Melissa Bunney, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bunney, has been accepted into the honors program at the University of Michigan next year where she hopes to work toward a degree in law. During high school, Melissa served as President of her class two years, as a member of the National Honor Society chapter and the German Club, served on Student Council two years including the current year during which she was Council President. She was the recipient of the DAR Good Citizenship Award this year, has served on the school district's management. Manchester High's Commencement will be Sunday, June 5, at 3 p.m. at the High School Athletic Field. If case of rain, the ceremony will be held in the High School Gymnasium. Baccalaureate services, with the address delivered by Fr. Raymond Schlinkert of St. Mary's Catholic Church, will be held in the High School Study Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Thursday, June 2.

In the last three months before the 1983 Fair, members of the Fair Board are busy scheduling activities and entertainment to keep all fairgoers busy.

Thursday will be Senior Citizens' Activity Day, with Euchre contests and other activities planned especially for seniors. Friday is the traditional Kids' Day. This year kids should be on the lookout for some of their favorite characters who will be our surprise guests. Saturday is Ladies' Activity Day, and promises to be full of activities especially suited to women, including a demonstration by the Whirlpool representative.

Board business from the May meeting included a decision to increase to five the departments that must be entered by contestants for the Homemaker Award. Elmen Kopka, Mike Rossettie and Jim Thelen reported on the Zone II meeting in Fowlerville that they had attended.

Raffle tickets are still available at local merchants, from Fair Board members and from the Men's Club. The drawing will be held the last day of the 1983 Fair. Fair dates are August 9-13.

HIT or MISS by farley

School teachers, take heart. Things are not so bad as they used to be back in the "good old days." A friend of mine some time ago sent me what was purported to be a copy of a contract between the teacher and the school board in 1923 when school boards ruled with iron hands and pity the schoolmarm who committed the slightest infraction.

How many "girls" would today consider accepting the conditions of such a contract? One must wonder if there were any teachers at all who would qualify for retirement after a certain number of years.

No wonder most teachers wound up as "old maids." We have seen no contract between the board and the men. Maybe terms were not so demanding for the men.

Anyway at $75.00 a month for eight months this is what the woman teacher was forced to agree to:

*Not to keep company with men, and not get married. And not to loiter in downtown ice cream stores.

*Be home between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. unless involved in a school function. Not to leave town at any

Poppy Day - 1983

First grader, Jodi Armentrout, 7 year old daughter of Tim and Joyce Armentrout, has been selected as this year's Miss Poppy.

On May 20th and 21st, the red crepe paper poppy will be offered to the public by the American Legion Auxiliary. This reminder of the sacrifice of countless thousands in four wars is an annual event undertaken by the members of Unit #117 in Manchester.

Volunteers from the Unit will once again take part in this nation-wide program in memory of the citizen soldiers who gave their lives in the cause of freedom.

Funds collected on Poppy Day are used to assist the needy veteran and his family. It is a self-help program, for the Auxiliary's familiar red paper poppy is hand-made in Poppy Shops run by Auxiliary volunteers. In these shops, disabled and hospitalized veterans make the flowers by hand, petal by petal. It is part of a physical and psychological therapy program by veterans for veterans. These poppies are purchased from the shop by the Auxiliary and offered to the public, not at a price, but for a contribution...a few cents to say America remembers.

This memorial flower was adopted by the American Legion Auxiliary in 1920 and since that time, programs have been conducted throughout the United States each year.

Auxiliary members from Manchester will ask the public to pause for a moment, pin on a poppy, and wear it with pride.

Excitement was high at Manchester Cooperative Preschool last week, when the children all brought their own favorite vehicle to school with them. What was once just a parking lot was magically transformed into a super highway, a racing speedway, a filling station, a bike decorating shop, and a stunt driving obstacle course including tricky curves, R.R. tracks, a bridge, and a Duke-style ramp. Pictured are the Tuesday-Thursday morning class. Other exciting events coming up to close out a lovely year of nursery school are a trip to the fire station and a family fun day at Carr Park.

In the largest Commencement in nine years, Adrian College honored 192 December and May graduates along with 25 candidates for August graduation. Among the honored students, from Manchester, Carl Townsend, son of Edward and Peggy Townsend received a B.A. in Earth Science. Rex B. Martin, recently retired judge on the Lenawee County Circuit Court bench, was the speaker at the May 1st Commencement program.

MANCHESTER... PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE

A Reprint of the Manchester Enterprise, dated June 17, 1889

At the present time the great car of civilization moves on with such rapid progress that the events of the past are swallowed up, and lost sight of by our eagerness to grasp new schemes and new theories. We, as a nation, have become so imbued with the idea of our own greatness, and stimulated to almost intoxication by the developments of each successive year, that we do not stop for a moment to think of the past, or of the causes and effects that have given us the impetus which whirled us along with increased strides to the national greatness of which we are so justly proud. Every day we can read of some new scheme put forth by the energy and native genius, which is so characteristic and prolific in the mind of the American people. New projects are constantly on hand for the development of State, corporate or individual good, each and every one having a greater or less claim on public opinion for its support.

But let us stop here for a moment and look over the short space of a few years, and see what time and energy has done for us. Forty years ago, this beautiful country over which we can now look with pride, and see on every side wealth and prosperity developed by the stride of civilization, was nought but one vast wilderness. Here in our beautiful and flourishing village are many who can justly claim title to their possessions through the energy that so nobly characterizes the pioneer.

The now gray-haired veteran of the early settlement of this country is justly entitled to more credit for the development of wealth and civilization than the statesman and tradesman who have followed in his wake and improved upon the foundation which toil and deprivation have laid out for him. Who does not feel honored when he can clasp the hand of the honest woodsman, (who would not spare that tree,) and listen to the tales which stir the heart, and awaken in him a pride of manhood worthy of emulation? Today we had the honor of such an interview with one of our most worthy citizens. On the 3rd day of June, 1834, thirty-five years ago, he landed on this spot, having traveled the distance from the State of New York, some hundreds of miles, entering the wilds of the west with the primitive, but then popular mode of conveyance - horses and wagon. Amongst other inducements which then presented itself, besides the fertility of the soil, to warrant him in selecting this place as a point of location, was the beautiful River Raisin and the flouring mill which then, as now, stands as a landmark upon the eastern bank, just below where the bridge now spans its rushing waters. This mill, together with the building now owned by our enterprising citizen, Mr. Geo. L. Unterkircher, and known as the Union Hall, and one now owned and occupied by Mr. Chas. Gwinner, was all that marked the inroad of civilization. Among those who first came to locate and establish our now flourishing town, where Messrs. Barnabas, Arthur and Emanuel Case and William and Elijah Carr, most of whom are still residing here, and whose influence and business qualifications are still felt, and whose energies and means are being dispensed to the still farther development of all enterprises which go to improve and enhance the wealth of our town and country. These men, as also many others whose names are not mentioned, have now the pleasure of seeing and realizing the reward of their industry.

Here, upon the spot where but a few years ago the sturdy forest afforded shade and protection to the wild beasts, and over which the uncivilized Indian could march unmolested, stands now one of the most beautiful and flourishing inland towns of which our state can boast. Here, from the window of one of our large brick blocks we can distinctly hear the roar of the water as it rushes over the falls, sweeping onward and onward through field and forest, multiplying strength by its thousand tributaries, until at last it reaches the great Lake Erie. The same river affords us vast, and we say unlimited resources for all kinds of manufacturing. Here, and at intervals of a few hundred yards below, dams are thrown across, three in all, and mills and manufacturing establishments are constantly running. The large flouring mill which stands like a "Giant Spectator" in our midst is, thro' the energy of our enterprising citizen, Mr. J.S. Reynolds, Esq., running night and day, turning out on an average one hundred and fifty barrels of flour per day. And the Woolen factory, on the opposite side of the river, is no less entitled to morority. The fabrics manufactured at this institution by the Messrs. Porter & Jaynes speak for themselves in the market where they are known.

Other enterprises which this river affords are worthy of mention, but as we simply propose touching upon some few by way of showing the effect and result of energy, and feeling our inability to do justice to them all, we will drop them and touch briefly upon other things which will prove to the reader beyond the cavil of a doubt, that Manchester is "destined to symbolize the great manufacturing and commercial city in England from which she drives her name."

The same energy that puts forth its strong arm in battle for wealth has not forgotten those primitive days when education was procured - in the main - beneath the roof of the rustic log school house; no, and the remembrances of those days, happy though they were, have stimulated them to higher aspirations and greater rewards. Here, from our window we can behold the crowning effort which marks the wisdom and enterprise of our people. It is our magnificent Union School House, the tower of which rears its glittering head high in the air in proud majestic form. This institution was erected A.D. 1867, at an expense of more than twenty thousand dollars; its construction is of the most modern style, and complete in every department. The grounds are tastefully laid out, and each successive year new improvements are being made thereon. The shade trees, together with the flowers that help to decorate the front yard have their significance. In them God's beauty is symbolized. Under the direction of Prof. Olney, a most elegant gentleman, and a perfect scholar, our school is in a most flourishing condition. The various educational branches from the primary to the ethica and classics are taught to the entire satisfaction of all interested. The corps of teachers and assistants is large, and in each department the most perfect system and order reigns. Each teacher has, through tact and qualification, so won the hearts of the pupils in their respective department that a spirit of rivalry is set up, and it would be difficult to decide which of them all is most entitled to honors.

Having briefly mentioned the enterprise so well and thoroughly manifest in the development of education, we propose to show that in another important enterprise we are equally entitled to notoriety. Our churches, six in number, although not all of the most modern architecture, are sufficiently commodious to meet the present demands; each denomination having their pulpit filled with men of ability, men whose great biblical lore places them high in the rank with the noble soldiers of Christ. Not only have we sufficient Church facilities, but we have a community who are notorious for their adhesion to the teachings of the gospel, a fact which ever speaks well for the morals of the town.

The few different enterprises of which we have made brief mention are sufficient to warrant the reader in the conclusion, that we have at least a good and substantial foundation laid, upon which to build a large and important town. A walk through our main streets, and a peep into some of our large iron front business houses would be proof

Wendy Watson Awarded Gift Certificate In Art

In conjunction with the exhibition of artwork of Manchester students which is currently on display in Comerica Bank, an award has been given for the second year in a row, to the most outstanding portfolio presentation.

Wendy Watson, of 14811 Buss Road, has been awarded a $25 gift certificate for art supplies by the Manchester Art Guild. Her portfolio was chosen because it showed examples of expertise in a variety of media as well as an obvious love of art by the amount of work she displayed. An affinity for animals was shown in particular with her many sensitive and life-like renderings of horses.

Born in Ann Arbor, Wendy has lived in Manchester most of her life. In addition to art classes with teacher Mrs. Trout, she has been in Saline's Graphic Arts Program through the Manchester Schools for the past two years. Through that program, she has gained experience in silk screening and printing books, football programs, and stationary.

She will continue her education at Sienna Heights College in Adrian, because of its excellent arts program. Her major will be in commercial design. In addition to its reputation in the arts, Wendy says she likes the campus because it's "small and nice an everybody's friendly". Interestingly, she did not consider attending college until entering a painting in a competition at Sienna Heights this year.

The exhibition in which Ms. Watson's work is on display runs through May 28 and is located adjacent to the lobby in Comerica Bank. Hours for the show coincide with banking hours as follows: Monday through Thursday from 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. Friday from 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., and Saturday from 9:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon.

Klager Elementary Career Day

Mrs. Carla Iris - Mother/Writer

Mr. Ron Hayden - Washtenaw Intermediate School District Computer Services

Mr. Jim Wiethoff - Hoover Universal

The first and second graders in the Team Room brought many of their parents to share their careers last week. There were many "hands on" activities. They learned how important math is to a bookkeeper. They listened to one another's heart beats, checked each other cars, and found that a veterinarian does similar things with animals. They witnessed the operation inside a police car, as well as a fire truck. They even petted a real live cow and calf. The participants were: Mr. Ron Hayden - Computers; Mr. Jim Wiethoff - Hoover; Dr. Sallie

Anderson - Veterinarian; Mr. Richard Weir - Bookkeeper; Dr. Monte Okey - M.D.; Mr. Chester Reese - Washtenaw County Sheriff; Mr. Ron Mann - Fire Department; Mrs. Carla Iris -

Writer/Mother; Mr. and Mrs. John Bihlmeyer - Dairy farmers and Mr. Chris Bragg - Pottery. This was an exciting climax to our Career unit.

MANCHESTER... PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE

sufficient to satisfy any one that our business men are alive to the interest of the trade to which they respectfully belong. Almost every branch of business that is carried on in large cities is flourishing here.

Our Newspaper - the Manchester ENTERPRISE - with Mat. D. Blosser, Esq., in the Editorial and Publisher's chair, is all that its name suggests. It is an enterprise, and one too, which affords us much of the leverage power necessary to raise our energies to a standard equal to the advantages which we enjoy. Thro' the enterprise of one of our live business men, Mr. H. Goodyear, we will soon have completed one of the largest and finest Hotels in any town in the State; its location is fine, and but a short distance from the depot.

A stroll around the town would satisfy the most fastidious, that in the construction of private residences, our citizens have displayed a degree of taste and refinement difficult to rival. Let us, if you please, take you up Ann Arbor St., which runs for some distance parallel with and along the eastern bank of the river. The long row of splendid brick mansions which overlook the beautiful Raisin on the west is enough to excite the wildest admiration. "Cobble Hill," a little farther on and upon the opposite side of the street, has now a large and elegantly constructed mansion, owned and occupied by our enterprising citizen, Hon. J.D. Corvey, who has laid out a large tract of his beautiful grounds in lots, which are very attractive and elegant sights upon which to locate. In fact, throughout the whole town, (which covers an area of nearly one square mile,) you will find nearly all the more recently built houses constructed upon the most modern plan. The Rail Road which runs through our town affords us the facilities which are all important for getting our produce into the large markets of the east and south; and as we are in the midst of a large and splendid farming country, and our town is the hub or market for all the immense quantities of all kinds of produce which the rich plains afford, we feel that in justice to ourselves,

Chicken Broil Time Just Around The Corner

With July around the corner, Manchester will be celebrating its 30th year of charcoal broiling the finest chicken ever found. Some 12,000 satisfied customers are once again expected to make their way to our quiet village of 1900. Colonel Sanders slogan "finger-licking-good" certainly applies on our annual third Thursday in July when Manchester has the most "finger-licking-good" at one time. This years entertainment for those hungry visitors that flock our village will be the 65 member Metropolitan Symphonic Band. Manchester's special guest this year will be the Governor of the State of Michigan, Governor James Blanchard. He will perform the honors of dedicating our historical site, the John Schneider Blacksmith Shop. The shop is the last existing of its kind in Michigan which was used solely for this purpose. The most important entertainment is when all available men and boys in the area once again don their white aprons, hats, and gloves to broil the tasty chicken for all those who care to come.

A parade will be held Sunday, June 12, beginning at 1:30 p.m. in downtown Jackson and parading west on Michigan Avenue to the Westwood Mall. The parade theme this year is "Happiness Is." On Saturday, May 21 is the Rosequeen Scholarship Pageant. should, that if the Railroad is built through our town, every dollar that is laid out in this way by our farmers, merchants and mechanics will be but the seed from which a harvest of a hundred fold will in a few years be garnered, and then instead of our being compelled to submit to the monopoly that now exists with us, we will enjoy the advantages which competition always gives, not only in the great reduction in the price of freight, but it opens up to us competing markets for all kinds of produce in the rival towns of Detroit and Toledo. This route when completed, will shorten the distance between Detroit and Chicago some thirty miles, and in consideration of this fact, this route will naturally become the main and most popular thoroughfare between the great metropolis of the east and the London of the west. With the natural advantages which we possess, (some of which we have made brief mention,) will we not be recreant to ourselves and to our prosperity if we do not bestir ourselves, each and every man to the magnitude of the stakes which are being played for by our rival town, and which fall to the share of the one exhibiting the greatest degree of enterprise, energy and activity. Regarding this immediate section, it may be truly said, that it is only natural and is inevitable that Manchester should monopolize the trade. The wisdom that conceived and is pushing forward this great enterprise will not lose sight of the great advantages which our town affords for the construction of foundries and machine shops; and the establishment of these will only form a nucleus around which all other branches of mechanical arts will soon center, and then the air will be resonance with the busy whir of industry. The click of the sledge hammer will drown the music of the wild songster and make discord with Steinway's and Chickering's sweetest toned instrument.

If the facilities which are so abundant with and around us on every side, are brought into practical use, we will, in five years from this be able to boast of a city as large as either Ann Arbor, Jackson or Adrian. And now, in consideration of these facts, will we not shout Labor Omnia Vincit? (Labor conquers everything.) If so, at the expiration of that time we can again shout, Laborum Dulce Lenimen, (Behold the sweet solace of our labors.) G.M.H.

and interest to the farmer, we need extended facilities, and strong competing lines of Rail Roads. With the Americanized element which is so abundant in our State, the mere suggestion of any new public improvement is almost sufficient to warrant one in the assertion that it will be carried out. It is an old saying, "that what has been done once can be done again," allowing this to be true, and having as a basis for this theory, two of the most extensive Rail Roads in the United States, running the entire distance across our State from east to west; the one, the Central, starting at Detroit, thence to Chicago; the other, the Southern, starting at Toledo, finds its terminus also in the great metropolis of the west, Chicago. Now, since it has been proved that two great thoroughfares with their vast facilities in way of rolling stock, are insufficient to meet the increasing demands, a new project has sprung up, and bases upon the feasibility of the enterprise, a company has been formed, money subscribed and donated, and surveys made to construct another, an air-line road to start from Detroit, thence to Ypsilanti, Manchester, Hillsdale, having its terminus in Chicago; same to be known as the Detroit, Hillsdale & Indiana Railroad. The enterprise is being largely supported by all the townships through which the survey has been made. Our own township, on Monday, the 7th inst. voted a donation of fifty thousand dollars to this enterprise, feeling as we

Michigan Department of Public Health

It can be said that growth of a program is an indication of public acceptance, then the hospice program is finding significant support both in Michigan and the nation.

Unlike most health programs which deal with the quality of life, the emerging and fast-growing hospice program deals with the quality of death for the terminally ill.

The hospice program is designed to provide supportive care to patients whose life expectancy has been reduced to about six months, due to terminal illness. The care these patients receive usually is provided in their own homes. It is the role of the hospice to coordinate home care with the outpatient and inpatient care that may be needed. Other functions include treatment of the symptoms of the disease and the control of pain. Attention is focused on easing the patient's physical, psychological, and social problems.

Concerning the program's growth, sources estimate that the number of hospice programs is well over a thousand nationwide. In Michigan, there are some 62 programs at last count, 56 of which are in operation. Others are in various stages of development. What's more, there are indications that the program will become even more prolific.

Some hospice programs are run by hospitals, some by volunteers. All of the medical care units are under control of a physician who is supported by a team of other health professionals and volunteers.

A typical program offers a broad range of services. Included are nursing care, symptom control, personal care, counseling, companionship, errand running, housekeeping, meal preparation, and transportation, as needed.

Eventually, we will have two functions in connection with Michigan's hospice program. Under a law passed in 1980, a hospice is required to be licensed under the Public Health Code. However, licenses cannot be issued until rules have been adopted which establish licensing criteria. These rules have been under development since 1981. They have undergone several public hearings, but promulgation still is not complete. Additionally, hospice programs are asked to secure a Certificate of Need from us. This is a document attesting to the need for the program in the proposed area of operation. But under recently adopted legislation, the Certificate of Need requirement has been waived until 1985 to allow hospice programs an opportunity to become established in the state.

The hospice program, as an alternative form of medical care for the dying, apparently is a concept of care whose time has come.

Retired Senior Volunteers

Ten Retired Senior Volunteers who serve in the Manchester area will be honored at the Washtenaw County Retired Senior Volunteer Program's Tenth Anniversary Celebration on May 25. The celebration will be held in conjunction with the program's annual Recognition Luncheon at the Hoyt Conference Center on the Eastern Michigan University campus.

Since it began in 1973, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has been providing retirees over age 60 with opportunities for meaningful volunteer work in their communities. A county-wide program, RSVP supports older adults who wish to volunteer by providing placement services, travel reimbursement, accident and liability insurance, and recognition. In its ten-year history, RSVP has enrolled a total of 1900 Senior Volunteers, all over the age of 60. These volunteers have served more than 566,000 hours in their volunteer jobs, performing many vital roles in non-profit human service agencies.

The RSVP Volunteers from Manchester who will be honored at the May 25 celebration are: Elizabeth Baer, Helen Dyer, Ray Gonyer, Dorothy Hamilton, Margaret Thorp, Charlotte Timmerman, Otto Timmerman, Claire Reck, Lillian Uphaus, and Millard Uphaus.

These Senior Volunteers serve regularly with the Manchester Senior Council, the Manchester Middle School, and the Saline Evangelical Home.
