Do Fabric Softeners Help? Used correctly, fabric softeners are a real aid in producing neat-looking laundry. Among the advantages of using a softener in the final rinse water are fabrics are softer, driers are easier to pin; synthetics lose their static-clinging properties, and ironing is easier as clothes are less wrinkled.

Are Mystery Holes Appearing In Your Clothes? Here is a check list for finding the culprit: 1. Too much bleach. 2. Unfinished bleach. 3. Rough spots in your washer or dryer. 4. New Hope Offered Arthritis Sufferers

"Dam Your Arthritis" by Robert Shafto for the first time documents what can be done for sufferers from this dreaded ailment. Published by Merril Reed, 1207 Howard, San Francisco, Calif. 94103. ($3.75) Paper Back available soon. No home cure peddler, nor counselor of the despairing "learn to live with it." Author Robert Shafto, distinguished international journalist, spent a year and travelled 20,000 miles in the U.S.A. to get the personal human stories, humanly told, which add up to only one possible conclusion: "You don't have to have the torment of arthritis." Dam Your Arthritis spells out how, over a 30-year period, a hospital in Ottawa, Illinois, has arrested the disease in many thousands of patients willing to accept first a brief intensive hospitalization, then a dictated home regimen, materially differing for each patient. This is on the empirically demonstrated theory that arthritis is not a single "disease" but a result of a complex of generally disregarded ailments which differ with each patient and must be differently treated if the arthritis is to be halted. Shafto's book recommends wider knowledge of Ottawa's successes against the "great crippler" be disseminated among the more than 11 million American arthritics, and that similar hospitals with the same systemic approach to the problem be set up in other cities. His story is fascinatingly told in strictly human terms, with many pages of free, frank dialogue, and many who have read it have remarked, "Once I started reading it, I couldn't put it down."

Pet Coon Likes Diet of Bread and Milk

-by Marie Schneider

How'd you like to raise a coon? Mrs. Leon Green fed her husband, who has five friends with many wild animals. She popped the question to him last summer after friend found four tiny coons orphaned when a dog killed their mother. They took one of the furry little animals and fed it using a toll bottle and it thrived on regular feedings. As it grew up it made friends with the Green's Manchester toy terrier and their Siamese cat. The Greens who live at 19990 Wins Road say their pet coon is nothing better than a diet bread and milk with a few poked eggs for a change. The coon boasts of having his little house where he can come and go as he pleases and put two months ago he tipped the scales to 25 pounds. He enjoyed tagging around like a little dog and although he followed Mr. Green when he went work in his garden the young coon never ate a vegetable or touched a thing-not even the corn. "Guess he had enough to eat home and wasn't too interested in gardens anyway; no ever complained about him using any damage in the neighborhood," Mr. Green said. The Greens have taken many pictures of their little friend. Mrs. Green notes that the picture was never taken because her movie camera had been sent in for repairs. Mrs. Green looked out the kitchen window to see her husband going hunting and trying his gun, following close behind was his pet coon. About two months ago the coon came missing and they figured he'd gone to hibernate for the rest of the winter or maybe just had decided to leave them. Earlier this week a neighbor called up and told Leon that the coon had arrived at the Orin Hand farm and for them to go and get it. It needs some more bread and milk and Greens intend to be that their little friend gets all it wants to eat-if it says that long. You are not allowed to tie up a wild animal keep it in captivity. The last coon they raised, they raised around their home for a year and a half and when Mr. Green asked the conservation department to take it to a sanctuary because it seemed to have no desire to and shift for itself-and they were afraid something would happen to it.

Mrs. Leon Green holds pet coon she brought home after its mother was killed by a dog.

Whitney and Leon Green (l to r) play with the pet that tipped the scales to 25 pounds.

Mr. Coon fits into the Green animal family as he becomes a fast friend of their cat and dog.

PRUDEN STEEL FRAMED CATTLE SHEDS PROVIDE CLEAR SPAN MANEUVERABILITY AND VERSATILITY

Two foot cantilever roof overhang is useful to provide shelter when horses are loaded along the face of frame legs. It is also used during the open side of cattle sheds to keep rain and snow out of bedded areas as well as to provide more shade in a stall.

Pruden frame sheds are frequently used to shelter cattle in the end, and to store hay in the center. This building near Bronson, Wisconsin, uses the full type of metal roofing on wall as well as roof.

Hay is fed directly into feed bunk under cantilever. Note how hay can be "packed to the peak" where there are no internal posts, ties or framework in the usable storage area.

"HEATING WITH ELECTRICITY GIVES US A FEELING OF COMFORT AND CLEANLINESS WE NEVER HAD BEFORE"

says Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Barnes of Eastport, Michigan

"When you live as far north as we do, having a heating system that delivers top comfort at a reasonable cost becomes a real important item. That's why we are sold on electric heat. It heats so gently that most of the time we are not even aware that it's on. And as far as comfort is concerned, we have learned that there's a big difference between being comfortable and simply being warm... even during the severe, record-breaking cold weather we had last winter. From my point of view," says Mrs. Barnes, "I would select electric heat if for no other reason than the cleanliness it affords."

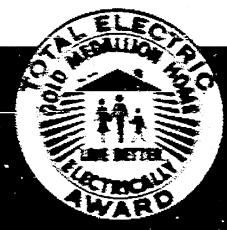

Candid opinions such as these about the many wonderful benefits of electric heat are being shared by more and more families throughout the Onstate Michigan area every year. If you're planning to build, buy, or modernize, it will pay you to get the facts. Send for the booklets and information mentioned in the coupon at the left.

In Michigan... after bowling, beer is a natural

After you've bowled a game or two, or when you're winding up the evening at the neighborhood bowling center, it's good to relax with friends and compare scores. What better way to add to the sport and the sociableness than with a refreshing glass of beer? However you take your fun—skiing, skating, or at your ease in the game room—beer always makes a welcome addition to the party.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

WORST SNOW OF SEASON COMES AS SURPRISE

By M. Schneider

Manchester, like the rest of Washtenaw County was caught in Tuesday morning's snow storm—the worst of the season, and the Willow Run weather bureau announced that more than 4 inches fell in this area. Reports indicate that damage may run to about $100,000 in this area. There were more than 195 automobile accidents actually recorded by the area police agencies, including 23 personal injuries. Officers said that at least twice as many minor property accidents were unreported.

It began snowing early in the morning. At least it was snowing hard when we first looked out and gave a passing thought to the car parked in the driveway. One thing was certain, there would be no trouble driving out from that parking spot and we were glad we forgot to put it away.

Over the radio the announcers kept warning people to keep off the roads except when necessary. Apparently there were traffic jams all over Ann Arbor and the surrounding area.

We were just ready to leave for work when the phone rang. The boss said they were leaving for Ann Arbor and would be back just as soon as they could. They had to leave here early because of the weather.

We were quick to assure him we'd be at the office in just a very few minutes and he shouldn't worry about a thing. Yes, we'd be careful. We knew it would be slippery out. The road down our way hadn't been scraped and no cars had gone by. We knew where the road was anyway.

With a snow shovel in one hand and a broom in the other we started out. "Course you can work better with both hands full. A quick check and we knew the broom wouldn't be much help. It took both hands to fight that snow.

Against the wind, we kept whipping the snow faster and faster. We finally shoveled over to the car.

Good thing it wasn't in the garage. If there is any snow anywhere it always manages to pile in the driveway next to the house in a narrow spot next to the garage next door.

That slim handled car brush was no match for the heavy snow. So we rescued that broom and started to "bury" the car. Whoever said that snow is light and fluffy never lifted the stuff that fell Tuesday. By the time we had Sunday, the snow was still on the car and wind the snow out of our eyes the path was full again and the part of car we'd uncovered first was covered again.

A quick look at the situation pointed two routes clearly: first we would either have to work a lot faster or we could stop entirely. We thought the best choice would be the best, and stumbled back to the house.

We hated to disappoint the boss after telling him everything was under control. What we meant was everything was under control of the weather.

They'd both think us real chickens for not starting earlier for both Mr. and Mrs. Koda had left for Ann Arbor (we thought).

We were thankful to Graham Bell for the phone and started to work, but everyone seemed to want to talk about the weather.

Then a call from the boss. Where was he? In the office, of course. They went around the block and gave up too.

Someone said that business in town was at a standstill all day. One of the merchants said that at 3 p.m. there were two cars on Main Street. One belonged to Jay Lantis at the A & B and the other a truck at Mann's Mill.

Supt. of Schools, Harold Springsteen said that he was in constant contact with the Willow Run weather bureau and just as soon as it was thought advisable the children would board the buses and go home. The storm was supposed to subside at about noon. It is good to know that the school system here has such level-headed people taking care of the children. At noon school was dismissed and school was cancelled here on Wednesday as well as in Chelsea, Saline, Dexter and Milan. In Ann Arbor the buses were not running.

In the afternoon three young boys wanted to shovel the walks. Never under estimate the youth of today. They did a top notch job and were pleased to be out of school.

But you can't please everyone. One little girl had planned a birthday party at school which of course was called off. One thing is certain she won't forget this March 10.

Howard Miner of the County Road Comm. described them as "hoys". They had 50 units out clearing the snow bogged roads but everything was back to normal on Thursday.

We'd read about the blizzard of March 11, 1888 which hit the east coast and paralyzed all large cities when all but two telegraph lines out of New York City were tied up. All traffic was halted. That snow fall measured just under 21 inches. That must have been some storm!

EAR READERS:

any number of you send in words of thanks for any number of reasons. Now, it's our turn to take a turn to thank you. For several weeks we have been receiving phone calls, letters and many of you have stopped us and expressed interest in the Enterprise and stories that have appeared in the paper recently. The Enterprise has received far more comment than any other newspaper in the area. Hundreds of you have mentioned in the story we wrote about in Street's Bill Blumenauer.

We can't tell you how good it makes us feel to know that you, too, place a real value on the right things and that you take your time to tell us so. We have never received so many interesting comments from everyone—from the humble to the mighty. This is as should be.

And we hasten to add that we never want credit when it does not belong to us. The poem "Shotsie" which appears on the same page as our story and signed by the initials --J.J.F.J. was not penned by any of our staff. When the poem was brought in by Robert Bunney we questioned the initials. He said if we would print the poem, we would be another story but Bill and asked our teen-ager to sign his name to his poem. He declined. Realizing that it was not the time or place to further question this young poet, we did as he asked.

However, since the publication of SHOTSIE we have been asked so many times, "Who is the poet?" that we decided to check again and to give credit where it is due.

Robert Bunney agreed, but reluctantly that it would be alright to let our readers know that he wrote the poem. Some of us find this writing poetry a pretty difficult undertaking and with the exception of our dark haired editor the rest of us are pretty likely to leave poetry alone and stick to prose.

The whole thing points to something that we have been trying to put across for years. Many people are of the opinion that if an article isn't on the front page of a paper the general public does not read it. This is living proof of something we've always said—YOU CAN'T bury an item in a small town weekly.

Our subscribers read every word. The story on Main Street Bill Blumenauer did appear on page one and there was no glowing headline or picture. But you read the story, and you liked it. Thanks to every one of you.

NEW PLANT TO COME TO MANCHESTER

Walt Gamin and Max Kenyon, top men at the Manchester Plastics, Inc. look over blue prints in their present temporary offices in the New York Central freight building. The proposed building will be located at the end of Madison Street, in the northwest section of the village.

A dream that Manchester businessmen have been hoping for is coming true. The town is going to have a new industry. Manchester Plastics Inc. purchased a 15 acre tract of land at the foot of Madison Street from Mrs. Raymond Maunder.

Slated for completion by May 15 or sooner the plant will probably be in operation by June first. Designs for the 4,000 square foot building are about complete and bids will be let out for the construction of the building.

The new plant will engage in supplying plastics to the automotive and appliance industry. The molding will cover three ounce to 16 ounce capacity. President and General manager of the operation is Max Kenyon of 7407 Wall Ct., Dexter. For 18 years Mr. Kenyon was employed by Michigan Panelyte and Plastics. He left his position as assistant chief engineer to join Wolverine Plastics as engineer in the Milan Plant. Many for he served as District Scout Commissioner of District 4 for ten years before his business operations became too involved for him to devote time to scouting.

Working with Kenyon is Walt Gamin as treasurer and general superintendent. Mr. Gamin comes from Jackson where he is owner of Gamin Co., Wildwood Avenue, a company engaged in the assembling of plastic products for 15 years.

The company president says that the plant will have complete facilities for making and assembling molded products.

JOINS WIBC '600' CLUB

A lot of people won't forget Tuesday, March 10 and its record snow fall but Betty Schauble (right) will remember it for another reason. It was the day she bowled a cool 612 at the Brooklyn Lanes with games of 208, 196 and 208--and Schaffer Lumber Co. did it again. This is the second time in the local records that Manchester women have bowled in the 600 series. Oddly enough, both were members of the Schaffer Lumber Co. team. Some time has elapsed between the two events. Joyce Schaffer (left) joined the WIBC "600" Club in 1959. Betty carries an average of 161 while Joyce's average is 157.

The 45 by 90 foot cement building will accommodate about 20 employees and an office force of four. The plant will be set up to run three injection machines ranging in size from three ounces to 16. As additional equipment comes to the plant, personnel will be added and the president said that he would be willing to say that in three years there will be about 50 employees and an office force of ten.

Household items, automotive parts, electrical controls, water pump parts are some of the thermo plastic items which can be molded by the raw materials, Mr. Kenyon said. The type of material molded will be clean and less. Water consumption per machine installed will be between 250 and 300 gallons per hour.

The plant will be capable of running on a three shift basis working 5 days a week. The Manchester village council has approved making sewer and water facilities available to the property.
