It was back in 1832 that Major John Gilbert patented the land on which the village of Manchester now stands. Apparently he saw that it was a favorable site for a village, and with a view of building up his interests here, he contracted with Emanuel Case for the construction of a grist-mill.

The lumber used in the erection of this early industrial concern was prepared by the contractors, Mr. Case and Harry Gilbert. So it was that the first saw-mill, first grist-mill and the first hotel were erected in 1832.

This area of Southern Michigan was a country of rivers, rolling hills, and "burr oak openings."

Described by Cooper James Fenimore Cooper, in one of his visits to the region, described the landscape as "rolling," and the hurr oaks as a "small variety of a very extensive genus. say, of 25 years ago. None of those old models were there. They would not sell today if they did try to make them. They just could not compete.

We have exactly the same thing in this chicken business. We have been slow to make the change, but competition is forcing a tremendously rapid change right now. We have kept many of these old models way too long.

Practically a new generation of younger, aggressive, scientifically trained breeders have arisen the last few years who are bringing about this revolution with their new improved Hybrids, such as the Ames In-Cross. the Strain and line crosses such as our H&N "Nick Chick" Legherns and our other Leghorns, and the very careful breeding by families that produce our other chicks.

We at Amsuttz, do not even try to do this breeding ourselves. We leave that up to the breeders from whom we get our breeding stock. We buy scientifically produced breeding stock from them. Several of these lines, we hold exclusive franchises to produce them in our area.

Our organization is large enough, so that we keep alert to new developments in the field. In fact we had investigating teams out on both coasts during 1954 checking up on new strains coming up.

We have the new 1955 models in the poultry field all the way from Fords. Chevrolets and Plymouths to the Cadilliacs. They are efficient profit makers for you.
