97 YEAR No. 2
Manchester, Mich. January 9, 1964 10 cents

Author Jenter Retires

After 53 years and nine months as a mortician in Manchester, Arthur Jenter hands over the reigns of the business to his son, Ronald, who has been working with his father since 1947. In that span of time Mr. Jenter has lived within two blocks of the present Jenter Funeral Home.

The name Jenter has been associated with this business in Manchester since 1886 when his father, Ernest C. Jenter and John Rauschenberger operated an embalming business in connection with their furniture store. Rauschenberger and Jenter dissolved partnership in 1906. Ernest Jenter worked alone with the help of a brother-in-law, John Schaible, until his son Arthur joined him in 1910.

The retiring funeral director is a graduate of Manchester High School and graduated at the top of his class from the University of Michigan embalming school. He was a member of the only class that didn't have to write the state board exam and had to wait a year for his license because an applicant had to be 21 years of age before being granted a license.

Both of his sons, Russell of Los Angeles and Ronald of Manchester are licensed morticians. Russell is not practicing his profession but is purchasing agent and office manager for A. Leitz Co. of Los Angeles. January 20, 1916 Mr. Jenter married Cora Grossman. They also have two daughters, Mrs. Edward (Maxine) Steele and Mrs. LeRoy (Alice) Dresselhouse. There are seven grandchildren.

Times have brought many changes in this type of business. When Mr. Jenter first started to work with his father embalming was done in the home of the deceased. There was no funeral parlor. The body was left at the residence where friends called and was taken to the church for services-or the services were sometimes held at the home. There was much more work connected with a funeral in those days. For even chairs had to be taken to the homes. Caskets were selected in their store basement. First the store was in the Dresselhouse and David building and later was in the building now housing the Manchester Laundromat.

Jenters had two horse-drawn hearses in those days. One was black and the other grey, for young people. The hearsed had glass windows and carved wood-drapery designs. The driver rode in an open seat up in front. They bought their first auto hearse in 1917. This was the first one in Washtenaw county. When Mr. Jenter started to work, caskets were made nearly entirely of wood. Morticians often bought shirred silk materials and did their own trimming on the inside of the coffin. Different types of handles were offered and the buyer could make his own selection. Mr. Jenter recalls that after his father was taken ill the first work he did alone in 1922 called for doing some sculpturing with plaster of paris, color and wax a job which took him most of the day. He said there was always something very rewarding about doing his best work and there was always a challenge to make a corpse presentable.

Caskets used to be a standard six foot, with six foot three inches by special order. Now the standard size is 6-8. The materials have ranged from plush velour, silk brocades, crepes, and now more popular are the metals, mahogany, walnut and cherry. In this area the metal ones seem to be in greatest demand.

They closed the furniture business in 1933. For many years the Jenters have operated an ambulance service in conjunction with the mortuary work. Unless a person really enjoys this type of work, Mr. Jenter feels it would be useless to try it.

He says that going to Tennessee was probably the longest distance he drove to bring back a body. He has seen many changes in methods of embalming and can remember the metal box which his father had stored away that had been used in early days before embalming. This was filled with ice in the summer to help keep the body cool. He remembers going by train to Elgin, Illinois (before automobiles) to bring back a body. He noted too, that there is a double first class passenger charge to ship one, without an escort. This is something he

The great highway performer

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury Chevrolet

What does it take to make a car a great highway performer? The answer is a Chevrolet. You'll find everything else already packed for you—on the car itself as you pick it off the showroom floor.

There's a choice of seven engines—all the way up to a four-cylinder high-compression 151-hp V-8—and four transmissions including a fully loaded over-drive.

And interesting it all—aumpy-sounding jet-smooth ride that helps keep the performance great even when the highway gets a little rough.

What about special performance equipment? Performance steering knuckles, springs, shocks, and disc brakes are all there. And that's really the best part of the package—just about anyone can get a side view of driving this jet-smooth highway performer in just one look. When you've got your hands on a few extra minutes of simple one-of-a-kind highway performance in just one look, you're ready for what you need. That's a sure sign you're in for a lot of driving fun in a Chevrolet.

Funeral Services Wednesday for Dr. Guy T. Katner

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Lutheran Home for Dr. Guy T. Katner, 87 years, a retired dentist, who died Sunday morning at the Arrow Home at 14520 West 7 Mile Road, Detroit. He had been a resident of the home for the past 6 months. Previous to entering the home he had lived at 228 Hickman Street in Manchester.

Dr. Katner was born November 24, 1876, in Bridgeville, Delaware, the son of William and Della Katner.

He attended and graduated from Chelsea High School and received his Doctor's degree from the University of Michigan Dental School. He practiced in Manchester and Saline before going to work for a Dental Supply Co. in Toledo, Ohio in 1923 to become a practicing dentist at the Wayne County General Hospital and held that position until his retirement in 1949.

Dr. Katner was a member of the Detroit District of American Dental Association, Emeritus member of the University of Michigan Alumni Association, Life member of American Rifle Association, Life member of the Saline Lodge No. 123 F. & A. M. being its oldest living Past Master.

To Have Guest Speaker

Manchester Methodist Church will have as guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Sunday, January 13, the Rev. Carl W. Ward of Detroit.

Besides regular pastoring, Mr. Ward has served as trustee, chaplain, teacher and father of children's services. He has completed his graduate work in the field of Preaching at Michigan State University.

Mr. Ward will be representing the work of Michigan Young People's Foundation, a non-profit, non-sectarian organization representing the Christian concept of youth service through Michigan. The public is invited.

"I was very interested in the two street system of Amsterdam in the Netherlands. On a whole the canals were clean and very useful as well as unique. I got a real thrill when I first visited the church. The place where the pilgrims first stopped to pray before coming to the Netherlands the people took a great interest in us and what we were trying to do. It seemed they went out of their way to help us and seemed to take pleasure in doing it. Some churches in the Scandinavian countries were very, very old and then there were new ones being built. It seemed to live in the hearts of the people. Some of these buildings were privately owned but often the government took care of them. One unusual thing was that many people 'buy' their apartment-just as we do a home. Then it is up to the buyer to keep up the apartment and pay for all repairs. Many seemed to be three stories high with lawns in the back," Bruce said.

He enjoyed Stockholm, Sweden best of the places he saw and found them (the people) to be the most like Americans.

Asked whether he believed the Michigan Chorale is promoting better understanding of the American Youth, he said he really does. He said that most of those he stayed with said that they were very glad they had the chance to have the young Americans with them because they were getting a much better concept of the youth of the country.

"I'd like to make one comment on the places where we sang. We had been told, before we went on the tour that one place would stand out above all others. This is true. We stayed at Burton-on-Trent, England, located about in the middle of the country. When we sang at the Lichfield Cathedral, there was a difference. We experienced an emotional feeling like in no other place we sang. I can't explain it but others of the group also experienced the same feeling."

Bruce noted that all of the concerts were very well attended throughout the tour and said he hopes some day to have a chance to visit these countries again.

Safety Tips On Frost Bite

Frostbite is an ever present danger in winter in much of the nation. It can be a serious injury.

First signs of frostbite are "pins and needles" prickly feeling and then numbness, says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association. The affected part will turn white or gray, and later red.

Frostbite can be very painful for a long period, can result in amputations and leave the victim hypersensitive to cold for the rest of his life. In some ways the damage is similar to a burn.

Prevention is the best protection against frostbite. Dress properly in warm clothing, water-proof shoes and heavy dry socks. Cover face and ears. Keep clothing dry from outside moisture and from perspiration. Avoid tight clothing or garters that may restrict circulation.

Motorists should carry heavy clothing and shoes in the car. It might be necessary to hike to a garage for assistance if the motor stalls.

The first step in first aid is thawing of frozen body tissues. Bring the victim indoors to a warm room. Treat the frozen part with gentleness. Don't rub or massage. Ice or snow applied to the frozen part merely delays thawing. Prompt medical treatment is important. Control of severe pain is required. Antibiotics and antitetanus injections may be needed if the skin is broken.

First degree frostbite, similar to sunburn, is likely to attack the ears, toes, fingers, cheeks or nose. Second degree frostbite produces blisters, and third degree freezing damages deep tissues. Much of the frozen part may be lost.

Most cases of frostbite need not have happened, if the victim had been properly dressed and had used judgement about staying out too long in subfreezing weather.

Clinton firemen were called to bring water to help fight the fire. The Wisner home is located at 17613 English Road. Damage-including some from water-prevented them from reoccupying the house.

JANUARY 2 SET FOR WATERSHED MEETING

The River Raisin application for watershed assistance under Congressional Act 566 has been accepted by the State Soil Conservation Committee on behalf of the Governor.

In order for the committee to be aware of the public's attitude toward the project, a public hearing is conducted in the area by the committee under consideration before official approval is granted.

The date has been set for Friday, Jan. 10 at 1:30 p.m. at the Tecumseh Community Center in Tecumseh.

A successful hearing is dependent upon representation from all areas of the watershed. It is imperative that all sponsoring organizations plan to attend and explain and support their sponsorship. Because many sponsors have passed resolutions supporting the project on its general merits, more specific information is needed to prepare for the public hearing.

PREVENTATIVE VETERINARIAN SERVICE is a growing trend in the Midwest. Planning a program of disease prevention in your livestock operation can be one of the most profitable steps you've taken. This is especially true if disease has been seriously affecting your profits and you have an intensive livestock program. Once disease strikes it is often difficult to stop. Most arrangements have the veterinarian serve as a regular consultant on a prearranged fee basis. Emergency calls and drugs are usually charged extra.

WHEAT STANDS may appear somewhat thinner in some areas due to drought at seeding time. But thin stands do not mean next summer. Indiana tests show that wheat yields this past season were nearly as high when two pecks per acre were seeded as when higher rates were used. Where stands are especially thin, be sure to apply adequate nitrogen early next spring to stimulate rooting.

PULLETS LAY BETTER and improve long-time performance if housed together in pens where all pullets are similar in age, size and development. Pay particular attention to housing them apart from older hens. Penn State University reports that new pullets housed with older birds may be retarded by the "bossism" of older hens. Both nest fighting and fighting at the perches are problems. Pullets also may become contaminated with lice and diseases from older hens.

BULK MILK TANKS should be checked periodically, especially those five or six years old. Any tank that does not cool the milk down to 50 degrees F. in two hours should be examined immediately. Prompt cooling is extra important when milk is picked up every other day. A periodic check by a qualified serviceman can prevent costly repairs.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE TO BE SUBMITTED TO VOTERS

Application to call an election which could establish Michigan's 20th community college was approved by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Lynn M. Bartlett.

Application, which was submitted by Washtenaw Intermediate School Superintendent Julius W. Haab, was approved by Dr. Bartlett with the advice and consent of the State Board of Education.

Approval means that Washtenaw County voters will decide in an election the question of establishing a community college district comprised of the entire county with the exception of a small portion which is already a part of Northwest Wayne County Community College District.

If a similar election in Monroe County—probably this spring—is favorable, the Washtenaw community college, if established, will be the 20th in the State. There are 17 in operation and others in various stages of readiness.

The Washtenaw election will also ask approval of a three-quarter millage issue to support the college and will provide for the election of a board of trustees. The levy will be based on a $677,255,000 equalized valuation, minus $1,125,521 which is the equalized valuation of that portion of the northwest Wayne county Community College District which projects into Washtenaw county.

Location of the college has not yet been determined, but the proposal for the district stated that a full time enrollment of between 1,000 and 1,500 students and again as many part-time students is initially anticipated.

Programs to be offered include nursing, electric and electronic technology, drafting and design technology, business education, pre-engineering, pre-teaching, a liberal arts transfer program and mechanical technology.

The proposal also showed plans for a capital outlay of $6.6 million for construction of facilities. State matching funds reported, and the new Federal Higher Education facilities and Vocational Education Acts, just signed by President Johnson could add a very substantial amount to this.

Dr. Bartlett said, "While Washtenaw is served by other public and private institutions of higher education, an excellent citizen survey of the county has revealed a definite need for the kinds of facilities and educational program a good community college can offer. The Six County Community College Development Commission, studying the needs of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Washtenaw, St. Clair, and Monroe counties has also indicated the advisability of establishing a community college there."

Expressing his pleasure in approving the application, Dr. Bartlett said, "Youth, regardless of economic or other circumstances must be given their rightful opportunity for education beyond the 12th grade."

"Washtenaw County Citizens, in seeking to establish their own community colleges, are attempting to assure this opportunity and the unique benefits of a community college program for all its youth."

The 17 community colleges in the state are serving some 40,000 youth and citizens. Schoolcraft Community College in Northwest Wayne County will open next fall. Dr. Bartlett said that he hoped that a good community college will soon be located in every area of the state so that every citizen would be served within commuting distance.

He pointed out that a comprehensive community college is designed to fulfill at least five functions:

- 1. to provide two years of academic training at the collegiate level leading to a transfer to a four-year college.
2. to provide terminal courses in many technical, vocational and semi-professional areas leading directly to the world of work.
3. to provide many courses of instruction for adult citizens who are interested in upgrading their skills to fit in today's labor market.
4. to provide cultural, civic, and other community services.
5. to provide guidance and counseling services for other adults in terms of vocational and educational needs.

GOD'S GIFT TO HUMANITY

"It is good to begin a New Year in the warm aftermath of the Christmas season, and as we do so, to evaluate how well we are doing in appreciation of God's gift to humanity."

In this fashion, Walter Wightman, the Ailegan county farmer who serves as president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, looks ahead to what he considers major human issues facing each of us in 1964. In his words:

"It has been written, 'Although modern man has the ability to travel trackless stretches of space, he seems unable to scale such man-made barriers as the Berlin wall. It is, in fact, easier to speed over the thousands of miles of God's creation than it is for him to leap over a few feet of the barricades he has erected against his fellowmen, and hence against himself.'"

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," he said. A command of this kind is oftentimes hard to interpret in our down-to-earth relationships with those with whom we come in daily contact, and becomes even more difficult in our national and international relationships. It is easy to be friendly with those who are congenial but not so easy with those who are not.

"So the Commandment becomes a challenge in our daily living. To learn to live in such a way as to earn the trust and respect of our fellowmen it is not always easy. We should begin with our families—and then our immediate neighbors. If we fail here, our influence will be impaired elsewhere."

"As we begin this New Year, it is a good time to rededicate ourselves to the task of living our lives as worthy recipients of God's gift to mankind. It is for this that we will be remembered—not how many clubs and organizations we become president of or how much money we earned."

"We will be remembered if we walk in the road with the crowd and help them to carry their burdens. . . ."

"Not for the beautiful house we lived in . . . beside the road."

YEAR ENDS FOR WOOL PAYMENTS

The 1963 Wool program incentive payments to be made in the early spring will cover only wool and unshorn lambs which are marketed from April 1, 1963 through December 31, 1963, Max M. Kalmbach, chairman of the Washtenaw County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, reminded growers.

Growers have until January 31, 1964 to file their applications for payments. Payments to producers will follow the same methods used in previous years. Shorn wool payments will be equal to a percentage of each producer's cash returns for wool sales. The percentage to be announced later—will be that required to raise the national average price received by all the producers for shorn wool during the marketing year up to the incentive price of 62 cents per pound.

Lamb payments will be made to each producer who sells lambs that have never been shorn. The payments will be at a rate per hundredweight of live animals marketed to compensate for the wool on them on a basis comparable to the national average incentive payment per pound of shorn wool.

The chairman emphasized the importance of keeping adequate records on sales, which must support the information on payment applications. It is important that all sales receipts should show name and address of buyer, date of sale, name and address of producer, net weight of wool sold, and net proceeds received after normal marketing deductions. It is very important that all purchases of unshorn lambs from which wool was shorn or unshorn lambs be declared when completing an application for payment.

Applications for payment may be filed at the county ASCS

HOUSE PLAN FEATURES WORK ROOM

If you're in the market for a house that keeps work, living, and sleeping areas well separated from each other, a new two-bedroom house plan released by the Federal Extension Service may be for you.

It features a workroom that opens onto the terrace, making it possible to bring in flowers, plants or groceries without tramping through the house, explains Alice Epple, county extension agent in home ec. The workroom can also serve as a mudroom for children, she adds.

Ample storage is found throughout the house, with large closets in both bedrooms and the living room. The kitchen and dining areas are both equipped with storage space for linens and china. Lawn and garden tools may be kept in a special unit along the outer wall of the carport.

This plan also provides: Sound barriers created by closets between the living rooms and bedrooms.

Living room and bedroom windows that provide ventilation and natural lighting. A nearby exit from the living room to the terrace.

Living and dining areas that may be combined or separated by a divider. You can obtain working drawings for this house at your county cooperative Extension Service office, Washtenaw County Building, by asking for Plan No. 7156. It costs $1.
