Not a single cracked egg since Chevy took over the route

That '60 Fleetside pickup you see takes whatever kind of road comes along, and makes about 250 stops a day delivering eggs house to house for Mr. Harry Hansen of Missoula, Montana. "With my previous truck," Mr. Hansen writes, "I always had some cracked eggs. Cargo damage always cut into my profits. But the new Chevy eliminated that problem completely. I haven't had one cracked egg with my new truck and I've had up to a ton of eggs in it without any difficulty. . . . I didn't know a truck could ride so nice."

Chevy rides nice, all right; takes good care of fragile cargoes. But that's not even the half of it. Torsion-spring suspension also means longer life for the truck, extra thousands of working miles, because the sheet metal and body components take less of a beating. You can run off-the-road or over back trails at faster safe speeds, too; get in more trips a day, make more money. Those facts are as true of the big Chevrolet heavyweights as they are of the pickups. Any model you name. Get one on your job and you've got the world's most efficient, most economical way to haul any load over any road. Your dealer will be happy to prove that statement any day you say.

"I'm getting close to 20 miles to the gallon," Mr. Hansen states, "and that's on stop-and-go delivery."

TRAFFIC MISHAPS INJURE FOUR

Four persons received minor injuries in area automobile accidents this weekend.

Sheriff's deputies reported two men were hurt in a two-car collision at US-12 and Parker Rd. in Scio township at 5 a.m. yesterday.

Charles A. Straub, 23, of Malawan, and Daniel G. Kemp, 17, of Plymouth, were treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Kemp ran a stop sign at the intersection and collided with a car driven by Straub.

Straub told police that Kemp appeared to have fallen asleep at the wheel. Kemp was ticketed for failure to obey a stop sign.

Also treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital were two women injured in a Saturday afternoon crash at Fuller and Wall Sts.

According to Ann Arbor police, a car driven by Ola C. Cleveland was turning left at the intersection and was struck by a car driven by Edward Kujawski of Detroit.

Sheriff's deputies are searching for two men, one presumed to be injured, who attempted to steal a boat from an Iron Lake dock early Monday.

One of the men was apparently wounded after being fired upon by the boat's owner, who surprised the pair in the act.

Gene White of Iron Lake told deputies he came upon the men at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday and shot at one with a No. 8 bird shot, but the man escaped by fleeing through a field.

The other man escaped by car, thought to be a 1957 Ford. Deputies arrived at the scene but could find no trace of either man.

RURAL CD KIT NOW AVAILABLE TO FARM PEOPLE

It's hard to realize that suddenly, modern warfare has caught up with us and that the next round may be for keeps. A thermonuclear attack would most likely be directed at metropolitan centers and not at a corner down the road. But the message to rural people would be there just the same. Fallout, the silent killer, would drift downwind from wherever the bombs burst and threaten life anywhere, virtually everywhere, in the United States. But protection may be provided against this killer. The Michigan Office of Civil Defense has available much literature and information on how individuals may protect themselves and their families after such an attack. The farmer, especially, is a vital part of the country's national defense as food producer to the nation; and, as such, must think of his role in Civil Defense, protecting himself, his family, livestock and crops to the best of his ability. Through the state and local offices of Civil Defense, a Rural Civil Defense kit is being made available which rural leaders may use to inform other farm families about radiation and protective measures that may be taken against it—and helping them gain an understanding of the national, state and local Civil Defense programs. The kit was devised by the National Office of Civil Defense Mobilization with the help of the National Advisory Council on Rural Civil Defense. Rural groups may obtain this kit by writing the Michigan Office of Civil Defense, 119 W. Washtenaw, Lansing, or contacting their local County Civil Defense Director.

FISHING LINES

By DICK WOLFF

If you can cast a plug into a tea cup at ten paces or snake out a fly line 160 feet — head for Detroit.

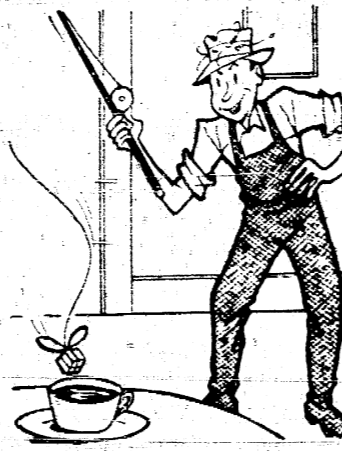

The national casting contest opens in Warren, near Detroit, August 16. The country's top anglers will be showing their form and competing for tackle handling honors in the annual competition held by the National Association of Angling and Casting Clubs. Records are waiting to be broken by the right combination of man and equipment.

The U.S. team to compete in the International casting tournament will be picked from among the winners. Last year's seven-man squad set three world records, and won twelve international championships in Scarborough, England, competing against the best casters from sixteen nations. The 1960 International Competition will be held in Zurich, Switzerland Sept. 5 through 10.

Tournament events include skish distance and accuracy requiring the use of standard fishing tackle, and unrestricted events which also are proving ground for tackle improvements. Earlier local competitions leading to the national, and the national itself, have stimulated such innovations as shooting tapered fly line and fast taper spinning and bait rods proven in practice, and adopted as standard gear.

In 1948, a new bait casting reel called the Ambassador, was developed by the Swedish for long distance and accuracy casting. All but a few accuracy competitions have since been taken by it. It has also taken record fish.

Casting competition is not divorced from angling. On the contrary, good casters are better than average fishermen, International casting champion Johnny Dieckman also holds the National Fresh Water Fishing Championship. Casting is an art with an object—more successful, more enjoyable fishing. When long casts are needed to reach into inaccessible pools—the top caster will have the fish. Good tackle and sure casting skill means more time to concentrate on rishing fun.

MICHIGAN BELL REVISES SYSTEM

The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. has promised to provide a Washtenaw county telephone directory by the middle of December in response to a number of complaints, principally from the Ypsilanti area.

Donald E. McGaw, vice-president of the phone company, said this next directory will alphabetize the listing for such communities as Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Whitmore Lake, and others in separate sections and in "seven point" type. (This is "eight point" size type.)

McGaw said the directory provided in April to the Ypsilanti area was a decision "we wish we could change." His declaration came after many complaints by civic leaders from both Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor at an informal conference with the Michigan Public Service Commission today.

"Lumping" those representing the communities were Mrs. Howard Blackenburg, Ypsilanti supervisor and John W. Rae and Curt H. Will, Ann Arbor Supervisors. They pointed out the latest directory furnished to Ypsilanti in April divorced it from Ann Arbor and lumped it in with listings of communities suburban to Detroit, scattering the Ypsilanti listings throughout the book of more than 290 pages.

The also pointed out that the type was smaller and more difficult to read and said that use of the book brought unexpected toll charges to many Ypsilanti users.

Public Service Commission Chairman George Hill expressed gratification that "this matter can be settled in a friendly way." Commission member James Lee said he thinks such changes in telephone directories should be submitted to the commission for approval. However, Hill expressed doubt that this question is subject to the commission's jurisdiction under present procedures.

Not "Best Seller" McGaw conceded the new phone book putting Ypsilanti in with such communities as Livonia and other Detroit suburbs has been anything but a "best seller," and that the old familiar green telephone book which served Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor has been a "collector's item" in Ypsilanti.

He said Ypsilanti customers who desire it also will be given in the future the western and down river Detroit suburban directory at no extra charge along with the proposed new directory to come out in December.

Mrs. Winifred Keegan and Mrs. O. W. Woodbury, representing the Ypsilanti Federation of Women's Clubs; representatives of the Washtenaw County Labor Council; and Kenneth Bronson, Ypsilanti attorney, also spoke against the 1960 telephone book.

CANNING WINNERS OFFERED SCHOLARSHIPS

Six college scholarships of $400 each are offered national winners of 4-H canning awards this year, for the 32nd consecutive year, by Kerr Glass Co.

In addition, Washtenaw county winners will receive medals of honor and the Michigan winner will receive an all-expense trip to the 39th annual 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 27 through Dec. 1.

The Co-operative Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that 4-H Club members will produce about 4 1/2 million quarts of canned food this year.

DELINQUENCY, CHILD NEGLECT CASES REPORTED INCREASING IN COUNTY

Cases of juvenile delinquency and child neglect coming to the attention of county authorities are on the rise, but services are being expanded and improved to cope with them. That is the appraisal of the recent work of the Washtenaw County Juvenile Division of Probate Court by the division's director, Louis Rome. Rome, 29, has held his present post since January of this year. For 14 years before that, he served as county juvenile court supervisor. "Although our case-load has virtually doubled since 1957, I'd say the general picture in this area is good," he said. "Unlike a more metropolitan county, the bulk of our referrals involve youths who have not committed any 'serious' crimes. "However, we have noticed an alarming increase in the number of younger children (aged 12 to 14 1/2) who are coming in conflict with the law. Unless checked, the trend could develop into our No. 1 problem. It is toward early referral of these 'problem youngsters' that much of the division's efforts are being directed. "Our main goal is getting local agencies and parents to seek help with a child before difficulties become serious," Rome said. "The longer a child is allowed to continue delinquent behavior, the more difficult correction becomes. "This is equally true of child neglect matters. As an example, Rome cited a Washtenaw county school which does not refer teen-age truants until they have missed 30 straight days of school or 36 days in 100. "That kind of truancy has its roots much earlier," Rome said. "We want to deal with such cases before they reach an advanced stage." To point up the general work increase in his department, Rome noted that 376 delinquency and neglect cases were handled in 1959 as compared to a projected 750 this year. During the same period, the division staff has risen from 16 to 21, with more social workers being added. "Our eight social workers are each handling an average of 80 cases per day," he said. "A national probation and parole group has estimated that the load per worker should be about 40. "At that rate we are still better off than agencies in many areas of the country. And co-operation with police and most schools has been excellent. That makes our work much easier." Rome said a primary reason for the boost is not necessarily an increase in area delinquency itself, but the fact that local agencies are now referring more cases to the Juvenile Division. This, he said, reflects a greater understanding of the nature of the juvenile problem, as well as greater confidence in the department. Other factors given were an increase in county population of persons under 20 years of age from 52,000 to 57,000 this year, and a corresponding rise in family breakups. To implement staff resources, Rome said a group therapy program has been established at the division. Its aim is to give certain youths contact with a working group under the supervision of an "authority"—the social worker. Through breaking down the usual one-to-one relationship between social worker and subject, it is hoped that staff personnel can be used more effectively. At the same time, valuable co-operative traits can be developed in the children involved. Rome added that former social workers are now being employed in checking qualifications of prospective foster homes. "Probably most encouraging is the type of personnel being attracted to social work," he concluded. "Its getting better all the time."

SENIOR RECREATION NEWS

Most of the 65 playgrounders who went to Greenfield Village last Friday agreed that more time could be spent in the Village than was available because of the many interesting buildings and exhibits. Everyone had a good time, but after walking through the Village for a few hours, they were glad to board the buses for the trip back home. The final trip of summer playground will be coming up on Wednesday, August 10th. This will be the trip to Briggs Stadium to see the Tigers play the Baltimore Orioles, and all the Little Leaguers, especially, as well as other senior playgrounders, are invited to go along. Further details will be announced at playground and trip slips will be given out. Everyone is urged to watch for details concerning the Recreation Program Parade, which will be held some evening next week and will feature the boys and girls who have attended playground plus other activities at the Athletic Field. The annual All-Star softball games between the champions and All Stars of the Boys' and girls' playground leagues will be played this Saturday evening under the lights with the girls' game beginning at 7:00 p.m. League champions will be determined during this week's schedule of games. We need more interest and more entries in our Soap Box Derby which is scheduled to be run off on Monday, Aug. 8, at the Athletic Field. Here is a chance to build your own model and race it against those built by your friends. Several tournaments were held last week with the eager contestants striving to accumulate points toward winning one of the trophies to be presented the evening of the parade. Cont. on pg. three

KEY EMPLOYEE RETIRES

Double A Products Company here is without one of its key employees, George Defenderfer, purchasing agent for many years, is retiring as of August 1st. He has been with the company for the past 26 years. He came to Double A in November 1934. At that time the plant was new and located in a small building back of the Court House in Ann Arbor. In the early days, Double A made small power tools for the S.S. Kresge Co. He is credited with being one of the men who made the thing tick along with Herbert Upton, Sr., president of Double A, Gladys Koopman, Fritz Schille, Sr., Service, Roy Craner, Bill Johnston, Hollie Ayles, Alfred Strang and Harry Martin. These are all still employees of the company, which a short time after it started, moved to Manchester. Mr. Defenderfer was a design engineer and pattern maker. His associates point out that no job has ever been too big or hard for him to tackle. He has always had time to listen to suggestions of others and offer help when needed. He leaves a host of loyal friends. Replacing him will be Jim Gutzwiller, who has been his associate for sometime. He has lived Double A for 26 years. He has watched it grow—and been a part of its growth. George became purchasing agent in 1942—World War II. For a short time during that period his wife Myrtle joined the staff of Double A to help out. "Sure we made mistakes," he says, "but we profited by them. Most of the boys are still with us." The Defenderfers feel they deserve a much needed rest. They plan to leave as soon as possible for Florida where they plan to build a new home. Their address will be Glencoe, Rt. 1, New Symma Beach, Florida. He has been on the board of directors for the past 20 years and will remain in that capacity. A plant surprise party was held for him Saturday, July 30th at Carr Park, Manchester, where he was presented with a camera and case and Mrs. Defenderfer was given an orchid, along with the well wishes of all employees of Double A.
