beloved fellow citizen, Arthur H. Vandenberg.

John Martin is a vigorous and tireless campaigner who has hosts of friends and supporters in every county in Michigan. He will bring immeasurable strength to the Republican ticket this fall, and with his youth, vigor and high sense of public office as a sacred trust, will prove eminently worthy of the confidence of the electorate by his illustrious service in the United States Senate.

Requires Posting Of Prices

A regulation requiring approximately 10,000 restaurants and other eating establishments in eastern Michigan to post dollars-and-cents ceiling prices for their meals and principal food items and beverages was issued by the OPS, Philip A. Hart, Detroit district director said recently.

The regulation freezes restaurant prices at the level shown on menus or charged during the week of February 3-9, 1952.

Those frozen prices, with permissible adjustments by operators who have been charging prices lower than permitted under the present restaurant regulation (CPR11), will be the dollars-and-cents ceilings which restaurants will post.

The posted prices may be changed in the future only by the direction of the Office of Price Stabilization. The regulation provides that future adjustments may be made if the Director determines that food and other costs have changed significantly, either upward or downward.

The regulation became effective April 7, 1952. OPS District Offices are now sending out the posters. They must be displayed not later than April 25, 1952, by restaurants in a place where they will be easily visible to customers.

The posters, carrying the official OPS insignia, have spaces for 40 principal food and non-alcoholic beverage items customarily served by eating places. If an establishment also serves alcoholic beverages, a poster with spaces for listing ceiling prices for 20 items must be displayed.

For most eating places the new regulation will replace CPR11 which has permitted restaurants to adjust their own menu prices so long as they gave the same percentage of food per dollar of sales over a four-month accounting period as they did before Korea.

In issuing the regulations, the OPS emphasized that the general level of food prices is now fairly well established and the monthly Wholesale Food Price Index, issued by the Bureau of Labor Statistics has not risen during the past several months.

As a result, he said, the principal effect of the new regulation will be to stabilize restaurant prices and enable eating places to charge prices which reflect their pre-Korea margin.

"We are now making arrangements," Mr. Hart said, "to set up a series of meetings in key areas in our district. Business analysts from the Detroit district office price department will counsel with restaurant and tavern proprietors at these meetings, explain the new regulation in detail and assist those businesses affected as much as possible.

"The new regulation is being mailed to all those establishments which have filed their ceiling prices under CPR11 with the Detroit district office."

Dutch Royal Couple Visits United States

Queen Juliana of the Netherlands is on her first official visit to the United States since becoming monarch in 1948. With her husband, Prince Bernhard, she will spend several weeks in this country visiting Washington, New York and Midwestern and Western places of interest.

The royal couple has brought one of the famous Dutch carillons as a gift from the Dutch people to the American people in token of friendship. It will be erected in a national park near Washington. Left behind in Holland to go to school are their four daughters, Princesses Beatrix, 14; Irene, 12; Margriet, 9; and Marjorie, 5. Photo shows the family enjoying a final tea party together just before the parents' departure for America.

with marbles and skates—are a part of springtime fun that no child should miss.

But kite-flying now has some dangers that didn't exist back in the days of horses and buggies and kerseane lamps. Last year, for example, a boy was badly burned when an electric line was short-circuited and brought down by a kite string. Accidents like this needn't happen.

R. P. Douglas, head of the Detroit Edison Company's safety department, has some simple rules for keeping the danger-out-of-kite-flying. Here they are:

1. Always fly kites in open fields—away from overhead wires and away from streets and roads where traffic is an additional hazard.
2. Use a wooden frame; wood is a non-conductor of electricity.
3. Use "plain" kite-strings; avoid all tinsel wire or cord that has any appearance of being metallic. Metallic cord can carry electricity to your hand and cause painful injury or fatal shock.
4. If the kite does catch on a pole or tree, leave it there. It's too hard to lose it but making a new kite is fun—and climbing for the old one might result in a fall or electric shock.
5. When you are running to raise your kite or keep it up in the air, watch your step rather than the kite—it may save you a bad bump or tumble.
6. To remind boys and girls of the rules of safe kite-flying, the Detroit Edison Company has placed a supply of colorful "Captain Marvel" kite-safety comic books in every one of its offices throughout southeastern Michigan. Parents are invited to take copies home to their children as an aid to setting a good kite safety record in this area.

Veterans Needed For Civil Defense

Here's a message to veterans from the Michigan Office of Civil Defense. "Michigan's local Civil Defense officials need your experience to help organize and train efficient Civil Defense units to protect your community in the event of sudden enemy attack." Brig. Gen. Lester J. Mittling, State Civil Defense Director said.

"Whatever your former military specialty, there's a place for you in Civil Defense."

"Men are needed for Ground Observer Corps posts, and for police fire warden, rescue, transportation, communication and many other services in every community," the General said.

YOUR MOORMAN MAN

mazoo, Berrien and Oceana, reports Director Charles Figy, Michigan Department of Agriculture.

He urges all farmers having livestock—appearing sick to report same to his local veterinarian and/or Dr. Lee Davisson, State Veterinarian, formerly of Manchester, immediately.

Anthrax is an infectious and communicable disease to all types of animals and humans. Therefore, everyone is warned not to handle the sick animals. Furthermore, do not handle animals that have died until proper arrangements are made regarding the disposal of the carcass.

All rendering plants will be informed that they will not be permitted to move any dead animals until a certificate has been obtained from a local veterinarian stating the cause of the death of the animal.

It has been reported that Anthrax has been found in samples of bone meal shipped to the United States from outside the country.

Every effort will be made by the Michigan Department of Agriculture cooperating with the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry to determine the cause of Anthrax in Michigan and to stop its spread.

Farmers Are Reminded Of Michigan Seed Law

Farmers are reminded that any agricultural seeds offered for sale must be tested for purity and germination and carry a tag or label showing such purity and germination and other legal information as is required by law.

The only exemption to the requirements of the law is the movement of home grown seeds between farms.

Agricultural seeds advertised for sale or sold through public auction sales are not exempt from the provisions of the law and must be tested for both purity and germination and carry the legally required tag.

Any person in doubt should write the Seeds Division of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Lansing 13, Michigan, for information.

Farmers in this locality have been anxiously watching the spread of anthrax, a livestock-killing disease in two nearby counties of Lenawee and Hillsdale while state agricultural officials worked to pin down the source of the infection. They said that further outbreaks may be expected due to contaminated bone meal feed, but insisted that there is no reason for panic in Michigan's livestock industry.

Dr. Lee Davisson, state veterinarian, formerly of Manchester, recommended that all farmers stop using feeds containing bone meal or tankage until the source of the disease can be established definitely and the infections brought under control.

Penicillin is used by veterinarians to treat the disease. Strict quarantines are placed on sick animals and on the farms. State officials believe that the type of anthrax which has broken out in the state is not highly contagious.

Dr. F. S. Leeder of the state health department said Friday in Lansing that there is little danger to humans from the disease.

"Our primary concern is for the safety of farmers, veterinarians, rendering house workers and others who might come in direct contact with the infected animals," he said. Penicillin is almost 100 per cent effective in treating the disease in human beings, he added.

Two state officials, Dr. Davisson and William C. Geagley, state agriculture department chemist, differ as to the source of the disease, although their superior, Director Charles Figy of the agriculture department, said in Lansing it is likely that the disease came from bone meal feed imported from Pakistan or Belgium or both.

Source In Feed.

Dr. Davisson said he personally stumbled onto the first cases of anthrax and located the source of contamination in a certain brand of feed. He refused to name the brand, however.

Geagley declared that his laboratory has been unable to gather enough data to prove the feed is the source of the disease.

The dispute leaves farm leaders here with the impression that the source of the disease has not been pin-pointed, although they agree that imported bone meal probably is the source.

The bone meal is brought to America in ships which use it for ballast. Bone meal produced in America is steamed at a temperature which controls the anthrax spores.

Until the current outbreak, anthrax has been unknown in Michigan. In the South it is controlled by vaccination. It has been prevalent for years in Europe and Asiatic countries where the vaccine was first developed and is generally used.
