Students Participate In Fitness Program

Mrs. Sandee Sheets, Physical Education teacher, presents the Outstanding Achievement Awards to Nicole Bigelow and Michael Barnard.

The students of Klager Elementary School participated in the Nabisco Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Physical Fitness Program this spring. The primary purpose of the program is to help American youngsters discover their physical capabilities and to provide an incentive for them to strive for maximum development of individual physical potential. The program contains five test items which are: bent-knee situps, push ups, standing long jump, endurance run and a choice of one of the optional events: pull-ups, sprints, running high jump, and shuttle run. For each test item a specified standard is provided for boys and girls and for various age groups which the children strive to achieve. The tests which form the basis of the Nabisco-AAU Physical Fitness Program provide the means of determining the present physical capabilities of young people between the ages of 6 and 18. The standards listed are designed to motivate boys and girls to increase sports participation for the development of physical fitness.

There are three types of certificates attainable for students participating in the program. A Certificate of Participation is given to any boy or girl who participates in the AAU Physical Fitness Test so as to acknowledge participation whether or not he or she has been able to equal or surpass the test's standards. A Certificate of Attainment is received by boys and girls who achieve the AAU Physical Fitness Test standards for their age group by passing all four required events and one of the optional events. The AAU Physical Fitness Test is designed to be a challenge for the majority of the nation's boys and girls, it is anticipated that some youngsters will find the test easy to master and will desire a more difficult one. Therefore, a special standard has been set up for each event which is above the standard required for the Certificate of Attainment. Students who equal or surpass this standard in each event will receive the Outstanding Achievement Award. There were two students in Klager School who earned this Outstanding Achievement Award - Nicole Bigelow, a fourth grader, and Michael Barnard, who is in the first grade.

The following students earned a Certificate of Attainment Award for equalling or surpassing the AAU Physical Fitness Test standards:

HIT or MISS by farley

Many of the things that we buy nowadays come neatly packed but not assembled and it is up to the purchaser to put them together. The other day a friend of mine bought a new lawn mower and took it home where he set Junior to assembling it. After some time Junior came in with the instruction booklet clutched firmly in his hand and said "It says here that I should turn the screws clockwise."

"Right."
"Well?"
"Well what."
"Well, what does clockwise mean?"

"The direction that the hands on the clock travel."
"What hands?"
"The big hand on the minutes and the little hands on the hours."
"Huh?"

"And then" my friend says, "It hit me. Junior was too young to know about clocks with hands. He was born in an era that made him a digital time teller."

"I explained that once upon a time clocks were round—rather than rectangular, and they didn't light up to display the time. All the numbers showed at once, and without a single bit of illumination. And the hands went round and round pointing out the hours and the minutes."

"Gee," said Junior, "that was neat."

"No," said my friend, "It wasn't neat. Nobody really knew what time it was. It was never really 2:24 or 2:06 or 11:27 or 1:15, or if you didn't want to study the clock too long you could say threeish or oneish or half past or a quarter past. Those expressions you heard a lot."

My friend says he went to his dresser drawer and pulled out an aged gold watch that had been preserved because it was grandpa's—one he used when he was a railroad employee some 60 years ago. I handed it to Junior and said "Here's what timepieces used to look like."

Junior took it and looked at it and said "How do you open it, up to put the battery in?"

"It doesn't have batteries, it runs on other power."

"But what makes it go."
"You wind it."

"Wow" he said, "That seems neat." he replied with a sense of wonder in his voice, and I could see that a world without batteries would keep him busy for some time.

He didn't notice that I had picked up the screwdriver and had gone out to the lawn mower and was turning the indicated screw in an antique motion which was once called clockwise, but which is now referred to as to the right.

Why couldn't the writer of the instructions have thought to use the phrase "to the right" instead of "clockwise." The whole thing makes me feel quite "antique".

Food Buy-Lines

Rain and cold weather have kept many of the June food buy-lines. The weather has shorted many fruit and vegetable crops across the country, but in the West Michigan area many crops have largely been spared.

The worst state news is that the strawberry and blueberry crops will be delayed by as much as two weeks. Of course, this means that the fruit will be scarce because it means the fresh market for home-grown raspberries and strawberries is extended an additional two weeks.

Watermelon plantings were delayed and then washed out by rain storms across the South. Southern Florida's crop is still the best to come to market and will be back on track by the middle of June. Watermelon from northern Florida, Georgia and other areas will all peak after the aimed-for July 4 deadline. Look for seasonally low prices during mid-July.

A good supply of cantaloupe and honeydew melons will come to market this week from the Rio Grande Valley in Texas. Though the quality of these will be superior to that of those marketed earlier, prices will be lower because of the increased supply.

Fresh peaches very likely will be premium priced again this year. Georgia, the state with the largest fresh production, lost almost half its crop because of an April cold snap. The Carolinas also lost sizeable proportions of their peach crops. Overall, the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates the 1983 fresh market peach crop is 55 percent below that of 1981, the most recent normal crop year.

California is predicting the largest nectarine and peach crops ever (their peaches mostly go into cans). The plum and pear crops are also looking good. A good crop of Valencia oranges will come to market in June. The California sweet cherry crop is off 50 percent, but Washington has a good crop of sweet cherries.

The gaps in the supply of California fresh vegetables occurred in May as predicted. Better quality head lettuce, at lower prices, should be available again this week. Broccoli quality has already improved; cauliflower has a way to go.

Other vegetables in good supply.

supply now include new, long-white potatoes; carrots; dry onions; green beans; and increasingly, sweet corn.

The long-term meat outlook will be affected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's "payment-in-kind" (PIK) program. This program is viewed as the least costly way of helping restore a healthy agricultural sector. It will likely lead to higher meat prices by this fall.

Trade sources do not expect much change for the big three meat categories during the short term. Pork and beef should hold their own this month. There's a 2 percent increase in the broiler supply and lots of frozen turkeys. Specials could be of almost any cut, because overall there's a large quantity of meat available now.

Eggs are very likely a shopper's best protein value right now. Prices are 14 percent below those of a year ago. Also look for features on cheese, sour cream and other dairy products throughout June.

Another good value now is frozen orange juice concentrate.

PIG-EON - six letters guaranteed to start a commotion. But what is a homeowner to do? The success of any city-wide pigeon control program depends on long range control mechanisms. These mechanisms should include: elimination of food, water and harborage sites available; roost elimination; next removal; and reduction of the population through humane methods. Long range population control mechanisms should be preventive rather than destructive. The implementation of building ordinances and the use of chemical sterilants can satisfactorily fulfill the need for preventing excessive concentrations of birds. However, there are a number of "pigeon-proofing" steps suggested by the Humane Society of Huron Valley that can be taken by individuals as limited approaches.

The following suggestions have met with varying degrees of effectiveness:

Roost Elimination - Pigeon numbers can be reduced by blocking access to indoor roosts and breeding places. Measures to eliminate roosting sites appear costly; however, permanent methods of control usually prove the most cost effective. Openings to lofts, vents, eaves, and the like can be blocked with wood, metal, glass, or 3/4 inch rust-proofed wire mesh. Roosting on ledges can be discouraged through the use of wire netting covering or through the installation of smooth wood, masonry, or metal sheathing that angles in excess of 45 degrees. Clear viscane or similar plastic material can be permanently installed to keep birds away from ornate decorations and landing spaces on buildings.

Nest Removal - Populations of pigeons can be reduced by destroying their nest and eggs at two-week intervals during the spring and summer months. A hook fastened to the end of a long pole can be used to tear down nests under eaves and the like.

Repellents - If renewed frequently, repellents can be reasonably effective. Naphthalene in cheese cloth bags hung off roofs, oleo-resin or capsaicin (1% alcohol solution sprayed on roofs) and calcium chloride or lime sprinkled on roofs are the most commonly used odor repellents.

Wildlife Removal Service - Wildlife removal service, for a reasonable fee, will live trap pigeons as well as remove existing nests and eliminate roost areas. They also provide a generous discount for senior citizens. According to the Humane Society of Huron Valley, the most effective procedure for individuals or businesses is to call Wildlife Removal Service (260-6622) for professional help.

Washtenaw County Health News

In the near future diners in Washtenaw County food establishments may begin to notice signs, placards, labels or menu notes which state "sodium bisulfites are added" or "sulfiting agents are added to preserve natural appearance and freshness," according to Jim Handerson, head of the Food Service Program for the Washtenaw County Health Department. The health department recently notified restaurant owners and managers that they must inform their patrons if sulfiting agents are used on any of the foods they serve. Sulfiting agents are often used to retard browning and to keep foods looking fresh, according to Dr. Handerson. Although they cause serious health problems in some sensitive individuals when they are eaten on uncooked foods, the cooking process does reduce the health threat. Asthmatics in particular may experience life-threatening breathing problems, shock and even coma after consuming foods that have been treated with the sulfiting agents. Six sulfiting agents are approved by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration for food use: Sulfur dioxide, Sodium sulfite, Sodium and Potassium Bisulfite and Sodium and Potassium Metabisulfite. Since 1959, the FDA has listed these six as GRAS (generally recognized as safe).

A HOT TAX ISSUE

Two years ago, as a part of the economic reform package put through congress by the Reagan administration, the congress not only provided for the three-stage tax cut that will culminate with a 10% cut this July, but also provided that beginning in 1985, the income tax would be indexed.

What tax indexing means is that tax bracket creep has been outlawed. It means that you will not get an automatic increase in the federal income tax you pay simply because of inflation.

What has been happening for several years is that, as inflation has run rampant into double digit proportions, wage levels have tried to keep up and as your wages went up, that moved you into higher and higher tax brackets where the percentage taken by Uncle Sam is also higher.

Thus the politicians in Washington have been able to slice a bigger chunk out of your paycheck year after year—not by voting to increase tax rates—but by simply allowing inflation to move you into a higher tax bracket.

Some of the people in congress, who really didn't like indexing to start with, are beginning to talk about repealing tax indexing, and that issue may become one of the hottest tax topics in congress in 1983.

President Reagan has made it clear he will fight the repeal of indexing all the way, including a veto over any bill that proposes it.

If you think taxes ought to be raised without your representative in congress having to vote to do so, you will favor the repeal, and those of us who think we have a right to know who votes for a tax increase will oppose it.

Manchester Village Planning Commission

REGULAR MEETING

May 10, 1983

The Regular Meeting of the Manchester Village Planning Commission was called to order at 7:32 p.m. in the Council Room of the Village Hall by Chairman Paul Alber. Members present: Alber, Kwolek, Leeson, Smith, Lowery, Kallewaard and Walton. Absent: Grossman. A quorum was present.

It was agreed to add one item under "New Business" on the meetings agenda: appointment of committees.

Minutes of the Regular Meeting of April 12, 1983 were approved as read, on a unanimous vote.

Howard Parr was present to represent the Manchester Area Historical Society in their application for a sign permit to place an identification sign on the Historical Society headquarters, the former Schneider Blacksmith Shop at 324 East Main Street. He submitted a completed application (copy attached). He requested that the fee of $45.00 be waived for the Historical Society, as the fee for its conditional use permit had previously been waived by the Village Council. A motion was made by Smith, seconded by Lowery, that the Council be requested to waive the sign permit fee in this instance. The motion was passed unanimously on a voice vote.

After discussion concerning the site, construction and placement of the proposed identification sign, a motion was made by Smith, seconded by Kwolek, to approve the application with the stipulation that the finished sign be no larger than 18 square feet, as provided in Section 53.03 of the Village Zoning Ordinance. The motion was passed on a voice vote, with all members voting "aye".

There was further discussion concerning the Historical Society's plans to mount an official state historical marker on the south exterior wall of the blacksmith shop. A motion was made by Kwolek, seconded by Smith, that an ordinance amendment be prepared for consideration, providing that 1) official historical markers would be allowed on buildings within the Village, and would not be considered to be illegal "second signs" requiring a variance; 2) they would, however, be subject to Planning Commission approval on placement; and 3) there be no fee charged for application to place an official historical marker.

This proposal will be discussed further at the next Planning Commission meeting, and members will decide at that time whether or not to forward it to Council for their consideration. Leeson recommended that the Commission obtain copies of the new county road map, available without charge from the County Road Commission. Walton volunteered to pick them up.

Kallewaard made a motion to purchase two copies of the book Michigan Zoning and Planning, by Glen Crawford, Jr., including the new 1983 Supplement, for $30.00 each. The motion was seconded by Smith and passed unanimously on a voice vote.

Kwolek reported that the reference book on alternate energy sources had been received and reviewed.

The Chairman appointed the following committees:

Alternate Energy Sources Committee - Bill Kwolek, Chairman, Russ Smith and Mary Kallewaard.

Industrial Park Committee - Russ Smith, Chairman, Rollie Grossman, and Mary Kallewaard. R-1B Zoning Change Committee - Laurin Leeson, Chairman and Bob Lowery.

Public Relations Committee - Tom Walton, Chairman, and Bill Kwolek.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:41 p.m. on a motion by Kwolek, seconded by Lowery, passed unanimously on a voice vote.

Mary Kallewaard, Secretary

UNSUNG HEROES OF AMERICA

Little Known Facts About People Who Help Us

Our Physicians

According to the Bureau of the Census, there are about 438,000 physicians in the United States. That's about one doctor for every 500 Americans.

Many of these physicians live and work in the sunbelt states where they help treat and protect people from a number of ailments. One disease that many sunbelt physicians see is called solar keratosis. It's a skin condition caused by too much sunshine over a long period of time. In some cases, it can become malignant if untreated.

Symptoms of this skin condition include red, scaly patches usually on the back of the hands or on the neck or face. Anyone with such symptoms should see a doctor.

To treat this skin condi-

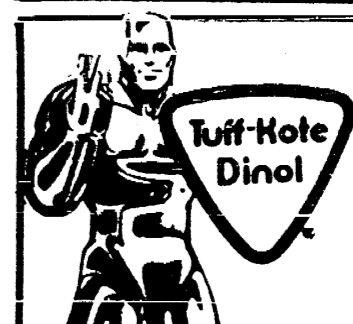

If you suspect you are developing any type of skin condition, it's a good idea to see your doctor. Doctors sometimes use a prescription cream or solution made by Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. that is often applied to the skin with good results for people with solar keratosis.

Only a doctor can diagnose and treat you properly. If you suspect that you may be developing this or any other skin condition, it's a good idea to see your doctor.

Thank you seems so little to say for what they did, but for lack of a better way to say it, we would like to say "thank you" to the members of the Manchester Fire Department Rescue Team who responded so quickly and ably to our call for help early last Wednesday morning, when Jean was suffering a heart attack. It is surely very reassuring and comforting to know that we have men so well trained and efficient as near as our telephone. We will always be indebted to Jim Kensler, Gale Koebe, Mike Scully, John Kemner, Gary Weidmayer, Shawn LaRock, and Doug Flint.

INSPECTIONS SET FOR MAMMOGRAPHIC MACHINES

Michigan Department of Public Health
The mammogram X-ray, which is considered to be an excellent technique for the early discovery of breast cancer, is undergoing a new round of attention. This is due to a program being conducted in 46 states called "Breast Exposure: Nationwide Trends." The BENT program, as it is called, is capable of ensuring that mammographic systems meet their maximum potential in quality at minimum exposure levels.

BENT was developed by the National Center for Devices and Radiological Health of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. There is support for the program from the National Cancer Institute. And now, the program has been adopted for Michigan by our Radiological Health Services Division.

Both the public and the medical community will gain as we work to achieve the two objectives of the program. By reducing unnecessary radiation exposure during mammography, patients will be directly benefited. By improving the X-ray image quality of resulting pictures, physicians will be aided in their diagnostic efforts.

These benefits are possible through careful inspection of the mammography systems operating in the state. Available information indicates there are about 250 hospitals and other X-ray facilities currently using mammography in Michigan.

Obviously, getting to all of these systems immediately is a practical impossibility. With our available manpower, it's going to take us time to check every machine in the state. However, hospitals specifically requesting a test of their equipment will be scheduled as quickly as possible. Otherwise, the mammographic inspections will be incorporated into our routine inspections carried out in connection with our radiation rules. These rules are the regulations that govern the operation of X-ray devices in the state.

The process for checking a mammographic X-ray machine is quite simple. Radiation exposures are identified by actually X-raying a device representing the human breast and analyzing the results. About one-half hour is required to do this.

When an inspection is completed, test results are furnished to the physician. This enables him to determine the effectiveness of his equipment's performance. The physicians also is advised what, if any, changes are necessary to achieve improvement in his mammographic practices.

Patients Rights Study Announced

At its regular monthly meeting in Lansing, The Board of Right to Life of Michigan (RLM) approved a study of current medical practices and patient's rights. The study will be made during the Legislative summer recess and will be directed by Jeff Dongvillo, Legislative Liaison for Right to Life of Michigan.

"As a logical follow-up to our recent efforts on House Bill 4175, the Life/Death Agent Bill, I asked my Board to approve this special study," Dongvillo stated.

"Questions raised by House members and many apparent misunderstandings by the public of current patient rights and medical practices convinced me that a study of this nature will be helpful in discussing this issue."

"Our study will probe four major areas that need clarification," Dongvillo continued.

1. spelling out the current legal rights of patients under Michigan's statutory and case law.
  2. assessing the practices of the various probate court jurisdictions in the State especially as regards temporary and permanent guardianship.
  3. studying the policies and practices of medical care facilities, hospitals and physicians and other medical care providers in the process of medical treatment decisions.
  4. researching state and national law on court appointed and general agency laws.
- "I have personally invited the participation of State Representative David Hollister, the sponsor of HB 4175, and various senior interest advocates, such as the Office of Services to the Aging and the state association of Area Agencies on Aging. This will be a constructive, positive effort to clarify and solve this controversial issue affecting many of Michigan's infirmed and elderly citizens," Dongvillo concluded.
- It is anticipated that the Right to Life of Michigan Patient's Rights Study will be concluded by mid-August and available to the public and the Legislature at the reopening of the Legislature in September.

MACKINAC BRIDGE MUSEUM

IRONWORKER J.C. STILWELL, one of the many who helped build the Mackinac Straits Bridge 25 years ago, stands amid a sampling of artifacts he has collected for the Mackinac Bridge Museum in downtown Mackinaw City, Michigan. The five mile suspension bridge that connects Michigan's two peninsulas was dedicated in June, 1958. It is the world's longest suspended span. Unusual tools, equipment, blueprints, pictures and other items of interest are on display in the museum which is open to the public daily free of charge.

The bridge that "couldn't be built" stands today in its majestic beauty spanning what the French explorer Jean Nicolet in 1634 thought to be the fabled passage to the riches of the Orient. This is the 25th anniversary year (1983) of the dedication of the Mackinac Straits Bridge. Construction began in the spring of 1954 and the bridge was finished and opened to traffic on Nov. 1, 1957. Dedication ceremonies were held in June, 1958.

One might wonder who built the world's longest suspended span. The first name to come to mind is the great engineer-poet, Dr. David B. Steinman who designed the bridge, a whisp of a man but a giant intellect and a giant in bridge engineering. But, who were the men who actually did the work? Who built the foundations, joined the sections, drove the rivets, welded the seams, spun the cables, raised the towers, laid the roadbed and braved the weather of the Straits of Mackinac?

J.C. Stilwell knows. He was one of them. J.C. (that is his name-just the initials), is a native of Mackinaw City. He is one of those who hired on at the beginning of construction and was there when the bridge was finished three and a half years later.

Stilwell, who is a businessman in downtown Mackinaw City, had thought for years that there ought to be a free museum where visitors could learn more about the bridge construction, just how it was done and who the men were who built it - men who came from construction projects throughout the world to lend a hand to link Michigan's two peninsulas. Since no one else was doing anything about it, Stilwell decided to do it himself.

A pizza parlor isn't exactly the place you would think of for beginning any kind of a museum. But, his pizza parlor - Mama Mia's Pizzeria - is what he had and above it he had a lot of vacant space. In 1960 he went to work.

Bridge workers often return to the scene of their triumph and J.C. knows them all. He told them of his idea and the word spread. The response was great. The hard hats the men wore on the job became the principle collectable and they came in from everywhere. They also sent in their union work books, badges, tools, work belts, notes and a host of other items.

In the meantime, Stilwell bought the bridge construction memorabilia that had been on display at "Sofie's Bar" in St. Ignace which had been the bridge worker's principle hangout. From the American Bridge Division of United States Steel Corporation, Stilwell obtained a copy of the company's official bridge movie. This was put on video tape and Stilwell installed big screen television equipment to show it to visitors. Display cases were built and the displays were begun. A special welcome goes to any fellow bridge worker who stops and Stilwell is particularly happy to see any iron worker from anywhere.

The museum is not finished. A sign at the head of the stairs reads, "Museum is still under Const." But, there is still plenty to see.

A renovation is planned to include new displays. Professional museum consultants have been retained. The call is out for more material that might be shown. The Mackinac Bridge Museum in downtown Mackinaw City is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. The public is invited to visit the museum free of charge.

Changes Made For Moped Owners

Owners and operators of mopeds in Michigan are advised by the State Police that several changes in the state's motor vehicle code are in effect as of 1:20 p.m. Thursday, June 16.

These changes are part of Act 91 which was recently passed by the Legislature.

As outlined by State Police these changes are as follows:

- 1) The allowable horsepower for mopeds is increased from 1.5 to 2.
- 2) Maximum speed of operation of mopeds is increased from 25 miles an hour to 30.
- 3) The power drive system shall not require the operator to shift gears.
- 4) Eliminates the pedal requirement.
- 5) Requires the wearing of a helmet by the operator of the moped who is less than 19 years of age.
- 6) Requires the retail dealer to obtain the registration of the moped in the purchaser's name.

IF YOU THINK THE POWER
IS OFF
WHEN THE SWITCH
IS OFF
YOU'RE WRONG.

KEEP AWAY FROM WATER.

Everyone knows that electricity and water are a dangerous combination. But did you know that an electric appliance is still electrically alive even if the switch is off? If the plug is in the power is on. So when you keep appliances near water, keep them unplugged.

ALWAYS UNPLUG SMALL APPLIANCES.

Courtesy is contagious. Spread it.

COME UP WITH $35,000.

That's how much four years of college could cost by 1990. And that's four years at a state school. (Now when will your child--or grandchild--start college?) You might already have a savings account for college, but it could fall short.

But Comerica's College Fund can make the cost of college a little easier to take. How? Comerica's College Fund helps you establish long-range goals --and a variety of ways to meet those goals. No one, in fact, offers you a wider range of college savings plan investment opportunities than Comerica. What's more, Comerica's College Fund can offer substantial tax savings--so your child gets the most out of the money you save. More than if you put the money in a standard savings account or investment.

Comerica gives you many investment options. Start a Comerica College Fund with as little as $500. Then choose to invest your money in one of several ways. Choose our Money Market Account, CDs, stocks, bonds or one of our other high-yield investment options.

So before you have to "quick--come up with $35,000," talk with your Comerica Personal Banker about establishing a Comerica College Fund. After all, you can never be too quick at investing in your child's mind.
