Enterprise Classified Policy Change Announced

The classified section of the Saline Observer, The Milan Leader and The Manchester Enterprise has been observed some time ago according to an announcement by the management. It has always been customary for these papers to be operated on a "paid in advance" basis in other newspapers throughout the section. However by charging by the "line" it was impossible for the customer to know just how many lines this ad would require.

The new policy as explained this week will be to charge 3 cents per word for all classified with a 40 cent minimum charge. That is, no ad will be accepted for less than 40 cents but will be charged at the rate of three cents per word to include telephone numbers as one word.

This method makes it fairly simple to figure the cost of your advertising. Just count the number of words, multiply by 3 cents. If the amount exceeds 40 cents send in the exact amount. If your total is less than 40 cents, send in the 40 cents minimum.

To clarify another phase of the classified section, any classified ad will appear in The Saline Observer, The Manchester Enterprise and The Milan Leader at no extra charge. This makes classified advertising in any one of the three papers one of the biggest bargains of the day. The combined circulation of the three papers makes your classified reach a wide area and assures you of excellent results.

Area Church Building Dedicated

St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at Francisco dedicated its newly completed educational building Sunday with the Rev. Henry G. Kroehler of Jackson, president of the Michigan-Indiana Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church. The Rev. Kroehler formerly served from 1901 to 1906 as pastor of the Francisco church.

Rev. T. W. Menzel of the Bethel Evangelical and Reformed church of Freedom township and Rev. P. H. Grobowski of St. Paul's church in Chelsea also took part in the dedication service.

The present pastor of the church is the Rev. E. O. Davis and in the dedicatory program the Rev. Davis is also listed as the architect for the new building. Paul Schittenheim, chairman of the building committee turned over to Rev. Davis the keys of the new building and Carl Meute one of the trustees, took part in the ceremony, stating the name of the new building to be "The Memorial Church Hall of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church of Manchester."

Ground was broken for the new building on April 14, 1937 and the concrete was laid with appropriate ceremony on June 10. Much of the work on the new building was done by volunteer help.

Ford Citizen Of Year To Be Picked Jan. 22; President Way To Help

A Ford Motor Company employee of the Rawsonville or Ypsilanti plants who has made outstanding civic contributions to his home community life will be announced as the "Ford Citizen of the Year" on January 22.

Candidates for the Ford community service awards are being reviewed by a panel consisting of Richard Way, mayor of Manchester; Paul A. Miller, general manager of Ford's Accessory Division; C. E. McKeavey, industrial relations manager, Hardware and Accessories Group; Rodney Hutchinson, Ypsilanti plant manager; James M. Brown, dean of men, Eastern Michigan College; James L. Bancroft, Ypsilanti plant manager; and J. G. Prethik, Rawsonville plant industrial relations manager.

The winner will be announced and honored at a banquet attended by local business, education and civic leaders. He will receive a Ford Motor Company special symbol of Ford community service. Names will be given certificates of merit.

Principal speaker at the dinner will be U. S. Congressman George Messersmith. Awards will be presented by J. S. French, group executive Hardware and Accessories.

Mr. Baughst, chairman of the Ford community relations committee for the Ypsilanti-Rawsonville area, explained that the award program seeks to stimulate volunteer community service among the plant personnel. It cannot be regarded as a competition since the employees are honored for activities they perform without expectation of reward.

"Ford Motor Company recognizes the importance of participation in community life and encourages such activities to expand the capabilities of its employees and to build a stronger and better America," Mr. Baughst said.
