Hi Neighbor:

are smart, too. So smart that often it is embarrassing when they talk knowingly of eletronics, television technicalities, radar potential, the atomic and hydrogen bombs aviation, jet propulsion and national and international affairs.

We elders just sit back and think defensively to surselves. Bet they couldn't adjust an old crysal-set radio." and, "They wouldn't even know enough to adjust the accelerator and retard the spark before cranking an old model T. or know who said. "I do not choose to run"-or would they?

Let them have their Elvis and their rock and roll: their sideburns, blue jeans, leather jackets and hot-rods. More power, we say, to the teenage misses who sit for hours mooning over recordings that sound to us like a combination of the bleating of a sick sheep, cats broadcasting from the back fence, the mating call of a lovesick moose and somebody in the kitchen rattlin them pots and pans. Think ahead, in just a few short years those kids of eurs won't be ours the way they are today. Sis will be Johnk wife and Son will be larry husband. The house will be very, very quiet and peaceful, and you in desperation, may rummage through some of the kids old discarded records and gratefully put an old Elvis record on the player while you "remember when."

It is to teen-agers and to those just out of their teens that this country owes its security today, for the listening posts, the radar installations, that ring this country and its territories, are largely manned by kids in, or just out of, their teens, and they are alerted for instant action 24 hours a day.

These kids know Elvis and his rock 'n' roll, wherever they are stationed. They play his records and see him on specially rebroadcast shows. This is clearly shown by the instant reaction to Presley quips and jokes on programs filmed at far-away bases for rebroadcasting. Some like him. Some hate him. But he does give them a subject for their "bull sessions."

hours and make their tour of duty more endurable, we're all the Art for Elvis! If they want him, the Million Dollar Kid must have more than a million dolars, cause kids don't idolize the hankerille.

Don't worry about the kids, and the effect of one entertainer on their morals. We are their dependents. We can and do depend on them. Our future, our Peace and Prosperity in the fateful years ahead depends on them. We're mighty proud of our kids, both in and out of uni-

Many villagers have voiced grateful thanks that a fire, such as that which ripped through the heart of the business district in Saline, causing damages estimated at between $100,000 and $125,000, did not break out in Manchester during the period when the village was without water. Even with a full pressure line in Saline, and with the co-operation of five fire departments, police and volunteers, the fire had such a big head start that it took many hours before the smouldering ruins could be declared free of fire danger. Owners of the businesses destroyed, and apartment dwellers routed by the fire, aided in fighting the blaze.

We've heard several disgruntled reports during the weeks since Christmas, that some of the presents given Dad have produced drastic results. Especially the set of tools or instruction book for home fixers that was presented by a well-meaning relative who just didn't know that Dad's no with about nine inches of snow. mechanic or a general "fixer-upper".

Do-It-Yourself Oh. My Achin' Back!

From a prominent place on the library shelf
Father took down his copy of "Do-It-Yourself".
He explained. "There are jobs that need doing at once,
So I'll do them myself, after all, I'm no dunce." Mother wondered a bit, but with feminine tact,
If she had any doubt, didn't mention the fact.
Father looked at the porch, and said, "I'll start right here.

"This front step has been broken for over a year.

"How foolish to pay for just fixing a step,

"Any half-wit can do it, if he has any pep."

So he started the job and was doing okay

"Til he hammered his thumb, and the railing gave way.

He saw shining stars as he fell on his head.

"You'd best call a carpenter, Mother," he said.

"He can work on the porch while I paint the front

Then Dad dropped the paint on the living-room floor.

Then Dad dropped the paint on the living-room floor.

He sighed as he said, "Call the rug cleaner, too,
"And also the painter, I've got work to do!"

"Til go down to the basement and do some repairs,"
And then Mother heard him go tumbling down stairs.

Later, moaning in pain as he lay on his bed
With one arm in a sling, and ice on his head
He painfully gasped. "There's an ache in my spine!

"Get the liniment. Mother. That'll fix it up fine."
As she took down the bottle from off of the shelf
Mother murmured. "Here, Father. You can "Do-It-Yourself".
