Hit Or Miss

By Farley

I think that we have very short memories or that we are so busy with today's problems that what we tend to forget many of us who had beneficial effects on our lives.

For example, during the week end of May 11 there were three of these folks who celebrated birthdays—maybe they were affected at birth by the season, the coming of spring with all its beauties and joys after the winter months but they all made contributions to our world of popular music in different but imperishable ways. On May 11 Irving Berlin was 97 years of age and on that same date Kate Smith was 77.

Irving Berlin was a prime influence on our world of popular music from 1910 when he wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which became a great hit and which made "Dixieland" music and rhythms so very popular and changed our dance style. He wrote many such songs with this rhythm during the next few years. We're not going to list them but they included "Swanee" which was very popular and even one which we here should remember titled "Oh How I Wish Again That I Was In Michigan, Down on the Farm."

From this beginning to the World War I years he was very prolific with his songs until the outbreak of that war and we all danced to and sang them. Then he became imbued with a patriotic spirit and produced such songs as "Oh How I Hate to Get Up In the Morning" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

During the following period he wrote songs for musical comedies

Brooklyn Bank Robbery

Manchester Enterprise
November 23, 1899

Mr. Johnson of Brooklyn brought word here Tuesday morning that burglars had made a big haul in robbing the safe in W. S. Culver's bank, in our neighboring village.

People who reside in the vicinity of the bank were aroused about 2:30 Tuesday morning by a shock, which was followed in about eight minutes by another and in a minute or two later by a third. By this time many had arisen and were upon the streets or peering out of their homes to ascertain the cause, and singularly enough most of them concluded what was up.

Several years ago when Col. King kept the bank, the safe was robbed, and nearly two years ago, after Mr. Culver had purchased the bank, an attempt was made to rob it but without effect. The safe was injured but not opened and the villains did not get one penny for their trouble.

Mr. Culver then moved his banking office into his store, but a year ago last summer he erected a neat banking office on the south side of his brick store building, which was provided with a Detroit time-lock safe and everything to make a cozy and convenient banking room. Miss Anna Sheckel, a former teacher in our public schools, is cashier.

About 2 o'clock a party of masons who had been to Jackson to attend a school of instruction, drove into down town and some of the men passed the bank, but neither saw or heard anything unusual. The burglars obtained entrance by breaking the glass in the transom over the front door. The tools used in opening the safe were obtained at a blacksmith shop near by. The first discharge blew the front door of the safe through the office railing and out the front door into the street. The following discharges opened the inner doors and cleared the safe completely. The robbers then grabbed what money they could see, about $2,890, and hastily made their escape. There were three of them, who were seen to run out into the street and south towards the railroad. John Werden saw them as they passed his house, and called to them. They fired three shots from their revolvers, probably to intimidate the people and prevent pursuit.

When the citizens reached the bank they saw a sorry sight. The interior of the office was in ruins and about $1,200 in currency, gold and silver was picked up among the debris. The people were not slow in organizing for the capture of the robbers. The telegraph and telephone were both used and in less than an hour the officers at Jackson, and in fact all the surrounding cities and town excepting Addison and Manchester, were notified and were out watching for them.

The moon was shining brightly and parties went out in each direction from Brooklyn. There was frost on the ground and they went on each road until they came to a bridge or place where they could see if any person or team had passed. Footprints could be as readily seen as on snow, but no trace could be found excepting on the Jackson road, and as parties had lately come into town from that direction it was impossible to tell whether the robbers went that way or were still hiding near by. The track of a wagon was found leading from the old planing mill near the railroad—in which direction the robbers ran—around on a back street, past the school house and then to the Jackson road and it is believed that they escaped from town in that direction, by wagon.

It is also considered by many that these are the same fellows that attempted to break the safe before. The officers were notified so promptly and the burglars had such a slight start that it would seem impossible for them to escape.

We learn that there was a burglar insurance on the bank which covers all loss.

Our informant left Brooklyn early in the morning for Napoleon where he took the train for this place to inform the deputy sheriff. It appears that after he left they tracked the men down the railroad towards Woodstock, and

Coronation Brass To Perform "An Obsession for Excellence"

Henry Ford built them fast on his turn-of-the-century assembly line and sold them cheap — for as little as $350. They were the Model T's, made in Michigan, the cars that put America on wheels. The Slikkers family builds them slowly, meticulously — but they aren't inexpensive. They are the S2 sailboats and the Tira/Slickcraft power boats — Rolls Royces with a rudder. "People know our boats are expensive but they also know they are getting a quality product" says David Slikkers, president of S2 Yachts Inc. of Holland, Michigan. "We have an obsession for excellence."

That obsession began with his father, Leon, the chairman of the board, a farmhand-turned-boatbuilder who was, and is, "devoted to Dutch craftsmanship."

A visitor to the sprawling, modernist S2 factory on East 40th Street can watch the assembly lines for a long time before seeing a gleaming fiberglass hull move forward to the next work station. The boats, ranging in size from 18 to 36 feet,

Misguided Animal Lovers

[Guest Editorial by Murray Miles, Tennessee Farm Bureau]

I got arrested on a Saturday morning recently. Now, don't think too badly of me. It was part of a new fund-raising gimmick in our community. Friends, if you could call them that, swore out a warrant for my arrest. They had to pay $10 to the American Cancer Society for that privilege. I was then picked up, handcuffed, and taken to a make-shift jail made of 2 x 4's. The "judge" set my bail at $500. That meant I had to get on the phone and raise $500 from my friends for the Cancer Society or stay in jail for two hours, whichever came first. I did manage to raise $300 in pledges by the time my two hours were up.

This was a lot of fun, everyone had a good time, and the money went for more research to help find a cure for what is probably America's most dreaded disease.

What a contract this event was with one that took place in California just a few days before that. There a group of misguided individuals broke into a research laboratory on a university campus and not only stole the research animals, but destroyed valuable material that will set researchers back for months in their efforts to make life a little better for mankind.

They videotaped the whole episode, bragged about it, and even went on television to say that they will continue to do it.

All over America, citizens give thousands of hours of their time each year to raise money for various organizations so that research can continue to find cures for cancer, heart disease, arthritis, degenerative diseases, and many, many more. I don't believe that these thousands of average citizens are going to allow a handful of very misguided animal rights extremists to continue their destruction of the research that we have all worked Karen Meyer opens baby gifts from some of her excited preschoolers.

Some of Manchester Cooperative Preschool's students held a surprise baby shower for teacher Karen Meyer on Monday, May 13. The four-year-olds in Meyer's Monday-Wednesday-Friday class and the three-year-olds in her Monday afternoon class brought special baby gifts and enjoyed ice cream and cake.

Meyer has taught at Manchester Cooperative Preschool for the past four years. Next year, she will take a year's leave of absence to care for her new baby.

Eloise Kemner, who has taught preschool on Tuesday and Thursday for the past two years, will teach three days next year. The preschool has hired a new teacher, Sherrie Finkbeiner, to teach classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Mrs. Finkbeiner lives in Clinton with her husband and daughter. She attends Eastern Michigan University, where she is majoring in Early Childhood Education.

Michigan will join with Indiana State Police and the Ohio Highway Patrol in a special kickoff at the Travel Information Center on northbound I-69 freeway four miles north of the Indiana-Michigan state line on Friday, May 24 at 10:00 a.m. They will be joined by a representative from AAA who will introduce a unique pledge program to encourage safety belt use.

Emphasis will also be on the "All American Buckle Up" program designed to encourage motorists to voluntarily wear their safety belts. Of the 13 victims who had safety belts available last year, only one was wearing it, Hough said. By wearing a safety belt, a minimum of 300 lives could be saved annually in Michigan, he added. Girls State was established by the American Legion Auxiliary in 1941. The 1985 Girls State annual program will be designed as a practical experience in the problems of self-government as operated in Michigan. It is limited to girls in their junior year of high school who are returning to complete their senior year. The purpose of Girls State is three fold: (1) To emphasize the importance of government in modern life, (2) To stimulate a deep and lasting interest in government, and (3) To enlarge our understanding of governmental process. This is achieved by designing the Girls State program so that all girls will experience actual participation in the political and governmental process.

Whether they were the same parties or not we do not know. Mr. Culver was in Cleveland Monday and arrived home Tuesday night.

Mr. Don Limpert, noted local and Civil War historian, recently spoke to Manchester Junior High School social studies classes. In his presentation he went into the background of how the Manchester area sent 100 "Manchester Greys" into the conflict and the units they served in. He then outlined the part the G.A.R. played in the development of the national and local political life of the time.

every team member deserves a "job well done!"

We are drawing to the close of another season. We have all learned a great deal. Even though we haven't always "won", we feel at the end of this season that we are "winners." We have demonstrated that we know what good sportsmanship is all about. We would like to extend our thanks to all of the people that helped us during this busy time. Our parents, High School Students and coaches that worked with us at our meets, school administration for their strong support, and our bus drivers for getting us on the "right track." The team and their coaches thank you all.

Lastly, this writer would like to express appreciation to the team and everyone associated, for allowing me the opportunity to be a part of your team this season. Through the wins and losses, good times and bad, the ups and downs, it has been a rewarding experience! I am proud of you all, and hope to see each and everyone of you back on the track next year!

Hit Or Miss

and for the movies, many of which became standards. Probably the most popular of these was "White Christmas." He continued for many years to write his songs until his retirement some years ago. He still resides in New York City. May we add to so many others our best wishes and a respectful bow to Irvine Balin, the little Jewish lad—a singing waiter on New York's east side, who probably more than any other, has kept America singing and dancing for many, many years, who has brought so much happiness to all of America.

On May 11 another important figure from the world of popular music, Kate Smith, observed her 77th birthday. She sang her way into all of our hearts on radio and in personal appearances. Her rendition of "God Bless America" has become a vital part of our musical world. I can remember that in 1926 while I resided in Chicago my wife and I attended the Chicago Theatre which, of course in those days had a stage show, and a chubby gal walked out on to the stage and sang "Nobody Loves a Fat Girl But How a Fat Girl Can Love." This she did in such a manner that it brought down the house.

She now lives in retirement in South Carolina and is, I have been told, confined to a wheel chair, but she says that she doesn't want folks to see her this way, just wants them to remember her as the jovial person with the built in sense of rhythm and the great big voice. However, may we wish her too, the best of birthdays. Thank you for all that you have brought us that has made our lives a bit happier.

Another birthday this week end belongs to Fred Astaire whose dancing has enthralled all movie goers for the past many years. The list of his successes long and the perfection of his routines has made an indelible impression on everyone who saw him perform. He made many songs favorites of ours and his dancing inspired thousands of youngsters to become proficient tap dancers. All of his performances were lessons in perfection. He and his sister Adele broke into the world of dance some 60 years ago and after Adele married and retired from the stage he went on to become an unforgettable part of our world of entertainment. He made a great number of movies all of which were great entertainment. His style and personality have left an imperishable imprint on our lives. anniversary our somewhat belated but nevertheless our sincere congratulations to you on your birthday. We'll never forget your performances in the world of entertainment.

Summer's Slimmer With Tea

When summer's sun reaches an unbearable level of heat, be nice to yourself with an icy tea treat. But don't think you have to go off a calorie-watching diet to satisfy your parched taste buds with something sweet. 100% instant tea serves as a convenient low-calorie base for cooling beverages.

By itself, iced tea has just two calories per 8-ounce serving. Mixed with other ingredients, it can be used to create some refreshing, yet calorie-conscious drinks.

To prove it, here's a recipe for "Slimmin' Strawberry Tea Shake." It starts with a base of 100% instant tea powder, skim milk, juicy strawberries and aspartame sweetener. Ice cubes blended in create a frothy shake that's cooling and refreshing ... all at a mere 60 calories per serving!

SLIMMIN' STRAWBERRY TEA SHAKE

- 2 tablespoons Lipton® 100% Instant Tea powder
- 2 cups skim milk
- 1 cup sliced strawberries
- 4 packets aspartame sweetener
- 1 cup ice cubes (about 6 to 8)

In blender, combine all ingredients except ice cubes; process at high speed until blended. Add ice cubes, one at a time; process at high speed until blended. Garnish, if desired, with additional strawberries. Makes 4 servings. 60 calories per serving.

Kahlua Chocolate Velvet

KAHLUA CHOCOLATE VELVET

- 1/2 cup Kahlua
- 1/2 teaspoon instant coffee granules
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 (1 oz) squares unsweetened chocolate
- 4 (1 oz) squares semi-sweet chocolate
- 5 large eggs, separated
- 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/2 cup superfine sugar

Measure Kahlua, coffee granules, vanilla and chocolates into 1-quart saucepan. Place directly over low heat (or, set pan in shallow pan of hot water over low heat). Stir occasionally until chocolates melt and mixture is smooth and thick. Meanwhile, beat egg yolks well in small mixing bowl. Beat in chocolate mixture and cool. When mixture cools, in a separate bowl beat egg whites with cream of tartar to soft peaks. Gradually beat in sugar to make meringue. Beat half the meringue into chocolate mixture until smooth. Fold in remaining meringue. Turn into 1-quart serving dish. Cover and chill until firm. If desired, decorate with whipped cream and white or semi-sweet chocolate curls.

Chocolate Curls: Draw a vegetable peeler across the surface of warm white chocolate or semi-sweet chocolate square. Chocolate should be slightly warmer than room temperature.

Variation: Chill in individual ready-to-serve portions. Makes 8 servings (1 quart).

Travel Smart

by Mona Nancy

Everyone loves to travel. It opens new worlds, broadens horizons and, besides, it's just plain fun! A successful trip depends on a lot of little things going right. It's attention to details that really makes the difference between a wonderful time or a bad experience.

With the increasing complexity of the travel business, keeping on top of the latest information is tougher than ever. Take airline travel.....between price wars, ever-changing schedules, special offers and increasing deregulation, it's a full-time job to find out who's flying where, when and for how much.

Guiding you through this maze is only part of what a travel agent can do for you. And, if you haven't used a travel agent lately, you'll be amazed at all the assistance a travel agent can provide. What's more, most of these services are free! Travel agents receive payment from the carrier (airline, shipline, train, bus), hotel or tour-package wholesaler-but only if they make a sale. The price is the same to you as if you had done the arrangements direct with the carrier yourself.

Experienced travel agents have, at their fingertips, access to information concerning every aspect of a trip—Airline flights, hotel accommodations, car rentals, train tickets, charter and sightseeing tours. They also have all the information you need to choose a destination and get the most from your trip.

One way to find an experienced, reliable travel agent is to look for an agent who is a member of the American Society of Travel Agents, Inc. (ASTA). The ASTA logo in a travel agent's window is a symbol of integrity and the sign of a professional who has agreed to abide by the Society's code of professional conduct and ethics.

Before you go:

1. Determine your travel budget.
 2. Decide what kind of trip you want to take. (Skiing or a cruise for fun in the sun? A business trip? Trace family roots, pursue a hobby or just escape?)
 3. Determine your destination and consider all your travel options. (Talk to a travel agent. Your travel agent can give you the details you need to decide on a destination—check all the airlines and hotels—and make all the reservations for you.)
 4. Check your insurance. (If you have homeowner's insurance, it may not cover all the valuables you plan to take with you on your trip. A travel agent can help you with traveler's insurance. If you have car insurance it may cover you when you rent a car. Some car rental companies charge up to $8.00 per day for insurance!)
 5. Take Security Measures. (Ask a trusted neighbor to check your home periodically. Install timers on lights to give appearance that you're home.)
 6. Leave a copy of your itinerary with family or a friend.
 7. Stop newspaper and mail deliveries.
 8. Make sure you have all your travel documents, including airline tickets, hotel and car rental vouchers, and passports, if needed.
- For your next trip, visit an ASTA travel agent. You'll save time, money and unnecessary aggravation. You'll also see why using a travel agent is the real secret to traveling smart.

First Roadside Park Set Up 50 Years Ago

Highway travelers in Michigan have been treated to a half-century of roadside hospitality, thanks in part to a curve that once snaked along the banks of the Red Cedar River east of Lansing.

It was there, on Old US-16—now M-49—that the first roadside park on the state highway system was born in 1935.

Former Gov. Murray D. (Pat) VanWagoner, who was state highway commissioner at the time, recalled, "We built a new bridge over the Red Cedar River and straightened out a curve on US-16 east of Lansing. That left us with a very attractive piece of riverside property where the curve had been and we decided to develop it as a roadside park."

"That happened a good many times when we straightened the alignment of highways to make them safer. But we always tried to do this without destroying the beauty of the setting, and created parks whenever we had a location that lent itself to that. The Michigan highway department has always been cognizant of roadside beauty."

Since the Red Cedar Park opened in 1935, 100 more parks, 77 freeway rest areas and numerous scenic turnouts and picnic table sites have been built on the state's 9,500-mile highway system, providing comfort and a place to rest and relax for millions of motorists.
