Discarded Refrigerators are Death Traps

Discarded refrigerators are known death traps for children. Spring is the time they are playing around very likely to crawl into a refrigerator left outside in a garage.

Realizing the hazards that discarded refrigerators can cause, Dependable Garbage Service of 177 Stony Lake Road, Napoleon is offering to pick up and destroy them free of charge to anyone who calls.

Home-owners and non-home-owners alike, Philip Duckham, owner of the service said, doesn't know of any other company that has the facilities to destroy the refrigerators effectively.

Duckham explained that men will load them on trucks and crush them. He pointed out that although there is a law against harboring these abandoned death traps, people simply neglect to take them away or remove the doors.

Refrigerators are so well insulated that no one can hear children cry for help and are so air-tight that a child cannot survive for long. Duckham says that all that is necessary is for people to call the service at Napoleon 4412 or Tecumseh 423-40 and let them know where the refrigerators are located. Dependable Garbage Service collects in Manchester, Napoleon, Clinton, Tecumseh and Napoleon and the collection of refrigerators will be done as a public service.

EDITOR TO THE EDITOR:

Manchester, Mich. March 21, 1964

Dear Editor:

Ever since reading the article on Bill Blumenauer I have been wanting to write to you. I did not know Bill too well, although he was in our area about six months ago. When I first heard Bill say, "shotsie" I thought it rather peculiar and this is what I tried to write about.

First the word is German and is spelled "Schatz" or "schatzchen" meaning sweetheart or my dear. It is used by German very much by old people in talking to small children or some one you love very much.

This greeting used by Bill speaks further of his love for his kind and of his cheery disposition in spite of his handicap. I don't believe everyone knew the meaning of "shotsie".

Sincerely,
John Miller

WATERSHED PROBLEMS TO BE AIRED APRIL 3rd

Soil Conservation Service will begin a preliminary survey of the Raisin River Watershed about April 20. The Survey will be used to determine the feasibility of improving the watershed and should take about 50 to 60 days.

A public meeting will be held Friday, April 3 at 8 p.m. at the Emanuel church hall in Manchester to determine the specific needs and problems of the upper Raisin Watershed. At this meeting the public will have an opportunity to express their problems and the type of solutions they desire. This information will be used by the Soil Conservation Service while conducting the survey and in computing the cost benefit ratio for the project.

Townships of Sharon, Freedom, Bridgewater and Manchester and the villages of Manchester and Clinton are involved in this part of the watershed, according to Robert McCrory, Agricultural County Extension Agent. Also expected to be present are Don Johnson, Soil Conservation; John Flook, County Drain Commission and John Trustdoff, Soil Conservation Department.

MIKE TRAVELS BACK TO HIS YOUTH

A Manchester man was reading the Manchester Enterprise when a particular item drew his attention. The man was Michael Healy Wolfe, and the story he was reading was about the local MOM's club giving a number of books to the township library in memory of veterans who had died during the past year.

Mike, as he is known to everyone in Manchester, scanned the list until his eyes fell on "Alaskan Apostle-The Life of Sheldon Jackson". The book was given in memory of A.B. Clark, the school custodian who died following a fall at school.

Mike traveled back memory lane to his youth when he knew Sheldon Jackson. This was the way he learned that a book had been written about the man who was directly responsible for his education.

"I doubt if anyone around here knew Sheldon Jackson as I did," Mike grinned as he discussed the article with his wife Lily.

He got the book from the library and set in the shoe shop on Main Street, a place he has owned and operated since they came to Manchester in 1933. As he read the pages, he remembered the scenes of his childhood. Mr. Wolfe will be 79 years on August 8.

Mike doesn't remember of ever seeing a relative. Sheldon Jackson was the person he remembers of linking his childhood with today.

Many people in town have listened to Mike tell about his early youth and how very different things were in Alaska. He has a birth certificate signed by a Charles Brower. Mike was born at Point Barrow, Alaska in 1885. That was the northernmost Presbyterian mission station. Mr. Wolfe said he was named after a Captain Michael A. Healy, commander of the steamer BEAR. Healy was a revenue officer and closest friend of Sheldon Jackson. When Mike was five years old he was taken from Point Barrow on the Bear by Jackson to Sitka, where Jackson had a boarding school. Sitka was the territorial capital until 1906.

There is a photographic reproduction of Sitka in the book and it shows the industrial training school that Jackson helped establish for Indian and Eskimo children.

Mr. Wolfe remembers Jackson as the Commissioner of Education for Alaska-the man who is credited with saving the Alaskan Eskimo and Indian from extinction and founding the Alaskan school system, as well as a Presbyterian missionary.

"I don't know how the man ever managed to start schools the way he did. He traveled a lot. It gave us a real sense of security, because if we needed him the school teachers always knew where he could be reached."

"We had good care, good clothes, and good teachers, both spiritually and materially. My father knew Jackson and he signed an agreement with Mr. Jackson, so he would look after me. Sheldon Jackson told me my father was a well educated man and head of a Coal-mining Station at Cape Lisibon. Among my few treasures of my boyhood is a letter written to the matron at the school by my father in 1890, in which he asked what he could send me for Christmas. The matron gave me the letter," Mr. Wolfe said.

His childhood memories of Sitka are very pleasant. He remembers it as a wonderful place, a nice climate where they went swimming in the summer in the bay which was warmer than the lakes around here, Mike noted, because they were heated by the Japanese current.

There were about a hundred children at the school including students through the 8th grade, taught by missionaries. Along with their academic subjects the children were taught trades, shoe making, carpentry, lumbering and other things which would help them to make a living if they decided to live in Alaska.

"I remember when there was only one cow in Sitka-a white one owned by the superintendent of schools. You can imagine how scarce fresh milk was. Then Gov. Brady got a cow. I had been sick and was in the hospital. Guess I must have been feeling pretty good by that time because they sent me two miles away to bring back a quart of milk.

"Usually we used canned milk, sent in the boats from the states. People didn't have gardens there, although the ground was suitable but the government had set up some experimental stations," Mr. Wolfe said.

The hospital was a two-story building and the doctor's name was Wilbur, from Philadelphia. There was at least one trained nurse and others helped as he remembers. The frame school was heated by stoves in the winter.

There was salmon to eat. It was salted down for use in the winter. Then there was reindeer meat. Potatoes, navy beans and other food were imported.

"Jackson and the others who worked so hard up in Alaska were real missionaries. I hate to think what might become of us if they hadn't been so farsighted," Mike said.

Not too long ago Mr. Wolfe managed to contact one of his old schoolmates who lives in Seattle and he said it was like finding a long lost brother. His name is William Paul and he now lives in Seattle, Wash. Paul attended the American Indian convention in Chicago a couple of years ago. The society has a magazine and Mike subscribes to it. There he read the names of those at the convention and saw the name of his friend. The two men hope to have a chance to see one another again.

Paul and Mike were both aboard the ship that brought them to the states and to Carlisle, Pa. by Ed Marsdon, a missionary. There they attended school and from there Mike went to the Presbyterian College at Parksville, Missouri.

Creative Writing
-Marsha Underwood
Creative writing has originated since people have known and used words. Creative writing can be fictional or non-fictional. It is either made up or brought about from different experiences. Sometimes people write from these experiences. They take some incident that happened and maybe then add a dash of this and a dash of that. The best subject for this is something you live close to. All authors have a certain style but to make a book, this is the pattern usually used:
1. Make outline
2. Take notes (divide in chapters).
3. Dig for more about subject
4. Write the book
5. Publishers give criticism and ideas
6. Type it out and get pictures and correct spellings
7. Write captions
8. Rewrite and have it published.
The three main principles of writing are: friendly criticism encouragement and opportunities, and if an author gets these three things, he'll probably have a pretty good book.

This is a review on three six grade teachers, Mrs. Butters, Mrs. Kime, and Mrs.
Coward and what they think of Team Teaching. To these three teachers, what they are doing is not TEAM TEACH-ING but just the changing of classes.
At the beginning of the year
the teachers agreed that it wa TEAM TEACHING but later fell apart. To the teachers TEAM TEACHING is where the teachers add the classes get together and have a move and each of the teachers explain a different subject of the move but they do not have the materials to work with.
Mrs. Kime is in favor of trying it again. The real purpose of this kind of teaching is to get the lower grades ready for Junior High. All three teachers think that this is a good idea and hope they might be able to try again.

DAMAGE HEAVY: Extensive damage from fire and water was caused, Thursday, Mar. 19 to the Saline Township home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Strieter at 5106 Austin Road. The fire was discovered at 7:40 a.m. by the family when they looked out a window to see smoke billowing along the side of the house. Firefield township firemen aided the Saline firemen. Carey Strieter 15 and his brother Duane 13 and Linda 6 helped their parents and neighbors carry out the furniture and load it on trucks.

Firemen, believing the fire to be out, left the scene but were called back a second time during the morning when flames broke out a second time in the second story. The fourteen-room house was heavily damaged. Detroit Edison Co. men cut the power while the entire roof was lost and much damage resulted from a foot and a half of water in the building. Presently the family is living at the Bernitz farm home at Austin and Dell Roads, until they can repair or rebuild their home.

BIRTHDAY DINNER
Mrs. Earl Uhr was honored at a family dinner given at the home of Mrs. William Uhr. Other guests present besides the Earl Uhr family were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Panches and family.

Several families in this area are concerned for family members who are in the Alaskan earthquake disaster area.

Shattered Alaska counted more dead and reports from backwater villages indicated that there may be many more victims of the great earthquake that struck at 5:37 p.m. Anchorage time (10:37 p.m.) our time, Friday, March 27.

The island of Kodiak, southwest of Anchorage in the Gulf of Alaska appeared to be the worst hit, reports indicated.

Mrs. Anna Coltri of Clinton is still awaiting news from a daughter who lives in Anchorage, Mrs. Harry Christian.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Callaway of 16733 English Road received a cablegram from their son Bart who is stationed at the Galena Airforce Base in Alaska, saying he was not injured. They are anxiously waiting to receive a letter from him.

When Mrs. Jordan talked with her parents she told them it was a good thing that the earthquake happened on Good Friday, March 27 rather than three weeks earlier for that would have been the time of the National Eskimo dog sled races and thousands of people would have been standing on the street which literally fell from sight in the biggest earthquake of our time.

Susan Walker has been notified that she has received a $1000 Scholarship to Michigan State University - a paid tuition to the University. This scholarship is renewable every year for four years if she maintains high scholastic records. Susan plans to major in Home Economics.

Seniors Find Trip To Hell Difficult

Seniors from Adrian high school, who left the school parking lot Tuesday at 5:30 a.m. on a trek to Hell, Michigan are pictured outside Jan's Grill, Manchester, where they stopped off to rest their weary, blistered feet and have a bite to eat.

New Savings and Retirement Plan Being Considered at Double A

For sometime there has been great interest among the Double A employees in having a retirement plan at the company. In 1963 a study group was organized to look into the possibilities of devising a plan and to consider what provisions and requirements should be covered by the plan.

This plan, The Double A Employees Savings & Profit Sharing Retirement Plan, is based upon a fund derived from three sources: (1) regular contributions from the company in the name of each employee; (2) regular contributions from each employee; and (3) profit sharing.

This plan offers several advantages over normal straight pension plans. Typical pension plans usually provide for fixed monthly pension payments upon the retirement of employees, usually at age 65.

On Friday, April 3, Joseph B. Meier, Administrative Vice President and Secretary, Council of Profit Sharing Industries, Chicago, will be in Manchester to speak to Double A employees on the subject of profit sharing plans in general and the Double A plan in particular.

Justice of the Peace at Hell, Michigan said, "It was really something for kids to do."

Fifty-eight members of the Senior Class of Adrian High School set out at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday to see if they could better the record of the previous Senior Class in a fifty mile hike to Hell, Michigan.

This promises to be a yearly event of the Senior Class of Adrian, which started last year and stemmed from President Kennedy's physical fitness program.

Four out of 15 students made the fifty mile hike, last year. The 58 were organized out of the class of 325 students by a member of the class, Marvin Shepherd, who was one of the seven who arrived foot sore and tired between 8:10 and 9:45 p.m. at the tiny Livingston county town.

Three other pupils were forced to halt because of darkness some four miles from Hell in a heavily forested area. Those who walked the fifty miles said that the last five miles were the worst. One group reported seeing a herd of 25 deer.

Nearly all of the girls left the group and returned to Adrian after they had walked to Manchester. All but one girl left at Chelsea and she-Cathy Lane, was the only girl to complete the trip by foot.

Nearly all of the hikers made it to Manchester and stopped at Jan's Grill for food and to rest their aching feet. Most of them had blisters and even one was cold and hungry.

Some of the hikers said that the class picked a far better day last year for the hike. Tuesday, March 31 was cold with plenty of snow flurries and wind, which hampered their progress.

Justice of the Peace at Hell, Michigan said, "It was really something for kids to do."
