

LIBRARY

The Library Club chose its officers at their first meeting on Oct. 1. Carol Kruse was elected president, Mike Schneider, vice president, Norm Chapin, secretary, Bob Adams, treasurer, and Janice Buss reporter. The club discussed the Library and its reference books, particularly the Reader's Guide. The duties of the Librarian were also discussed.

The Library Club meeting was called to order by President Carol Kruse, Oct. 22. Things discussed were library cards and discipline in the library. Library books cannot be taken out on other people's cards only one book per student unless a special card is obtained from Mrs. Martin; books must be brought back by the persons who checked them out. One magazine per student at one time is the rule.

The Library is receiving the new Encyclopedia International as the books come off the press. There are six volumes at the present time.

The members also turned in their reports on non-fiction books; the reports included the following points: 1. Title 2. Author and something about him or her 3. Type of book 4. Pages read 5. Date of reading 6. General theme or problem 7. Time and place of the account 8. Brief summary of the book 9. What special benefit or knowledge the reader derived from the book 10. Special criticism of the book.

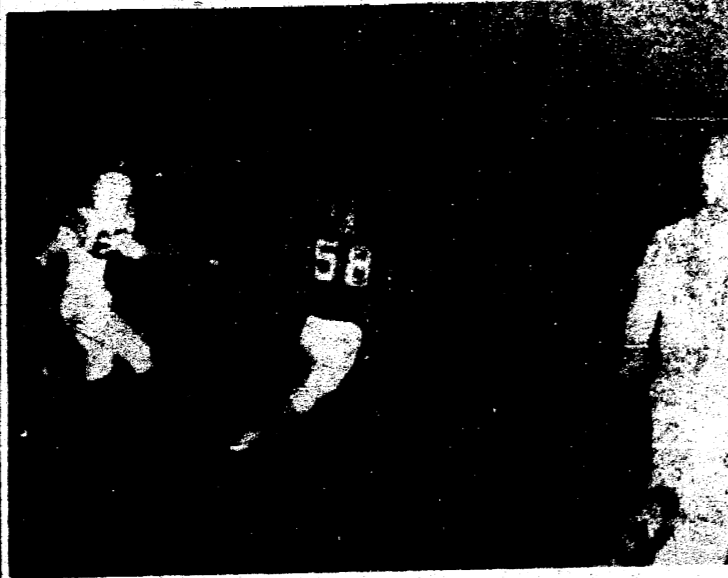

"BABY-SITTING BEDLAM"

One evening I got a phone call from a lady who wanted a babysitter. She asked if I might be ready in half an hour.

When we reached her home she showed me where everything that I might need was. Then she said that she must leave and told me that the children were playing in the recreation room. I expected to find two or three children playing in the basement, so you can imagine my surprise when I opened the door and found five boys, seven girls, three dogs, four kittens, two parakeets and a bowl of goldfish, and a monkey in the recreation room.

Now if I can remember their names and ages I will tell you about them. First there was Karen who was 10; Jim and Tim who were 9; Kevin, 8; Candy and Randy, 7; Patty, 6; Jeff, 5; Sally, 4; Linda, 3; and Mary and Martha, 2.

After putting someone to bed every 15 minutes, by 9:30 I had everyone in bed. At 9:32 the phone rang and from all over the house came children reading to answer it. After that I got them all back in bed and Karen came down to get a glass of milk. When she slammed the refrigerator, again came the stampede. Just as I got the last one back in bed by this time it was 11:45 their mother came home. She asked me if I had had any trouble and I said "no". At this she said "Smile you're on Candid Camera."

STUDENT OPINION

The United States is a model of democracy throughout the world. Our Constitution has been the basis of constitutions in numerous countries. Statisticians know that in the last presidential election only 2/3 of the eligible voters voted, and this was the highest in history.

Much of this is due, of course, to illiteracy. Many people are unable to get to the polls through natural reasons such as sickness. Surely, this does not take care of one third of our population. What of the others? Many people do not vote because they are of the opinion that their one little vote did not count. Now suppose that everyone thought that way. After a while only the politicians themselves would vote. Then they would start fixing elections and eventually our government would collapse, as do all governments which allow graft to enter.

We Americans pride ourselves on the fact that theoretically, every citizen has a say in our government, but not everyone votes. Some other reasons are that with the voting machines it is too difficult, or that they don't have much say about the choice of candidates. The latter, of course, is solved by going to the primary election. In some states there is a literacy test or poll tax. In my opinion, a poll tax is against American teachings, and is a throw-back to civil war days.

If everyone would realize that, like a machine, the government depends on each separate little part, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant, to keep it running, then our country would be better off.

The basic reason every teenager should take driver training is to teach him how to drive and care of a car properly. The course is designed to teach driving skills, as well as good driver attitudes. Properly trained teenage drivers make for better and safer drivers than others of the same age who learn to drive from a family member or a friend.

Learning to speak in front of a group of people is a very important thing. It not only gives a person self-reliance, but helps him to be a better listener. A person who has addressed many groups will, when listening to another speaker know what the speaker expects of the listeners. Self-confident when doing things, loses his fear of being alone which makes him a much happier person.

It seems as though more and more teenagers are quitting school at approximately the age of sixteen or seventeen. It is really a shame that so many teenagers drop out of school because there are many disadvantages that most don't see. Probably the most important disadvantage is that they no longer have the friends they had when they were back in school. Another disadvantage is the job opportunities. It will be very difficult to find steady and good-paying jobs without a diploma.

There are so many disadvantages that a teenager faces when he quits school. A diploma always gives you the security that you will be able to get a job faster and easier than those who have dropped out of school. You should have your fun of being free from having a job while you can, and worry about the job later you have graduated.

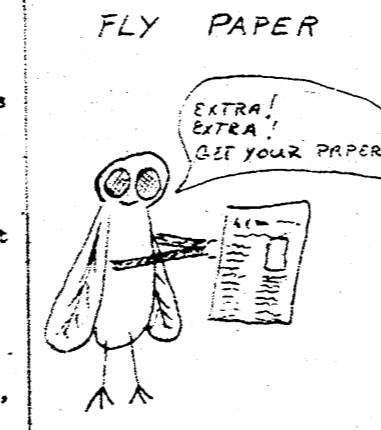

MR. DUTCHMEN

At the assembly Fri. Oct. 25, Mr. Bazany introduced the J. V. Football players. Larry Goodell is captain of the team that has lost only one game out of six this season to establish the best record to date.

The cheerleaders did a skit about Mr. Dutchman. Susan Helber and Coelle Furlfield were the goalposts; Diane Dresselhouse was the worried coach; Deana Shuey was the coach from Clinton; Jane Kemner was Mr. Dutchman; Mary Knapp was the frantic cheerleader that made too much noise. After much trouble Mr. Dutchmen finally won the game.

The Varsity Club initiatives did a cheer "Yea Team." Jerry Ahrens was then announced Mr. Dutchman 1963. Congratulations Jerry!

Announcements Issued by Police Chief

Chief of Police Jules Van de Ginste issued the following announcement and asked for the cooperation of all vehicle owners:

"During the winter, special parking restrictions of a temporary nature will be established when and where it becomes necessary in order to carry out street clearing and snow removal operations. Areas where parking is prohibited will be clearly posted in advance and the time limits announced.

"Drivers are urged to comply with 'snow parking' regulations. If it becomes necessary, illegally parked vehicles will be towed away at the owners' expense, to allow snow clearing operations to proceed."

The chief also asked motorists to park their vehicles off the street whenever possible, during and after heavy snowfalls, and before snow-covered streets have been plowed back to their normal width.

"Other drivers will appreciate your cooperation just as much as you will appreciate your cooperation just as much as you will appreciate theirs," he said.

Cancelling unnecessary travel during snowfalls is helpful, he pointed out because "light and loose" traffic aids snow clearing operations.

... And Into Lake Erie

... And out into Lake Erie go the waters and, eventually, into the Atlantic ocean. With a humble beginning at Briggs Lake, the Raisin River joins a vast network to become a part of the gigantic St. Lawrence Seaway.

The River's End ... Water Turns To Ocean

by Mrs. Reginaid Angus

EDITOR'S NOTE: Making the Raisin River a more useful source of water to the many communities through which it flows is still largely a dream, but one that may come true if certain obstacles can be overcome. The primary importance to us of this project is not only that it will help to recognize the value of this important river which originates in this area. Permission is given to reprint all or any part of this article. We do not, however, take responsibility for the author and his message.

Of the earliest history of the Raisin, little is known. The Indians used the entire river and its tributaries as a portage to the Great Lakes. Remains of an Indian dancing ground were seen at Tecumseh by its early settlers in 1825. Even in historic days, Indian villages dotted the landscape around the Raisin. An Indian reservation was established by an early treaty at Macon in Monroe County, but was not long in use. The Potawatomi were the most commonly met people as the white man moved further into Michigan using the Raisin as a road of expansion. Lenawee County was included in the territory acquired by the United States Government from the Ottawa, Ojibwa, Wyandotte and Potawatomi in November of 1807. The territory that the Raisin drains, in Hillsdale and Jackson Counties was acquired in August of 1821 from the same tribes.

The Raisin has named a township in Lenawee County through which it passes. That township was the center of an abolitionist movement which was spearheaded by "Aunt" Laura Haviland who lived near Whitworth highway, not far from the banks of the river. A cave on the hillside nearby is where slaves were hidden as they made their way to freedom on that famous "underground railroad." Today in front of Adrian's city hall one can see a statue of this famous Quaker lady who organized the first abolition society in Lenawee County. A reward of $3000 was once offered by southern slave interests for her capture, but that failed to alter that valiant lady who continued her efforts to help slaves escape their masters, in addition to her daily task of running a school, the Raisin Institute.

The Raisin has also been responsible for naming a pioneer Baptist Association which constituted the counties of Monroe, Washtenaw, Lenawee, Hillsdale and Jackson Counties. Organized in 1835, this association was responsible for the growth of Baptist churches in this area.

As is true with any watershed, the problem is too much or too little water. Sometimes, both problems exist in the same area. Statistics, in a publication of Michigan State University, tell us that Michigan averages 31 inches annually in rainfall. About two thirds of that is lost in evaporation, or is used up in plants. That leaves about one third of our rainfall to seep into underground reservoirs or run off. The low level of the Raisin river this year points to the need of impounding waters that may be used at a future date.

Michigan is fortunate to be the "Water Wonderland." Endowed with numerous lakes, gifts of the ancient glaciers, we may indeed boast about the area available for recreation. But what of the future? The population explosion will certainly mean more per capita consumption of water. More industries will require more water.

Let us hope that future generations will thank this generation for its conservation accomplishments!

This statue of Monroe's favorite son, Gen. George A. Custer, stands as a sentinel guarding the Raisin River as it flows through the city.

Sunday, Nov. 10 Cana Conference from 2 to 5 p.m. at St. Mary's hall.

OCTOBER REALLY HOT AND DRY

As everyone suspected, October in this area was one of the hottest and driest Octobers on record. If only the first 30 days of the month are counted, it probably was the driest ever because nearly all the officially recorded precipitation in October occurred Thursday, Oct. 31.

Until it started to rain Thursday there had been only .05 of an inch recorded for the month at the Willow Run airport station, and only .11 of an inch recorded in Ann Arbor. The dryness record in weather bureau statistics is held by October 1953, when only .5 of an inch was officially recorded. Going back farther the driest month recorded was November 1904 when only .1 of an inch of precipitation was measured.

The average temperature for the month recorded at Willow Run was 59 degrees, 5.1 degrees above normal but still below the record of 60.4 degrees set by October 1947. The high of 89 degrees on Oct. 6 matched the record high for October, set on Oct. 3, 1953. The average maximum temperature last month was 74.5 compared with the 30-year daily maximum of 62.7 degrees. The average minimum for last month was 49.5 degrees, compared with the 30-year average minimum of 43.4 degrees.

Financially successful families know from experience that the only really bad thing about borrowing money is paying more interest than you should. Diabetes Week Nov. 17-23

To encourage Americans to find out whether they have diabetes, the week of Nov. 17-23 has been named Diabetes Week.
Manchester woman, Mrs. Schaefer is the chairman of the Ann Arbor Diabetic Association. She wants that everyone in the area should avail themselves of the opportunity to have the Blood Sugar Test from Nov. 25 through Nov. 30 when the Free Test Blood Mobile will be in Ann Arbor. On Nov. 25, 26, and 27 it will be on Main Street when anyone can stop and have the test. The results will be mailed to you and to your doctor. On November 29 and 30 the Mobile Unit will be at the Ann Arbor Public Library at 8 p.m. to talk on "What relatives of diabetics should know." This program is sponsored by the Ann Arbor Diabetic Association.

Experts have estimated that there are more than 100,000 known diabetics in the United States, and it is estimated that there are about 1,440,000 Americans who have diabetes and don't know it. These figures are plus undiagnosed cases of thousands of people who may develop diabetes if they don't follow a strict diet, keep their weight down and have periodic physical examinations. Their doctors to detect changes in how their bodies use sugar.

Diabetes is a disorder in which the body cannot make full use of some of the foods we eat—mainly the carbohydrates, or sugars and starches. The pancreas, a large gland lying behind the stomach, does not make available enough insulin to turn these foods into energy or store them for future use.

Symptoms include increase in thirst, constant hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, itching, easy tiring, changes in vision and slow healing of cuts and scratches. Most likely candidates for diabetes are overweight persons past 40, particularly those who are related to diabetics and especially older women. But diabetes can hit anyone at any age.

Diabetes can be controlled by a planned diet, exercise, and insulin or oral medication. Well-controlled diabetes can lead active and useful lives.

Celebrates 90th Birthday

Written by Marie Schneider
EDITOR'S NOTE: Permission is given to re-print all or any part of this article. We ask, however, that proper credit be given the author and this newspaper.

A Manchester woman will observe her 90th birthday, Sunday, Nov. 17. Mrs. Anna Davidter, widow of Otto Davidter says, "Somehow the years slipped by so swiftly I can hardly comprehend I'm ninety years old. Only when I recall my early years of nursing does the time take on a real value."

Mrs. Davidter was the oldest girl in a family of ten children of Fred and Katherine Haschle Maurer. The youngest in the family, Ben Maurer of West Austin Road and herself are the only ones living. She was born in 1873 on what is now the Gaita Cathey farm at 11521 Austin Road, Manchester township.

After completing the eight grades at the Spafard School she helped her mother with the housework and because of her natural ability and good natured ways soon found herself caring for the sick and doing practical nursing. One case took her to Ann Arbor and there friends encouraged her to enter the University School of Nursing. A high school diploma was not required to enter training. There were not many nurses and few girls entered training.

Careers for women were not common when she enrolled at the turn of the century. There were 10 girls in her group at University hospital. "Things have changed. It took two years to complete training. First, we served a two-month probation period and during that time we worked in the hospital, wearing light colored house dresses. The work was hard, but I loved it. The hospital was without a supervisor of nurses for a short time and they were expecting one to come from the east. Shortly before she arrived I was called into the Head Nurses' office and told to begin to wear uniforms at once. Because it was rumored, the new supervisor would be unduly strict with girls on probation.

"You may think that wasn't much of an order, but we couldn't step out and buy uniforms. We could make them ourselves or hire them made. They were of blue chambray with round collar and cuffs for the first year nurses and the same type for the second year except we wore a white organdy kerchief at the neck and deep white cuffs.

"I was so happy to be told to get uniforms because I knew I had been accepted. In training we were paid $4 a month after the probation period for the first year and $6 a month the second year. That was considered very good. For, we received our training, room and board and laundry. If we were sick we were cared for by the hospital free of charge. Our only expense was the uniform.
"Now, I'm told the first year student does no floor duty. She spends all her time studying. We started caring for the patients as soon as we enrolled and did our studying on our free time.
"Can you imagine nurses making their rounds at night carrying a lighted candle? That is what we did. We didn't have flashlights. When I see University hospital today, and think back to its size when I worked there then I realize a great many years have intervened to cause such drastic changes.
"After completion of training it was the custom to register with doctors and surgeons for private duty. I really wanted to do nursing in Jackson, Mich.
Direct train service was very important to me.
"Those were the horse and buggy days, so it was necessary to have quicker transportation. I took a room at the YWCA in Jackson. I seldom stayed there for, after finishing a case I liked to board the train and come home to spend a few days with my family and rest up.
"We had a telephone at the farm and being registered with the doctors, they could call when there would be a case for me.
"The salary for a nurse was $3 for 24-hour duty. No one had heard of an 8-hour day. Hospital duty was a twelve hour shift, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. etc.
"Sometimes when people would be very sick and there wouldn't be a nurse for the nurse, I'd find myself sleeping on the floor with a pillow at my head, catching a few winks of sleep whenever I could.
"Treatment of diseases has changed so drastically. Take typhoid fever. We treated the patient by immersing them in a tub of ice cold water.
"Patients used to dread treatment and I could congratulate and thank every chairman, captain, volunteer solicitor and donor for an excellent and difficult "job well done." The Community Chest Board, as well as the thousands of people who will be aided through this fund, also express a true appreciation of their efforts in completing a most successful campaign.
