New High School Ready Classes Start Tuesday, Girls' Blue Jeans Taboo

Fred Atkinson, Superintendent of the Manchester schools said that everything is in readiness for the opening of school, Tuesday, Sept. 6 following Labor Day.

There are a few things which should be made clear, he pointed out. One of these concerns a "Blue Jean Rumor."

"Although everyone is expected to dress neatly for school there has been no restriction made excluding blue jeans for boys. However we do not expect junior high girls to attend school wearing jeans, slacks nor shorts."

"Now that we have adequate locker facilities for girls there is no longer justification for junior or senior high school girls to wear jeans on gym days," Mr. Atkinson said.

Junior and senior high school girls are requested to purchase the regulation gym suits which are being sold at the local Dry Goods Store.

School officials point out that the new high school is 85 per cent finished with only a few details to be completed. A complete inter-communication system has been installed in the new high school enabling the office to contact all of the rooms at once or any one room by conversation with that unit.

There will be no auction of school equipment as previously anticipated as school officials are making use of every possible piece of equipment and the only things not being used or stored for future use has been termed as "of no possible value." Books are being furnished from one through the eighth grades.

An entrance on the west side of the old high school, now called the intermediate building, has been cut to make the school more accessible to the primary building at the west of it. Children will be using this entrance for gym classes and later for hot lunches as well as a fire exit.

School will be held only in the morning, Tuesday, and the afternoon will be devoted to teachers' meetings. The two morning sessions of kindergarten will meet from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m. in their respective class rooms. The afternoon session will begin at 10:30 a. m. Parents are asked to bring children in for their first section kindergarten, as these children will be picked up according to schedule.

Superintendent Atkinson said that a 1500 gallon gas tank has been placed at the new high school to serve as a fire tank for the new building.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Fred Atkinson and Mrs. Robert Trent, wives of the superintendent and principal, held a luncheon for all women teachers and wives of teachers and the secretaries at the intermediate building, to acquaint the teachers.

Hannah Dedicates School

Doctor John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, will deliver the address dedicating Manchester's new high school on Wednesday, September 25.

Luther C. Klaser, president of the school board, announces that interesting ceremonies will be planned for that night in the big new gymnasium.

Educators from the University of Michigan and Michigan State University and school officials from nearby schools will be on the official list. The complete program will be published in a later issue.

Dr. Hannah has paid the Manchester area a compliment by accepting this speaking date in spite of a heavy traveling and speaking program that is keeping him out of the state much of the time. Under Hannah's stewardship, Michigan State has accomplished a running program that has won world wide interest. During the Korean conflict, Dr. Hannah was assistant secretary of Defense in charge of manpower.

Manchester's new high school has created much interest on its own part. Educators from many states and more than one foreign country have studied its new and unusual features, particularly from the standpoint of the flexibility and economy of the structure.

Hospitalized

The condition of Allen Schaffer, who is hospitalized at Mercy Hospital, Jackson, where he was taken in a motor ambulance Monday afternoon was reported as "improved." Mr. Schaffer is suffering from a virus infection.

Returns From Music Camp

Miss Linda Beck returned home Sunday from the music camp at Jackson, where she was camp director for the eighth week summer camp. This was Linda's second year serving in that capacity.

Voters OK Rural School Disposal

Responsibilities for maintenance and protection of the new County Court House which the Board of Supervisors accepted Thursday will not begin until September 1.

Until that date the contractor, A. W. Kutsche, will be responsible. This extended date was set so that insurance and maintenance help could be obtained.

The architect told the board before they accepted the building as substantially complete that this would remove responsibility from the contractor for damage from the contractor for damage which might be done to the building in the two Circuit Courts.

September 1 was also set as the date for official beginning of responsibility because the new contractor and building Superintendent stand on that date.

The architect further told the Board that they could by accepting the building as substantially complete move offices into it as soon as possible, though the contractor may be in the building for another three months.

If the board waited to accept the building when it was finally complete another three months may be wasted while the contractor is doing minor jobs which could as easily be done during occupancy.

Completion of the special mill creek in the two Circuit Courts will not be complete for approximately three weeks. It was announced by Hartford Insurance Co. that the clerk's office will move into the Circuit Court rooms as completely, due to the close relationship of their activities.

Planning for the dedication of the new building was postponed until a later date when the final completion date of the proposed two-decker parking lot is known.

Members of the dedication committee asked the board when they should plan the dedication, this Winter or next Spring.

This question must be answered before the program can be planned. Mrs. Lucille Smith, county clerk told the board. Time of year must be known, she said, so the length and place of a program can be decided.

A winter program would necessarily be short and inside, she said, where a spring program could be longer and out of doors. Mrs. Smith felt along with others that people would enjoy a long program in the cold or in a building.

Emery Mulholland, Supervisor suggested that no decision be reached on this until it is known at what time the new parking lot would be finished. Completion of the lot will be sometime next spring.

Labor Day Marks Opening Of Sportsmen's Trap Shoot

Manchester Sportsmen's club is to officially open the trap shoot on Labor Day at 1 p.m. on the newly purchased club grounds. The Manchester sportsmen's club was formed three years ago and now has approximately seventy members.

The trap range and archery range are the first steps in building a "bigger and better club" according to Robert Trent in charge of the project.

The trap range was built according to Remington Arms specifications. The range is in good repair and officials said that if a building project should start in either of the areas Manchester would be able to supply adequate school facilities to meet any need.

Chief Scheid OK's Fireworks

WHEN DO YOU WANT the fireworks started? asked fire chief Lawrence Scheid (right), as he stopped in at the Merchants tent Friday night to talk over the latest developments with Fair Board President William Kuleskampi (L) and treasurer, Harold Burch, Scheid and his men have worked for the last couple of years to put on the display, which Scheid selected. There was no professional help employed this year and the money ordinarily paid out was added in additional fireworks. It was estimated that more than 3,000 people gathered in and around the grounds to watch the $400 spectacle.

Fair Hailed Success, Record Crowd Present Due To Fair Weather

The largest and best attended community fair here has just been completed according to Fair Board President, William Kuleskampi. For the first time in the three years he has held his office, Kuleskampi said, Manchester's fair was not marred by rainy cold weather. It is generally believed that the weather played an important part in the success of the fair.

At this time there is no official report as to the outcome of any particular division. The bill for the tents used on the grounds amount to $750.

The telephone on the grounds proved very successful Saturday night. The time of the Main Street Treasure Chest, Mrs. Eugene Hill won the watermelon donated by Margus Market, Walter Kuleskampi, the use of Frozen Food Locker No. 4 for a year and the third place award, Mrs. Ann Paul was in second place with a piano sold and Ann Walton was first in Michigan, and studies educational problems and their solutions on the Fair Grounds.

At the amateur show directed by Mrs. Paul Kappler, Dolores Chest and Margaret Steele captured the first five dollar award. Mary Ann Paul was in second place with a piano sold and Ann Walton was first in Michigan, and studies educational problems and their solutions on the Fair Grounds.

At the antique display, a book of prices displayed by the Marvin Oates family came up missing. Fair officials urge whoever might be in possession of the book to return it to any member of the board or to either of the banks. No questions will be asked.

It would be impossible, Kuleskampi said to thank those who helped because most of the people of the town were involved in one way or another. But special thanks goes to those who work in the concession ticket booths. It was pointed out that many work all the entire three days.

Fair officials said that it might be well to point out that there is no paid personnel connected with the fair. Everyone on the board and everyone who did any work connected with the fair did it.

The Rhinehart steer was judged tops and brought 45 cents a pound when bought by Schaffer Lumber Co., and a total of $380.25 for the 845 pound animal, at Saturday's auction. The white-faced hereford didn't mind posing for the camera, much better than waiting for the meat block. Then too, Paul placed first in showmanship for a 4-H award.

Light Snack For Ducks

Coming back from Balvillie the other night I noticed a powerful light at Whitley Fisher's Duck Farm. Seemed to be shining out over the water. I stopped to ask Whitley what was on. He took me down to his pond and pointed some 600-odd ducks signed up on a pile about three feet above the surface. The light was attracting thousands of insects for the ducks to eat. Seemed kind of odd to me—but Whitley was enthusiastic. "Best duck I ever raised of," he claims. "Keeps the ducks bill down—and

Views Of Living

Just noticed that Marlene Dietrich, currently in Europe for night club appearances, has ordered two dozen pairs of slacks. This is a great relief. Seems only yesterday that Miss Marlene scared pants manufacturers out a year's profits by appearing in that gauzy, filmy feminine creation out in Las Vegas, an act which some said might toll the death knell on trousers for the girls.
For it was our same Marlene who invented girls in pants, remember? Hollywood in those days was pretty-ladylike, so far as clothes were concerned, and Miss Dietrich's quick change from dainty to dungaree was dynamic.
Elegant dungarees, to be sure—but trousers just the same. On Dietrich they looked good. On nine girls out of 10 they looked good. (But ouch, that tenth!) Within months, a trend had begun which now is ancient history. Slacks, blue jeans, denim, dungarees, froster pants you can now get plain or with rhinestones. Hand tailored or ready-made.
But slacks—nothing to do with Marlene—appeared on the denim Council in straightways setting out to picture model youth clad in casual blues, browns and greens.
A few schools had the effrontery last year to ask their scholars to get with the Greek and chemistry in more formal duds. Claimed the young sprouts act more like ladies and gents, when dressed up. I say different. Of all the insane eras of college dress, 1955 can stay to the finish. Gloves, high heels, a nice hair trim, dresses like a fox-scarf could barely see you off to eight o'clock grade. And the behavior pattern? Well, uh, Rousing's the word.
What's wrong with pants. If the occasion is appropriate! Slacks, denim, or wool. Marlene, come home at once.
DELEGATE TO CONVENTION: Miss Ellen Haunstrup, left, Adrian Monday for College Station, Texas where she'll attend the Lutheran League Convention which opened Aug. 23 through 25. Ellen is a delegate from St. John's church, Bridgewater.

Suspense in American League As Games Enter Home Stretch

As the major league baseball races settled down for the stretch run of the last 30 days, the suspense was concentrated on the American League, with the four top contenders separated by fewer than four games. In the season's crucial, the Brooklyn Dodgers appeared likely to win handily, if not exactly going away. Though slumping slightly, they were 12 games in front of the New York Yankees, who lost the American League title to New York in 1951 after enjoying a 1 1/2 game advantage on Aug. 11, 1951, seemed unlikely to blow a lead like this one.

This late in the season, however, the economics of urban transportation and television are vying with the pennant races as a source of baseball controversy and uncertainty. Owner Walter P. O'Malley of the semi-bound Dodgers is off a chain reaction on Aug. 17 in announcing that his team would play seven regular games and at least one exhibition game in 1956 in Jersey City.

O'Malley wants a new stadium, preferably in Brooklyn. But New York City and Brooklyn Borough officials and both the Dodgers get the one site in Brooklyn wanted by O'Malley. The chances to build out the possibility of a move to another city in 1956. The day after O'Malley's Jersey City bombshell, Horace C. Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants, said that he too would like to add in getting a new stadium. O'Malley had contemplated the best for "accessible rapid transit" plus adequate parking facilities. Said Stoneham: "Milwaukee doesn't have any subway and it can't do pretty well. What a ball park needs now is parking space more than anything else."

The Los Angeles City Council on Aug. 22 authorized two of its members to study both O'Malley and Stoneham with a view toward bringing big-league baseball to the West Coast. The Los Angeles of late has been the scene of a ball owners in New York on Sept. 1.

Three major league franchises have been transplanted in recent years. The St. Louis Browns moved to Milwaukee in 1953. In their first year in the Bear State, they had a record of 100-54, or 65 percent of 150 games. The Baltimore Orioles came to Kansas City in 1954. The Kansas City Athletics

Well-mannered, pleasantly disinterested and well liked by his teammates, handsome, conservative Raymond Ols Boase is a much talked about and better man of the field today as he was right after he became these blue-jean days of 1955.

Ols will stick to my statement in an earlier column that no player alone is responsible for lifting the Tigers from one only base men's finish in 1952, but more than any other player Ray kept the Tigers going during those dark days. Sometimes when he was driving in one winning run after another, it sure seemed like he was doing the job single-handedly.

But of course Harvey Kuenn contributed considerably to the upsurge and so did Steve Gromek and others and now we have the added punch of fellow like Al Kaline, but 22-year-old Boase keeps on going the Old Man River.

Captured Up With Pack Despite early season injuries and a hitting slump, Ray has caught up with the pack and is well up there in hitting runs batted in and other departments. And he is as popular as ever with Tiger fans.

Strangely, none of this was the case at Cleveland, where frequent fly ball was roundly booed by patrons of Municipal Stadium and was the target of hurls from the press. As a consequence, his hitting slump and he dropped from a high of 20 and 24 runs batted in at 1950 to 241 and 21 RBIs at the time of this trade in 1952.

Some say that he has a change of climate can mean to a player. Boase seemed up to the 1952 season with a .216 batting average and 22 RBIs with Detroit. Moreover, he has been hitting with 16 of this writing, he's hoping to repeat again.

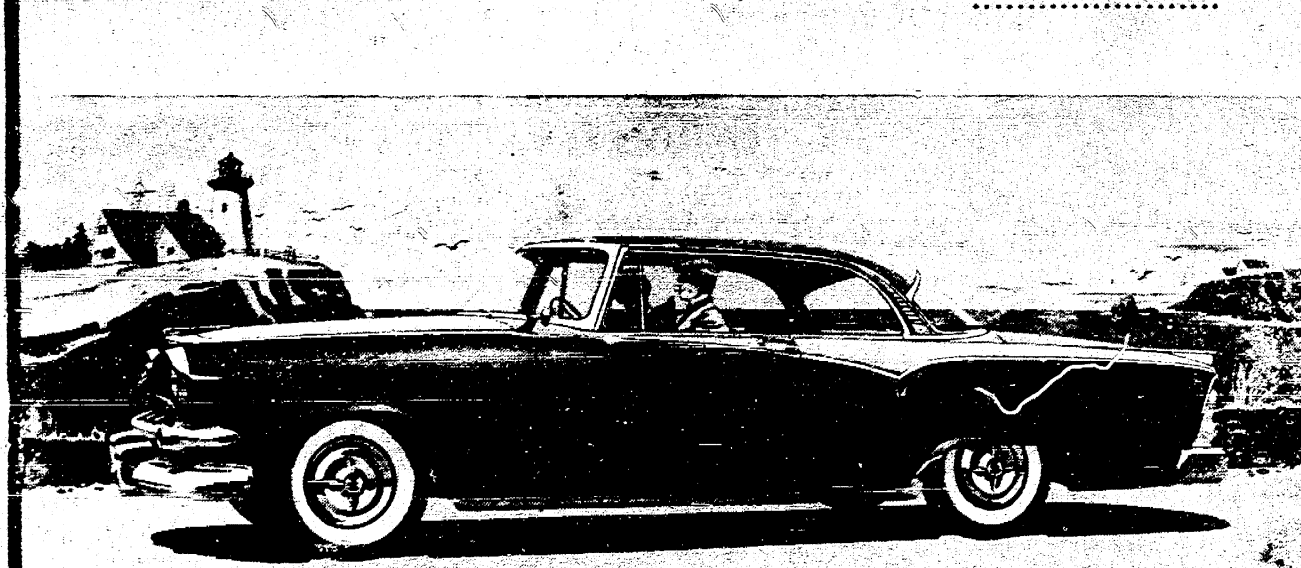

Boase's explanation for his remarkable increase in hitting ability is a change in hitting direction coupled with the friendly reception of Detroit fans. "When I got to my long ball was to center field for a simple out, the right-handed hitter now pulls the ball into left field for doubles down the first line and homey into classic stands."

Ray considers the trade that brought him to Detroit one of the best breaks of his baseball career. He classifies it in importance with his conversion from catcher to a shortstop by the Cleveland management because of a shortage of infielders in the Indians' farm system.

Ray had been some nowhere as a catcher, but in his first year as an infielder with Oklahoma City, a Cleveland farm, he batted .242 and belted 22 home runs, 10 more than he had in his 1 1/2 year season with Cleveland.

"I always figured I was good for 20 and 24 runs batted in at 1950 to 241 and 21 RBIs at the time of this trade in 1952."

Farmers Go To Local Banks To Borrow

Michigan farmers met their credit needs during 1954 chiefly by loans from their local banks, according to W.D. Crim, President of Saline Farmers Bank. Michigan banks reminded the largest lenders to the state's farmers during the year, providing far more financial aid to our farmers than any other lending agency, he noted.

Quoting from the fourteenth annual farm lending survey of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, Mr. Crim stated that on January 1, 1955, Michigan banks had outstanding to farmers $112,172,000 including both production and mortgage loans. This compares with a total of $82,700,000 held by the Federal Reserve Bank, the second largest lender to Michigan farmers. In addition, Michigan banks held $12,821,000 in C.C.C. support program not included in the loans under the government's price-support program.

"Despite reduced net income and continued high production expenses on farms," Mr. Crim said, "repayment of loans is rapid, and farm assets are at least record levels, indicating that these factors have not weakened the financial soundness of agriculture. Bank loans play an important part in maintaining the white-faced hereof brought his owner a neat $151.00 from the Hamilton Market. The purchase price of 44 cents a pound for 1025 pounds. "It can be seen from these figures that about 50 per cent of the production credit used by the state's farmers in 1954 came from the banks," he stated. He also pointed out that in the state at the beginning of this year were made for production and operating purposes, when was postponed from August 23—on September 7.

Prescription For Community Growth
Vitamins G-A-S

Good gas service and plenty of it—around-the-clock and around-the-year—can be just what the doctor ordered to make your community grow. It's a prescription your gas company seeks to live up to—for the availability of gas for industrial processing often is important in the location of new industry.

However, additional gas supply and the underground mains and other facilities needed to deliver it to you can't be provided overnight.

That's why your privately-owned, tax-paying gas company must risk investments in new manpower and expanded facilities TODAY for your industrial, business and home needs of tomorrow. These investments make sure you'll always have vitamins G-A-S available for your community's growth.
