LETTER FROM SERVICEMAN NOW IN VIET NAM

Phuoc Bien, Viet Nam

Dear Mom and Dad:
 Just a line to say hello and to tell you I am fine. Do you know of any possible way that I can thank everyone in Manchester and Clinton for being so wonderful? I have received a lot of swell cards, letters and gifts -- it is almost like being home. You see I said almost. NOTHING is like being home for Christmas.

Mom, you write better than I do, my spelling is something else, couldn't you write a letter for the Enterprise to thank everyone, I started writing personal thanks but I don't have much time. Every time I sit down to write they call me for a fire mission and then by the time I get the gun to a new position, and headed right for them I almost forgot where I was. I had to change positions 5 times in one night. We sure kept the VC's busy that night--but don't forget we were too.

Anyway there are a few names I'd like to mention special, like the MOM's for the money, also the American Legion Post 117. And Mom, don't forget the Women's Guild of Emanuel for sending me "The Upper Room". This is really the only connection I've had with the church back home. I really appreciate their kindness.

Oh yes, thanks to the State of Michigan and all the college students who gave their time in helping pack those swell boxes. I always told you there is no place in the world like good old Michigan. I got the box on Christmas Eve!

I have already thanked Mary and Bob, Ruth and Bill and Cathy, too, for their help in getting my gift to you and Dad. But thank Chick Kirk too. Will you please?

Mom and Dad, I could go on and on. There were cards and letters from friends and relatives from Michigan and all over. I even got a card from a Sophomore girl in Salisbury, N. C. One of the guys got a card and he said, "You know, we don't know if these kids are white or colored!" We agreed we didn't care either. It says on mine that the appreciator is Harold Keasal and Mrs. Richard Disbrow is the assistant. Mrs. Robert Hamilton is secretary. Mrs. Clark Norgaard is treasurer of the Sunday School. Trustees are Dewey Gilbert, James Brown, Tom Cushman Sr. and the deacons are Clark Norgaard, Harold Keasal and Wm. Dresselhouse.

Next Sunday, January 9 Holy Communion will be observed during the ten o'clock service at the Iron Creek Church.

all over. But when I come home in April, the whole family can have another Christmas, can't we? I sure would like Christmas with my family even if Easter will be the next week or so.

Well, tell everyone I said hello. Hope you had a Merry Christmas and that the New Year will be a happy one. Remember--you are always telling me to be careful, you do the same--because I want you and dad there when I come home.

Oh, I almost forgot, if Marie and Mr. Koda do put anything in the paper, thank them for me, will you please?
 With love always,
 Your Son,
 SP/4 Charles F. Schiel

P. S. Finally got my shower, Mom. Did you ever take a bath in cold water when it's 100 degrees in the shade, if there is any shade and if there is any water. We have a gravity flow shower, when there is any water, and it is cold as ice.

By the way tell Sallie and Sue that at Christmas the turkey stayed the pan. It is true that at Thanksgiving theebom from our big guns blew the dam turkeys out of the pan FOUR times. This is no joke! Bye for now.

Sunday school superintendent is Harold Keasal and Mrs. Richard Disbrow is the assistant. Mrs. Robert Hamilton is secretary. Mrs. Clark Norgaard is treasurer of the Sunday School. Trustees are Dewey Gilbert, James Brown, Tom Cushman Sr. and the deacons are Clark Norgaard, Harold Keasal and Wm. Dresselhouse.

LETTER TO POLICE DEPARTMENT

Robert S. Ford
 Ann Arbor, Michigan
 Jan. 10, 1966

Chief of Police
 Police Department
 Manchester, Michigan

Dear Sir:

I am enclosing my check of $5.00 as a contribution to any police benefit fund you may have. This is a small token of my appreciation of the courteous service of two of your police officers who brought gasoline when my wife and I had run out of gasoline on Wednesday night, December 23 around 11:30 p.m. We were on M-52 about three miles south of Manchester returning home to Ann Arbor from Adrian.

Fortunately a passing motorist stopped on our signalling. He said he had seen a police car as he passed through Manchester and would try and locate it and ask for help. The officers came in about 15 minutes.

I did not know that any police department were provided such service and it came at a time when we were in great distress.

Your officers were most courteous in every respect and I want to compliment you on the high caliber of the men on your police force.

I hope your department will accept this small contribution. It does not begin to represent the value of the service and is intended as an expression of my appreciation of high standards of public service. Sincerely yours,

Robert S. Ford.

RESCUE OPERATION

The Manchester Police Department and firemen are not called on often to go out and perform rescue operations, but occasionally they do get a call. Such was the case when a big brown and white collie waddered out on too thin ice and the piece she was on floated away down the Raisin River.

The Robert Downeys of 543 Adrian Street put in a call for help to rescue their pet. Police Chief Daniel Singer and Bruce Daniels, head of the public works department were given an assist by volunteer fireman, Gale Koebbe with the firemen's boat and the pet collie was brought to safety.

"We were only glad that the call was to save a dog and not a child," Chief Singer said.

Insulating Glass Reduces Chores

One way to avoid the bothersome job of putting up and taking down storm windows at home is to install wood windows with insulating glass. These new double-glazed windows of ponderosa pine, consisting of two panes of glass hermetically sealed at the edges to form a single unit of glass, are available in stock sizes. The wood sash and the "dead air" between the panes form a natural insulation against heat loss and condensation. Since the panes are sealed, there is less window surface to wash than with storm sash.

Today insulating glass is available in all styles of wood windows through local lumber dealers.

Know When You Should Turn to Pro

If you're an average homeowner, chances are you've been faced many times with the question of whether to hire a contractor for that home repair or modernization project or to tackle it yourself.

The answer is that some jobs are worth undertaking on a do-it-yourself basis, while others are best left to a professional. A recent Census Bureau report showed that contractors account for 69 percent of the money spent for residential repairs and modernization, indicating that do-it-yourselfers are choosing their jobs carefully.

Here are a few typical exterior home improvement projects, with comments as to their suitability as do-it-yourself projects.

Patio - Laying a simple patio doesn't require a lot of experience. Materials like flagstone, patio blocks or brick are easy to handle. Most homeowners can lay these materials in sand or can mix small amounts of concrete, if necessary.

Verdict: A good do-it-yourself job for weekends.

Siding - New materials such as pre-finished mineral fiber shingles can be handled by one man, need no painting or staining and can be applied directly over most old siding. However, an attractive, well-aligned application requires an experienced workman. Also, special precautions must be taken with scaffolding for hazardous above-ground work.

Verdict: It's a big job, and you'd do well to leave it in the hands of a qualified contractor.

Roofing - Roofing looks easy, but it isn't. It can also be hazardous. Even with improved materials like self-sealing asphalt shingles, skill and experience are needed.

Verdict: This job is best left to the professionals.

Fencing - With only a few simple skills and some muscle for post hole digging required, fence-building is a favorite project of do-it-yourselfers. There is a wide choice of materials available, such as mineral fiber flat sheets. In many cases, entire fence sections can be bought ready for erection.

Verdict: Don't be fenced in by doubt; go ahead and try it.

POOR RECORDS GO WITH BUSINESS FAILURE

Poor records are listed as the number one cause of business failures by a nationally recognized business reporting firm.

Wilbur A. Dexter, district management agent for the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service, finds farmers who have poor records are usually able to operate the farm business at a profit.

Dexter says good records show strength and weaknesses of the business so the farmer knows where to spend time and effort.

Records also make tax reporting easier and puts a farmer on a better schedule to obtain and use credit to a better advantage.

The management specialist points to the TelFarm record keeping system, available through the Extension Service to Michigan F. m. families, as an example. Enrollments are now open for use of the electronic record keeping and business analysis program during 1966 and information is available through county Extension offices in Michigan.

TORNADO SAFETY COURSE OFFERED IN WASHTENAW

During the last two weeks of January and continuing through February, a series of two-hour tornado safety courses will be presented throughout Washtenaw County.

Each year tornadoes seem to occur more often and with more destructive force. So far Washtenaw County has been very fortunate, although communities nearby have been badly hurt. It could happen in Washtenaw County, too, warns Dr. Donald Petersen, local Civil Defense director.

The purpose of these courses is three fold:

- 1. to increase the safety of the citizens of the county. 2. To reduce property damage 3. To improve the speed of recovery.

The tornado season will begin about April 1 and usually continues through September. There is really no way to "get ready" for a tornado, at least not in the sense of being prepared to stand up against its overwhelming destructive power without protection.

There are five reasonable steps that a family can and should take to protect themselves against a tornado; one of nature's most intense wind storms. These five steps are:

- 1. Know what a tornado is 2. Know a tornado's usual habits 3. Know a tornado's damaging affects. 4. Know what to do if a tornado strikes 5. Understand the meaning of tornado reports, forecasts and warnings.

Tornado safety courses are scheduled for Manchester, Dexter, Chelsea, Milan, Saline, and Ypsilanti township. Dates will be announced later. The combined efforts of the local civil defense director, Dr. Petersen, and the county civil defense office are being aimed toward giving the public the maximum amount of information.

For further information watch the Enterprise for the location and time of the safety courses.

OPEN HOUSE AT LIBRARY

Sunday, Jan. 16 will be open house at the library. So impressed were the people of this area with having the Indian skeleton, which they dubbed UMMA, at the library that they planned the open house.

You see, the Indian skeleton skeleton has been invited to take part in the Indian display at the Sharp Museum in Jackson which is currently being held.

Township librarian, Mrs. Burrill Hansen and the library board are planning "a big party" before she leaves. There will be refreshments for everyone who attends. There are surprises for the children and books can be checked out on Sunday as well. This may be the last time people here will have an opportunity to see her for Mrs. Hansen said she is not sure that UMMA will be unpacked here after she returns from Jackson, before which will be her permanent home.

The Indian skeleton was unearthed in October by Jan Huber at the Schaffer sand pit and taken to

COMING EVENT

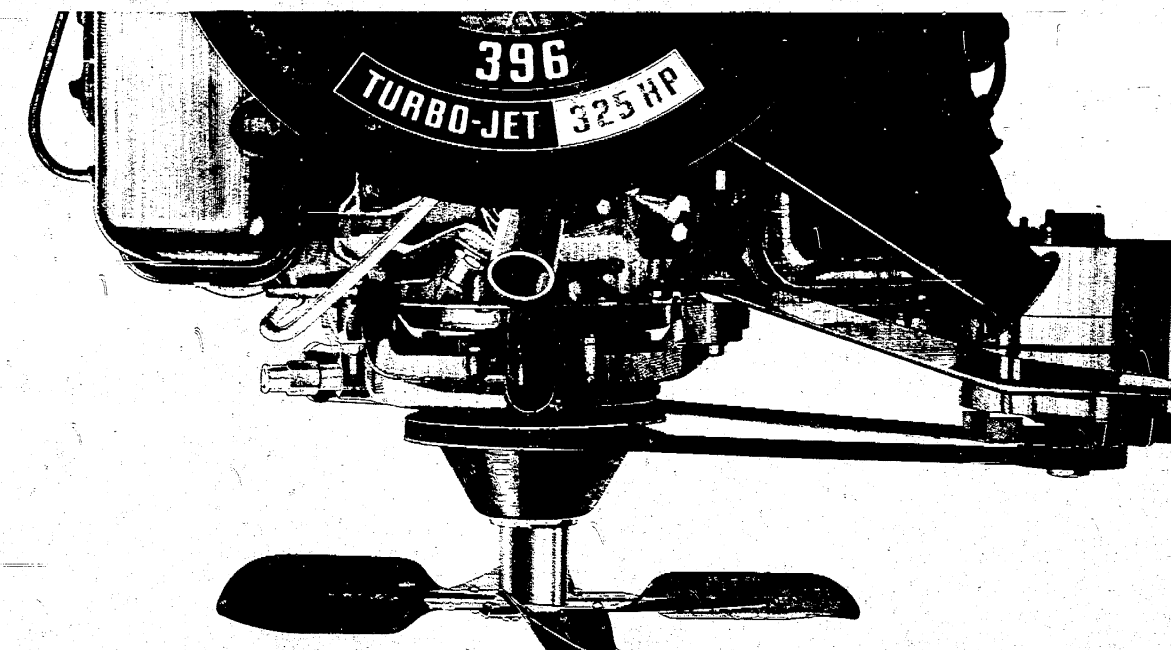

Rogers Corners Farm Bureau will meet Friday, Jan. 14 at 8:00 p. m. at the home of Reuben Staebler at 348 Hill Crest Road, Saline.

By popular demand the skeleton was brought to Manchester so everyone could see it--after University specialists had confirmed that the skeleton was that of an Indian maiden. Since coming here November 2 she has been viewed by hundreds of local visitors as well as Jackson, Detroit and Ann Arbor. Sand from the Schaffer pit was brought in to make her feel at home. There will be an Indian display at the library Sunday and anyone having articles which they would like to display are asked to bring them by Saturday. Special Indian Books will also be in the collection.

SCHOOL CLOSING

In the event of severe storms or a blizzard which would necessitate the closing of school an announcement to this effect will be made on radio stations WJR Detroit and WOLA Saline. The school authorities ask that interested persons turn to these stations relative to the closing of school.

WINTER'S FIRST HEAVY SNOW BRINGS PRAISE FROM POLICE CHIEF SINGER

Praise for the cooperation and patience of local drivers during the winter's first heavy snowfall was expressed today by Chief of Police Dan Singer.

"With relatively few 'property damage' accidents recorded, but with many minor complications such as a number of missed appointments resulting from traffic tie-ups, Manchester was digging out from a taste of what can be expected again at this time of year."

"Most drivers were pretty well prepared, but a few found out the hard way what winter weather can do in ordinary traffic.

The trouble is, when they stalled, other drivers were inconvenienced as traffic came temporarily to a halt with them," commented the chief.

"I hope first-hand experience will do for them what advance warning and advice seemingly failed to accomplish."

WINTER DRIVING TIPS

Getting rid of smooth tires and carrying sand and a shovel is a good precaution for any driver, according to the International Association of Chiefs of Police and Chief Singer. For those who must drive regularly whatever the weather, reinforced tire chains would be a helpful, almost indispensable traction aid, he said.

"Traffic in a small community is different than in the city but snow removal is going on in some parts of the village and drivers are asked to park off the street whenever possible.

In the preliminary push to keep streets open, some cars are inevitably "plowed in" at the curb. Their owners are expected to dig them out as soon as possible so that snow can be opened full width.

"If this summer of being able to keep the streets open following inclement winter weather must become the concern of every citizen, the chief re-emphasized.

"Pedestrians must cooperate, too, in not making drivers stop where it's hard to get started again, he added.

"We must remember there are always sick people to be reached or transported, fires to be put out, and the business of a community to be carried on. In a storm, a few wheels spinning helplessly can stall traffic, obstruct snowplows, and it's just as if the community had suffered a temporary thrombosis. It happens somewhere, every winter. So far we have been lucky."

The chief reminded occupants of business and residence districts to keep the sidewalks clear for the convenience and safety of pedestrians. "The best time to shovel is right away, before the snow gets packed down," he noted.

SIGNUP DATES SET FOR FEED AND GRAIN PROGRAM

Mrs. Carolyn Stump, office manager of the Washtenaw Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Washtenaw office says that the signup dates are in effect beginning this week through the next several weeks, for the 1966 wheat, grain and cropland adjustment programs.

The deadline dates will be announced later. Applications for this program are on a first come first served basis at Washtenaw is limited to a certain number of acres. Producers who file an agreement will be given 15 days from the date of decision, on no agreement, to sign up in a ny of the annual commodity programs if they wish, Mrs. Stump said.

Beginning signup date for the wheat and feed grain program is January 24. The signup period will run through April 15, 1966 for both programs. The first step for participating in the programs is to sign up at the local ASCS county office.

After signing up the applicant must do the following:

- (1) Divert an acreage from corn, grain, sorghum, barley or wheat to the extent the farmer agrees to;
- (2) Designate the acreage to be diverted and put it into an approved conservation use;
- (3) Maintain the farm's normal conserving base;
- (4) stay within the total feed grain base and wheat allotment on all other farms in which the farmer has an interest.

The office manager pointed out that failure to comply with this agreement will result in reduction in the total payments earned. Persons having questions concerning the program are invited to contact the county ASCS office.

Use Shutters As Dressing For Windows

Window shutters, which were once strictly utilitarian, are valued today mainly for their cosmetic qualities. Exterior shutters formerly served to achieve privacy and to keep out the sun and bad weather. Properly installed, functional shutters can still help protect a home from a "big blow." However, shutters—like handkerchiefs in the pocket of a suit jacket—are used today more for show than for blow.

A homeowner seeking to dress up the exterior of his home can do so easily and economically by installing louver shutters of ponderosa pine, available in stock sizes through lumber dealers to fit any size window.

Louver shutters give horizontal emphasis to windows—and to entrances, too—in addition to providing texture and a color accent. While almost any architectural style can benefit from the proper application of shutters, some houses, such as two-story Colonial, look barren without them.

SNOOZE NEWS
by SALLY AMES

Is there an old wood bed in your attic that dates from the early 1920's or even earlier?

Well, dust it off and move it downstairs! You'll be right in style, judging from what some manufacturers have been showing at the major home furnishings markets this year.

Some of the new designs shown in High Point, N.C., and Chicago are strongly reminiscent of the tall bed of yesterday—heavy, finished in dark browns, accented with elaborate carvings.

Fashion experts are calling it the "English trend," though this new important look in beds isn't necessarily limited to the English-inspired styles. Many of the very tall headboards have strictly modern motifs.

Most of the new beds do offer certain advantages you won't get in the attic of second-hand store variety, however.

For instance, manufacturers have recognized the increasing popularity of queen-size bedding and scaled double beds accordingly. Many are designed to accommodate either a standard 54-inch mattress or the 60-inch queen width.

You don't need a complete new bed, though, to enjoy the extra sleeping comfort of a new queen-size mattress.

The Spring Air Mattress Company, represented by department and furniture stores everywhere, offers an adapter kit that makes a double headboard usable with queen-size bedding.

Any dealer who handles the well-known Back Supporter mattress can tell you more about it.

CHRISTMAS TIME IN JORDAN

by Marie Schneider

It doesn't happen very often that people here have an opportunity to talk with those who are familiar with the Holy Land -- particularly people who were born and grew up in that area. Such a person is Selma Khammash from Amman, Jordan. She is working on her doctorate in Geography at the University of Michigan and has friends in the Manchester area.

With the story of the first Christmas still fresh in everyone's mind, it is interesting to talk with someone completely acquainted with the area. Miss Khammash has been in Ann Arbor for the past six years, working her way through the University. Last summer she returned home for a visit. Her parents are both living. Her father is a retired lawyer. She has four brothers and two sisters. One of her brothers is at the University of Michigan and her oldest brother is General Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces in Jordan.

One of its prime concerns is protecting the Holy Land, which might seem strange because they are Moslems.

She says there is no resemblance of Bethlehem today and the little hilltop village where Christianity had its start. She believes that many people have been misinformed about the country or have drawn their own conclusions that the area is much the same as it was in the time of Christ.

But all this has changed. A 14-point star of silver marks the site of the manger and this spot has been guarded for many years by the Moslems. The cave still exists under the massive church of the Nativity but there is nothing left of the stable. There are many rich brocades and marble decorating the cave where once the shepherds roamed.

This is the Jordanian said is all changed and many motels, hotels, etc., have been built to take care of the pilgrims who journey to see the Holy Land. The tourist trade is the main industry and last year nearly 30,000 people visited the Holy Land in December. It is only a 10 minute ride from Jerusalem through the olive groves on the Judean Hills to Bethlehem.

Selma said that she and her family have visited the church at Christmas but now the pilgrims have converged on the area in such crowds that those who live in the vicinity are almost excluded and Mass is now celebrated outdoors to better accommodate the visitors. About half of the town's population of 20,000 are Moslems.

There is an air of celebration at Christmas time with firecrackers popping and music from the Jordanian army and a bagpipers' band. There are plenty of shops for souvenirs and people have to have tickets in advance for admission to the midnight Mass and in Shepherds Field, which is owned by the YMCA, worshippers gather to sing carols and the ceremonies there are more simple. There are celebrations in the Holy Land three times a year. And no sooner has the first celebration of December 25 been completed when plans get underway for another celebration. For there are three faiths which share the nativity church--Roman Catholics, Orthodox and Armenian. The Orthodox and Armenians celebrate the birth of the Savior in January, because of their calendar year.

Because of the huge tourist trade the country has prospered and there are fine roads, good hotels and modern motels to add to the convenience of those who would travel to see the Holy Land.

Selma said that the value of money values of her country and the United States is far different. She might go back home with a Master's degree and her salary could be between $120 and $150 a month. That is why, she pointed out, it is necessary for students coming here to work while attending school. There is such a vast difference in value that they could not afford to pay the prices here.

During the six year period she was gone there were many changes. Their standards of living are high but the salaries are low. Food is expensive. Women and girls dress well--infact better, for the most part, than here. This she explained:

"At home a woman would never appear in public on the street without being well dressed. She would never, never appear in slacks, skirt and blouse or other very informal attire. Women dress beautifully at home. It is expected of them and they do. In fact my parents felt that my wardrobe was very inadequate when I returned. Our outlook is different than in this country. Here women are not too concerned about their appearance unless they are going to do something special. But for classes, shopping and the like women here do not dress up like they do at home. Then too, women in Jordan are not completely free. They are protected. In some ways this is better and in other ways not. Women never speak or carry on conversations with men--until recently. I noticed when I was in Amman that women are beginning to work in offices and of course talk to their co-workers. Until very recently women didn't work in public places. But then again we are talking on the American ways. I have the feeling that women are more respected in Jordan. There they do not want to be equal to men. They are held in more esteem over there.

"Some things are better at home and some are better here. Girls have little to say as to whom they marry. But parents do try and select good men for their girls.

"The girls never date a man but even this is changing a little and we are becoming more westernized. Women are being allowed to attend clubs and sports events but they seldom make important decisions," Selma added.

She said that the Jordanians have all the conveniences that Americans have and, "I think our homes are really more lovely than most of those I have seen here. I am enjoying my work at the Space Research Lab here. But it is hard to hold a full time job and also go to school. This is what I have been doing. It would be impossible for my parents to provide me with this money which I need to complete my education but they are approving of my going to school here.

MAIN STREET

A fire swept the clothing and most of the furnishings of the Joe Ginter home on Allen Road Monday. From reports coming in to this office the family is in need of clothing. There is a 13 year old girl and a 15-year-old boy of average size in the family. These teenagers, students in the Clinton Schools, need clothing. Some of the articles of clothing didn't burn, but much was water soaked. When these things were thrown from the building much of it came in the path of the water hose and in subfreezing weather it is a pretty hard job to thaw out water logged clothing--especially if you don't have a stove and facilities to work with. Such is the case with this family. It is understood that they will be living in the Ben Steina-way home on the Manchester-Chelsea road. Just what size is needed to meet the requirements for Mrs. Ginter or her husband could not be established at press time. Continued on page 8

They are very broadminded and want all of us children to be happy and if this is what I want--it is also what they want. The best paying positions are with the government and there is a good retirement plan. Possibly I will teach when I return. I am not sure," she concluded.

ASSESSORS TO HELP SR CITIZENS

Clayton Parr, Manchester township supervisor and Russell Widmayer, village assessor have announced that they will help persons over 65 fill out their senior citizens tax exemption papers.

Faulhaber, who owns an excavating company, said one of his workmen was using an acetylene torch in the warehouse when the fire started.

Manchester firemen worked for more than two hours to save a garage and car adjacent to the warehouse. Included in the loss were several tools, Faulhaber said. He said the loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Faulhaber said that he couldn't over emphasize the extreme in which he holds the fire department. "If those boys hadn't got right in and really fought that fire I would have lost the whole thing. I am surely grateful to them. Never mind putting in anything about the fire--just thank the boys who did the work to put it out," Faulhaber said.

In the short village council meeting they approved a revised special assessment spread for a new sewer on Sunset Drive. This item had been in special committee since last November and will spread the cost of $915 among five property owners.

Mrs. Orville Way and Richard Way were at the meeting and contested the assessment spread, which is:

- Mrs. O. M. Way $175
- Richard Knouse 150
- A. E. Patterson 65
- Holstein property 150
- M. Haselschwerdt 375

The special budget committee Robert Clark, chr., Don Dorff and Basil McGuire met after the meeting to work on the budget.

Mention was made that the new police car has arrived.
