CONT. DOGS

Sheriff Petersen urged County residents to call the County Jail at Normandy 2-2505 if strange dogs are seen running loose. Especially, he noted, his office should be contacted immediately if a person suffers a dog bite. The law requires a dog to be confined for ten days after it has bitten a person during which time rabies, if it is present will develop.

CHICKEN BROIL SET FOR JULY 14

Manchester's famous Chicken Broil will take place this year on the Manchester Athletic Field, Thursday, July 14th. On that day approximately 5,000 hungry people from half a dozen states will gather around the long charcoal pits to watch the cooking and enjoy the results.

This is Manchester's seventh annual broil, during which time attendance has climbed from 1,500 to 5,000. Cooking is under the supervision of Dr. Howard Zindel, Poultry Department of Michigan State University, whose staff designed the special broiling equipment for community dinners. The cooks, waiters, and hosts will be businessmen and farmers, many of them members of the Optimist Club and Jaycees, who are sponsoring the event to raise money for the improvement of Carr Park.

The chicken halves, dressed and iced, will be delivered by panel trucks to the grounds and will be placed on the long charcoal pits for a slow-broil process that takes almost two hours to cook. Three pits, each 100 feet long, will accommodate 1,200 halves at a time. The halves average over 17 ounces.

Diners who come early to watch the cooking will also see the crew of cabbage slicers converting hundreds of heads of cabbage into mounds of pearly white slaw on traditional German cabbage slicers.

Tickets may be obtained in advance from any Optimist Club member of Jaycee or bought at the gate. Price: Adults $1.50; Children $1.00; and Takeouts $1.50. Tickets will also be available at most stores in Manchester. Seating capacity will be 1,000 this year and extra serving lines will hold delay to a minimum. Service will begin at 4:30 p.m. and continue until all have been fed. On display during the dinner will be the famous 7 foot Paul Bunyon Skillet, large enough to cook eggs for 500 people at one time. This skillet, developed by the Poultry Department, was used in the breakfast to celebrate Michigan week this May. There will be a fast softball doubleheader after dinner, played under the lights.

ALCOHOLISM CENTER PLANNED

A drive to raise funds for an Alcoholic Center for Washtenaw County is scheduled to start soon. The announcement was made at a luncheon meeting of the Washtenaw County Committee on Alcoholism. Howard Wolf, chairman of the committee formed to check the financing of such a center said $10,000 to $12,000 would probably be needed to operate an information agency.

Of this amount the State Board of Alcoholism in Lansing would contribute 50 percent, Wolf explained. The remainder would be obtained through donations from industries, businessmen and individuals he said.

The committee decided to begin soliciting industries in the county for donations toward establishment of the center. Later business persons and individuals will be contacted. The Committee has been working on setting up an information center here for more than a year. There is an immediate need for such a place to help the estimated 5,000 alcoholics now living in the county.

Preliminary plans call for the center to be located in a building in downtown Ann Arbor. It is hoped to employ a full-time director who would refer persons who appear for help to agencies or to medical personnel who specialize in treating alcoholics. In addition the director would provide information to interested persons on alcoholism as a disease and other data compiled locally and nationally.

If the information center is established it will be the only such agency in this area. Similar bureaus have been set up and are in operation in Pontiac and Highland Park.

This Week's Ideas - for Sportsmen

Several mail order houses sell polyethylene sheeting (like cleaners case suits in, but heavier). Carry a folded piece measuring about 6x9 feet in your hunting coat. It's very light and takes up little room. It is dry to sit on in wet weather, and a slit in it converts it into a light and serviceable poncho.

For an information-packed 36 page illustrated booklet full of easy recipes and time-saving ideas on outdoor cooking, just mail a postcard to "Joe Bates, Jr., Box 414, White Plains, New York". Merely say "send booklet". The booklet is free, and there's no obligation of any sort.

Here's a tasty and easily made energy bar that won't soften in your pocket when carried on hunting trips. Put some seedless raisins, chopped nuts and a quart or so of any dry cereal in a double boiler. Heat this with one or two packages of "Nestle's" Semi-Sweet Chocolate Pieces (from your grocery store). When the chocolate melts, mix the ingredients thoroughly and compress them into cakes in a muffin tin. Wrap the cakes in foil. One of these, and perhaps an apple, will keep an energetic hunter going all day. They're good, too!

Yard Cleaning Tips When cleaning up the yard, be careful if you burn leaves. Because yard fires can easily get out of hand, some cities do not permit them. Check your local fire department regulations before starting such a fire. Some communities require a fire department permit. However, if you burn leaves or trash follow these precautions: 1. Never light an outdoor fire on a windy day. 2. Set out, and attach, your garden hose. Keep it handy until the fire is completely out. 3. Use a wire mesh basket or a metal container with a cover to burn in. Set it well away from buildings, fences, dry grass, or other combustibles. 4. Keep children away. 5. Stay with your fire until it is out and the ashes are cool enough to touch.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Easy rice ring: pack hot cooked rice into a ring mold; hold flat serving plate over top; invert and lift out mold.

Scalloped potatoes and ham make a delicious old-fashioned dish, but for that "different" touch add layers of shredded green cabbage to the combination.

If you cover small white onions with boiling water and allow them to stand for several minutes, you'll probably find—after dipping them in cold water—that you can peel them without tears.

SUBURBS' GROWING LIGHTNING TOLL CREATES MANPOWER SHORTAGE IN PROTECTION FIELD

Any building in the average square mile of the United States is an open target for 40 to 50 electrical storms per year. Yet, you can feel over 99% safe from lightning's destructive force in a building that has a properly installed lightning protection system.

Three parallel trends of today indicate that in one area at least, that of safe, complete lightning protection, there is still room for good old-fashioned American private enterprise of the start-small-and-grow type.

The area is the building industry's heightened need for salesmen of lightning protection equipment.

Trends that have brought about the need are these: (1) Lightning losses, now over $125,000,000 annually in the U.S., are increasing at an estimated rate of 10% a year, partly because of the rising replacement costs of buildings and property destroyed by lightning.

(2) Movement of industry, shopping and population to farm, outlying and suburban sections, is exposing more life and property to the areas where lightning causes 37% of all fires, and where most of the annual 600 deaths and 1,500 lightning injuries occur.

(3) Inquiries from property owners to electrical, roofing, siding and insulation contractors and insistence on Underwriters' approved materials and installation, leaves a labor force vacuum, a problem becoming more acute as public awareness increases demand for complete lightning protection.

It is pointed out that although installing lightning protection equipment is not in the do-it-yourself province, any man handy with tools can quickly learn the business under proper training from lightning protection experts.

Farmers, salesmen, the retired, and many others have been trained and are making successes as independents. It is one of the few business opportunities of its kind still remaining, according to industry spokesmen.

To learn more about this remaining "frontier" of financial independence, write for free "Profit Opportunities in The Lightning Protection Business," to Lightning Protection Engineers, 616 N. 41st Avenue, Minneapolis 12, Minn.

FISHING LINES

By DICK WOLFF The subject of "ultra-light" tackle comes up every time anglers get together, and not surprisingly, the opening days of the fishing season usually produce more tackle talk than fish.

For such small tackle, ultra-light draws a lot of angry talk. Some say "It's Great!" and some "It's Terrible!" Let's talk sense—it is "great" BUT used with moderation.

Miniature tackle is designed to give the fish a 50-50 chance of getting away. From here on let's call this combination of willowy rod, precision reel, and gossamer line — "ultra-sports" tackle.

The true ultra-sports outfit is a palm-sized reel of some 7-ounces, a limber 4 1/2 to 5-foot, one or two-piece rod hooked up with 3/4 to 2-pound test monofilament. The set-up is designed to cast lures weighing 1/16 to 1/4-ounces.

Combinations such as the Garcia Mitchell 308 spinning reel and the five foot Companion rod are balanced light enough to cast a "kiss". Any catch over 2-pounds is worth bragging about.

Fishing weedy lakes or rushing rapids puts undue strain on tackle and angler alike. Big fish find safe refuge in the weeds — and require more practical gear. This precision tackle is designed to make the catch of a 10-inch or real sporting event. Weeds tangle lines and fine line will snap without much trying. Rushing rapids put a strain on line and rod and fighting a fish to boot, is tricky. Down stream chases in waders or hip boots is a touch and go business.

With gossamer line, switch like rods, and tiny reels—care must be a catchword. Line must be tested for weak spots and cut back to avoid breakage while on the stream. Hooks must be honed to new sharpness to make up for the strain of setting with thin line. Guides must be regularly inspected for wear or rough spots. And, knots — a bugaboo with all tackle — are even more vital with ultra-light.

If you want to argue the merits of the ultra-light outfit — say "It's great!" — but remember—use it with moderation.

Wayne Archeologist Works As Shovels Creak on Riverbank

FORT PONTCHARTRAIN

Flags of the three countries which have occupied the site were displayed recently at a Detroit ceremony in which the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company broke ground for its new skyscraper near the site of old Fort Pontchartrain.

DETROIT... Soil once trod by Cadillac's followers in the shadow of Fort Pontchartrain, now being turned by power shovels, is producing relics of the early white man's activities near this historic settlement.

These tangible bits of the State's past are being collected by Dr. Arnold Pilling, Wayne State University archeologist. With necktie off, shoes muddy, he dodges the shovels at Woodward and Jefferson, where the excavation for Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's new headquarters is being dug.

His students aid him inside the excavation as a part of their field experience.

Already uncovered are household items from the early 1820's and '30's, including such hand-wrought items as padlocks, upholstery tacks, and window glass; and such traders' men's materials as shoe and harness parts. Even food items from family garbage have popped up: watermelon and grape seeds, cherry pits and

SOILS AND CROPS FIELD DAY PLANNED

District Directors, Soil Conservation Service, and extension personnel and Mr. Deppman have been preparing for the event since the first of the year.

These plots also include plow down fertilizer, different plant populations, and speed in planting have been featured in the plots.

Michigan State Soil Scientists have injected radio active phosphorus into the soil at varying depths for the purpose of determining where corn plants feed.

Other features of the Field Day will include a look at the new farm pond and other soil conservation structures and practices in operation in the farm program. The beef breeding and feeding program will also be featured.

Michigan State Specialists will be on hand the day of the event to explain and demonstration plots, beef enterprises and farm woodland management.
