

Michigan's Factories, Farms and Stores Depend on Trucks

Manufacturing, farming, the retail business—all have one thing in common: each needs transportation facilities.

And, since the motor truck provides fast, flexible, direct service unequalled by any other form of transportation, more tonnage is shipped by truck in Michigan each year. (Normally trucks haul more than 3 times as much tonnage as all other systems combined.)

Every truck you see on the road is working—working to help keep Michigan's economy humming, to help keep employment and sales high. There isn't a corner of the State that isn't served daily by trucks. And factories and shopping centers can be located anywhere and be supplied at almost truck service so long as they're on a road.

You see how vital trucks are to Michigan.

SUPERVISORS TO MEET IN CHELSEA:

Washtenaw County Supervisors will pretend on May 3 that the County Building in Ann Arbor has been bombed out of existence. They will assemble in Chelsea, the emergency seat of county government.

This will be the county's participation in Operation Alert 1960, a nation-wide Civil Defense exercise to test the capabilities of local government to carry on during an emergency.

The Board of Supervisors voted to take its first active participation in one of the nation-wide operations held every year.

It was so enthused after the speech by Civil Defense Director Gerald G. Miller explained why civilian government will be the main force in rehabilitation of communities after an enemy attack that the board decided not to take per diem pay for the exercise.

"I think this is something that we should be gracious enough about to give our time and be glad to do it," Supr. Donald Silkworth of Ypsilanti Township said.

Saying that the supervisors when they go to Chelsea will be a "government in exile," Miller explained that after an enemy bombing that it will take the state and federal government about 90 days to get extensively reorganized and able to function.

"Civil Defense is Government," Miller said. "If we should lose our ability to govern, all will be chaos." Ypsilanti City Council will be asked by the County Office of Civil Defense to evacuate to Ann Arbor. Ypsilanti is in the area most likely to be hit by an enemy bomb.

The supervisors will not be told in advance at what time of day they should meet in Chelsea, but they are to take their cue from a Conelrad Alert in which all radio and television stations go off the air and all broadcasting is done on the frequencies of 640 and 1240 which will be held for half an hour during the afternoon of May 3rd.

Miller said, "We want to find out how long it takes each supervisor to get there and how many will make it at all." The Chelsea Village Council has offered to let the supervisors use the Chelsea Village meeting building for the exercise.

Miller is beginning at once to hold meetings for all county employees so they can be instructed in phases of the exercise. Department heads in the County Building were to be briefed first.

County Administrator Car. G. Johnson was asked by the board's Civil Defense committee to go to Chelsea in advance of the exercise to find what accommodations would be available for the supervisors if the May 3rd exercise were a real emergency.

The Civil Defense Director also asked a number of the supervisors to be monitors to evaluate how the county carries off the exercise.

A Manchester author's book has been chosen as book of the month in the Mechanical Engineers' Book Club for April. The book, FLUID-POWER CONTROLS was written by John J. Pippinger and Richard M. Koff. The announcement was made by H.W. Buhrow of the McGraw-Hill Book Company Inc. of New York.

Mr. Pippinger is vice-president of Double A Products Co., Manchester and Chief Engineer of the Hydraulics Division of Brown and Sharpe Manufacturing Company. Mr. Koff is Associate Editor of Product Engineering, an industrial magazine.

This is Mr. Pippinger's first book, although he is the author of several articles on industrial hydraulics in Applied Hydraulics and has presented articles and papers before different engineering and professional groups. He is the author of Double A Products Company's training programs in industrial hydraulics.

He is a member of committees presenting papers on special hydraulic fluids and problems with fluid media as well as a member of committees exploring the possibility of standardization of fluid power components. June of this year will mark the completion of twenty-five years in the fluid power industry. He is a senior member of Waterloo Chapter No. 79 American Society of Tool Engineers and First vice-president of National Fluid Power Association.

Born in Huron, Ohio, July 26, 1917, he graduated from Dearborn (Michigan) high school. He's a graduate of the Ford Motor Company Apprentice School and had two years of Accounting and Factory Management in the Walsh Institute in Detroit. He taught industrial hydraulics in War Training Courses for Wayne University for two and a half years. Then for seven and a half years he was with Ford Motor Company, fluid power maintenance and four years with Hydraulic Hi-Speed as Chief Engineer in Detroit. For the past 13 years Mr. Pippinger has been Chief Engineer and vice-president in charge of Hydraulic Division of the Double A Products Company of Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Pippinger and their two children live here. Their 14 year old daughter Louise attends Manchester High School and 18 year old Curtis is a student at the Leelanaw School in Glen Arbor.

Mr. Pippinger is very active in civic and church affairs and is member of the village council and has been since 1956. He served for several years a lay-leader at the local Methodist Church of which he is a member.

The local author first came to the limelight locally when Double A Started to publish "delayed Answers" by Johnny Pip. Everyone, from shop workers to engineers read and study the four page bulletin which comes out the 15th of every month. The mailing list includes thousands of interested readers. It may be from this that Johnny first got the idea of compiling into a book much of the information contained in the now famous publication, DELAYED ANSWERS.

At any rate, the book FLUID POWER CONTROL is a practical guidebook on the valves used for fluid-power control. It tells about their construction and operation, their purpose in the hydraulic circuit and how to maintain them for best service.

The full range of valves is covered from simple to complex, including those used in automated machines. The authors also discuss pumps, reservoirs, piping, development of hydraulic circuits and machine repair. The book gives you everything you need to know to put together a workable reliable system that will give first-rate performance with a minimum of maintenance.

The language of the book is plain, simple and down to earth. From it, people are able to develop practical and usable systems for the most effective use of fluid power. Sufficient technical information is given for a sound understanding, without going into abstract theory.

The publishing of Fluid-Power Controls, writing of Delayed Answers, the teaching of classes for the better understanding of the working of hydraulic pumps and valves, engineered by Johnny Pippinger, fits into the pattern of Double A Products Company. For this company, a subsidiary of the Brown and Sharpe Manufacturing Co. of Rhode Island, is a leading manufacturer of valves, pumps, and hydraulic power units. The plants, manufactured products are sold from coast to coast and abroad in several countries. The Manchester Double A merged with the Brown and Sharop Company in December 1957, when it's president, Herbert H. Upton, Sr. foresaw the need for expansion and joined forces with the well known eastern company.

At the moment Johnny is co-authoring and Hydraulic Text Book with Tyler Hicks for college hydraulic courses. Despite his many important business engagements, his writing and civic responsibilities, this quiet, unassuming company vice-president finds time to talk over problems with both workers and engineers alike. Probably this quality has much to do with the success of the book, FLUID POWER CONTROL.

Boaters Lose Sites

JACKSON — Boat and raft owners who swarm Pleasant and Clark Lakes but don't own lake frontage came up against new restrictions Sunday.

Columbia Township posted signs at Clark Lake prohibiting parking of boats on township property along the west side of the lake. At Pleasant Lake, Harold C. Ripley fenced off access to the lake from his property. For years these two spots have been launching sites for the public.

TEENAGE DRINKING STUDIED:

The problems presented by teenage drinking was the topic Tuesday at the annual panel discussion program sponsored by the Washtenaw County Committee on Alcoholism. Panel members represented various segments of society affected by teenage drinking in Washtenaw County. Included were a housewife and mother, two high school students, a minister, a psychiatrist and two school teachers.

On the panel were Mrs. Ralph M. Berry, 375 Patton Drive, Sharon Jean Smith and Arthur Maday, both students at Ypsilanti High School and Rev. Ramon B. Bair, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Ypsilanti.

Following the discussion among the panel participants there was a question and answer period in which members of the audience asked specific questions. Members of the Michigan State Board of Alcoholism and the local county chapter recently pointed out that drinking by teenagers has become an increasing problem to parents, teachers, and law authorities in the past two years. All 13 high schools in the county were contacted to send representatives to the meeting. It was the second panel discussion sponsored locally by the county alcoholism group.

OVER BACK-COUNTRY ROADS AT 45 WITH A SKY-HIGH LOAD OF TIMBER Chevy middleweight shows the big rigs how it's done!

That's a 6303 medium-duty Chevrolet powered by a 283-cu.-in. V8. But there's sure nothing medium-duty about the load. Mr. J. E. Blankinship, Arkansas logging contractor, says both of his torsion-spring 6303's "move along at 40 to 50 miles per hour with 55,000 pounds gross weight and maintain a 5-trip-a-day schedule with no trouble at all." Figure the money you save when you've got a medium-duty truck that can cover 30,000 back-country miles a year with a high-tonnage load!

We've never seen anything like the amount of praise truck owners are heaping on Chevy's new torsion spring suspension. Owners like the fact the truck handles a whole lot easier, can move faster off the road without beating the driver to death and shaking loose all the sheet metal. They like the idea of extra thousands of miles before trade-in. Drive a '60 Chevy just once. It's a whole new experience.

Chevy middleweight averages 200 miles of back roads a day dragging timber out of the woods and delivering it to the mill at Crossett, Arkansas.

INJURY ACCIDENTS FAR ABOVE RATE

Washenaw county traffic injury accidents in March of this year have increased as much as 100 per cent over the same month last year.

This fact was revealed yesterday to members of the Ann Arbor Citizens Safety and Traffic Council at their group's monthly meeting.

The Michigan State Police post at Ypsilanti and the Ann Arbor Police Department both reported increases of more than 100 per cent in injury accidents in March compared to the same month in 1959. The Sheriff's Department also showed a large increase in injury accidents for the same period. Officers at the meeting noted that no particular reason for the unusual jump in injury accidents has been uncovered. However, they pointed out that this increase has been statewide for the first three months of the year.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

More Than Color Blind When It Comes to "Red"

"Red" Dolan has been going to painting class at night at the high school. They had an exhibition and we all went to see what Red had done. Red's painting was one of the most beautiful there. We stared at it for the longest time, then all agreed it was a painting of a field close to town, and that it showed a woman in the distance who looked a lot like Red's wife. We congratulated our artist on his work. Red smiled, thanked us all, and was quite happy.

When he left, Slim Johnson noticed the title card by the painting. It read: "Storm Scene on 'The Lake'" by Red Dolan.

From where I sit, there are often occasions when we don't see what we're really supposed to see. Why sometimes we can't even recognize intolerance when it comes along. For instance, if you begrudge me the right to an occasional glass of beer, that's as intolerant as if I denied you a glass of iced tea. Why don't we step back and take another look at intolerance and see for what it is?

SOGGY FIELDS SLOW PLANTING:

Wet fields continue to slow planting activity in Michigan, the federal-state crop reporting service said today.

The service warned that locally heavy rain Sunday night will mean further delays, particularly on the heavier soils.

Land preparation and small grain planting is lagging about 10 days behind normal.

Except for the lighter, well-drained soils in southern lower Michigan, practically no field work has been done in the state.

By the end of last week, only about 10 per cent of the oats and spring barley acreage was planted. The service predicted some oat acreage probably will be shifted to a later planted crop such as corn.

Sugar beets were being planted, but in limited amounts. Most legume seedings were in good condition, although lagging a little due to low early season temperatures.

Early plantings of winter wheat were also in good condition, but late plantings were less promising.

Pastures, with a good moisture supply now in the soil, were expected to show rapid growth as the spring advances.

Fruit tree bud and blossom development was five to 10 days behind normal in most sections. One exception occurred in parts of Berrien county, where unseasonably high temperatures brought sweet cherries, plums and early peaches into bloom ahead of time.

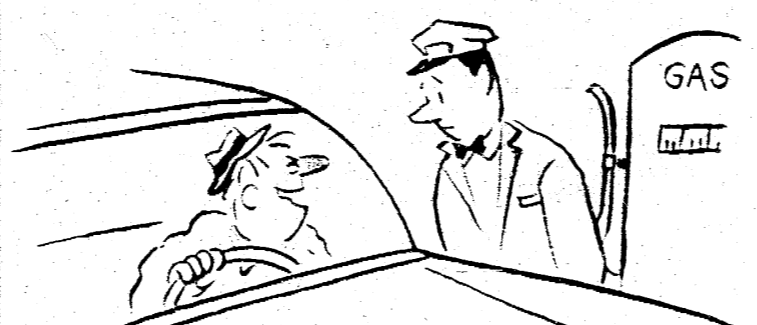

Apples were in the green tip stage in southern counties. In the north, buds were mostly in the swelling stage.

Rodent damage was locally heavy in a few fruit areas. Except for the Upper Peninsula, fruit trees had progressed far enough to be damaged by frost.

FARM VALUATIONS STUDY PLANNED

George Kostishak, county equalization adviser, was directed yesterday by the Board of Supervisors to make a study of the equalized valuations on farms in the county.

Supr. Sylvester Leonard of Augusta township said the report put values on the farms which represented 50 per cent of their true cash value, but that in actual cases the farmers weren't able to sell the land for more than the 50 per cent value.

Supr. William I. Scheel of Salem township, chairman of the board's equalization committee, said that in his township that farms were valued at $500 an acre although much of the land is swamp.

Kostishak was instructed by the committee to study farm values in Washtenaw county and compare them with valuations in counties adjoining Washtenaw. He is to begin making appraisals of farms in townships which have the highest valuations on this type of property and then work through the rest of the county.

This will be the first step in a complete study of all classes of property in the county.

WASHTENAW VALUATION SOARS

Washtenaw county's new equalized valuation, a significant factor in the levying of various property taxes, is $592,555.640.

That figure is $107,381,640 more than the total equalized valuation of $485,174,000 set by the state for the county last year. The new figure is $30,222,640 more in county equalized valuation than recently recommended by a controversial report of the State Tax Commission.

An equalized valuation figure to be set at the state level will be the one on which taxes will be based officially.

Two supervisors voting for adoption of the equalized valuation report said they did so under protest. They were Suprs. Emory Minnola of Superior township and Freeman Weber of Northfield township.

They indicated that they were making the protests so that they might appeal to the State Tax Commission later. Those protesting indicated they are unhappy with the figures but didn't want to block adoption of the county equalization report.

The State Board of Equalization will meet on May 23 to set state equalized valuations for the 83 counties in the state. "We're going to have to accept this," Supr. William I. Scheel of the board's equalization committee said of the figures. "If anyone has anything to complain about, I think I do, because the taxes in my township are going to be 2.09 times higher than they have been. But I don't think we'll gain anything by refusing to adopt this report."

Scheel said the State Tax Commission will recommend to the State Board of Equalization that it use its figures for Washtenaw county as a base for computing the 1960 valuations.
