"The Bank on the Corner where you feel at home."

75 Years of Service

by Carolyn Ahrens

On June 30, 1894, the Union Savings Bank officially opened with a paid-in capital of $12,500.00 due to the courage and determination of Arthur J. Waters and Walter C. Mack. In the midst of nationwide panic, bread lines and a scarcity of money today's generation would find unbelievable, the original directors and officials held their first board meeting with Benjamin G. English, President; George Helmerding, 1st Vice-President, Dr. C.F. Kepp, 2nd Vice-President and Edwin E. Root, Cashier, who later became one of the most prominent men in the bank's development. Other directors were Arthur J. Waters, Walter C. Mack, John Wuerthner, John M. Horning, Fred Breitenwischer and Arnold H. Kuhl.

At this time it was decided to purchase Union Hall on the corner of Main and Adrian Streets for $1,800.00 and replace it with a modern 3-story building. Perhaps on that fateful day on the third floor of Arbeiter Hall (located above the L & M Party Store) it was decided to name the new bank, the Union Savings Bank.

The Union Savings Bank, upon completion of the new building early that following winter, was a one-man bank. Edwin E. Root stoked up the coal stove, swept the floor, greeted customers and was responsible for all the bookkeeping. Then in the early 1900's Elwin English began working on a part-time basis and a few years later Eben F. Horning who eventually became the fifth president of the struggling young bank.

1906 brought several changes when the first president, Benjamin G. English, passed away and John M. Horning became the second president of the Union Savings Bank. At this time also a high school graduate Bennett C. Root joined the staff. When Mr. Horning passed away in 1920, he was succeeded by Dr. C. F. Kepp and in 1924 Edwin E. Root became the fourth president and under his direction the greatest and most trying years of growth for the bank.

In 1907 the second national panic only gently nudged the new bank but with determination, a unity among area residents, merchants and bank officials, the Union Savings Bank held its own throughout the stormy depression years. By 1919 it had proven its strength when the first 25 years of growth saw an expansion from a total resource value of $33,705.08 in 1894 to $851,072.19. During the 1920's the bank grew rapidly and in 1925 Bennett Root was promoted to cashier. 1927 found another young man behind the counter, Edward R. Kirk and two years later LeRoy A. Marx.

Mr. Kirk is with the bank yet today and Mr. Marx retired in 1961 after 32 years of service with the bank on the corner. November, 1929, another depression crossed the nation but with the same determination and common sense that led the young bank through past national disaster, once again the Union Savings Bank remained intact.

In 1937 the Union Savings Bank and the people of Manchester had great cause for sorrow when Arthur J. Waters passed away shortly before the 50th anniversary of the proud young business he had founded. Several years later another prominent figure in the bank's history with 49 years of banking service behind him, Edwin E. Root, then 88 years old, retired as president and died a year later, Eben F. Horning, a part of the banking staff since the early 1900's then became the fifth president with the 1944 50th anniversary just two years away. With a $33,705.08 resource and $12,500.00 paid-in capital in 1894 compared to $1,950,491.61 in 1944, the Union Savings Bank could well be proud of its accomplishments.

The 50th anniversary found Mr. Horning, President; Frank Tirb, 1st Vice-President; Theodore J. Kuhl, 2nd Vice-President; Bennett C. Root, Cashier; and Assistant Cashiers LeRoy A. Marx and Edward R. Kirk. Of the 1944 Directors, only James C. Hendley remains an active member of today's board, presiding as Chairman of the Board. Although Herbert H. Upton, Sr. was also a board member then, he now served with Carl Wuerthner as Directors Emeritus or members who may voice an opinion but have no voting power.

Upon Mr. Horning's death in 1949, Bennett Root became the sixth president and in 1950 Chairman of the Board until his death in 1963. James Hendley then picked up the reins of president in 1950 until January, 1969 when he became Chairman of the Board and Dan J. Boutell, eighth president of the Union Savings Bank. Mr. Boutell, as with several of his predecessors, began as a cashier in 1950, then held the post of executive vice-president cashier and finally president.

In 1958 the present Union Savings Bank underwent major remodeling. With a bit of the past as displayed near the vault entrance are several items and pictures of times gone by. Among these are Edwin Root's sleeve guards and inside the vault area, Manchester's old jail bars - pictures and memories which none can nor would dare erase.

Today's officers are James C. Hendley, Chairman; Dan J. Boutell, President; Carl F. Wuerthner, Vice-President; Kenneth Wolf, Cashier; and Assistant Cashiers Edward R. Kirk, Harold Burch, Ethel Fahey and Marilyn Clark. Directors include James Hendley, Dan Boutell, Henry P. Eames, Alton Horning, Ira E. Johnson, Willard Mann, Donald A. Roach, Stanton G. Roesch and Herbert H. Upton, Jr.; Directors Emeritus, Herbert H. Upton, Sr. and Carl Wuerthner. These men and women, together with the present banking staff, will celebrate with Manchester residents the 75th Anniversary of the Union Savings Bank, with current total resources over the $10 million mark.

ELECTION RESULTS

The requested 9.5 operating school millage was passed by a majority of 368 yes to 212 no.

Robert Clark was defeated 199 to Lou Vogel's 364 for a four-year term on the School Board.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Manchester Township Board will be held at the Council Rooms in the Village Hall Tuesday, June 17 at 8 p.m. to pass on the request of F.C. Johnson for transfer of ownership of 1968 Tavern and SDM license business with dance permit located at 20400 Austin Rd., Manchester, Michigan; from Bull Pen, Inc.

In an opening letter written by Eben F. Horning on the 50th Anniversary of the Union Savings Bank in 1944, perhaps best describes both past, present and future thoughts of many involved in the celebration today. "A span of fifty years (now seventy-five) absorbs the greater part of a man's activity, while fifty years measures only a short period of time in the life of an institution. It is a milestone in its period of growth, a time for reflection of the past, and an occasion to plan for the future."

TRAFFIC SAFETY SERIES

The Manchester Enterprise is starting a series this week on how to get points on your traffic record-the theory being the best way to avoid them is to know what causes them in the first place.

For this special series, Automobile Club of Michigan has created "BEBA (for 'Bring 'Em Back Alive!') Bill," a problem driver who will illustrate the 28 surest ways of increasing your record in the Secretary of State's office.

"Getting tickets regularly for any moving violation indicates a driver is headed for accident, injury or death," said Auto Club's general manager, Fred N. Rehm.

"Our studies show chances of a fatal accident increase 7 1/2 times when a driver gets 12 points in two years."

The 28 part cartoon series is entitled "Know Your Points." It will illustrate both well-known and little-known points of law-including some often not enforced.

Everyone knows for instance, speeding can mean points. But did you know:

Speeding 16 miles over the limit can add four points to your record?

Failure to give proper signals can net two points?

Speeding up to prevent another car from passing can mean three points?

A court may refer a motorist to driver improvement school for two or more moving violations within a 12 month period.

The series also covers changes to the Michigan Motor Vehicle Code within the last year.

The Secretary of State's office has indicated the average driver has four points on his lifetime driving record.

To brush up on the Michigan traffic code and to pick up pointers on avoiding points, watch for this safety series in your newspaper.

GRAPE BOYCOTT

One healthy sign coming out of the AFL-CIO boycott of California table grapes has been the questioning by church members and leaders concerning church involvement.

What at first appeared to be a form of holy crusade for migrant-worker justice, has been revealed under close examination to be little more than a highly secular union play for power. If successful, organized labor would gain a strangle-hold position over the production and distribution of our nation's food supply. . . grapes to-day-Michigan milk and cherries tomorrow.

Fortunately, few Michigan churches or church leaders have endorsed the boycott, although they have been repeatedly spurred in that direction by the ill-advised Michigan Council of Churches and its activist-arm, the Michigan Migrant Ministry.

Those which have refrained from involvement may have been saved considerable embarrassment as truth, hidden until now behind union contrived headlines, is gradually exposed. Posters of supposedly starving children, it has been learned, have not been based on fact; almost no migrants are involved, since about 99 per cent of the workers employed in the California vineyards are local people and permanent residents; and there is no "strike" of grape workers other than that which the union has arranged for publicity purposes. Instead of fighting on the side of the worker, the union has caused him to be the target of physical and psychological abuse aimed at forcing him into a union which he does not want. This compulsion has been at the heart of the issue from the beginning.

According to a first-hand report of Father Cletus Healy, of the Society of Jesus (Jesuit), "The grape workers were not consulted about the strike, did not want the strike and would not support it. The union lacking local support from farm workers, has had to mount a massive nationwide boycott to force the growers to accept the union (which closed shop contract) - even though the workers do not want it."

Father Healy's conclusion, after much study in the Delano, California, area, was that what the workers had before the union organizers came - "is far closer to the Christian ideal that the union promises to be. . . a statement which should be of special interest to concerned Christians everywhere.

WASHINGTON REPORT by Marvin Esch

As I travel throughout Michigan, I am constantly struck with the difficult situation being faced by our retired citizens. For them, inflation is not a far-away economic theory to be debated and discussed. For them, inflation is very real. It means scrimping on food, entertainment, medical care, and other essentials in order to make their fixed incomes from Social Security meet rising expenses.

My conversations with these retired people have led me to explore the entire question of our Social Security System. The Social Security System was established more than a third of a century ago in 1935. Although it has been amended many times, there has never been total review of the system and the concepts on which it was founded. There has been no full study to determine whether those concepts continue to be valid in modern America and whether the Social Security System has met its goals.

The Republican Task Force on Social Security and Human Needs, of which I am Chairman, has embarked this week on a review of the Social Security setup and ways in which it can be improved to meet modern needs. We begin this review with an open mind. It is our goal to recommend changes and improvements which will update this program.

We expect to consider a number of crucial questions. Among them are: Are benefit levels adequate to provide at least a minimum acceptable standard of living for retired citizens? Since inflation hits hardest at those who are living on fixed income, has adequate provision been made in the Social Security law to protect senior citizens against sudden rises in prices?

Do Social Security annuities reflect adequately the amount invested through taxes over the years?

Should Social Security be designed to provide a full retirement plan or should it be considered a supplement to private retirement plans? If the latter, has the advertisement and propaganda about the system given the wrong impression?

Are working wives treated fairly under Social Security or are their F.D.I.C. taxes wasted? Should a man who retires at 65, whose wife is younger than he be able to

READ WHAT YOUR REPRESENTATIVES ARE DOING

YOU MAY NOT AGREE!

What provisions can be made to cut the complicated red tape Social Security beneficiaries face when they apply for benefits? Most of the Social Security cases which come to my attention are a result of complex regulations which are inadequately explained to Social Security recipients.

Should the retirement and annuity aspects of the Social Security System be separated from the "welfare" type functions, such as disability benefits, benefits to children and widows? If so, how should those welfare functions be financed - through F.D.I.C. taxes or through general tax revenues?

Do Social Security annuities reflect adequately the amount invested through taxes over the years?

Should Social Security be designed to provide a full retirement plan or should it be considered a supplement to private retirement plans? If the latter, has the advertisement and propaganda about the system given the wrong impression?

Are working wives treated fairly under Social Security or are their F.D.I.C. taxes wasted? Should a man who retires at 65, whose wife is younger than he be able to draw full Social Security benefits for both of them?

What is the relationship between Social Security and Veterans benefits? Should the Veterans Administration be allowed to cut back on Veterans pensions when Social Security is increased?

Is the Social Security System actually sound? If not, should it be?

Should the Medicare system be expanded to meet a greater percentage of medical cost for beneficiaries?

Should Social Security beneficiaries be allowed to earn outside income to supplement their annuities? Does the present system which allows investment income but not earned income discriminate against the poor?

Should the retirement age be lowered, or should it remain the same?

These are just a few of the many questions which our Task Force must consider. I would welcome the advice and suggestions of people in the Second Congressional District regarding other issues which they feel should be raised, as well as comments on the questions which are already on the agenda.

The costumes and make-up and an opportunity to show what they can do provide an important part of their training. It is hoped that many people will come to see them.

The recital will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Manchester High School Auditorium. Price of admission is 75 cents for adults and 35 cents for students.

LOOKING AROUND

A year ago Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Swartzfager fell in love with a huge elm tree in Kansas City, Missouri, and bought the land and a house just to have the tree. Now the tree, 100 feet tall, has Dutch Elm Disease and must be cut down. There are now 40 whooping cranes in existence, all at the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas.

The City Council in Osterlund, Sweden, has decided to build sand boxes with a stone post in the center in downtown parks. Each one will have a sign: "For your friend the dog."

There are now 39 women driving big buses in Paris, and receiving the same pay as male drivers. Women taxi drivers have been fairly common in Paris for years but feminine bus drivers are fairly new.

Missing Link Which Would Connect Six Ann Arbor Murders?

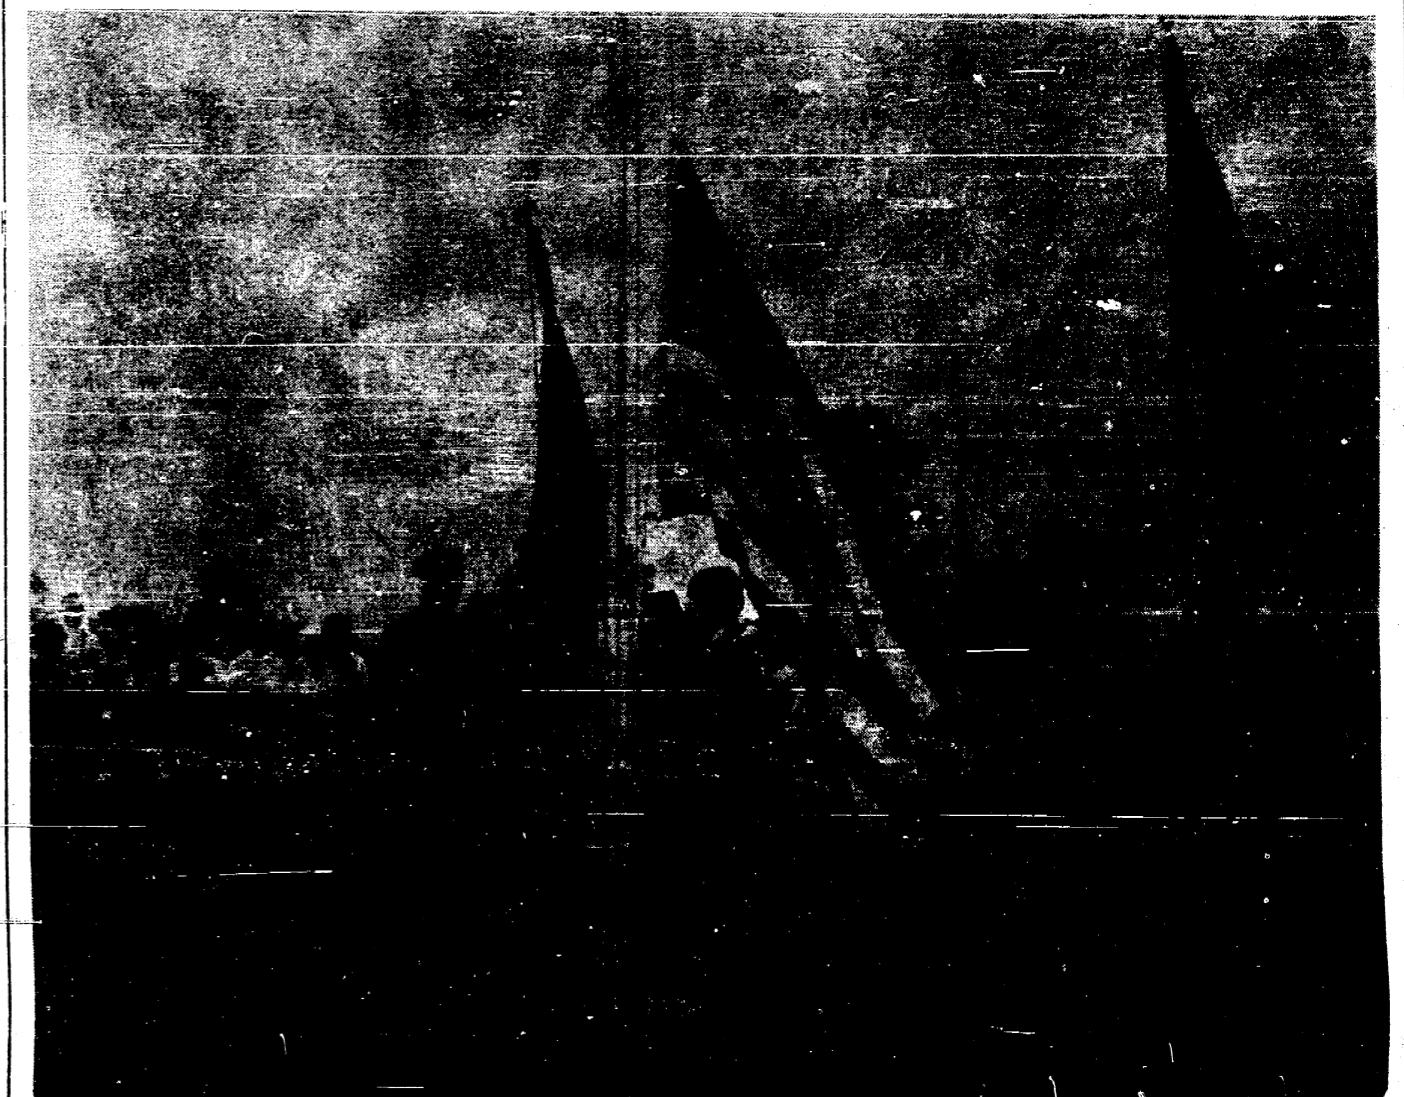

Police continue to say they have no definite link between the murders of the six young women near Ann Arbor. On a hunch we did some checking as to what shows were playing at the various theaters when each of the girls were killed. You'll read our findings on page 6.

As officers have nothing definite to go on, we take the liberty of speculation. We do this only in the hope that it will help catch the killer before any more parents have to go through the agony of identifying their daughter in the county morgue. The following story is only speculation as we have no access to police records nor have we been at the scene of any of the crimes. Our story is based only on what we have read in the papers.

We think one man did all six killings. He is white, weighs between 140 to 160 lbs., has a medium heavy build, is between 19 & 26 years of age, and is very neat in appearance. Many people connected with the University know this man. To meet him on the street one cannot tell he is mentally sick. Inside lies a completely different man, a man who when triggered by some scene or lurid picture becomes a madman, a man who has taken the lives of six young women. He differs from what we normally think of as a mentally ill person because this man can control his outward emotions. Something has to trigger this sadistic nature and bring it to the surface.

The first victim was two years ago. The body lay unnoticed for a month. We think the killer revisited the body several times while it lay where he left it. We think the shock of this first and most vicious attack left him weak with fear that he would be caught. His visits to the body were meant to reassure himself that he did the right thing, but each time he came away more scared of what he had done. This fear kept

New Bridge Would Meet Water Flow Needs

Consulting engineers, McNamee, Porter and Seeley in a letter to the village council stated that the factors of economy and required waterway area were investigated and each dictated the use of a clear span bridge structure for the proposed new Duncan Street bridge.

The factors of economy were based on comparison of estimate of cost. The consulting engineers determined their criteria for the clear span over the culvert style on information given to them by the United States Department of Interior Geological Survey and from the Michigan Department of National Resources.

One disadvantage of the culvert design, the engineers decided, was that the required cross sectional water way area could not be obtained without widening the river crossing in order to construct multiple sections of culvert pipe. Also the existing roadway surface is located 10 feet above the normal river surface elevation.

When the river rises to more than three feet above its normal elevation it begins to flood the property of the nearby homes. This flooding occurred during last year's high water flows.

The engineers also determined that all culvert sections would require full width and height concrete headwalls on either side plus backfill to meet the existing roadway grade.

Monday, June 23, the village council will ask all eligible voters to approve the issuance of bonds for the purpose of financing the rebuilding of the Duncan Street bridge. Plans for repairing the Main Street bridge are also included in this program.

The Planning Commission has also gone on record as favoring a yes vote on authorizing the sale of bonds for the bridge projects.

Michigan Constable Of the Year

The Michigan Constables Association held their annual seminar at Harrison, Michigan June 13 through the 15th. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Alber of 639 W. Main and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Moore and Family of 12894 Sharon Hollow Road.

Moore, vice president of the association, was honored as constable of the year and placed third in the annual masters pistol shoot.

The program included an exclusive bond meeting Friday night, Saturday morning registration and the pistol shoot were held. In the afternoon the constables attended school with lectures on criminal and civil matters. Judge Jon Ringleberg, district judge from Clair and Gladwin counties, prosecutor James Fox from Isabella county and Sgt. Dan Kostreiva, post commander of the Mt. Pleasant State Police post gave the lectures.

Saturday night Judge Eugene J. Storey, municipal Wayne county judge spoke at the banquet. Storey has been the association's attorney for the past 10 years.
