

Vacation Trip to Alaska

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bertke

A Manchester couple has returned home after a 26-day vacation trip to Alaska. For several years Mrs. Glen Bertke wished that somehow she could visit the land of the midnight sun. About a year ago she suggested the trip to her husband. During the last several years they had visited 47 of the United States and they both agreed they believed they were missing something if they failed to see Alaska. Although Mr. Bertke failed to share the enthusiasm of his wife they started to make plans and to study the prospective trip.

She reasoned that if they took their station wagon and most of their food, many of their problems would be solved. If it was necessary they could even sleep in the car. Six nights of the 26 they did sleep in their station wagon.

Taking their own food cut down on the cost of the trip because they pointed out the farther north they traveled the higher the cost. They had the car outfitted with new six ply tires and took one spare. We didn't anticipate trouble and packed the spare at the bottom of the load but we did have it if we needed it.

Mrs. Bertke did some home baking before they left and there were pies, cakes, fried cakes and other goodies packed for the trek north.

Also packed away were prepared mashed potatoes, pancake flour, bacon, smoked ham, canned ham and other canned meats, fruit and vegetables. There was canned milk, instant coffee and tea, ten dozen eggs, six pounds of butter. An ice chest to carry perishables was part of the equipment.

The couple left by way of Northern Michigan and crossed into Canada and along route 17 to Regina, Saskatchewan and on to Edmonton. At Dawson Creek they were 2,069 miles from home. That is the starting point of Mile O Alaska Highway. The first 83 miles is paved. Then the fun begins and the dirt highway. In some places the road is good and smooth and in others it gets pretty rough. There is one thousand two hundred twenty-one miles of this dirt road. Mosquitoes and black flies are bad in places the travelers said. They carried their own repellent, which they used freely when they camped. Gas stations and cafes became farther apart as they traveled. The first week of the trip it rained some part of every day.

Fort Nelson is a thriving city of 2,653 and is a fur trading center. Oil wells are in abundance and it boasts of a newspaper, radio station, military hospital and three schools including a senior high.

On further they lodged at a place called the Village, owned by Anton and Jerry Money. At Coal River Lodge gas had jumped to 67 cents a gallon.

A note of interest is that at Contact Creek Bridge, in the year 1942 the US Corps of Army Engineers first made contact from the north and south. Farther up the road there was a building for campers, equipped with a stove and table. Here Mr. Bertke got out his trusty hatchet and cut fire wood so that his wife could prepare dinner. On the menu that day was fried ham, mashed potatoes, squash, pickles, olives, bread and butter. They always managed to have a thermos of cold drinking water and a pail handy to carry water in.

At Watson Lake, an Indian trading post, there are many wooden signs erected giving the names and addresses of those who have been blazing the trail to the north and Bertkes added their names to the ever increasing list.

ESCAPER ADMITS WEAPON COUNT
Clyde L. Wheeling, 24, a former Manchester Man who escaped July 12 from the Ionia State Reformatory and who was captured by the Manchester Police Chief Jules Van DeGinsle on July 17, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court to carrying a concealed weapon.

Wheeling said he got the gun in an empty house on Sharon Hollow Road, three miles east of Sharon Hollow, and then went to Manchester where he was arrested. He had first gone to Detroit from Ionia.

Sheriff's deputies found a .22 caliber revolver in the waist band of Wheeling's trousers.

Wheeling was captured with another escaper, Harry L. Shepard, a 34-year old Detroit burglar. The Manchester man was serving concurrent terms of five to 15 years and two to five years on convictions for breaking and entering in the nighttime in Washtenaw and Jackson counties.

Wheeling will be sentenced by Judge William F. Ager, Jr. on August 2.

BERTKES TELL HIGHLIGHTS OF TRIP

At the Indian trading post, Watson Lake, we added our signboard with our names and addresses. Rustic log houses dotted the countryside, and making of black diamond jewelry seemed to be a main occupation.

Our next stop was at Otter Falls. The picture of this falls is on the Canadian $5 bill. Then we passed through miles and miles of virgin woods and mountains. At White Horse they visited unique Indian cemeteries where the Indian had erected little houses over the graves of their loved ones. Some have frames like a baby bed. The little houses were painted in all the colors of the rainbow. Some have headstones and their names engraved.

While in the area they had a chance to see the old sternwheeler steam ships left on the banks of the Yukon from the Gold Rush. Miners are dredging for gold in this area at the present time.

A modern community the residents boast of TV and laundromats.

St. John's church at Bridgewater will have a Mission Festival next Sunday at the church with Rev. A. F. G. Daeschel speaking at 10:30 a.m. and Chaplain R. Tupy, Selfridge Air Force Base speaking at 8 p.m.

VISITS GREAT - AUNT IN ENGLAND

Bruce Oates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Oates, will return with the Michigan Chorale, Thursday, August 15 at 9 a.m. at the Metropolitan Airport. While in England, Bruce was able to visit his great-aunt, Mrs. Arthur (Elizabeth Olds).

Marvin Oates father, the late John Oates, left England in 1900. Mrs. Olds has no children and Bruce is the first relative she has seen from the United States since her brother left in 1900. She is 82 years old, lives alone and is very active. She escorted her nephew on a day's trip around the area. They are pictured at Land's End at the extreme Southwest tip of England.

Bruce writes home that the cross-country trip in an English train—not at all like American trains, is pretty slow by comparison. "You find your own train, car and seat number no one tells you anything, not even when you come to your stop. It's all by number and a schedule," he wrote.

The chorale is giving concerts in England for 18 days, from London airport they flew to Finland, toured the country by bus and gave concerts in villages and towns even along the Russian border.

They sang in Sweden for ten days and will give concerts in Denmark, and Amsterdam, Holland before returning home. Their final concert will be at Hill Auditorium Sept. 1 at 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Banker Leaves Part Of Estate To Village

Bennett C. Root, a retired Manchester banker, whose funeral was held Monday, didn't forget the community in which he lived until the last few years, when he spent winters in Florida and the summers near Gaylord.

Mrs. Ann Root, his widow, and James C. Hendley, local attorney and president of the Union Savings Bank are the co-executors and trustees of the Bennett C. Root estate as provided in the banker's will.

Mr. Hendley remarked that "the heart and soul of Mr. Root were with the people of Manchester and with the bank which he served for over fifty years. This was very plain in his will. "Provision was made for the improvement of Carr Park (the beautiful village park which attracts hundreds every Sunday in the summer. The trustees are authorized to expend up to $5,000 for improvements of the park. Although Mr. Root had no children he planned for the welfare of many, for the village park is the place where the Little League games are played—where there are swings and slides and many acres for a recreation area.

He didn't forget his church. There is a provision for capital improvements at the Methodist church, with the trustees to decide within their discretion to the sum of $5,000. He also provided an additional $2,000 for the Sharon Evangelical United Brethren Church. Mr. Root was a life-long member of the Manchester Methodist church and served on the church board for many years. He was its treasurer from 1942 to 1956.

"Dear to his heart was the Manchester High School of which he was a graduate," Mr. Hendley continued, "The trustees are to set up a scholarship fund to aid deserving Manchester High School students to attend college. The exact amount of this fund cannot be determined at this time."

Certain portions of his estate are to be set aside for the benefit of the employees of the Union Savings Bank and will be added to the bank's pension fund. Mr. Root was very active in civic affairs during his many years at the bank. He served as village president and township clerk and was a member of the school board.

"Yes," Mr. Hendley continued, "Bennett thought a lot of Manchester and here's the proof."
