Fishing, Pic-Nicing, Boating And Having Fun in General

Of all other seasons in the year this is the time when laboring men and men of business should take a recreation from the machine shops, stores and counting-rooms. Of course all cannot go to Europe, or even Long Branch or Lake Superior, so they must be content with the opportunity offered us of a good day's sport at some of the beautiful lakes that abound in the interior of the State, as it costs but a nominal sum, and consumes but a small amount of time.

Fishing that a substantial benefit might be derived both mentally and physically, by shaking off the cares of the ENTERPRISE, and taking a trip out to Charlie Akin's, we stuck our quill away and at an early hour on Saturday morning we were on the road.

We were one of a very pleasant company and occupied a seat in one of Walt's easy riding carriages. The ride of about ten miles to the lake, through one of the finest farming countries in the State, was sufficient to awaken an interest in the sports of the day, but when we arrived upon the banks of that beautiful lake and saw the smiles upon the countenance of mine host, showing clearly that he was glad to see us, and was ready to render any assistance, we were overjoyed.

Fishing tackle were soon brought into requisition and boats occupied by our party. We might as well state here that we came to the lake more for a good time, and the ride, than for fishing. However, we succeeded in capturing enough of the finny tribe to give the frying pan a very savory flavor, and to supply the wants of the inner man.

Wampler's Lake lies partly in Lenawee and partly in Jackson counties; Washtenaw county joining on to the two former counties only a few rods from the east end of the lake. The shores of the lake are covered with beautiful groves on nearly every side and the water being very shallow it affords spawning ground for the fisherman that cannot be beaten. The water in the center of the lake is very deep and abounds with large fish, such as pickerel.

Superintendent of schools Gene Thompson commented, "The award truly is directed toward all employees of the Manchester Community Schools. Memorial Trees Planted

The rains stopped last Saturday afternoon just in time for a ceremony in front of the Manchester Library dedicating three flowering crab apple trees to the memories of LeRoy Marx, Martin Keasel, and Herbert Mahony. Guests of honor were Mrs. Emma Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keasel from Camden, and Mrs. Doris Mahony. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Byrnes and their son Casey from Brighton, Mrs. Aaron Nathan, Rev. and Mrs. Robert Macfarlane and sons, Mrs. Claire Reck, library trustees Nancy Sippel and Ann Fowler, and assistant librarian Sharon Day.

Rev. Macfarlane graciously acted both as photographer and master of ceremonies. After he elicited fond memories from each of the guests of honor, he concluded the dedication with a heartwarming prayer.

Many others are due thanks for this successful Arbor Day memorial occasion: the family and friends who contributed to the memorial fund; the library board members who arranged for the purchase and delivery of the trees; Jim Mann for digging the holes; and Jerry Pagel, Kay Arney, Nancy Sippel and Scout Troop #426 for the actual muddy planting.

It is hoped that these trees will not only add to the beauty of the library's setting, but also as a fitting tribute will perpetuate the memories of three men who were so fond of Manchester and its library, and who contributed so much to our village during their lives.

HIT or MISS by farley

I feel the phrase "the bottom line" so widely used nowadays to be so misleading and annoying. It is often what goes in first, not what comes out last, that makes the difference between survival and extinction.

Look at the vast industrial concerns that are toppling on all sides. It doesn't seem reasonable that such old enterprises could be injured so fatally by only a few brief years of a recession. It must begin much earlier. And it began when the original founders died or were supplanted by a managerial class who became fascinated by short-term profits and by mounting dividends, by tender offers and by tough turnovers and who failed to install a distant early-warning system, to track the future and to search out and shore up weaknesses in the structure of the project.

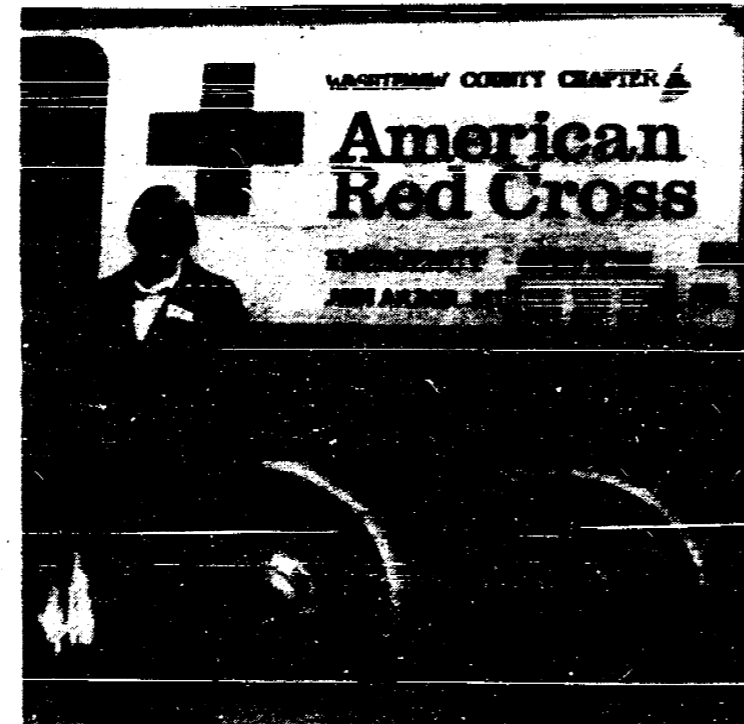

The auto companies, says Sidney Harris, looked no further ahead than the next model year and snugly piled up orders while ignoring changes in international politics, in public tastes and personal needs. At the same time most domestic industries ignored the fact that we were rapidly transforming ourselves from a manufacturing to a "service" and "information" society.

Much of the foresight that the founders of these forms exercised was foreaken by the new class of management, mainly concerned with their tenure and retirement because their slogans became "grab the profits and run," make the annual report look better than last year's, and let the future look after itself.

The heads of companies are the custodians of capitalism and their stewardship must be as far sighted as that of any statesman, yet no radicals could have treated the system more basically than these professed 'conservatives' who have been so preoccupied in reading that bottom line that they could not look up and read the handwriting on the wall.

RED CROSS DISASTER VOLUNTEERS

Jacqueline Steele of Manchester

The Washtenaw County American Red Cross dispatched 8 more Disaster Specialists to assist families of flood ravaged Louisiana. This currently brings the number of Disaster Volunteers from Michigan in Louisiana to 12.

Deborah L. Anderson (Ann Arbor), Clarence D. Ervin (Ypsilanti) and Jacqueline Steele (Manchester), were sent to New Orleans on Friday, April 22, 1983.

Evidence of the Red Cross at work was apparent during the recent snow storm on April 17th. Forty Volunteers turned out in force when I-94 in Chelsea closed due to hazardous conditions. These Volunteers opened an Emergency Shelter and housed 30 stranded motorists. These same Volunteers also took precautionary measures to insure the safety of snow-bound Boy Scouts at a near-by campground. As always, these services were provided free. Whether a disaster is local or national, the Red Cross is ready.

School Leaders Speak To County Realtors

Dr. Eugene Thompson, Superintendent and Dr. Janice Hammond, Elementary School Principal from the Manchester Community Schools were recently invited to address the monthly meeting of the Washtenaw County Realtors Association. Approximately seventy-five members of the association were in attendance. Introduced by Mr. Robert O. Andrus of the Andrus-Davis Real Estate Investment Service Company, Thompson and Hammond reviewed for the realtors the various programs available to students in the Manchester Schools.

It was stressed to the realtors that school visitations are welcome and that they should feel free to visit any school with a client.

Also of special interest was the high-tech computer education program in operation in the Manchester Schools. Thompson emphasized to the realtors that the Manchester Schools are perhaps the best equipped in the State of Michigan in terms of computer hardware. Every classroom in the school district is equipped with a microcomputer.

Karen Rodriguez from the Real Estate One Company and a parent in the Manchester Schools was instrumental in arranging for the invitation from the area realtors. Thompson emphasized his appreciation at being able to present facts regarding the Manchester Schools and to review for the realtors the financial and curriculum aspects of the school district.

Black Sheep Theater Presents "The Gin Game"

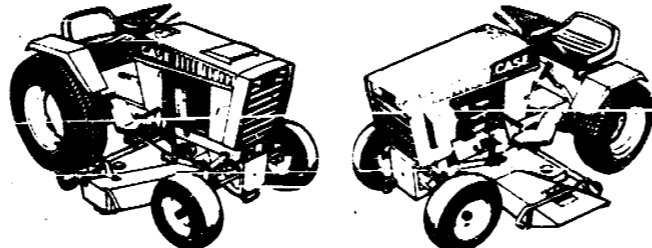

The Black Sheep Theater of Manchester, Michigan will present The Gin Game by D.L. Coburn May 5-7, 12-14, 19-21, and 26-28. Performances are at 8:15 p.m. nightly.

The Gin Game, recently revived Off-Broadway as well as on TV, revolves around two oddy coupled oldsters who neither expect nor enjoy the prospect of spending their last days in the care of others. Yet that is where they are, with only each other to fight the boredom. And, of course their regular bouts of gin serve them well in that capacity. They laugh and they cry and finally they leave you with a most unique look at their peculiar yet universal problem.

The play features John Stevens as Weller Martin and Anita Bassett as Fonia Dorsey. John is familiar to local audiences from his many appearances with Ann Arbor Civic Theater where he recently starred as the Stage Manager in Our Town. Anita Bassett was most recently seen in the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre's production of Major Barbara.

Night Skies During May

On May evenings, sky watchers may gaze at our mysterious planetary neighbor Venus, about which scientists are learning more and more, says U of M astronomy Prof. Richard G. Teske.

"When darkness falls at midnight, Venus will officiate in the west-northwest as the brilliant evening star. Because of its brilliance, the planet is the first object to become visible and can often be seen with the naked eye even before the sun has set," Teske notes.

"Venus owes its great brilliance to the high reflectivity of a layer of clouds that perpetually hides its surface from our direct view. Below these clouds is a world nearly the size of Earth whose extraordinary and hostile climate has gradually been revealed over the past two decades."

He points out that seven Russian spacecraft have touched down on Venus. Five U.S. spacecraft have penetrated and sampled the atmosphere, and a U.S. orbiter has mapped nearly the whole planet with radar.

"At the surface of the lifeless planet, the temperature of its nearly pure carbon dioxide atmosphere is almost 900 degrees Fahrenheit. The air pressure there is 90 times sea level pressure on Earth, equivalent to that found a half-mile deep in our oceans," says Teske.

"The dense clouds which blanket the planet hover in a layer at 140,000 feet altitude. They are made of misty drops of nearly pure sulfuric acid.

"Below the clouds the carbon dioxide 'air' is surprisingly clear, but the yellowish light that penetrates to the scorching surface is as dim as on a very cloudy day on Earth. There, the winds are gentle and seldom blow faster than a very light breeze."

According to scientific investigations, Venus is much smoother and rounder than Earth. And there are no oceans. "Most of the planet's surface is gently rolling terrain, with hills no higher than Michigan's Porcupine Mountains," says Teske. "Only two raised areas the size of Australia are suggestive of continents such as are found on our own planet."

"Evidence of volcanoes is seen in the radar maps, and some scientists, piecing together information of many kinds, have concluded that volcanic eruptions may constantly be occurring at certain places on Venus at the present time.

"All but two of the important features seen in radar maps of Venus have been given feminine names, an appropriate practice for designating places on the face of a planet, which was itself named for the Goddess of Beauty," notes Teske.

The U-M astronomer points out that sky watchers may see an unusual and beautiful spectacle on May 15 when the three-day-old crescent moon appears by Venus' side.

"Venus is circling nearer to us this month and will continue to grow brighter week by week until mid-July," he adds.

25-year milestone is tribute to commercial nuclear energy

The recent 25th birthday of America's commercial nuclear power program had special significance for one Michigianian. The milestone was a quiet tribute to Gil Keeley and his colleagues who have helped write nuclear history.

It began on Dec. 18, 1957, at Shippingport, Pa., only half an hour from downtown Pittsburgh. Quietly, in the early morning darkness, a new era dawned. For the first time, a power plant generated commercial electricity from nuclear power. Keeley was there, part of the team responsible for checking out the plant's systems, training operators and putting the plant into operation.

It wasn't the last time Keeley had a hand in nuclear history. Five years later he had moved to Consumers Power Company to help Big Rock Point, near Charlevoix, become Michigan's first (and the nation's fifth) commercial nuclear power plant. He has been with Consumers Power ever since, helping build a nuclear power program that in 1982 produced almost 19 percent of the company's electricity.

The success of nuclear power doesn't surprise him. Even in its infancy, Keeley and his colleagues saw nuclear power as the key that would end man's dependence on non-renewable fuels like oil and coal. "There was never any doubt that commercial nuclear plants would work," he says.

Experience has justified the optimism, says Keeley, pointing out that the technology has produced nuclear plants which are generating electricity safely, reliably and economically.

In fact, Keeley says the most frustrating problems have been bureaucratic, not technical.

Gil Keeley

"Although the regulatory process has produced some benefits, it has become overly conservative," says Keeley. "It is slowing the construction of specific nuclear plants, and development of the industry in general. Take hearings, for example. If I averaged up all my time in the last seven years, I've probably spent over 50 percent of it in hearings."

But, Keeley is optimistic that will change. "Coal, oil and gas can't provide all of our future energy. Eventually, necessity will make the regulatory process efficient and reasonable—the same way engineers have made nuclear power itself reliable and efficient."

"It's the same old story," says Keeley. "It's a matter of economics and need. I just hope the changes happen in time."

weed pressure, and crop yields comparable to that of moldboard plowing.
The survey was conducted by Extension Agricultural Agent Ron Struss as an activity of the Saline Valley Project, Rural Clean Water Program, USDA. "We're promoting the use of chisel plowing in the Saline Valley Project area because it controls soil erosion much better than moldboard plowing, resulting in less silt, fertilizer and pesticide pollution of our streams", Struss explained. "This survey will help us better understand how chisel plowing fits into farming systems of this area."
Unlike the widely used moldboard plow, which completely turns the soil, chisel plows only partially turn soil, leaving a portion of residue from the previous grown crop unburied. Referred to by farmers as "surface trash", this covering of old stalks or stubble protects topsoil from the erosive action of wind and rain. Approximately 22% of cropland in southeast Michigan is currently chisel plowed.
Farmers responding to the survey listed time savings, soil erosion control and the ability to plow deeper as the three major reasons for chisel plowing on their farms.
Major reasons given for not chisel plowing were lack of available tractor horsepower to adequately pull a chisel plow, the initial cost of a chisel plow purchase, and weed control concerns. Dr. Bus Robertson, Michigan State University, questions if lack of horsepower is a valid reason for not chisel plowing. "For a given tractor size, there are tillage tools made to match. If a tractor can pull a moldboard plow, there is no reason why it cannot pull a properly fitted chisel plow", he explained.

The ability to obtain acceptable weed control under chisel plowed systems is a concern, with 58% of responding farmers indicating weed control problems with chisel plowing. This matches the experience of Dr. Michael Barrett, Michigan State University weed specialist. "Crop residues left on the soil surface by chisel plowing interfere with herbicide spray patterns, reducing spray effectiveness", he reports, "farmers using low to medium herbicide rates may need to increase rates 20% to obtain good weed control, especially of annual grasses." Half of the farmers responding to the survey said they increased herbicide rates on chisel plowed fields.
"People often wonder why a clean water project such as the Saline Valley Project is promoting practices that may result in increased herbicide use", notes Struss. Although chisel plowing may require higher herbicide rates, conservationists believe the improved soil erosion control it provides will result in less herbicides getting off of cropland and into streams. "Silt and fertilizer are the major agricultural pollutants of the streams we are working with, and chisel plowing gives good control of these materials", Struss explained.

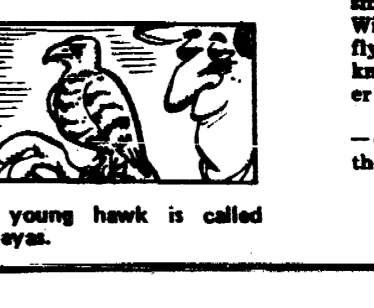

Fishermen will welcome small stainless steel bladed Wias scissors for intricate fly-tying, and their fillet knives complete with leather sheath.

WAITING LISTS FOR SUBSTANCE ABUSE SERVICES CLIMB

Michigan Department of Public Health

The stresses, both real and psychological, that burden the person who is unemployed can, and many times do, break the spirit of the individual. As the pressures of meeting the obligations of family and self mount, relief is sometimes sought through alcohol or other drugs. This is an age old story. But as realization dawns that this course of action is not an answer to the problems, help is sought from some of the publicly funded substance abuse programs in the state. And there lies a developing problem.

In making its data surveys, the Office of Substance Abuse Services in our Department is finding that the numbers of unemployed who are turning to the various agencies for help are selling the ranks of potential clients. OSAS records indicate that whereas unemployed persons accounted for 24 percent of substance abuse program clients three years ago, that group now makes up more than 40 percent of those currently getting treatment.

This situation is aggravated by other economy-related impacts, like funding cuts, staff cutbacks, and even some program deletions. The result is the creation of waiting lists at many agencies. The waits for services, both counseling and residential care, are ranging from as little to two weeks to as long as three months. And there is no guarantee that this situation will not worsen.

Because of this condition, the single most important message I want to convey here to those who are unemployed and in need of help with a drug problem is that things are not as gloomy as they may seem.

Let me urge that you first make contact with the public funded program near you. If there is a waiting list, don't turn your back in despair but get on the list. Then, while you are waiting, search for other sources of help. There is very likely some available self-help group, like Alcoholics Anonymous, that can help you deal with your alcohol or other drug problem in the meantime. The assistance you receive in this manner actually can compliment the services that eventually will become available to you from a professional treatment program.

The thing to do is to seek in all earnestness and diligence the help you need. Contact the public supported agency first. If there's a waiting list, get on it, and then get involved with AA or some other similar program.

Twentieth Century Club

Twenty eight members and their guests met at the Sheraton Inn in Ann Arbor, for their spring outing Saturday, April 30. The committee, Virginia Fielder and Maggie Tappie, made reservations for a delicious breakfast.

President Carolyn Sauter conducted a short business meeting. It was agreed to give $50 to the scholarship fund and $20 to the Girls Softball Team.

Virginia Fielder introduced Katharine Sayers and Judy Mendel from "Target Image" who gave a very interesting talk on women getting the most out of life by projecting themselves through choice of color determining the right season for each one to live in. To think positively and live life to its fullest.

After each Bloodmobile the Chairman-of-the Day receives a letter of appreciation from the American Red Cross. Ica Schaffer wanted to be sure that all who assisted with the recent clinic were aware of this commendation - thus the following letter:

Mrs. Ica Schaffer
323 Schaffer Ct.
Manchester, MI

Dear Ica,

Thank you so much for coordinating Manchester's March blood clinic. I understand that everything ran very smoothly. As usual, I might add.

In view of the layoffs at Double A, I believe we did very well. We saw 201 individuals, had 11 deferrals and collected 190 units of blood.

Please express our appreciation to the many, many concerned citizens of Manchester who work diligently each time we hold a blood drive. They are the ones who assure our great success on our visits.

Sincerely,
Cornelia G. Fry
Blood Programs Representative

October 18, 1971 turned out to be a very special day for my family, for it was on this day that a special person came into our lives. He was 45 years old at the time, not young and certainly not in his prime. Supposedly slow to learn, couldn't read or write, quiet and shy, really a sorrowful sort of guy. He cried that first day he came to us, afraid I'm sure of the unknown. My dad assured him never to fear, because our family and friends would always be near.

As time passed he fit perfectly into our family. At the time there was my father, mother, and him at home; with my brother, sister, myself and our families out on our own. We visited them often with our children. They grew to love him as he did them. It was only a couple of years after he arrived that God called my father. We thanked God he was there because especially for the children he helped replace the void left by my father's death.

Some may have thought that he never accomplished much in life because he had no money, personal possessions, or acknowledged achievements. You see he didn't need money. Money couldn't buy what he had. He had friends and family who loved him very much. This you can't buy. Possessions surely he had few. He enjoyed taking short walks and looking for treasures. Sometimes he found them, more often he would not. But what he found he would always give to one of his 11 adopted grandchildren for birthdays, Christmas or whatever. So you see, possessions were not important to him. His proudest possession was their love and attention.

Certainly we will not read about his accomplishments in novels or journals, but let me tell you a few of them. From his grandchildren, all 11 of them he learned to write each of their names, he could count, perform simple math and most importantly return the love they gave and sought in return. He helped a mother care for elderly people she kept in her home. He would help her prepare meals and clean up afterwards. Not as a hired hand, but as a participating member of our family. He was a special comfort to the other old people simply by spending hours visiting with them so that they wouldn't be lonely. He planted a beautiful garden the past few years and cared for it entirely by himself. Probably though his most important accomplishment was that he brightened the lives of my father, mother, and him and treated him with respect.

George Jedele born July 10, 1925 and passed away April 28, 1983 at the age of 57, may not be remembered for his wealth, possessions and accomplishments by many, but my family and friends will always know him as one of the richest most accomplished persons we've known, who's possession of love we will treasure forever.
God bless you George

FOURTH GRADERS INTERVIEW SENIOR CITIZENS

Several of Klager Elementary's classes have joined the Senior Citizens for lunch in the last two months. When Mrs. Blossom's fourth grade visited, they each interviewed an older person. You may enjoy getting re-acquainted with these folks from a fourth grade perspective.

One day at school the teacher was talking to us about a field trip. We were going to a Senior Citizens dinner. When the bus pulled up everybody jumped out and walked in. After lunch we went to work.

I interviewed Wallace Widmayer and this is the information he gave me... My name is Wallace Widmayer. I live on Ann Arbor Hill. I am married. I don't have any hobbies. I watch TV a lot. I don't have any pets. My favorite food is chop suey. My most exciting thing was when I broke my arm. And that was all.

When we got back we talked about the interviews. Then I said, "I wonder if I'll get interviewed when I get old?"

Andy Pagei

We interviewed Erwin Paul. He lives on Manchester Road. There's only one in his family. His hobbies are refinishing furniture, and in his spare time he also takes care of his lawn and garden. He has one dog and his name is Rover. His favorite food is everything. The most exciting thing that he did was in building his cottage. Erwin likes being a Senior Citizen because he doesn't have to work. He likes the food plus he gets a check every month.

Casey Salkauskas and Stephen Alber

I interviewed Mrs. Braun. She lives at 800 E. Main. She has a dog. It is a poodle. Her name is Mitzel. She likes to play cards. Well, she loves to play cards.

She is a ver-y nice person. Her school was nice and enjoyable. Tonya Snyder

I talked to Miss Eibei Brown who lives right here in Manchester. She lives all alone in her house. She has no husband, no kids and no grandchildren. She doesn't have any pets either.

Her hobbies are gardening and taking trips. She has taken trips to England, Europe, the U.P. and Georgia. Miss Brown likes a sandwich made with peanut butter and carrots along with ice cream.

Miss Brown's school was a one room school house with 8 grades and about 25-26 kids. They had one teacher. They sang songs every morning. She said they use to play a game called "Anti-Over" where one part of the class stood on one side of the school and the other on the other side. Then they'd throw the ball over and who ever caught it had to chase the rest of them.

Miss Brown likes being a Senior Citizen because she doesn't have to get up and go to school and she can do what she wants to do.

Michelle LaRoe

I interviewed George Girbach. He likes Scalloped Potatoes and Ham. He lives down by the Town Hall. When he went to school it was one room and had 8 grades. The school was wooden and small. He has no pets. He doesn't like being a Senior Citizen very much. His hobby is to ride around the world in a car. He lives alone. He is nice.

Keith Kothe

We interviewed Ray Gonyer. He lives at 519 Ann Arbor St. He has 2 people in his family. His hobbies are woodworking, coin collecting and working in his yard and garden. His favorite food is pie. He likes being a Senior Citizen because he has fun being with the others.

Jeff Gillow and Steven Harvey

The lady I interviewed was Opal Moore. She lives on Lamb Road. He hobby is babysitting. She has one cat and four hens. Her favorite food is bread and milk. The most exciting thing that ever happened to her was when a cow chased her. She said that her school was good and she said that being a Senior Citizen was fun!

Mike Hall

I interviewed Mrs. Mary Gonyer. She lives at 519 Ann Arbor St. There are 5 children in her family. She also has 17 grandchildren. Her hobbies are sewing and ceramics. When she has spare time she reads. She doesn't have any pets. Her favorite food is chicken. The most exciting thing was when her grandchildren were born. Her school was a private school. She likes being a Senior Citizen because she likes taking trips.

Jennifer Kunzelman

I talked to Mrs. Hazel Walker. She lives in Manchester on Vernon Street. She has three kids. She lives alone and she doesn't have any pets. Her hobbies are crocheting, knitting and quilting. Really quilting isn't her hobby, she's just making one. In her spare time she reads and works on puzzles.

Her favorite food is macaroni and cheese. She told me a story about her daughter that whenever she sang "Yankee Doodle" and got to the part "stuck a feather in his cap and called it macaroni" her daughter would say "and cheese".

One time she flew to Boston and the airport was fogged-in. They had to just fly around. That was her most exciting time. Her school was three stories high and had all grades in it. The last two years she went in the country.

What she likes about being a Senior Citizen is she doesn't have to get up early to teach school and she can do what she wants.

Jodi Parr

I interviewed Lillian Uphaus. She lives at 705 Vernon St. She has 3 people in her family. Her hobby is working at the Red Cross. In her spare time she and her husband like to travel. She has no pets but she likes dogs and cats. Her most exciting time was when her son was born. In her school all eight grades were in one room. She likes being a Senior Citizen because she has time to go places. Her favorite color is red.

Lillian Weinhardt

I interviewed Mr. Ralph Haessler. He lives on Bethel Church Rd. There are five in his family. His favorite food is chicken. He went to a school that was little and had eight grades in it. What he likes best about being a Senior Citizen is having time of his own.

Heather Struble

We interviewed Mr. Otto Timmerman of Pleasant Lake. His favorite hobby is wood-working. In his spare time he grows a garden. He likes steak. In his school he had to behave! He likes being a Senior Citizen as he gets to go on trips.

Brian Leach and Larry Gorlitz

Big Tree Contest Announced

WANTED - BIG AND ALIVE!
Be on the look out for a large stationary object with a brown trunk and limbs, and thousands of small green appendages, which rustle in the wind. The object is reported to be over 20 feet 6 inches in circumference at 4 1/2 feet above the ground, and will be found almost anywhere in Washtenaw County; in fence rows, "back 40" woodlots, in backyards or along roadsides.

The object is beautiful, a wonder of nature, and a reward is being offered to the finder and owner of this object. The object of the search of course, is a tree! Not just any tree, but the biggest tree in Washtenaw County. This champion tree is still at large and all Washtenaw County residents are urged to search for this tree so it can be recognized.

The Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District is sponsoring its sixth annual Big Tree Contest, in conjunction with the Tri-County Logging Company of Clinton, Michigan. The object of the contest is to find the biggest tree in Washtenaw County, and promote the benefits of forestry and soil conservation.

To enter the contest a tree must be alive and be in Washtenaw County. Anyone can enter a tree (even if not the owner) but the winning owner will receive a plaque to mark the big tree, a tree identification handbook, and a $25.00 cash prize presented by Tri-County Logging. The person who enters the winning tree will receive a certificate for 100 tree seedlings from the Soil Conservation District.

The present champion tree which measures 20 feet 6 inches in circumference at 4 1/2 feet above the ground, has reigned since 1960, and competition has been slim since then. So, why not get out and enjoy the outdoors and have some fun searching for that big tree.

To obtain an entry form for the Big Tree Contest, which closes November 15, 1983, contact the Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District, 6101 Jackson Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48103; telephone: (313) 761-6721.

Bike-To-Work Day

It's not hard arriving at work each morning groggy after a boring ride in. After all, most people drive the same route, the same way, at the same time each morning. However, Wednesday, May 11 will provide many people with an opportunity to change that ride from boring to exhilarating.

In recognition of bicycling as a convenient, economical, energy-efficient and enjoyable means of transportation, Governor James Blanchard has declared May 11, 1983 as Bike-To-Work Day in Michigan. On that day, there will be up to 20 organized rides to and from destinations throughout Southeast Michigan.

Commuter clinics will be held throughout the greater Detroit area prior to Bike-To-Work Day. Therefore, those people who can ride a bike - but, haven't a clue as to what they need to know to bike to work - can get all the information they will need. The clinics will provide instruction on how to dress, how to be visible, what tools to carry, how to lock your bike securely, how to carry cargo, and even how to buy the proper commuting bike.

For those that feel that the wind in their hair just isn't enough incentive to bike to work, more than 30 prizes are being offered. The prizes include bicycles, helmets, touring equipment, and locks.

SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, is coordinating Bike-To-Work Day activities. For information on how to participate in the event, citizens may contact SEMCOG's BikeTrans program at 961-4266.

(By the way, publicly committing to participate in the event, and secretly praying that it pours May 11 won't work. The Bike-To-Work Day Committee has already thought of that and designated May 13 as the alternate day in case of rain.)

SEMCOG, through its BikeTrans program, works with local units of government, bicycling groups, and businesses to increase bicycle use in Southeast Michigan. SEMCOG is a voluntary association of counties, cities, villages, townships and schools in the seven-county Southeast Michigan region. The Council's principal functions are short and long range planning for housing, transportation, land use, public safety, recreation and open space, economic development, and the environment.

GET S-E-T TO INVEST

How to keep your investment stable—even when the economy isn't.

Let's be honest. Who can really be sure what's going to happen to the economy? Nobody. It's up, then it's down, then it's up... But you can be sure how much interest you'll earn a week, a month, three months—up to six months from today. How? Put at least $2,500 in a Comeria Stable Earning Term account—the newest member of our high interest earning team.

Get ready, get SET, grow!

Get SET to see high money market interest accumulate. You get a choice of three SET accounts: 7-to-31 days, 91 days and 182 days. Your investment earns high money market interest, but it's available for reinvestment much sooner. In other words, you get long term account advantages—without the long term.

Intermediate + Long + Short = Just Right.

Comeria's SET account is just one of our many investment plans. Start with a SET. Add a long term plan. Then add a short term plan. A little smart addition will equal an investment program that's just right for you.

Come to Comeria Bank today. We know how to keep your investment stable—when the economy isn't.

At this point the fellow telling the story turned to his friend. "You know what else the letter said?" he asked.
