Manchester United Way Honors Retirees

A most enjoyable evening was spent by Board members, spouses and honored guests at Schumm's Restaurant in Chelsea on Thursday, July 7, 1963. Twenty four attended the dinner, which began at 6:30 p.m.

Clarence L. Fielder introduced the honored guests who have given a combined total of 56 years of outstanding service to Manchester United Way as Board members.

ROBERT T. ROSS, who retired this spring after 15 years, was a former President and Red Cross Representative. He and his wife, Aileen, who was also honored, have given of their time, talent and treasure to our community endeavors. Thanks, Bob.

CLAIRE Y. RECK was lauded for her 23 years as a Board member and of other United Way related activities. She and husband Frank were active in the inception of Manchester Community Chest on November 22, 1947. Since that date, she has inspired us all with her never ending enthusiasm for jobs big and small. Thanks and bless you, Claire.

PHYLLIS C. BAKER joined the Board of Directors in 1960. She served faithfully for 13 years, doing the difficult work as Secretary and serving five years as an outstanding President. As 1964 General Campaign Chairman, she surpassed all campaign drives with an awe inspiring 127% of goal. Thanks for always being there to help, Phyllis.

President Sue Hamilton extended thanks to these honored guests. She extended gratitude to Mary Munson who was our hostess at a most delightful evening.

Renewal Millage Approval Rate Hits All Time High In State Elections

Throughout Michigan ninety five percent of all renewal proposals that were on the ballot in school elections in June were approved. Two hundred eight of the two hundred eighteen proposals which were voted on were passed by the voters.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Philip E. Runkle stated, "It demonstrates that voters in the vast majority of communities in Michigan overwhelmingly support their public schools."

Overall, two-thirds of all school millage proposals renewals, additional millage proposals and combined proposals received voter approval.

Locally voters approved the renewal millage by a three to one

Manchester Horse Power

Wendell Reinhart will observe his 29th year of working with the Manchester Broil this year. Wendell was in general farming when the 1st Manchester Chicken Broil was held in 1933, and was not part of that event. He heard the noise from the chicken broil on his farm that evening, and when he came to town the next day, he made inquiries about the noise and became an active participant in 1954. Twenty years later, in 1974, Wendell noticed that there were a great many older citizens walking from their cars to the athletic field, some with canes, but all finding the walk quite tedious. He consulted with Gene Bentschneider, general chairman of the chicken broil, and over that winter converted a wagon to a horse drawn bus by the addition of some actual bus seats to the wagon. He hitched up his team of Pecheron draft horses to this rig and in 1975 began to offer rides to the elderly during the Annual Chicken Broil.

That first year, 1975, he worked from 3:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., and it became apparent that the demand was far greater than one man or one team of horses could manage. In 1976, George Macomber, Lloyd Hughes and Jim Hone each agreed to bring a team and a suitable wagon for transporting people. They did so, although Jim Hone used mules instead of horses. Each year thereafter more teams and wagons were used, until at this time there are nine persons involved.

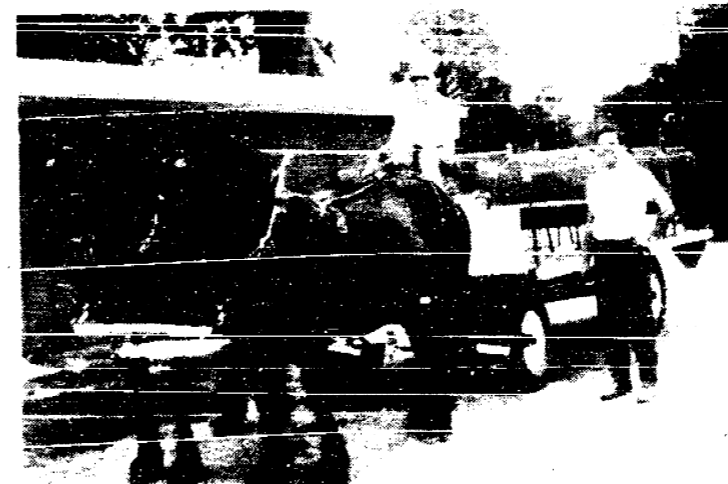

There is Denver Ecker and John Miskovic with horses and wagons, while Fred Pittman has mules with his wagon, and Andy Poet has a team of ponies pulling his wagon. McCalla Feeds of Chelsea also has made available a team of horses and a wagon to transport people from the parking area to the athletic field.

All of the horses are Belgians except Wendell's Pecherons, and all of the drivers donate their time and service to make the Annual Chicken Broil a success. Ron Fielder and Mike Gordon take care of parking the cars behind the high school to assist in an orderly operation of the horse drawn transportation. The Manchester Police Department has also been very cooperative in regulating traffic along the routes used by the horses.

It is estimated that the nine teams together with the wagons and harnesses used represent an investment in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Wendell Reinhart was born in Petersburg, Michigan, but has lived in the Manchester area for over thirty years. He is retired now, but farmed until two years ago. There are not many persons who can name all the parts of a harness or knows how to train horses to pull wagons, but

 by farley

The Editorial Research Center of one of the press services has discovered that a study of the names of places in this country is quite fascinating. There are many places in these United States that are interesting for their name only. Many are named for the famous and popular people whose names were household words when those places were named and pinpoint their ages. They have their place in history and on the United States maps but they don't stir the imagination like Bugscuffle, Tenn., Horse Pasture, Virginia, or Cheesquake, New Jersey do.

A look at any state map will turn up names that tie your tongue in knots, names like Chillicothe, Ohio, or Quiggleville, Pennsylvania.

Michigan has many of them. For instance there is Podunk between Manchester and Clinton, Paradise is in the Upper Peninsula, Alaska is not too far from Iowa and California is a wide spot in the road southeast of Coldwater.

A few of our favorites in other states are Jenkinjones, North Carolina, Cherebuson, Indiana, Sedro Wooley, Oregon, Red Key in Indiana and also FlinFion Alberta, Canada, and we could go on and on. We could include

Sweet Home, Oregon and Rural Shade, Texas and Ai, Ohio. There are hundreds of these names but how they got there is a fascinating tale. Scores were Indian names mispronounced or loosely translated. These are the ones we know today. Hoposakenhacking, New Jersey means "at the place of the tobacco pipe" but it became Hoboken after undergoing several Dutch and English variations.

This corruption happened to Dutch and English translations. Smackover, Arkansas was originally the French Clemin Couvert. Low Freight, Arkansas came from L'Eau Froide or cold water and New York's Turtle Bay was a variant of the Dutch Deutel Bogt. The site of a bloody clash between Dutch traders and the indians became known as Murderkill River-kill being the Dutch name for creek.

The gold rush in the 1840-50s left its colorful imprint on the country's maps with such names as Jackpot, Cut Throat Bar, Humbug Canyon and Poker Flat and Hen Roost Camp. Many of these disappeared as the miners moved on. There were many names that were used just for the fun of it such as Dog Walk, Rabbit Hash and Shulderblade, Kentucky.

Many poets and writers have been intrigued with these names—among them Walt Whitman, Carl Sandburg and Steven Vincent Benet and Menken with his three volume treatise on The American Language. Then there is the American Name Society with 900 members which include linguists, geographers and literary historians. Even the Federal government is interested when too many Bald Knobs or Prairie Views show up to confuse the post office department or the map margin. Superintendent Gene Thompson observed, "The margin of approval of the renewal millage by Manchester voters is the highest within anyone's memory. We have been unable to discover records of an election which indicated a higher rate of community support for the school system. We have interpreted the three to one margin as an indicator that the community appreciates and supports the direction in which the school district is heading. Our effort will be to keep it going."

A millage proposal of 1.8 mills for general operating purposes was defeated in Manchester by the narrow margin of 15 votes. Thompson stated, "We operated a fairly low-keyed campaign prior to the election. As we approached the election date we were discovering large numbers of voters who did not perceive the situation to be serious. We had a difficult time getting the message across that indeed without additional voted revenues the school district would be in trouble because the state equalized valuation had declined. We feel that the slim margin of 15 votes indicates community support for our programs but perhaps a lack of understanding regarding the tenuous financial picture."

The Manchester Board of Education has voted unanimously to return both the proposition calling for a 1.8 mill increase for general operating purposes and the proposal of 1.5 mills for renovation and maintenance to the ballot at a special election to be held August 31.

Millage

Our Village Legislature

A reprint from the Manchester Enterprise, dated April 3, 1979

The city fathers have held weekly sessions since they took hold of the reins of government, and have tried to get in working order, but as yet they have not succeeded. Only a portion of the committees have been appointed, and some of the council claim that an outside pressure is trying to influence the members. At the meeting on Monday evening, councilman Gordanier made a speech, which we present to our readers.

The council have not made arrangements to have the proceedings printed, but as we were dropped in to hear what was being done, we gathered up these few items:

The contract for furnishing a record book of 500 pages, a book of 300 pages for the recording of ordinances, and one for the recording of bonds, all first-class books together with a ledger, and stationery for the use of the recorder, was let to Mat. D. Bissler, he being the lowest bidder.

The council seems to be divided as to whether or not they shall employ a village attorney, and that's what called Mr. Gordanier to his feet, and drew out the following speech:

Mr. President and Gentlemen Of The Council: - I have a few remarks which I would like to bring before the council this evening, in regard to the outside pressure upon it.

Now, Mr. President, this being the first time in my life of having the honorable opportunity of

LEARNING FROM HISTORY

The commonly held principle that history repeats itself has been proven over and over again. The only problem is that we often forget some of the hard lessons our ancestors learned.

The welfare system is an example of this.

Almost a century before Christ, wealthy Roman landowners drove thousands of smaller farmers from their homes and fields, which created the "panis frumentari," or the urban unemployed. Being unable to fend for themselves, the farm families were given grain from government stores on a monthly basis. In 72 B.C., these unemployed were a force of some 40,000 and 30 years later, under Julius Caesar, their number soared to 200,000.

Around 27 B.C., Augustus tried in vain to reduce the number on welfare by refusing, as he put it, "those whose needs were pre-empted," but he failed, for too many had been used to the free grain for too long.

As time went on, the Roman government began to hand out bread, which meant those on welfare no longer had to grind their grain or bake their bread. In fact, it was recorded that on the first day of the bread giveaway, more than 300,000 Romans clogged the narrow streets to get their share from the bakeries which had to be nationalized for administrative purposes.

The state also had to set up an army of officials and clerks to administer the cumbersome program which, of course, meant that the wealthy landowners were strapped with more and more taxes to the point where one baron remarked that, "it was no longer a privilege to be a Roman, but a burden."

It seems that Rome never learned that when you give a man bread with one hand, you take away something else with another—his incentive and dignity. But when you give him work for his hands, he will supply his own needs.

Does that sound familiar?

Cooperatively Speaking

The Cooperatively Speaking Manchester Food Co-op will hold its monthly ordering/business meeting on Wednesday, July 20 at 7:00 p.m. The meeting will be held in the American Legion House on the corner of Adrian and Duncan Streets. Current members are reminded to turn their monthly orders in to Marsha Chartrand no later than Monday, July 18. Anyone interested in joining our food cooperative should contact Paul or Jonelle Dankert at 428-9487 for more information.

Horsepower

Wendell does and so do the others named, and the Manchester Chicken Broil benefits from their knowledge gained over the years.

Needless to say, all of these gentlemen have expressed great interest in the renovation of the John F. Schneider Blacksmith Shop, and its restoration to where the trade of blacksmithing as practiced in the early years of this century can be demonstrated to those who only know gasoline engines.

Local Students Attend Conference

Clyde Nixon, center, and Carl Crankshaw of Double A Products meet with Shelly Kleinschmidt and Robert Curley along with Dick Parson of Manchester High School.

An unusual opportunity has been experienced recently by two Manchester High School students, Shelly Kleinschmidt and Robert Curley. They have participated in a conference which had an objective of providing area students with an understanding of business management. Their selection was based upon future leadership potential in a business career as well as an interest in commercial subjects.

The five day conference, June 20-24, encompassed a series of presentations by Ann Arbor area business executives, tours of business facilities and discussions centered on case studies. Subjects included economic theory, finance, marketing, strategic planning and communications. The support of the community is shown by executives who were on the program: John Daly, Chief Executive of Hoover Universal; Joseph Flowers, President of Ann Arbor Engineering; Tom Gies, Professor at University of Michigan; Michael Nold, Senior Vice President of Ann Arbor Trust; and Nancy Potter, Manager of Stroth Brewing.

The Future Business Leader Conference, the initial one of its type locally, was organized by the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce and supported by Washtenaw Community College. A representative of the Chamber said, "the conference offered a unique opportunity for thirty talented students. It provided an understanding of the dynamic nature and constructive aspects of business organizations. We hope to offer the program again next year."

Double A Products Co. sponsored our two Manchester students. Clyde Nixon, President, stated: "we are pleased that we were able to be associated with the attendance of Shelly and Bob. It is good to recognize them as future leaders. We wish them the best of luck in their continued studies and professional careers".

The conference was concluded with an awards ceremony. Parents of these students joined them as the Chamber of Commerce recognized the students participation.

SOS Crisis Center Offers Aid For The Unemployed

Beginning July 12, the SOS Community Crisis Center will provide a new service for unemployed or underemployed job seekers in Washtenaw County. In conjunction with RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program), volunteers will assist job hunters in applying for work opportunities listed through the County Jobs Referral Service. The Job Referral Service is a computerized job exchange which matches personal job skills and job openings. This computer-based listing has been developed by the Inter-Agency Collaborative Board.

Persons seeking work need only fill out a short application form which will then be permanently filed in the ICB computer for any present or future matches. There is no fee for this service.

SOS volunteers will be available on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m. to assist individuals in completing this application. The SOS Community Crisis Center is located at 114 North River in Ypsilanti. Call 485-3222 for any further information.

SOS is a Washtenaw United Way Agency.

Letters to the editor...

Mr. William Zeenyuk, Chief Manchester Police Department 120 South Clinton Street Manchester, Michigan 48158

Dear Chief Zeenyuk:

On June 29, 1983 at about 1:00 a.m., HVA was dispatched to a reported injury automobile accident on Austin Road west of Schneider Road in Bridgewater Township. Upon our arrival, we found Manchester Police Officers at the patient's side, calming and reassuring the patient, as well as providing first aid procedures.

The scene was complicated, as the patient was in unstable condition. Further, the patient's father was present as well as many bystanders. Your officers, in addition to taking care of the patient, maintained good control of the scene, and lented invaluable assistance to our technicians on backboarding, moving and loading the patient.

We sincerely appreciate the assistance and professionalism of your officers, and would ask that you give them our thanks for their help. It is comforting for Manchester Community residents to know that such capable help exists when emergencies arise.

Again, thank you for your help and assistance.

Sincerely and cordially,
Dale J. Berry

ENERGY PLUS+ Plant modernization. A key ingredient of Michigan's revitalization.

For the past 20 years, Detroit Edison has been involved in a massive program of modernization. Replacing old power plants dependent on diminishing gas and oil with new plants fueled by abundant, cost-efficient American-produced coal and uranium.

Today, this program is near completion. And that's good news. Good for businesses contemplating expansion. Good for attracting new businesses. Good for our state economy. Good for you.

Here's why.

Abundant energy is a prime consideration for businesses interested in expanding or relocating to Southeastern Michigan. That means more jobs. More utilization of an already skilled and proven labor force.

As more new businesses discover Michigan's plentiful advantages, such as our vast waterways, ideally located industrial parks, state-funded economic incentive programs, and, of course, lots of electricity, they will make our area's economy more vibrant. More stable. Plant modernization has helped to set the stage for economic recovery. And, even now, promising results are beginning to show.

Naturally, the benefits of more new businesses and a strengthened state economy mean you enjoy a better standard of living. Plant modernization also means you enjoy a healthier standard of living through use of advanced technology to protect the environment.

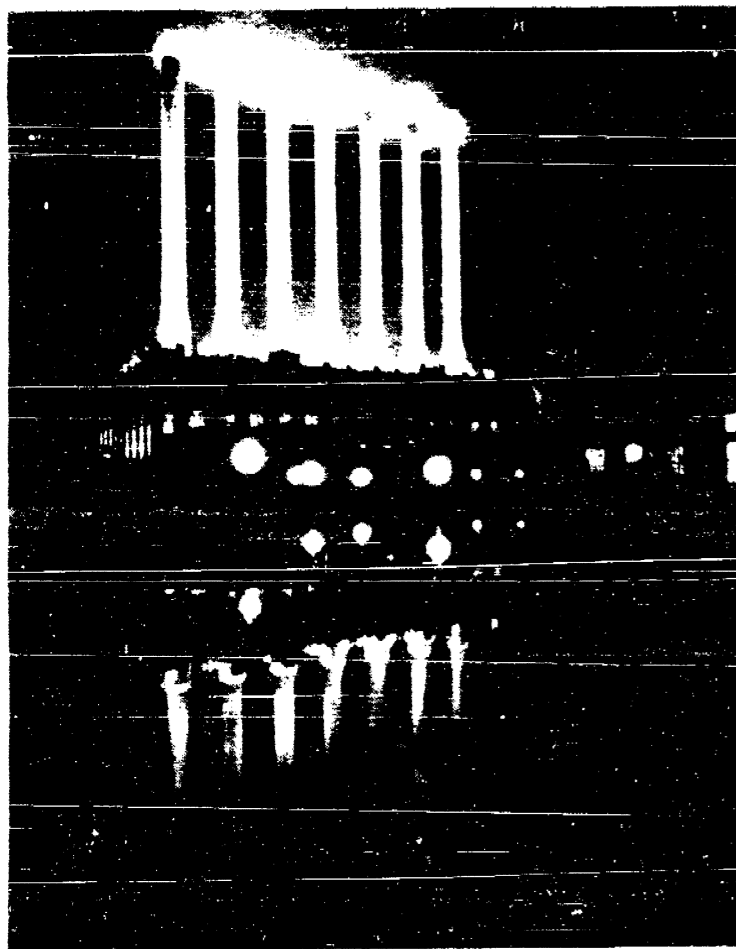

Completion of our 20-year plant modernization program means the beginning of a new era for Southeastern Michigan. An era brimming with promise, opportunity and assurances of ample energy. Energy today, plus energy that will take all of us into the 21st century.

Generating Units Retired

The "Seven Sisters" at Detroit Edison's Conners Creek Power Plant on the Detroit River have served as a landmark and navigational beacon since the 1920s. "Two-brothers" were added later, but not before this classic nighttime photograph was taken in 1929. Detroit Edison announced the retirement of five older, oil-fired generating units at the plant, along with the retirement of five units at other plants. They are being retired as the company nears completion of a 20-year modernization program.

They generated the electricity for your grandparents' radio as they listened to Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats in the 1930s and helped power the television that carried the Reagan/Carter presidential campaign in 1980. On July 5, 1983, they retired.

Detroit Edison has announced the retirement of ten old, oil-fired generating units at the company's Conners Creek, Delray and Fermi power plant sites. The oldest of the generators was installed in 1929 and has been serving Detroit Edison customers for nearly 54 years, well beyond the projected 30 to 40 year life normally anticipated for such units. Together, the units had a generating capacity of 549,000 kilowatts of electricity.

Two cranes are ending, according to Claybourne Mitchell Jr., Detroit Edison vice president for planning and research. Mitchell said the retirement of these units signals just about the end of the oil-fired generation at the utility. "But, more importantly," he said, "it signals the impending completion of Detroit Edison's comprehensive modernization program, the transition of Southeastern Michigan's electric energy supply system from a 20th century system to a 21st century system."

"Our Monroe Power Plant started serving our customers in the early 1970s," Mitchell explained. "It is the 'backbone' of our system, producing more electricity than any other coal-fired plant in America. In fact, we just finished a new coal-blending facility at Monroe that allows the plant to blend and burn different types of coal in a most efficient and environmentally sound manner."

Ludington and Greenwood came on line later in the decade, according to Mitchell. The artificial lake is filled at night, when electric use is low, and then the water is released through turbine-generators during the day to meet the higher demand," Mitchell explained. "Greenwood, on the other hand, burns leftovers of the petroleum refining process in a nature-center setting," he said.

Mitchell said Belle River 1 and Fermi 2 will join the company's electrical generating system next year and Belle River 2 will come on-line the year after, in 1985. "Both Belle River units will be fueled with low-sulfur western coal. We've set up long-term coal and shipping contracts at attractive rates that will see those plants and Michigan through to the end of the century and beyond."

"And to balance the system, to ensure reliable electric service, we have Fermi 2," Mitchell said. "Again Detroit Edison will use an abundant American fuel, uranium, to provide electricity for one million people, while retiring old, less-efficient, oil-fired plants that have served well beyond their projected lives."

"All those plants will not only provide needed electricity for today's Detroit Edison customers, but they'll be our carrot, an attraction for business and industry for the rest of the century," Mitchell said. "With Michigan's current economic problems, you could say Detroit Edison will PROVIDE the light at the end of the tunnel," he concluded. "And we're proud of it!"

Detroit Edison has another 609,000 kilowatts of older, oil-fired generating units in economy reserve status, which are maintained for emergencies, but not normally operated.

Our Village Legislature

there is a heavy outside pressure upon this council. Even Dennis Kerney, as intelligent and patriotic a councilman as we have, with a head like Wm. Everts and a memory like Charles O'Connor of New York, should be so short-sighted as to lose his presence of mind and be influenced by that great Southern statesman, A.H. Stephens, who keeps a dry goods store on the right hand side of the street. And also that thick-headed member who would be ex-president of the Southern Confederacy. And the famous wheat buyer of the United States, he, too, I suppose, would like to have been the chief mogul of this council.

Again, Mr. President, I will cite you to another outside pressure upon this council and that is in the case of old Ramrod and Thomas Paine, in the introduction of those resolutions before the council the other evening. They, too, would be so timid and short sighted as to be bulldozed by a great bag of wind, who, like Gen. Grant, wanted to be the crown prince of the world.

Again, Mr. President, I will cite you to another outside pressure upon this council, and that is in the case of myself, who would be bulldozed enough to set in a trance long enough to allow those words in that paragraph of those resolutions to pass strong enough to make it compulsory to hire an attorney. Now I, too, Patrick Henry, stand corrected, for allowing such a sentence to be inserted in those resolutions, to make it binding to have a lawyer.

Now, Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Council, if some of those outsiders do think that I am a d-n fool, I will tell you what we want. We want those mischief-making lawyers and pettifoggers to keep their noses out of our business, and keep them out till we think we want them.

Now, Mr. President, in conclusion I would say, with a man for President with a patriotism like that of Gen. Washington, and by the help of this intelligent council, we have nothing to fear. I think that with the help of our patriotic Kearney, old Ramrod, Thomas Paine, Deacon Hughes, Mat Carpenter and myself, Patrick Henry, I think with the help of these intelligent men, the President can get along without any of this outside bulldozing.

riding with flexibility exercises for the arms and shoulders to avoid become stiff," Zeiler said. "Others combine it with swimming to build upper body strength."

The Auto Club advises maintaining a consistent riding pace by adjusting to road gradation through switching gears on a multiple-speed cycle or changing the revolutions per minute on a one-speed bike.

For fitness improvement, beginners should cycle at a constant speed between 60 and 70 revolutions per minute, gradually working up to between 70 and 90 revolutions. Monitor this pace by counting the number of times the pedal makes a complete revolution for 15 seconds and multiplying by four for the revolutions per minute.

Becoming winded while riding on a flat surface generally is due to spinning the wheels too fast, so the cyclist should shift to a higher gear. If legs become tired, the cyclist probably is riding at too high a gear and should shift to a lower gear or reduce pedal revolutions if on a one-speed bike.

Before beginning a cycling fitness program, a person with medical problems or over age 35 should seek the guidance of a physician or other health professional.

Equipment needed to begin a cycling program includes an appropriate-sized bike with saddle and handlebars properly adjusted for maximum comfort and efficiency. A riding helmet is recommended since the majority of cycling injuries are to the head. Other investments may include gloves, riding shoes, protective eye glasses and a high-security lock.

Cyclists should know the rules of the road and always be aware of pedestrians, cars and other cyclists. Michigan law requires cyclists to obey the same rules as motorists. Cyclists should ride on the right side of the road.

The Auto Club recommends warming up before and cooling down after the exercise with five to 10 minutes of stretching exercises, especially those that flex the hamstring muscle at the back of the thigh. Cyclists also can ride for about one mile in a low gear, spinning easily at a faster pace.

Cyclists should drink plenty of fluids, especially water, before and while riding since perspiration may be masked by wind, and the rider could unsuspectingly dehydrate.

Cycling Offers Fitness, Fun

Cycling is a pleasurable way to tour the city or countryside while strengthening the working capacity of the heart and lungs, reports the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Thirty minutes of cycling three to five times a week also improves muscle strength, endurance and balance and helps reduce tension.

"Vigorous and consistent cycling greatly strengthens and conditions the legs," stated Walter Zeiler, Auto Club's Life manager. "Many health experts believe the overall condition of a person's heart can be determined by feeling the leg muscles."

Cycling is a popular cardiovascular exercise since it improves heart and lung performance. It is a non-weight bearing activity, making it attractive to overweight individuals.

In my mind he was the outstanding candidate of the 82 applications we received. I am very much looking forward to the opportunity to work with an educator of his caliber. He has demonstrated his leadership ability and is an enthusiastic and committed professional."

Energy Savings

Thousands of Michigan residents have already experienced, first-hand, that solar Thermosiphon Air Panel systems (TAPs), or "day heaters," can provide a significant fraction of a home's space heating needs, and usually at a relatively low cost, according to a publication released by the Energy Administration, Michigan Department of Commerce.

TAPs are solar heating devices that generally have one or more glazings of glass or plastic, an air space, a black panel to absorb heat from the sun, another air space, and an insulating backing. Air flows naturally, by convection, into and through the TAP collector and re-enters the house through a vent at the top, or a small fan may be used to increase TAP system efficiency.

A Michigan resident can construct and install a passive TAP system for as little as $5.00 per square foot of south-facing wall space, or have a commercial system installed for approximately $26.00 per square foot. Blower-assisted systems run about $11-4 more per square foot. Without a blower, TAP systems deliver about 30,000 Btu per square foot per heating season and blower-assisted systems deliver about 40,000 Btu per square foot per heating season. TAPs are usually sized to provide an annual energy savings of approximately 25-30%. Actual dollar savings will vary, depending on the cost of the conventional fuel being replaced by solar.

The publication provides information for those wishing to build or assemble a system and provides purchasing tips for commercial systems. The publication also discusses the feasibility of TAP systems in Michigan and explains advantages and disadvantages of these systems.

A copy of "Buying or Building a Thermosiphon Air Panel (TAP) in Michigan" may be obtained by calling the Energy Administration Clearinghouse at 1-800-292-4704, or writing to P.O. Box 30228, Lansing, MI 48909.

UNPLUG IT FOR SAFETY

Most people think of home as a haven of safety. But the records show that the home is not necessarily the safe place we might think it to be. Almost every home contains a number of small appliances or gadgets which make life easier and more convenient, but under certain conditions, can be dangerous.

I'm talking about the danger of fire from a possible malfunction of small appliances that are allowed to remain plugged in when not in use. Note some actual happenings that resulted from this practice:

A family left on a trip and forgot to turn off a toaster-oven. Some time later a component in the appliance failed and started a fire.

A steam iron's thermostat failed to shut off its heater and a fire resulted.

A child was electrocuted when a plugged-in but turned-off hair dryer fell into her bath water.

Use of a hair dryer by an adult standing on a wet tile floor led to electrocution.

How many small appliances are there in your home? Do a little check-off exercise and find out.

In the kitchen there are likely to be an iron, toaster, chopper, griddle, coffee pot, blender, toaster-oven, can opener, tea kettle, and maybe more.

In the bathroom there may be a hair dryer, electric toothbrush, possibly a small radio.

In the bedroom there could be an electric blanket, maybe a heating pad.

And in the family room there may be games that are electrically powered.

Small electric appliances are not the only hazard to safety in the home. But it's important to recognize that small appliances are a first line of home hazards.

The real danger lies in leaving these appliances plugged in when they're not in use. There are more than 5,200 fires, 250 injuries, and 60 fatalities annually that are associated specifically with portable electric kitchen appliances alone. And many of these are preventable.

We want your home to be exactly what you think it to be - a haven of safety. After all, your health and well being can be dependent upon it. A safer home will be yours if you'll start this minute and adopt the practice of always unplugging small appliances when you are done using them.

At the open house following the ceremony guests were present from Sainne, Ann Arbor, Brooklyn, Clinton, Manchester, Cement City, Wampier's Lake and Washington, D.C.
