

Mrs. Susan Wiley, formerly Westfall, has resigned her resignation from the Board of Education as of August thirty-first of this year.

As a board member Mrs. Wiley has been very active serving as Treasurer up to this year and in many of the board committees. Her knowledge of school accounting procedures has been very helpful in aiding the district to cope with new procedures.

In the near future the remaining six members of the board will have to appoint a new member to serve until the next annual election.

District residents who are qualified electors and wish to be considered for this appointment should make the fact known in writing. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. James Kemler, Board Secretary, 399 Territorial, Manchester, Michigan 49158.

WHO SHOULD CONTROL INFLATION?

If you're still local schools should be controlled by and answerable to your community, that what your children learn should be a joint effort of their teachers and you — you may be about to lose that.

Let's look at three recent developments. First, a recommendation by the Carter Administration that a cabinet-level Department of Education be created. Administrators of a cabinet-level department of education aren't going to sit back and let the direction of education continue as a local function — not if they want to keep their jobs. The very nature of a federal bureaucracy is a direct and total.

The second development is passage of Proposition 13 in California, a state constitutional amendment to restrict property taxes — the state financial support of schools and teachers.

That triggered development number three, a call by the president of the National Education Association for federal funding of local schools to replace the dollars local schools might lose as a result of property tax cuts.

The tragedy is that local school boards might opt for this one, might campaign for state federal dollars for local schools rather than exercise their management responsibility to tighten their budgets. An financial support and budget control pass from local school boards to a state or federal body, is a direct threat to their children's study — and with it comes a diminishing responsiveness of teachers and schools to the community — to you — a tragedy that need not happen.

1978 FAIR QUEEN IN RETROSPECT

DAPHNE NICKLES
Senior Class—1978

I read in the Enterprise, with a great deal of interest, the history of Double A, and I find that a great many others also did. And then I thought of the statement that J.A.W. made that more than half of our population had arrived in this vale of tears sometime after World War II, and it seemed to me that a great deal of the history of Manchester during past years—from 1928 to 1945—might be interesting to this paper's readers, and so with the encouragement of ye editor, we shall proceed to recount some of the incidents, some humorous and some not, some trivial and some not, that we remember about the town.

We arrived in town in the summer of 1928 and came to stay for a couple of months but those few weeks lasted 18 years.

Our first glimpse came when we arrived on the morning train and proceeded to hitch a ride up town from the depot with "Duck" Kirk in his model T pickup in which was the morning mail which he took to the post office next to the People's Bank where the Sutton Agency now is, on what was then referred to as Exchange Place, not Main Street.

That we were disappointed in our first glimpse of the town was rather an understatement. The main street, and all the other streets, were unpaved and dusty. There were sidewalks but no curbs and gutters and the old iron bridge that spanned the river at the site of the present bridge was an old style affair that vibrated and rattled when the farm wagons passed over it on the way to Hoffer's Mill, at the same location as the present one and powered by water from the same dam that exists today.

We soon found out that Saturday night on Exchange Place was where you met your friends each week. It was a busy place. The local stores catered to every need of those from the surrounding territory and Saturday was the day to come to town. Farm autos and wagons lined the streets in the evening and all the stores remained open until almost 11:00 p.m., or until the customers were all served and had departed for home.

Saturday night on Main Street was where you met your friends and on pleasant summer nights a social time was had by all.

At that time the present Austin Road was a State highway, designated as M-11. However, it was unpaved from Napoleon to Saline but the State Highway Department had promised to replace the shabby iron bridge with a modern affair. Construction on it, however, did not begin until the following spring.

I'm not going to evaluate all the business places in town and am not going to describe its physical appearance, but we promised to relate some trivial incidents that, while of no great importance, contributed to Manchester's history of that period.

Jim Hoyland was station agent and also had charge of the freight house adjacent to the depot which stood on the East side of the road just East of the present food market on West Main Street. In those days freight delivered by truck was somewhat of a rarity and Mr. Kirk and his pickup picked up much of the freight for the various stores after it had been unloaded from the trains at the freight house and delivered it to the various stores.

One day in early fall after school had been in session for several weeks a group at the local coffee klatch were discussing the fact that there was quite a large increase in the kindergarten enrollment in the local school that year even though the town showed no increase in population. (In those days the country kids went to country schools; there was no consolidated district nor any school buses.)

After it had been discussed for some time Jim, with a sly grin on his face turned to the group and said, "I know where the increase came from. It's because of that morning train that the railroad put on some six years ago. It comes through town whistling for every crossing at the ungodly hour of five fifty."

After the laughter died down the audience agreed that that was, after all, a very logical reason.

It is always nice to realize, after last week's paper, that at least someone took note of an article and took the time to bother and answer same. Unfortunately both Bob and Sue Board as well as Jaycees completely overlooked the point of my article which makes me realize that apparently I flunked. As stated in our letter and to reiterate we have no objections to fireworks or even the theatre to donate money for such causes. What we do object to is that money was gathered for the theatre with no mention that such money was also needed for donations to other causes. By that hangs the tale. For what purposes is money being solicited? We merely believe all such purposes should be listed but alas and alack they seldom have in the past.

Jaycees goes into a great amount of oratory but really never touches the basic question. He states: "and where did this money come from?" Well obviously from the tax payers. That is the only source the Village has of obtaining money. And what is that tax based on? Supposedly a budget which lists each and every item on which the money is to be spent. This budget is presented to the voters who then decide whether it is justifiable or not and vote accordingly. Did this budget contain a Christmas Decoration fund with rights to spend money for other causes? That is the question and the only question.

The rest of Jaycees rambling is nothing but a bunch of oratorical excesses. If Jaycees wanted a dollar from each person that watched the fireworks why did they not charge admission? The Jaycees must have wanted the fireworks. They put them on, didn't they? Did I donate? That is the point I raised in the article. Did I or didn't I? I don't know.

Again let me clearly state I have no objections to the fireworks. I have no objections to the Jaycees putting them on. I have no objections to the Theatre making donations to the fireworks. But if we are to have fireworks then let us be honest with the community and be sure that any money that is asked for, any money that is solicited, any taxes that are gathered, any charitable drives that are conducted are plainly stated: "Money to be used among other things for fireworks displays". That is my only point.

CHOLESTEROL ISSUE FAR FROM SETTLED

Newspaper ads, radio and TV commercials, seem to scream out at us. "Eat our kind of non-saturated fat food and your troubles about heart disease will go away." They've come up with all sorts of substitutes for butter, eggs and meat. Their excuse is that all this good stuff will aid your health—but, most of all, they're in the business of making money, and in the highly competitive food business, you have to have a gimmick to sell your product. Their gimmick is the "low cholesterol means less heart attack" approach.

The facts seem to be that there are no definite facts about all this. Recently, Dr. George Mann, the highly respected scientist of Vanderbilt, said that you might as well eat lard and butter because there has been no evidence that eating lower saturated fats will lower cholesterol levels. He has spent years on his research, including studies of African tribesmen, who eat high fat meat diets, and have no heart problems.

Most scientists seem to agree that there is a link between cholesterol and heart disease. The argument starts when it comes to the value of eating lower saturated fat foods.

In a recent report, Dr. Mann said that lowering cholesterol in the diet does not mean it is reduced in the bloodstream. He says it's not a problem of intake but of the body's ability to clear cholesterol from the system. Some people can eat plenty of cholesterol and have very little stay in their blood, while others are just the opposite. They can eat a little and have a lot stay in it.

Dr. Mann's conclusion seems to back up a recent study on eating eggs done by a University of Missouri scientist. Dr. Margaret Flynn had 114 males in a study in which half of them ate two eggs a day for three months. The other half ate no eggs. After that 90 days, they switched, and at the end of six months, there was no change in the cholesterol of those whose level of cholesterol was normal to begin with.

So, the research goes on, but it looks like the good guys may wind up to be the saturated fats after all.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB PICNIC

The Shakespeare Reading Club enjoyed a potluck picnic luncheon on Wednesday, August 9 at the cottage of Mrs. Roscoe Lannom at Little Wolf Lake in Onsted.

Mrs. Lannom gave a very interesting accounting of her recent trip to Europe and a social hour was enjoyed.

Club programs for the Fall & Winter season were distributed and the regular meetings of the club will resume in October.

We would like to say thanks to all of our friends, neighbors and relatives for the gifts and cards we received in celebration of our 50th Wedding Anniversary of August 8.
A special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Braun for the lovely party they gave for us.
Virgil and Velma Mayer

They tell the story of the cross-roads general store merchant who, when approached by a tax collector, simply pointed to several boxes of receipts and records and said, "Help yourself".

Trying to keep a multitude of various sized receipts at your fingertips in nearly an impossible task. One way to avoid this mess is to have a checking account.

Your cancelled checks point the way to avoiding problems over disputed payments. And, a checking account is a convenience especially around income tax time.

When that tax man comes a calling, you have the proof you need for every deductible item.

Oh, there are scores of reasons to have a checking account. Really, a checking account is better than a bookkeeper...it never quits, gets sick or retires.

You'll enjoy your checking account with us. I guarantee it and if you get all messed up trying to strike the same balance as we have, stop in. We're always happy to assist you in straightening out your checkbook.

Now, can you think of a reason why you shouldn't have a checking account?

SPUR OF THE MOMENT SADDLE CLUB

The August Spur of the Moment Saddle Club show was held on August 6, and we had a nice turnout, even tho' a lot of the 4-H horses were sort of tired from a weeks work at the Fall round-up. Our judge was a former 4-Her herself, Peggy Friday, with her ringmaster being her husband, Jerry Friday. We had more help with judging, in the Western Riding class, from Bob Wice. We thank all three of them, as it was a hot muggy day, and they all did a fine, fair job of judging. Our judge for the September 3rd show, will be Barb Davis, also a former 4-H member.

The 10 and under pony halter class is sponsored by James Animal Hospital.

New Improved Services for Manchester Customers

Effective now, new electronic telephone office equipment is in operation providing new long distance service for customers in the 428 exchange.

New long distance service. Now you can dial person-to-person collect, credit card and bill-to-third-number calls. Even from your phones.

Here's how it works:
Within your 313 Area: Dial 0 operator plus the number you want to reach.

Outside your 313 Area: Dial 0 operator plus the Area Code and the phone number.

In either case, an operator (assisted by high-speed computers) will intercept your call and ask, "May I help you?"

Dialing person-to-person calls.

Simply tell the operator the name of the person you're calling.

Dialing collect calls. Just answer "Collect" and give your name.

Dialing credit card calls.

Give the operator your credit card number.

Dialing bill-to-third-number calls.

As you do as say "Bill to" and give the Area Code and telephone number.

In each of the above situations your call is being automatically routed through while you are giving the operator the necessary information.

Operator-assisted rates apply on these calls.

No change in the way you direct dial station-to-station long distance calls.

Within your 313 Area: Continue to dial 1 plus the phone number you wish to reach.

Outside your 313 Area: Dial 1, then the Area Code and the phone number.

No change in making emergency and assistance calls.

Do as you've always done. Dial 0 for "operator."

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to call your Michigan Bell Business Office at 761-9900.

IN RETROSPECT

I mentioned in last week's article, the paved streets in Manchester in the late 1920's and, thinking about them, I remembered many sunny lazy summer days spent here and among the other things, the activities of the children of the town during those vacation days and the fun that the children had playing along those paved streets with the pleasant sensation of the warm dry sand between their bare feet. Today many of these activities are missing and the children seem to be at a loss for something to do besides drape themselves over the bridge railing or perhaps the hood of someone's car, and all this despite the organized efforts made nowadays to provide the "right kind of recreation" for the youngsters. It makes you wonder if they have homes or parents.

It didn't seem to take very much to keep them busy in those days. They made their own fun and lived, at least part of the time, in the land of "Let's Pretend".

Today however, many things seem missing from the childhood of the present generation. Stills are missing. Homemade scooters are missing. Homemade swings are missing. Impromptu vacant lot ball games are missing. The list grows of things that kids might do for themselves but don't. Today we're trying to buy childhood and we're failing miserably. We have killed "Let's Pretend". Anti-I-Over is missing. Red Rover is missing. Duck On the Rock is missing.

It's bad enough that soap box wagons are missing. (The slick expensive cars that took their place seem to have caused cheating in the Soap Box Derby).

The whole thing died out about the time that playing Cowboys and Indians died out. (An open invitation to hatred and bigotry quoted the psychologists). And then we quit playing soldier. (An open invitation to hatred and brutality again quoted the psychologists.)

Nowadays we are prosperous we are told. So maybe we can buy beanshooters and stiffs made out of coffee cans nailed onto skis and scooters made of an old roller skate and all the rest, but can we buy for the kids the feeling of accomplishment from making them?

Maybe we can but the $149.50 electronic games fails to teach them Simon Says, and Red Light and capture the Flag and Kick the Can, at twilight on a sultry summer evening, nor can it buy them the ingenuity that it takes to make their own games.

If so let's buy them some "Let's Pretend" instead of stamping out Cops and Robbers and Capture the Flag and Cowboys and Indians that we so learnedly told led to violence and hostility and crime. (Toy guns. How terrible).

If somehow we can figure to give back to the kids "Let's Pretend" so that they can vent their wild energies and exercise their unplotted imagination, maybe something nice will happen. Maybe kids would quit participating in so much violence. If we can do this I think there is hope. This is not an expert opinion. I have a very total ignorance of behaviorism. The subliminal effect of viewed violence is a total mystery to me and child psychology is totally untapped terrain. But I do know one thing. Back when we were all shooting cap pistols as kids it never even occurred to us to actually kill and rob people and the kids had a great deal of respect for their elders and for the rights and property of others.

So now that that is out of our system we shall return next week to an incident that we hope you will find amusing in the "trivial" history of Manchester.
