Husbands, arise-the day has come. Tucked away in the corner of the news dispatches recently there was one which noted the fact that Shirley Brown of Wakefield, Mass., had charged that her husband William had been "careless and negligent in the maintenance of the walks" and had failed to leave them in a safe condition for his wife. She also maintained that it was part of her husband's duties and responsibilities to keep the walks clear and prevent them from getting

I didn't imagine this case, it really happened. Mrs. Brown charged that William had shoveled the sidewalk before he went to work, but at about 8:00 a.m. Mrs. Brown left the house and had slipped on the shoveled walk and had fallen, breaking a pelvic bone.

This incident was eagerly seized upon by several columnists and editorial writers who noted that for many years the courts had been very reluctant to allow "spouses" to sue each other for negligence so that now Brown vs. Brown opened up a whole new horizon for the lawyers and the insurance companies and it seems that all home owner policies will have to be rewritten and of course, the rates will be much higher.

One columnist notes that if a wife can sue a husband for neglecting his household chores, a husband surely could sue his wife for neglecting hers, and he gives a couple of examples as follows:

"Under English common law one of wife's duties is to put out the trash. Recently I was playing with the dog and I tripped over a plastic trash bag that my wife had carelessly thrown in the driveway, and I scraped my elbow severely. Had I known then about the Brown vs Brown case I would have called my lawyer and filed suit immediately, but being ignorant of my rights I only warned her that if she couldn't do a better job with television after she had done the dishes.

This was certainly a simple case of negligence in maintainence of the household equipment and I think that any all-male jury in the land would rule in my favor had I but known of my vested rights and taken it to court.

"And then, just a couple of weeks ago my wife was up on a ladder painting the kitchen ceiling and when I walked by on my way to the refrigerator to get a can of me on the foot, causing me much pain and anguish in my toes. It seems that she had failed to put up a sign warning passersby that she was painting the ceiling and in so doing had violated every safety regulation in the book. Had I known about this Massachusetts court rulling I would have served her with a subpoena on the spot." I know that some folks will say that this

The Board discussed at some length the devices maintenance needs of the district and asked that the committee submit a fall written report to be used as the basis for further Board action. Additional dismanion by the Board led to general sgreement that the problems with the suildings were of such a magnitude that professional consulting help, probably by an architect, would be needed.

The Board thanked Mrs. Wright and her committee and indicated that as soon as the committee report is received it will he reviewed by the Administration for items in need of possible immediate stiention and will then be submitted to the Board of Education.

An additional action the Board of Education moved to adopt a three year salary plan for non bargaining unit personnel. The first year of the plan calls for salary improvements averaging 8.9% with 7% improvements scheduled for the sec-running course. It is open to all bicyclists and runners. Participants must obtain minimum total pledges of $10.00 to enter. Actually a fifth year event, only a bike-a-thon has been held in years past. But with the hope of increasing participation and funds raised, running courses have been added to the program. The Chrysler Proving Grounds, located two miles south of Chelsea on M-52, is an ideal place to hold the Super-Thon. It features miles of scenic paved country roads and rolling hills. And unlike other area events, participants won't have to contend with motorists. The only motor vehicles allowed on the courses will be the "Sag Wagon" which will be used to assist weary participants and a tour bus for those who are not participating but want to view the course. The absence of motor vehicles makes the event completely safe for any age.

As Americans are pushed by inflation from one tax bracket into a higher one, this bracket creep" increases our tax bill. Bracket creep is expected to result in 16 sillion more dollars collected from Americans who received salary increases to compensate for inflation.

None of this is very good news to those of us who are already hit hard by these bad economic times. We know this, and the politicians know this. And this is a very political year. So the solution, politically speaking, is to cut taxes. Tax cuts get people elected. But when the nation is in debt, how can it cut taxes?

Well, there's only one sane, logical way to cut taxes and that is to match the tax cut with an equal cut in government spending. In your personal budget, if your salary were cut by $50 a month, then you would try to reduce spending by $50 a

But politicians don't think that way. They want to cut taxes to make them selves popular, so they will get elected. And after the election, they can blame the Meanwhile, it's you and I who lose. Because inflation is just that much higher than before, and our dollars don't go as

We would like to express our deep appreciation and thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their concern and help after our fire on August 23rd. A special thanks to those that came on Sunday August 31st to help clean up. To offer helping hand is one thing but, to put forth such hard labor working at such a dirty job is something else. Our deepest sympathy and thanks to wives that had to do laundry after the men that came to work. Your friendship and help was like a ray

The Girls Varsity Basketball team lost halftime. The second half was close, but we could not make up any ground.

The girls beat Blissfield 36-35 on Thursday. Again the Dutch played a poor first half and left the floor trailing 16-6. A full court press by the Dutch turned the game around, Steals by Beth Vicek, Kari Agin and Alicia Seegert brought the lead. Vicek scored all 8 of her points in the 3rd period. Teri Stengel then came to life and scored all her 7 points in the fourth period. Alicia Seegert also had 8 points and played a fine floor game. Kari Agin and senior Carol Buss also played excellent defense for the Dutchmen.
