decision -- still waiting for the Bar Association to complete its investigation and release his evidence.

I'm not claiming that any form of conspiracy against this man existed. Very probably, he was merely the victim of an unusual set of circumstances.

I don't know whether Turner could have proven his charges of corruption, if he'd been free to use all his evidence. I don't know whether the attorneys he accused of wrongdoing are innocent or guilty.

I have repeatedly said that I have no wish to pre-judge anyone in this matter, or to see the public pre-judge anyone. Lawyers deserve their day in court, just the same as the rest of us.

But I do know that there is something basically wrong with any system that traps a man between two contempt of court charges -- any system that simultaneously orders a man to defend himself and prevents him from doing so.

Every judge, every prosecutor and every private attorney in Michigan is and must be a member of the State Bar Association.

This arrangement is very much like having Henry Ford II, Walter Reuther and the members of the Labor Mediation Board all be members of the same union.

Practically all professional people who deal with the public are licensed and regulated by the state -- policed by public officials who can be held responsible by the public. Only lawyers and doctors are granted the privilege of policing themselves.

Behind all that has happened in the Turner case, no matter what the outcome now, lies a basic question that we in the Michigan State Legislature will have to face sooner or later:

Has the vast amount of power we have granted to the State Bar Association of Michigan worked for the public good or to the public detriment? Has this Association directed that power to policing its own, zealously and impartially? Or has the Association, all too often, used its vast power to look after its own?

This is not a question to be decided in any court. It is a question to be decided by every citizen who has sought legal help at an attorney's office, or who may be forced to seek such help in the future. It is a question to be decided by the people.

Whenever science makes a discovery, the devil grabs it while the angels are debating the best way to use it.

105th ANNIVERSARY
FOR HENRY FORD

July 30, 1968 marked the 105th anniversary of the birth of Henry Ford. On that date a new U.S. "Prominent Americans" series 12 cent postage stamp went on sale. That stamp honored Henry Ford.

During his lifetime Ford was involved in many endeavors, some of which were recalled during a parade of transportation and First Day of Issue Ceremony at the Village that he created as a showplace of American history, Greenfield Village.

Mr. Ford's position as a pioneer auto-maker was pointed up in a parade of 15 historic transportation vehicles prior to the noon ceremony. In the parade, horse-drawn vehicles were followed by the 1896 "Quadricycle," the first car made by Mr. Ford. Then came Model T's, Model A's and familiar autos of the 30's and 40's.

Another facet of Henry Ford's interests was represented by a Ford Tri-motor airplane flying overhead during the parade.

His interest in music was reflected by the U.S. Air Force Band from Chanute Field, Ill. which played before and during the ceremony.

On hand for the ceremony was U.S. Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson and Deputy Postmaster General Frederick C. Belen. Also taking part was Congressman John Dingell of Michigan's 16th Congressional District, and the Mayor of the City of Dearborn, Mich., Orville Hubbard.

The Ford family was represented by William Clay Ford, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Edison Institute and Henry Ford II, who responded to the Postmaster General's remarks. Also representing the Edison Institute Board of Trustees was Robert H.

Tannahill. Dr. Donald A. Shelley, President of the Edison Institute presided at the ceremony. The Edison Institute includes Henry Ford Museum, Greenfield Village and the Greenfield Village Schools. Throughout the day the new U.S. 12 cent stamp was on sale

At the Sunday, July 21 evening service, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Scoria and daughters, Karen, Rebecca and Beverly, were baptized. Also taken into membership were Mrs. Robert Hamilton and sons, John and Bobby.

Lyle and Maxine left on July 26 and flew to New York. Then they boarded the S.S. Independence for a three day ocean cruise to San Juan, Puerto Rico. They spent one day touring and then sailed to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. They spent one day sightseeing there and then flew back to Detroit.

Lyle describes the ocean cruise as "fabulous." The ship contained such luxuries as two swimming pools, a movie theatre and a special noon smorgasbord table which Lyle said measured "about 50 feet." "This was loaded with all kinds of delicious food", he added.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir: I am writing this letter in regard to last week's paper which contained the questions you asked Mr. Limpert and myself. I would like to know why you chose not to print all of my comments. Specifically the statement I made before giving my answers.

Maybe you didn't think I meant this as part of my answer, or maybe you had some other reason. I don't know your reason, but I feel as though I was discriminated against.

Because this letter is being written before Election Day, we still don't know if these questions and answers had much impression on the people of this area.

I would also like to comment on your editorial in this same paper on the subject of candidates and their qualifications for the job. You stated that this area has been run by just "nice guys", and not necessarily by the best qualified. It was also stated that you didn't back any candidate. After reviewing this and the questions you asked, I wonder if you should not have included in your editorial the little bit about your not being run or controlled by Mr. Limpert. I think that most of the people are forgetting this fact.

WASHINGTON REPORT - Esch

Congressional concern over our nation's highways was exhibited recently in the passage of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968. This new measure not only re-commits Congress to helping the states meet ever mounting traffic problems, but also faces up to the realities of several related concerns including highway safety, beautification and relocation. The main thrust of the bill was to continue the development of our fine system of interstate highways begun under the Eisenhower Administration. Realistically Congress extended the program beyond the old 1972 deadline for an indefinite period and made provisions for increasing construction costs and for expansion of the 41,000 mile system. Fortunately many years ago Congress had the foresight to plan for the '60s. This bill represents a realization that we must go further to develop an interstate system adequate for the '70s.

Congress also realized that the $1.5 billion it has authorized yearly for the 50-50 federal-state system of primary and secondary roads is not adequate and increased the amount, but only slightly—certainly not enough to meet the task of upgrading these roads. One only has to look at the condition of the primary and secondary roads in the Second Congressional District to gain an understanding of the size of this job. I have consistently spoken out for federal aid in this area and will continue my efforts on behalf of more adequate financing.

Highway safety efforts also received a boost in the new bill. There's no doubt that the severely limited amount of money available in this area has been a major restraining force on an all out attack against the slaughter on our highways. Increased authorizations in the highway measure will hopefully be followed by increased appropriations dedicated to making safer roads, cars and drivers.

The only major program covered by this legislation to receive a setback was highway beautification. Agreement to severely limit billboard control, junkyard control, and landscaping programs represented not so much Congressional disinterest in this beautification effort, but more a realization that such spending should be deferred. More of this type of priority spending will enable Congress to face more realistically essential problems in a time of costly war and fiscal uncertainty.

Social problems, related to highway development and long neglected by Congress, were also attached in the bill. Unfortunately progress in highway construction particularly in the urban areas has frequently meant hardship for those least able to afford it. Relocation allowances and other regulations should go along way toward easing these hardships, while at the same time making local approval for highway routes more readily available.

The Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968 contains some encouraging new directions toward solving a portion of our nation's transportation problems. The entire task, however, remains immense and requires the constant attention of all government officials.

THE VILLAGE OF MANCHESTER ORDAINS:

Section 1. Inasmuch as old discarded and non-operating cars, car parts, tractors, machinery, household appliances, old iron, debris and other unsightly junk, if allowed to remain in the open, is dangerous to the health of the Village in that it allows weeds, high grass and brush to grow up around it in which rats and other rodents frequent, and is dangerous to the safety of the citizens in that it is an attractive nuisance to children from which children can receive serious injury or possible suffocation and in that it creates a fire hazard because of the dead grass and weeds around and is detrimental to the general welfare of the Village of Manchester in that it adversely affects the values of the adjoining properties, detracts from the general appearance of the Village and thereby causing citizens to go elsewhere for their business trading and their homes; therefore, the storing thereof in an open field, lot or part of lot in the Village of Manchester is hereby declared to be a public nuisance.

Section 2. An open field, lot or part of lot is hereby defined for the purpose of this ordinance as any field, lot or part of lot which is not enclosed with a building or a non-combustible fence at least eight (8) feet high so constructed and maintained that rats, mice and other rodents cannot enter or leave and so constructed as to prevent children from entering, and so constructed as to prevent lighted cigarettes, cigar butts or other burning objects from being tossed into said field, lot or part of lot.

Section 3. It shall be unlawful for any owner, occupant, possessor or any person having control of any open lot, field or open part thereof to allow any old auto bodies, old cars, auto parts, farm machinery, equipment, household appliances or other old metal, debris or other personal property that because of the age, wear and tear, lack of repair or other causes is no longer usable as such in its then condition to be stored or remain in any such open lot, field or open part of either for a period of more than thirty (30) days.

Section 4. Upon complaint from any person, whether oral or otherwise of any violation of section 3 of this ordinance, the Manchester Police shall make an investigation thereof and, if it is found that any of the items mentioned in section 1 hereof have been stored, placed or allowed to remain in any open lot, field or open part of either for a period of more than thirty (30) days, said police shall serve upon said owner, occupant, possessor or person having control thereof a written notice to remove the same therefrom within ten (10) days after receipt of said notice, said notice may be served personally or by certified mail with return receipt requested.

Section 5. Any person believing that the notice is not proper or that the removal of said items within ten (10) days would be an undue hardship or who is aggrieved otherwise may appeal to the Council of the Village of Manchester by leaving a written claim of appeal stating his reasons for appeal with the Village Clerk within said ten (10) days.

Section 6. Said appeal shall be heard by the Village Council at the next regular meeting thereof and said appellant shall appear before the Council and show cause, if any he has, supporting his appeal. Any officer of the Village or any resident may also appear and present any facts they have regarding the matter.

Section 7. After hearing the facts so presented to the Village Council, the Village Council may uphold the notice as given or may extend the time for removal of the items or may set aside the notice entirely, either in accordance with the proofs so presented.

Section 8. If a notice be upheld by the Council, the appellant shall have ten (10) days thereafter, or such additional time as granted by said Council, in which to so remove said items.

Section 9. Any person who shall fail, refuse or neglect to so remove said items within ten (10) days after said notice is so served upon him, or within ten (10) days after the decision is so rendered upon him, or within ten (10) days after the decision is so rendered upon him, or within such additional time as may be granted by the Village Council on said appeal, then said person shall be subject to a fine of not more than $50.00 or imprisonment of more than thirty (30) days, or both, for a first offense. For a second or subsequent offense charged as such, said person shall be subject to a fine of not less than $50.00 nor more than $100.00 or by imprisonment of not less than three (3) days nor more than ninety (90) or both, at the discretion of the Court.

Section 10. Any personal property so found in violation of this Ordinance may be removed and the area cleaned at the request of the Village Council and the expense thereof shall be immediately billed to the person so refusing or neglecting to remove such personal property. If any billed so rendered shall remain due and unpaid for a period of thirty (30) days after delivery, it shall thereafter accrue with interest at the rate of 6% per annum from the date of the completion of the removal, and the Village Council may in its discretion order the collection thereof by suit or may assess the same against said property as provided in the case of special assessments and the same shall constitute a lien upon said property for enforcement of the collection of the principal and interest and shall be billed as part of the tax applicable thereto. The Village Council may in its discretion provide that such assessments may be paid in not to exceed three equal installments.

Section 11. This ordinance shall not apply to a junk yard duly licensed.

Section 12. This ordinance shall become effective twenty (20) days after the date of its adoption.

by Rev. O. Wm. Cooper Manchester Methodist Church Ever troubled by the pace and speed of modern life? Do you remember the play, STOP THE WORLD I WANT TO GET OFF? People are finding it more and more difficult to cope with life today. More gadgets only increase the pace and variety of life; they do not give us relief.

We come closer every day to the point where people just can't keep up with our pace and tension load and they look for a way out. The modern solution to most problems has been, work harder and invest more money. We face some problems, however, that neither hard work nor cash can solve.

There is a general rule of problem-solving that man usually follows: The problems we find it difficult to solve; we try to escape. Our escapes are subtle, but just as real. Men often lose themselves in their work because they find here an opportunity to avoid the pressures and reality of life if only for a few hours.

We often escape in entertainment. We are the most entertained, bored generation in the history of our nation. People often think that if they can laugh, then perhaps he can forget his troubles for an hour. The human system cries out for relief from the runaway merry-go-round of our society, tension and nervousness often are dulled by certain medical discoveries, but the tragedy is that this relief is mistaken for cure.

Man is an incurable sentimentalist. When we confront the insurmountable, we are most apt to retreat into sentimentalism to remember the fantasy of the good old days. These are only a few of the escapes and dodges men use to avoid reality.

Problem solving is somewhat the same in the Old and New Testament. When the people of Israel were cornered by the Egyptians at the Red Sea, they immediately cried out, in effect, "Do something." This was their clamor for escape. Moses, with greater wisdom and trust, said, "Fear not, stand firm, and see the salvation of the Lord which he will work for you today... the Lord will fight for you and you have only to be still." Ex. 14:13, 14 The people wanted to escape; Moses wanted to trust God to confront the severe difficulty and overcome it. This is the whole story of the life of Joshua.

Peter and John were arrested for preaching of Jesus. They were being tried by the Sanhedrin and had been commanded, under severe penalty, not to preach the gospel. The natural instincts of self-preservation were crying out on all sides, but Peter and John replied, "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than God, you must judge, for we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." Acts 4:19, 20

Time is too short to describe the way the Christians in the first century Rome faced the Arena; the way our forefathers refused religious compromise when it cost them their homeland; the way the Chinese Christians strongly opposed the expressions of the pagan Communist culture. In every generation and with every great problem, the good news of the gospel is that man can now stop trying to escape problems and face life with the certain faith, "God will fight for us."

With all our gadgets, life is still no picnic. We face serious problems of human need and violence, of uncontrolled power, poverty and hunger; we face tensions that are frightening to say the least.

God grant us the strength that we may stop trying to escape reality and face life. So may we also say with Moses, "The Lord will fight for you."

What LSD, pot, entertainment and sentimentalism can not do, Jesus accomplished in His sacrificial death and powerful resurrection.

AGRICULTURE IN ACTION

Michigan housewives are being used by politicians and labor-union leaders in all-out, long-distance effort to force California farm workers into labor unions. Never one to hold back where there might be headlines or political hay to be made, Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh has gotten into the act. All in all, it appears to be a lot of excitement over a relatively few California-grown table grapes, but the issues are much more deep.

Involved is an effort by union leaders to unionize California farm workers, with major efforts aimed at the grape growing areas where hand-labor is "most" and where a few large growers have been the special target. However, the total boycott affects the small family farms as well as the larger producer.

Falling in direct (and sometimes drastic) efforts to unionize the farm workers, the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee" headed by Cesar Chavez and sponsored by the AFL-CIO -- has called for a total boycott of California grapes in major markets. Originally aimed at New York, the idea has spread to Detroit with the public approval of Mayor Cavanagh, who urged enforcement of the table-grape ban.

Recently, a number of unions engaged in the distribution and retail sale of California grapes in the greater New York area invited brokers, jobbers and chain-store representatives to a meeting, in which they were told that stores selling California grapes would be picketed. The Meat Cutters have said they would not cross such picket lines.

With this ultimatum, the flow of California grapes into the greater New York area has dropped to practically zero, and in the process it appears there has been a clear-cut violation of a major section of the Taft-Hartley labor act, relating to secondary boycotts and "hot cargo" practices.

What does this mean to Michigan farmers and city consumers? Obviously, there is much more at stake than final disposition of a few tons of grapes. It is clear that labor is attempting to set a pattern for total organizing of all farm workers, and eventually, a take-over of America's farm productive ability; for if a small group of organizers in California can cut such a huge city as New York off from a grape supply, it could obviously happen to your total food supply, your milk, meat, or bread.

PRICE SUPPORT LOANS

Frank Light, Chairman of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, urged all farmers with corn under price support loan or eligible for price support to seriously consider reselling their farm stored corn for another year.

He pointed out that the current market price is well below a $1 a bushel, and usually the price of corn is the highest one or two months before harvest. He emphasized that the orderly marketing feature of the price support program can benefit not only the farmers but the entire economy. Producers who are eligible for price support and who resell their farm stored corn will receive a storage payment for the 1968-1969 program year of over 13 cents per bushel.

In the case of soybeans, Light pointed out that the market price is about at the support level; however, he reminded farmers that 1966 crop soybeans eligible for price support also may be resold. Light pointed out that the resale loan program permits producers to continue their loans and retain title to the commodity without any additional expense.

Then if the market price improves later in the marketing year, they may sell the grain, redeem their loans, and picket any excess as a result of the orderly marketing.

Corn and soybean farmers were reminded by Mr. Light that the maturity date for corn and soybean loans was July 31, 1968, but requests for resale farm stored loans may still be accepted by the county ASCS offices.

MSU ECONOMIST CALLS FOR FARMERS TO JOIN THE COMPUTER AGE

The way we manage has to keep pace with the age we live in. Dr. Lawrence L. Boger told several hundred farmers and farm women recently that we live in a computer age, so we should let the computer become a tool of farm management.

The chairman of Michigan State University's Department of Agricultural Economics was the speaker at the 20th annual State Farm Management Tour. Boger said the computer can do calculations at tremendous speeds, but can also be made to perform other functions. It can analyze and store information, then communicate this information to other machines and people.

He cited four ways in which agriculture might take part in the computer age: 1) Integrate existing electronic record systems -- Telemar, DHA, crop varieties, field records, fertilizer recommendations, etc. 2) Launch new activities. 3) Adapt activities going on outside of agriculture. 4) Relate to programs of other states and industries.

The agricultural authority said the computer "has the capacity to be many libraries and bulletin offices rolled into one." As a storehouse of information, the economist said, the computer's speed can be utilized for rapid and efficient retrieval of information.

Dr. Boger described how a computer can be conversed with by phone, by teletype, by typewriter and by photography. This, he added, would make it possible for both the blind and the deaf to communicate with the computer, utilizing the sense of touch.

The economist concluded that through the computer and research in many fields, Michigan State University "will do its best to keep families on farms, rural communities alive and to keep farmers competitive."

4-H HORSE SHOW IS SUMMERTIME FAVORITE

Summertime is horse show time... fair time! It's sun and fun time. It's time out-of-doors for young and old... city dwellers and rural folks.

And it's the right time for 4-H horse enthusiasts to ride their best mount in the ring to show off results of membership in a 4-H Horse Club.

More than 188,000 youths, 9 to 19, from every state participated in the national 4-H Horse program last year, according to the Cooperative Extension Service. This was an increase of some 20,000 over 1966, the first year the program was offered on a nationwide basis. This summer, many girls and boys are featured in horse shows throughout the state.

They learn a lot more besides how to saddle up and ride. Using manuals provided through the Extension Service, club members study horse science and horsemanship. They cover subjects such as behavior, anatomy, health, breeding, training, judging, grooming and showing. The books also are used by local horse club leaders, extension agents and animal science specialists working with 4-H'ers.

National sponsor of the horse program is Merck & Co.,

Inc. of Rahway, N.J., a leader in the pharmaceutical industry, particularly in the field of human and animal health research.

The firm provides annual awards to 4-H'ers who have been named winners in three levels of competition: county, state and national. Attractive medals go to a blue award group of up to four members per county.

An expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress to be held at Chicago the first week in December awaits the top state winner. And $600 national scholarships will be presented to the six top members in the nation.

Merck officials will be on hand at the 4-H Congress to personally present the scholarships, and to host the state delegates.

The horse program is one of nearly 100 projects and activities offered to all young people in 50 states and Puerto Rico, reports the Extension Service. The informal educational 4-H program, started more than 50 years ago, utilizes the "learn-by-doing" method.

LANDSCAPE

What's your preference? A pastoral farm scene with placid livestock grazing in deep meadows, or a towering forest of stately pines? Michigan has plenty of both to delight visitors and residents alike.

Seldom is agriculture's contribution to the varied landscape of Michigan noted. Yet Director B. Dale Ball of the Michigan Department of Agriculture reports that an increasing number of residents are expressing concern about the effect on Michigan's landscape as more and more open fields revert to trees and brush.

MICHIGAN FOOTBALL MAG. NAMES MANCHESTER BOY TO PRE-SEASON ALL-STATE HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Two hundred of the state's finest high school football players have been named to Michigan Football magazine's 1968 pre-season all state team.

The team was selected by the 32-man Michigan Football staff based off reports from high school coaches around the state.

No specific number of players were picked from any class to any position, just "the top 200 prospects" to make various all-state or all-conference teams at season's end.

Michigan Football is a new-yearly magazine devoted to the prospects of all the football teams in Michigan -- high school, college and pro. It is the largest sports magazine published in the nation, 172 pages.

Bob Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pratt, was among the 200 prospects named to this pre-season all-state high school team. Congratulations, Bob!

The 1968 issue of Michigan Football is now on the newsstands.

Fifteen free horse shows are scheduled at the Michigan State Fair, August 23 through September 2. And Arthur Godfrey and Goldie will be featured August 29, 30 and 31.
