Trip To London

Manchester Enterprise
July 19, 1900

London, England, July 4, 1900

Dear Editor - On this day of all days in American history, my thoughts wander back to the dear land and friends across the sea, and I wonder if I could write something of sufficient interest to find a place in the columns of your paper and thereby save myself the trouble of writing numerous letters, which I have failed to do for the reason that I have been busier than the Chinese Boxers.

We arrived in this city at 2 p.m., today. "We have met the enemy and they are ours." "Old Glory" is flying from many of the highest towers of the metropolis of the British empire, and believe me kind friend, after an absence of only three weeks, I was almost overcome with joy to see my country's flag proudly floating in high heavens, for the more one sees of England the more they love America.

We left the French city of Montreal on the 17th of June, and had a beautiful trip down the St. Lawrence, until darkness shut out the view. Upon coming on deck

Sunday morning we found that we lay at anchor under the guns of the fortress of Quebec. It was a magnificent sight, the British flag was floating from the cannon crowned heights above, and as I did not feel equal to the task of hauling it down, or care to share in the fate of General Montgomery, it was still flying as we sailed away. For three days we were not out of sight of land, and on the morning of the 20th we passed Cape Race and were then for the first time on the long swells of the ocean. I soon discovered that I am not a good sailor, but there were others. I would have bought the captain and his crew anything, if they would have kept that boat still for 20 minutes, but she never stopped. We saw icebergs, whales and the green fields of the Emerald Isle, and we landed in Liverpool at 7 a.m., on the 27th.

For a sober Yankee I did more laughing that forenoon than I had for many a day. The whole "blooming" thing seemed to be like a farce or comic opera; the women seemed to be doing all the work and the men lying back and drinking ice water, but have since discovered that the women don't do quite all the work and the men don't drink all ice water.

It seems impossible, but it is true, England is being distanced by America. Everywhere American farm machinery is in use, and if you could see the two compared you would wonder why an Empire binder sells here for 32 pounds or about $165, an American for $55. The wagons, I am informed by a manufacturer in Brigg, are all made by hand and

A survey of small and medium size businesses has revealed a phenomenon that many people thought they'd never see again. Price-cutting has become a marketplace way of life.

The survey showed that in the first quarter of the year more than one-third of retail establishments cut their prices. Twenty-four percent of wholesalers did the same, and 16 percent of manufacturers.

Until the 1980s, figures of this sort were rarely seen in any survey. Prices tended to increase rather than fall back.

Now, however, price cuts have come to be expected.

The survey, among members of the National Association of Independent Business, showed that the January-March quarter was the 15th straight in which 10 percent or more of all companies actually reduced average selling prices.

Coopers & Lybrand, an accounting firm, says that price resistance is now part of the foundation of a new economic environment.

Overall, it says, the environment is good for business, but it also observes that "The increased competition in all segments of U.S. markets presents a challenge to American management."

The consumer, says Barry Rogstad, chief economist, "no longer accepts an automatic pass-through of prices increases." As a result, he says, businesses have been forced to cut margins to maintain market share and profit.

Then there is what some con-

Street Fair Publicity Exhibitor Deadlines

The Manchester Art Guild, who is presenting the Manchester Street Fair, August 10, appears to be doing it alone, unless it obtains cooperation from other businesses and organizations with activities planned to the day.

Fair proceeds are to provide award money presented annually to Manchester's most promising high school senior art student.

The Guild would like to coordinate publicity for all activities, including Main Street's Art Fair, but will not do so unless contacted by interested parties.

To be included and for more information, contact Fair Chairperson, Jo Swanberg, no later than Saturday, July 13, 1985. A small fee will be required. She can be reached at 428-8798.

The deadline for exhibiting in the juried and non-juried areas of the Art Fair is approaching, too. Applications must be received by July 31. Both shows have a $20 entry fee. The juried show will consist of artists exhibiting such work as painting pottery, jewelry, photography, blown glass, fiber, and wood. Three slides representative of the work to be shown will be required.

The non-juried show will share the Main Street area and will consist of original, quality, hand-crafted works of all types.

Substance Abuse

By Bill Mullendore
Reporter for Chelsea Standard
An In-Depth Look

I slipped, relapsed, drank some alcohol (a lot of it over a period of seven days) and wound up back in Chelsea Hospital for a three-day stay to dry out and start all over again.

Those three days were the worst of my life. I was back in the care of people who had done their best to help me when I was in the substance abuse treatment program before. Embarrassed and ashamed, I had a hard time facing them.

For the first time in my life I thought seriously of suicide, wondering if I was any good at all and worth staying alive.

Now that I'm sober again, I'm thankful that there was no weapon available. I might have used it. Those were three days of sheer mental hell. All I could think about was what a bloody fool I had made of myself.

Thanks to some very fine people—Helen Kay Leonard, Dr. Costas Kleanthous, Ed Humenay, Ellen Fabes, Gina Artz—I'm back on track, and I promise that I will stay there.

I'm told that relapses aren't unusual and that I am by no means unique in having made a slip. That is reassuring. "Look, you're the fourth person who has come back in (to Chelsea Hospital) in the last 10 days," Ed Humenay told me. "Feel bad about it, but don't feel too bad. It happens to a lot of people. You aren't alone."

If there is a weakness in the Chelsea Hospital substance abuse treatment program, it is that you are discharged from it feeling too good. After 24 days, I was on top of the world. I could do anything.

I had been pumped full of vitamins, minerals, good food and a lot of tender, loving care. I had listened to a lot of experts who told me what I needed to do to lead a happy life while staying sober. I had gotten into the Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) program and made some friends. I had gone to a series of lectures and meetings conducted by Dr. Hardee Beathea, who just may be the most remarkable person I have ever encountered in my life, a recovered alcoholic who gave up a highly profitable career in surgery to help people like me who suffer from the disease of alcoholism.

When I left the hospital, I felt better than I had in many, many years. I could see straight, think straight, sleep at night, play golf with assurance that I would hit the ball and send it somewhere, hold up my head and talk to people without worrying that they would smell booze on my breath. I had it made and wasn't smart enough to know it.

That good feeling led me to believe that finally, after all those years of drinking, I could handle alcohol. I could take a couple of drinks, get a little bit high and enjoy the sensation.

I just plain forgot (ignored) the warnings from Dr. Beathea, Dr. Kleanthous and others that those of us who are addicted to sedative drugs can't cope with them. We are sick people, and the illness is incurable. It can be arrested, but only if the patient does his part by staying off the stuff, completely. We addicts have an X-factor in our system which causes us to use more and more and more, and we can't stop once we start. The X-factor is believed to be a body chemical present in about one person out of 10. Those of us who have it were born with it, and there is as yet no known medical way to get rid of or neutralize it. It stays there for as long as you live, and does its dirty work if you let it. Addicts are born, not made. Addicts are born, not made.

The X-factor, whatever it is, makes you smart in some ways, awfully dumb in some others. Almost all of us addicts have higher than normal IQ's, but we don't have the good sense to understand that we can't use any sedative drugs without paying a terrible price. That lesson has to be learned, and sometimes re-learned.

My relapse followed a typical pattern. I drank a little bit one day, more the next, and two days later was gulping down a fifth a day, right back where I was before. Three days later Helen Kay Leonard found me drunk in my car in The Standard parking lot and took me to the hospital. Coming down and drying out was just as bad the second time around, a miserable physical experience. What made it much worse was that I had to face the same doctors, therapists and nurses who had treated me before, and confess to failure on my part.

They were all very nice about it, and made a very bad experience as easy as possible to undergo. The people who work in the substance abuse program at Chelsea Hospital use a team approach in treating their patients, and they all touch you in one way or another.

I am especially grateful to nurse Gina Artz, an extremely competent and caring young woman who went far beyond the call of duty to comfort my anguish over having slipped. Gina is of the right age to be my daughter, but she talked to me like a kind but firm mother, and she got to me. She is one of those persons you just plain can't disappoint or let down.

Coming out of the hospital this time, I believe I have learned the lesson that a substance abuser has to be forever scared of death of whatever drug he is abusing. You just plain can't get confident and figure you can handle it. Dr. Beathea tells some horror stories about alcoholics who relapsed after many years of staying sober. One celebrated his 25th anniversary of no-drinking by going out and tying one on. He died two weeks later of acute alcoholism.

Another, one of the first few members of AA, slipped after 33 years of sobriety and was also dead a few weeks afterward.

This series of stories, which include some very personal matters, are written in the hope that they will help somebody out Weeds Or Wildflowers?

Is the ox-eye daisy a weed or a wildflower? County Parks naturalist Matt Heumann will answer that question at Rolling Hills Park Sunday July 21, 10 a.m. - 12 p.m.

The interpretive walk in this rural park will be led through fields which have been reclaimed by wildflowers since the farming was discontinued.

Heumann will also discuss the order in which plants come into disturbed areas, which plants are beneficial or ecologically harmful and which plants are native or alien.

Many people don't realize how many flowers which are recognizable aren't native to this country, says Heumann. For example, ox-eye daisy, chicory, red clover and Queen Anne's lace originated in Europe.

These plants were brought over in flower pots, spice bottles, bales of hay and in mud on boots, says Heumann.

Meet the naturalist in the parking lot. Rolling Hills is off Stony Creek Road, just north of Bemis Road.

BOOK REVIEW

Washington, The Indispensable Man

by James Thomas Flexner.

As Flexner points out in his Introduction, there are millions of George Washingtons. "He is a multitude of living ghosts, each shaped...by the structure of the individual brain in which he dwells." What Flexner had to do was to separate the myths and fancies and lay bare the historical, the real Washington. What he found and what the reader of this biography will find is a truly great and good man.

We are, of course, familiar with the major events of Washington's public life—his involvement in the French and Indian War, his command of the American armies and the immortal crossing of the Delaware during the Revolution and his two-term presidency. Flexner fleshes these events out to reveal not just a remarkable man but a remarkable era.

John Adams once said that the America Revolution was accomplished in the minds of the American colonists before 1776. How accurate that assessment was actually is illustrated by Washington himself. His keen dismay at being passed over for advancement in the British army during the French and Indian conflict coupled with his failed efforts to persuade such British generals as Braddock to adapt their military methods to the American wilderness snapped one psychological thread that bound him to England. The extortions of this factor in London and his decision to turn from producing cotton for the London market and diversify his crops for a specifically American market snapped another.

As Commander in Chief of the Continental armies, Washington's biggest headaches were only incidentally the British. Because the Continental Congress lacked the authority to levy taxes on the separate colonies, Washington never had adequate food, clothing, ammunition or troops. What is remarkable, however, is that despite pressure from many quarters, including members of the Congress, Washington refused to use force to acquire supplies. In his greatest need, Washington, believing that the Revolution depended on the affection of the American people and not merely the outcome of battles, scrupulously avoided causing any harm or injury to civilians even as his own soldiers starved and froze.

The stresses of the War were piddling, however, compared to the strain of peace. Yorktown gave us independence; it did not make us a nation. As with the Revolution itself, Washington's own real estate concerns forced him to the Constitutional Convention. His behavior here could draw an issue one way or the other, he carefully refrained from making his own opinions known on even minor matters lest they unduly influence the discussions. He dominated the Convention, as he dominated American life. For the ego of an ordinary man, that realization could have been catastrophic for his countrymen. Happily, Washington was a little more than ordinary.

Similarly as president, Washington realized that the sheer weight of his personality could have turned the presidency into a monarchy. He therefore stayed carefully aloof from the controversies that swirled about him for eight years. Unhappily this hurt him. In the great debate between Hamilton and Jefferson, his refusal to take sides publicly made him a target of the Jeffersonian press who ironically accused him of being a monarchist. His second term was a particularly unhappy period. Besides being in fragile health, he had the burdens of the flare-ups on the Citizen Genet affair and the dismay over the Jay Treaty which seemed a sell-out to England as well as several other nasty incidents which at the time presented a dire threat to the fragile national unity that Washington had been able to create. Toward the end of the term, and of his life, Washington witnessed what he had striven to avoid, the beginning of partisan politics in American public life. That caused him great sorrow, that and the loss of a man he had once considered a son, Thomas Jefferson.

This is a very good book. It is a condensation of a larger work by Flexner and the chopping is sometimes evident. We are, for instance, told of Benedict Arnold's betrayal, but the story is then dropped and the gruesome tale isn't finished. On the whole, however, the condensation perhaps makes the book appealing to the popular reader rather than the scholar.

Bridgewater Township Board

June 17, 1985

The monthly meeting of the Bridgewater Township Board was called to order June 17, 1985, at 8:00 p.m. by Supervisor Parr at the Township Hall with all board members present and twelve electors present.

The clerk's May minutes were presented and approved as read. The Treasurer presented bills for approval. Any Poet made the motion seconded by Marvin Breitenwischer to pay voucher 1408 thru 1431 excluding the void check 1422. Board passed.

OLD BUSINESS

The summer tax agreement with Clinton school has been finalized. They accepted the agreement for the township to collect for $4.00 a parcel in 1985. Andy Poet made the motion seconded by Karen Weidmayer to accept this summer tax agreement. Board Passed. The Board accepted the lowest bid for moving the township hall and cemeteries. Mike McLennan bid was accepted.

A letter was sent to Scott Nelson, concerning a permit, he must apply for.

Zoning inspectors report:

New barn permit for Lakelin Enterprises granted. Strikers on Wilbur Road poll barn permit granted, Henry on Austin Road building an extension and sun porch, permit granted. Hack Road situation has improved, now conforms to present time ordinance. Wierick and Straubel has had no action. Dewey Turner has not applied for any permits at zoning inspectors office or clerk.

The audit is not complete as of the meeting. Next month results should be ready and report at that time.

Questions, last month concerning hearings on ordinances. Hearings must be presented for zoning ordinances, not regular ordinances. The Fire Ordinance 14 stands as recorded. Questions on Zoning Map that should be recorded in Zoning Ordinances 13 was found in July 20, 1981, minutes. Minutes state "Moved by Bersuder and supported by Marvin that the present zoning map be kept in effect. Carried. E. Lewis Blaisdell, Clerk." Although when the new ordinance was printed the present map was not included. Copies are on file at the clerk's office and may be added to the books. The ordinance was properly adopted, although the township was in violation of public Act, 142 1972 of not presenting a copy to the county clerk's office. A copy has been put into file at the County Clerk office. They have now 14 completed ordinances for the township. A statement prepared by Supervisor Parr reads, "I would like to thank Gabe Dull for his concern about the validity of the zoning ordinance. With the findings since the May meeting, we feel the zoning ordinance and map is in order but we found we were in violation of Public Act 142 of 1972 portion stating ordinance shall be filed with the County Clerk if Township doesn't have regular office hours. Supervisor Parr apologizes if this has caused any inconvenience to any citizen and the situation has been corrected."

Resident asked if zoning ordinance had to be published fully? Parr responded and will follow-up on Act and year.

NEW BUSINESS

Manchester Library was present to talk to the board about penal fines. Discussion took place, it was decided to look into this matter further, before signing the contract. Farmland agreement of Albert and Kenneth Feldkamp. Two agreements 75 acres, Section 13; and 63 acres on Section 24. Both Washtenaw County Planning Commission and Washtenaw County Soil Conservation approved, with correction of WGPC. Clerk recommended that the board approve this with corrections made. Andy Poet

Subject to board approval. Karen Weidmayer, Clerk made the motion that we accept these agreements as corrected, seconded by Marvin Breitenwischer. Board Passed.

Letter received by Huron Valley Ambulance report.

The motion made by Marvin Breitenwischer seconded by Andy Poet that we have Mr. Clare Arnold build a framed Notice Board to hang outside the building for Public Notices, etc. at a set bid. Board Passed.

Supervisor discussed having our complete ordinance book reproduced. After much discussion, the board directed the clerk to check costs of reproducing and scaling down the book. The Clerk read two correspondences from township residents concerning zoning ordinance and map. The clerk responded by reading portions of the board minutes that pertained to the passing of the zoning ordinance 13 and the keeping the present map in effect.

Supervisor Parr opened the meeting up to the electors for discussion. Discussion was held on reviewing zoning map and finding a proper place to display it.

Harold Bersuder made the motion that the board direct the Planning Commission to have a July meeting to look into reviewing the zoning map. Supported by Andy Poet and board passed.

A letter was read by the clerk from the Department of Treasury concerning the Revenue Sharing.

Being no further business to come before the board, Andy Poet made the motion, supported by Harold Bersuder that we adjourn. Board Passed. Next meeting July 15, 1985, 8:00 p.m. at Township Hall.

Village Planning Commission Policies

Seven policy items have been adopted by the Manchester Village Planning Commission. Some are statements of current practice and others are new. They are as follows:

- All requests for action by Planning Commission shall be submitted no later than 10 days prior to the next Regular Meeting. Applications must be submitted with evidence that all fees have been paid to the Village Treasurer, and must include all information required by the Manchester Village Code.
- An itemized agenda of each Regular Meeting of the Planning Commission shall be published in the local newspaper the week preceding the scheduled meeting.
- The agenda and other pertinent information shall be ready for Planning Commission members no later than five days prior to the scheduled meeting.
- All applications made to the Planning Commission and records of subsequent action taken on the applications shall be kept intact and on file at the Village offices.
- Current Village street map, zoning map, water, sewer and utilities drawings shall be on file at the Village offices at all times for use by the Planning Commission and by the public.
- All voting shall be by roll call except for routine business.
- Planning Commission policies, the zoning map, and fee schedule for zoning matters shall be published once each year in the local newspaper.

A listing of the scheduled Regular Meetings of the Village Planning Commission is posted on the bulletin board in the entry hall of the Village Hall, 120 S. Clinton Street.

Planning Commissioners recognize that sometimes events or circumstances will not allow citizens to give 10 days' notice when they wish to take an item to the Planning Commission. In such a case, anyone can appear at a Commission meeting and ask to have his or her item of business placed on the agenda under "New Business."

However, if such a new item of business requires an application, citizens must be aware that the Planning Commission cannot take action on the matter unless the application has been filed and the fee paid.

In addition, it will not be possible for the Commission to act on late-submitted items when Commissioners have not had sufficient time to study and research them.

Citizens are always welcome to attend meetings, voice opinions and ask questions within the structure of the approved Agenda.

For information about placing an item on the Agenda, consult the bulletin board at the Village Hall. For an application for any zoning matter, ask at the front desk at the Village Hall.

The current fees for zoning matters in the Village were adopted in 1982:

Sign Permit Application.....$45.00
Petition for Amendment to the Zoning Ordinance.....$200.00
Petition for Change in the Official Zoning Map.....$250.00
Application for Conditional Use Permit.....$125.00
Petition for Variance.....$125.00
Site Plan Review.....$150.00

Trip To London

sell for $120 to $150 and there is enough timber in one to make four of ours, but few are used as they use mostly one horse and cart. The carts are made in the same way and cost $75. They are the only conveyance in the rural districts, but they are not as bad as a ship at sea.

The times are reported good here; a farm laborer gets from 15 to 18 shillings, English money, per week; a man in the factories or mines from five to six shillings per day, and a mechanic gets one shilling per hour. There seems to be prosperity here, but there is also much poverty, but suppose that is true the world over.

We visited the ancient castle of the Duke of Norfolk, near the city of Sheffield, which was demolished by Cromwell's guns and, in which at one time Mary Queen of Scots was detained before her execution. I "swiped" from the mantle piece a hook, on which I guess his Highness used to hang his sword and buckler. We also stood on the highest tower of the old castle erected by William the Conqueror, on a high hill in the city of Lincoln. It was also stormed by Cromwell's army. It is in a state of almost perfect preservation and could hold ten thousand men within its walls. Here also we saw the famous Lincoln cathedral, which was founded in 1075 A.D. and was 400 years in building, and in one of the towers of which is a bell weighing five and one-half tons. We were pleased to find our relatives at Branton well and enjoying the comforts of life. While there I found several old men who knew my father well before he sailed for America, 53 years ago. The house in which he lived is still inhabited and the owner called me in and showed me all over the same. I went over Lord Yarborough's estate, on which my father used to work when a boy. In one field there were 4,000 young pheasants being reared by old hens in coops, and which were cared for and fed by three keepers. By the persuasive influence of a half a crown I captured one of the keeper's guns and his permission to stroll down across the estate. I dropped two crows, just to convince that Yankees had not forgotten how to shoot.

I hope I have said nothing that will be offensive to any of my English friends, for I bear no malice toward England or anything English. While here I have been treated with uniform kindness by all, with one exception—the hotel cook, and that individual I shall never forgive nor forget.

We expect to "do" the city of London this week and leave for Paris next Sunday afternoon, and sail for home the latter part of the month. There is much to see here, but it must be seen to be appreciated, so will not weary you more.

Yours with kindest regards,
A. J. Waters.

Long before Mace, Persian fold-up dagger scissors were in hot demand among Victorian ladies who carried them in their stockings as defensive weapons.

More titillating, perhaps, were the famous "jambes des princesses" embroidery scissors. Their shanks were in the shape of women's legs and were the toast of 18th-century France.

Most fancy embossed scissors have disappeared. Still, attempts to "fiddle around" persist. Finnish designer Olof Backstrom, bless him, created the bright plastic, orange-handled Fiskars in 1963.

Now found everywhere, the groundbreaking Fiskars employ plastic to achieve lightweight, warm scissors that fit the fingers snugly, almost as if you were shaking hands.

Not surprisingly, today's scissors designers, ever fashionable, are working feverishly to create ergonomic scissors. David Chapin, a scissors designer for the Cooper Group in North Carolina, is in the midst of developing ergonomic shears that will come in various sizes to fit the shapes and operation of various hands.

Chapin predicts we will soon see a proliferation of new kinds of blades in ceramic that will "stay sharp longer and be easy to produce." He also foresees blades made of the kind of plastic used in steel-belted radials.

The challenge for contemporary designers, as he sees it, is not to change the shape but to make blades durable and handles comfortable.

What other utilitarian tool cuts cuticles, trims archedeaks, grooms dogs, snips price tags and deftly converts T-shirts to tank tops? "Nobody has ever been able to invent anything to supplant the scissors," according to George Nelson, industrial designer. In the annals of design history, scissors come close to perfection.

With their polished surfaces, graceful round bows, and sleek blades meeting romantically in the middle, the storklike scissors nearly always look beautiful. Scissorhood is powerful. Evolving from the shears (technically smaller objects with unequal bows), scissors have a noble legacy extending into the Bronze Age.

Manchester Fair Rides

by Jacob Gilbert, age 8

The scrambler is a VERY fun ride. It goes fast and then all of a sudden it jerks you and it goes a different way. I always get pushed up against the side of the car. But it is still a great ride. I highly recommend it.

The spider is a scary ride. It takes you up in the air and then it tilts you backwards. You can see most of the Fair. It is neat. It goes pretty fast. But very young kids probably wouldn't like it.

The kiddy whirl has smooth small hills. It's real fun. You would twirl around and go up and down on the small hills.

Inside the moonwalk it is balloon-like. You can try to walk if you wish. I hope you can do it without falling down.

The merry-go-round is very relaxing and gives you a fun feeling because of the music. When it rains it covers you. It is probably the only ride that does cover you and does not get you sick.

Early Morning Driving Potentially More Hazardous Than Rush Hour Driving

The hours between 12:00 midnight and 3:00 a.m. are potentially more dangerous for drivers in Southeast Michigan than the morning and evening rush hour periods. In fact, a driver is five times more likely to get into an accident in the wee hours of the morning than during morning rush hour (6:00 a.m. to 9:00 a.m.) — and three times more likely than during evening rush hour (3:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m.), according to numbers compiled by SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

SEMCOG's Accident Analysis System (SAAS) is a computer-assisted information system which used traffic accident data from the Michigan State Police Location Index (MALI). MALI has a record of every reported traffic accident in the state. "We take the MALI information and further refine it," explained SEMCOG Transportation Programs Manager Carmine Palombo. "MALI just gives the number of accidents. Our system, SAAS, takes those numbers and relates them to the volume of traffic, which gives the traffic accident numbers more meaning. In other words, 50 accidents means one thing, but 50 accidents spread among 1,000 cars means something a little different. Our system is therefore unique because we can put the number of accidents into proper perspective," Palombo said.

SAAS determined the percent of accidents and traffic volumes by time of day in the region by using a three-hour Accident Exposure Index. The Index provides a means of comparing accident rates between different time periods. "Although the percentage of cars traveling during midnight to 3:00 a.m. is smaller than the percentage of cars traveling during morning rush hour, the percentage of accidents is about the same," Palombo explained.

He also stated that although there is no research which can conclusively point to any one factor, he believes one can deduce that there are several likely culprits for the increase in accident probability in the early morning. "People driving during early morning hours are likely more fatigued than people driving later in the day. Alcohol could be a factor, as could darkness," Palombo said.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of counties, cities, villages, townships, and schools in the seven-county Southeast Michigan region. The Council's principal functions are short- and long-range planning for housing, transportation, land use, public safety, recreation and open space, and the environment.

Cooperative Extension Offers Free Check Of Canner Pressure Gauge

Thousands of quarts and pints of green beans, corn, beets and other produce are canned each year in Michigan kitchens. The educated canner knows that these vegetables must be pressure canned and the only safe way to do it is with a canner that has an accurate gauge. If your canner has a gauge instead of a weight it can change over time; it should be checked yearly to insure the correct pressure.

The Washtenaw County Cooperative Extension Service will check your gauge free of charge from July 17 through September 18. For safety's sake just bring your canner lid to the Extension office at 4133 Washtenaw, County Service Center any Wednesday from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The test takes just a few minutes. There will be staff to help answer your canning questions also.

donation of one dollar, an individual will have a chance on one of the following prizes:

Plus the person selling the first place ticket will receive a Sunday Brunch for two at the Hilton.

Tickets are available from club members until the Chicken Broil or from members of the Xi Epsilon Iota Sorority during the Broil. The four winners will be drawn July 18th during the Broil.

Cards Of Thanks

The family of Douglas Drouare would like to extend a special thanks to the people who showed a great amount of sympathy, compassion and comfort to us. Relatives, friends and neighbors for their condolences, flowers, masses, memorial gifts, the generous supply of food and their overwhelming attendance at the funeral service.

To the many people, friends, neighbors, coaches, teachers, employers and co-workers that Douglas helped and that also helped him during his life, we would like to express our deepest gratitude.

Special thanks and appreciation to the many people and organizations that assisted us during our loss including the Manchester Police Department, Manchester Fire Department, Chelsea Hospital Staff, Huron Valley Ambulance, Father Schlinkert, St. Mary's Alter Society, Knights of Columbus, Ron Jenter and the many neighbors for all their compassion and support during this time.

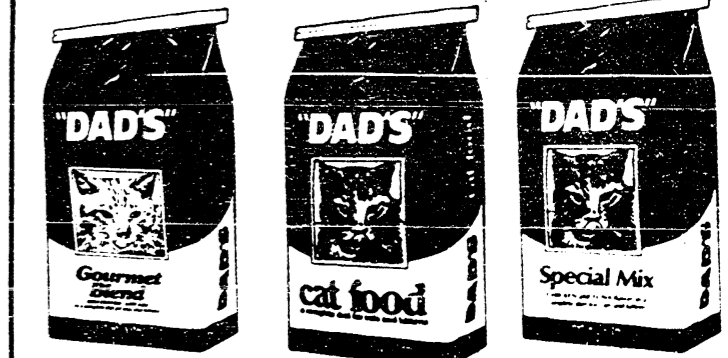

There are not words enough to thank all our family and friends for their love, support and prayers throughout Aaron's stay in the hospital.

A very special thanks to our family for their love, Pastor Reineck for his unending prayers and support, Rev. Macfarlane for his prayers, my wonderful 'sisters' of Lambda Nu for the meals and support and all our friends for the food, cards, letters and prayers.

We thank you all from the bottom of our hearts!
God Bless You All!
Dave, Cheryl and Aaron Helber

A special "Thank You" to Father Schlinkert, Reverend Macfarlane, Reverend Cantrell and Reverend Cooper for their visits and prayers. These expressions of "well wishing" by everyone have been very comforting and sustaining.

1985-86 Official Transportation Map Of Michigan Available

The 1985-86 Official Transportation Map of Michigan, the first official map published by the state in two years, is making its debut this week, State Transportation Director James P. Pitz said today.

It is the most up-to-date map of Michigan available and may be obtained at no charge from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

The family of Michigan's governor is pictured for the first time on the back cover, with a "Welcome to Michigan" message from Gov. and Mrs. James J. Blanchard and their son Jay.

Inside is a stunning display of photos showing people enjoying

"the good life" in Michigan in outdoor settings ranging from a ski area in the north country to Greenfield Village in the Detroit metropolitan area.

"Michigan, like the other 49 states, uses its map as a tool for its multi-billion-dollar tourist industry, and many of the two million maps we are printing this year will be distributed nationally and internationally by the Michigan Travel Bureau," Pitz said.

MDOT cartographers made 308 changes and additions to bring the new map up to date. It was printed in Michigan on Michigan-made paper for less than 12 cents a copy.

The map guides travelers along the 9,500-mile state highway system, on primary county roads and the major thoroughfares of the state's metropolitan area.

Users also can locate airports having lighted runways at least 3,000 feet in length, intercity bus terminals, both commercial and recreational harbors on the Great Lakes, ferry routes, freeway rest areas and roadside parks on the state highway system. The map also shows rail passenger lines and stations and, for the first time, rail freight lines as well.

Hospitals offering 24-hour emergency service and MDOT's 11 travel information centers, located mostly at border points, also are shown.

The map contains information panels on Michigan speed limits and the new safety belt law, Michigan historical markers, highway distances from city to city, location and phone numbers for state police posts and district offices of MDOT and fares charged on such facilities as the Mackinac Bridge.

The map also identifies all state parks and lists their types of accommodations and provides an index to Michigan cities and villages. Various state symbols such as the state bird (robin) are shown, too.

The new map can be obtained, at no cost, at numerous locations, including all MDOT district offices and travel information centers. Other distribution points include state police posts, district offices of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, local chambers of commerce, municipal government offices and regional tourist associations.

The Department of Transportation also will mail maps to individuals upon request. Requests should be made on a post card (not in a sealed envelope) providing the name, address and
