PLAN VENTURE BOLDNESS SEVEN CENTS PER COPY VOLUME 95 NO. 4 THE MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE JANUARY 25, 1962

Tonight, Manchester will pay homage to the man who put MAN into Manchester, and we are proud of him. Manchester, in the past, has made many attempts to land factories and not until 1940 was the Chamber of Commerce...

Honor to Whom Honor is Due

We are dedicating the following: It must be nice to measure years In kindness you've done It must be nice instead of tears To count the smiles you've won

On May 2nd, ground was broken for the factory and work progressed nicely without a hitch. On July 2nd the factory was completed. Double A Products moved in bringing with them 22 employees from Ann Arbor and started in with 35 employees in all.

On September 12, 1940, dedication services were held and the building committee turned over the new brick factory to Double A Products Co. in the usual and formal way. After seven years, Mr. Riggs left the company. Herbert H. Upton became the sole manager and during the early years put in many, many hours of hard work; Not only managing the factory, but also traveling on the road; and doing the engineering. During his management there were no strikes. He knew everyone of his employees and was interested in their welfare, no able bodied man in this com-community went on the welfare if he wanted work. He had the confidence of his employees. In 1957 Double A merged with Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company. In 1958 they purchased The Rosaen Company, manufacturers of power units, and in the same year purchased the Gerotor line of pumps. In 1940 sales amounted to $400,000. Sales have grown to a peak of over $4,000,000 in 1961 and employment has grown from 35 to a peak of 326. Double A was operating but a short time when they found it necessary to add to the building, and as time progressed, they made five additions. In 1958, they found it necessary to double their capacity. Taxes the company pays to the community are now fifty times what they were 20 years ago. Also, it is interesting to note that based on industry averages it costs in terms of capital investment, about $20,000 for each employee employed—in other words, each job costs the company about $20,000. Obviously Double A's contribution to the community has been great.

Double A's future in Manchester looks promising. Brown & Sharpe, the parent company, has from the start been impressed with the spirit of friendliness and cooperation that exists at Double A and in the Manchester community. The objectives of Double A and Brown & Sharpe are to continue to improve facilities and products until Double A is the recognized leader in the field of industrial hydraulics. Herbert Upton retired from the firm December 6, 1961. Manchester is very fortunate to have his son, Herbert Upton, Jr. (Jabe) following in the footsteps of his father. Mr. C.W.

The class will meet each Tuesday evening for nine weeks for two hour each session covering in detail the theories and skills of handling emergencies of a complex nature. John Williams suggests that those individuals planning on attending bring with them notebooks, pencils, and their "green covered" first Aid textbook. He also pointed out that the Advanced course is covered in the second, half of the First Aid Handbook so the same text as used in the Standard course is all that is needed. The free course is made possible by public support of the United Fund Appeals throughout the county and registration can be made for the course by Calling Red Cross at 662-5546

Safety Hints From Chief Van DeGinste

In a late-winter warning, Chief of Police Van DeGinste today cautioned drivers against a let up in winter driving caution which could result in a tragic "letdown".

"After driving this far through another winter, we should know better than to drop our guard now," the chief said, "but this is just the time to beware of that one fatal moment of carelessness."

The chief unloaded a double-barreled charge of excellent advice which he hopes will reach the mark: First, he advised drivers to check their cars for winter-wear equipment, second, he urged them to check their knowledge of late-winter weather and road conditions as they affect driving.

"You probably are pretty tired of winter just about now, and so you can well imagine that the family car may be getting a little tired of it all, too," he said. "This is the time when batteries can run down quickly, when lights may fail, when windshield wipers may show blade fatigue or a serious drop-off in arm pressure against the windshield, and when tire chains may show enough wear to warrant immediate replacement."

The chief warned against procrastination in correcting these or other dangerous defects. "We can expect some of our worst blizzards just about now," he cautioned. "We can't afford to overlook dangerous equipment faults or to postpone correcting them."

In the event this area escapes the usual late-winter blizzards, there are still other seasonal surprises in store which could cause accidents, Chief Van DeGinste noted.

"Let's not forget that thawing temperatures during the day frequently cause run-offs which freeze into slippery patches as soon as evening temperatures begin to drop," he emphasized. "Careful driving, at reduced speed, is a wise precaution—particularly after dark. Stay well within your headlight range so you can spot the slick patches in time to prevent a dangerous skid."

The chief also reminded drivers that temperature plays an important part in braking and stopping distance determination on snow and ice.

The chief observed that "we have just come through possibly the coldest part of the winter. At low temperature, ice can almost be described as 'sticky'—comparatively speaking. Now all of a sudden a warming trend, which is in other respects so welcome, can turn pavement ice very, very slippery. That's why I say that now is no time to neglect worn out tire chains. We may have real use for reinforced chains between now and spring—and there's always next winter too." Chief Van DeGinste also had a warning against the temptation to "rush the season" on the first warm days of spring. "Let's not spoil our safety record now by being too eager to resume summertime speeds," he suggested. "There'll be some repair work to do on streets and highways which sustained frost damage. In the meantime, let's take it easy."

He complimented Manchester's drivers for the generally high level of cooperation and caution exercised during the winter months. "Without it," he admitted, "we could easily have had some serious emergencies, and possible some lives lost."

Manchester PTA to Raise Funds With Progressive Coffees

Members of the Manchester P.T.A. are having progressive coffees next week to raise funds to purchase science and kitchen equipment for the schools. Mrs. William Schaffer, Mrs. Tom Marshall and Mrs. Pat Roesch, comprising the P.T.A. Ways and Means Committee, will hold a large progressive coffee hour, Wed. Jan. 31st, at the home of the Chairman, Mrs. Schaffer to launch the program followed by a coffee started by each officer and board member of the P.T.A. Twenty-five cents is suggested as the minimum donation.

Previous projects instigated by the P.T.A. this year to obtain money for these articles have met with poor response, to the extent of incurring a loss from the two movies recently shown. It is hoped better response will result from these progressive coffees, since they may be made as elaborate or as simple as the hostess chooses and may be given at her convenience. Any further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Schaffer at GA 8-5321.

Attend Homemakers Program

Women throughout Michigan
have a special invitation to attend homemakers' programs during the 47th annual Farmer's Week, Jan. 29 through Feb. 2,
at Michigan State University.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, homemakers and their hus-

most for their meat dollar, see an actual meat cutting demonstration, find out how rugs fit into home design, hear a nationally known authority discuss what makes houses right for human beings and view the latest in fashions in the traditional style show.

Homemakers will also want to join with their husbands on the Wednesday afternoon to hear the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture,
Orville L. Freeman, as he discusses "Meeting Agriculture's Responsibilities."

At noon that day, civil defense-minded people can buy a
"survival luncheon" made up of foods suitable for storage
and use during disaster.

Ladies can also tour the MSU
College of Home Economics Building; see movies of family decision making, radiation or children in a nursery school
department.

grams are available from your

Office, or write to the Bulletin
Office, 10 Agricultural Hall,

PROTECT-O-SPRAY
PREVENTS RUST and CORROSION

No Preparation needed on most vehicles
as PROTECT-O-SPRAY penetrates normal road dirt. You can protect your car from underbody rust and corrosion at a profit
to you.

Our application allows coating to impregnate metal pores. Reduces "squeaks" and other road noises, retards rust action.

With only one hose and light weight spray
gun, our operators have no difficulty
spraying fender wells, and other tight areas.
A protective coating is applied to your car.

Completely coated the under-carriage
actually repels dirt and road salts.

A NEW PROCESS. Protect-O-Spray is a newly developed process for spraying the new petroleum base rust preventative compounds. It is inexpensive and can save you hundreds of dollars in body repairs due to rust and corrosion.

PROFITABLE. Every vehicle (both old and new) on the road can save now! Each year water, road salts, and calcium take a heavy toll in rusted-out rocker panels, fenders, and other body areas.

COMPLETE PROTECTION. Airless sprayed petroleum-base sealing compounds cannot crack or peel. Cracks, crevices, and blistered areas in undercoating are revitalizing.

Last Call For Refund

Time is running out for motorists who want a 35¢ refund credit for reflectorized plates they never received. The legislative act which authorizes these credits sets a deadline which makes these refund cards apply only on purchases of 1962 plates and then only if they are used before the February 28 deadline. Persons eligible for refunds are urged to mail their credit application cards to the Department of State in Lansing not later than February 15, 1962. When these cards are received in Lansing, they are checked with the master record and refunds of 35¢ or more are authorized. Credit refund cards are available in all 300 branch offices of the Department of State. Motorists can mail in their own cards or give them to their local branch manager who will send them to Lansing for validation. This process takes from two to four days, depending on the work load at the time, plus the days the card is in the mail.

The sophomore class will greatly appreciate the cooperation of the residents in Manchester and surrounding areas. Any person interested in purchasing magazines should contact any sophomore or call the High School.
