Like Dumplings, But Better

The essient way to achieve such a dough is to make it with margariase. Not only does the margariae give flavor, but it also helps make the pudding brown to a golden color during baking.

Fresh pitted sour cherries make this dessert especially good. But well-drained camed or frozen pie cherries may be used with excellent results. If the latter are used, use the juice instead of water for making the sauce-syrup in which the puddings are baked.

CHERRY BOLL-UP PUDDING

1 1% cups water, or water and juice

1/2-1/2 cup milk
2 cups sour pitted cherries
well-drained
1/2 cup sugar

Mix well-drained cherries with 4 cup sigar and spread evenly on dough. Roll up like jelly-roll. Cut roll into 1½-inch lengths. Set each roll cut side down into baker containing syrup. Bake in moderately hot oves. (425 F.) 20 to 25 minutes. (If metal bakers are used, bake at 450° F.) Serve warm or cold.
