"Harvest That Good Feeling - Give"

Mrs. Denise Dresch submitted the winning slogan for this fall's United Way campaign. Her suggested slogan, "HARVEST THAT GOOD FEELING - GIVE", was chosen as the winner by the United Way Board of Directors from more than 30 entries submitted at the United Way booth during Manchester Community Fair week. Denise received $25 for her winning slogan from Manchester Tool and Die. Mrs. Dresch and family reside in Manchester. The suggested slogan "Show Your Concern - Share What You Earn" submitted by Ruby Andris of Troy, MI, was selected for runner-up recognition.

This year Manchester's United Way campaign has a new concept. Look for a letter in your mail rather than a solicitor at your door. And when your letter arrives "HARVEST THAT GOOD FEELING - GIVE".

Cub Scout Expansion Program Set To Get Underway

The Boy Scouts of America have announced a new and dramatic step to meet the expressed needs of younger boys and their families for a Scouting program.

Beginning this month, membership requirements for Tiger Cubs and Cub Scouts will be primarily based upon grade in school, rather than age, and the plan of action will be expanded to include first-grade boys. Age has been retained as a backup membership requirement to allow Scouting to serve all boys, including those in ungraded school situations.

The age requirements remain the same as before, which means that most boys will reach the grade before reaching the age, thus making the grade the primary determination of membership. Tiger Cubs will now be for boys in the First Grade (or age 7), and Cub Scouting will be for boys in the Second thru Fifth Grades (or ages 8 thru 10).

The Wolverine Scout Council, serving Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe, and Washtenaw Counties, will implement the Expanded Cub Scout Program as part of its regular fall recruiting effort with over 120 elementary

Hit or Miss

by Farley

The cocaine deaths of two of our star athletes has prompted action by those concerned about drug abuse among our athletes. It was easily found not to be the first time this has happened nor evidently is it the last. Records show that athletes often are drawn to drugs to improve their performance, for relaxation or for other reasons.

Many years ago, boxers took drugs such as strachine tablets, spirits of ammonia, brandy or champagne before and even during bouts it is said. Some of them we are told, even used cocaine enriched ointment rubbed into their faces and skin so they would feel little or no pain. In the early 1900s they used coffee, tea, caffeine tablets and narcotics like cocaine, heroine and others to give them a boost during races and also drank various amounts of alcoholic drinks to perk them up during the rest periods.

All of this was evidently known but largely ignored until the recent concern about drugs when the federal government appointed a committee to investigate the prevalence of these practices. For example, it came out that in 1970 an amphetamine was taken by participants in various sports such as weight lifting when it was proven that the champions (nine of them) were disqualified for taking chemical stimulants. But an investigation at that time resulted in having the charges called "ridiculous". It was said at that time that athletes in many sports had for many years been using prescribed drugs to enhance their performance.

In the months before the Olympic games of 1984, the spotlight was on the use of

Teachers Reach Tentative Agreement

A tentative agreement between the Manchester School Administration and the teachers union was reached early Monday morning, thus averting a threatened strike.

The teachers have been working without a contract since August 31st.

Issues in the contract that needed to be settled included a proposal to reduce several hours in the instructional day, insurance benefits, lay-off and re-call provisions and salary.

The School Board proposed a 2 year salary package with a 5% pay raise for 1986-87 and the teachers were asking for an 8% increase for a 1 year contract.

As of press time on Tuesday, the contract had not been ratified.

The state's 11th annual competition for drivers in small-bus systems is scheduled for Thursday, September 18, in Lansing, where drivers will vie with each other in road tests, vehicle inspections and safe-driving quizzes.

More than 100 small-bus transit systems across the state have been invited to send their best drivers to compete.

The bus "rodeo," co-sponsored by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and the Michigan Public Transit Association (MPTA), is a day-long event at the Sheraton Inn, South Creyts Road at Interstate 496 in Lansing.

The "rodeo" has a number of goals. Drivers will be rewarded for safe driving records and for having a professional attitude in performing their jobs. The event will set standards of competition to encourage all small-bus drivers to drive carefully and provide the best and most courteous service to riders.

The competition also is expected to generate better driving habits in each system and develop a team spirit among managers.

The systems include small-bus public transit operations in urban and rural areas, and elderly and handicapped transportation programs.

Special honors will go to all public transit systems that reached their 10th year of operation this year. They are systems serving the city of Adrian in Lenawee County, Crawford County, the city of Eaton Rapids and Eaton County, Yates Township in Lake County and the city of Davison in Genesee County.

All the participating systems receive financial support from the state. Last year's winners represented systems in Grand Haven, Iosco County and Charlevoix County.

Money Management

What's Available in Checking Accounts

(Prepared by The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants)

Where should you bank? Not an easy question if you are considering the various checking accounts now offered by banks and other institutions. Before you shop around for the account that best suits you, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests you become familiar with the features of each.

Here is a breakdown of current income-earning checking and saving services offered by banks, credit union, savings and loans and other financial institutions.

Regular checking: This conventional, non-interest-bearing account may be best for those who normally keep only a few hundred dollars handy to pay bills. If you maintain a specific balance, there may be no charges, but typically you might have to pay about $3 a month and about 20 cents a check.

NOW accounts: Negotiable order of withdrawal accounts are mainly checking accounts that pay interest, but a fee for not keeping a specified minimum balance may offset what you earn in interest.

Super NOW accounts: Similar to NOW accounts, this version features a higher interest rate but a higher minimum balance as well. That balance is set by the bank and often is $1,000. Dip below the balance and you may receive lower interest or may even have to pay a penalty.

Money-market deposit accounts: MMDAs pay still higher interest rates and also allow check writing on a minimum balance. But the number of checks and other transactions may be limited.

Money-market mutual funds: This fund invests your money in money-market instruments, normally at attractive interest rates and provides you with a checking account. The initial deposit can be as low as $250 and you can earn interest on any size balance. There may be limitations on the dollar amount and number of checks you can write.

Money-market mutual funds could pay an attractive rate of return. According to the Donoghue Organization, which tracks money-fund yields, the yields early this year averaged more than seven percent. Recently yields have dipped below that figure.

Asset management account: Many brokerage houses offer checking accounts. In this instance, the money on deposit - which is put into one account - is actually money you have invested in various securities of your choice. The initial deposit ranges from $5,000 to a hefty $20,000 and can be cash or securities.

Through a special bookkeeping feature offered by many organizations, each check you write is identified and at the end of the year you will be told how much money went to, say, insurance, medical care, charities and other categories.

Asset management accounts offer a potentially high rate of return on your investment and the convenience of having all your assets in one place. However, this also places your money in the hands of one money manager. So find out what the manager's track record is and what current rate of return is being paid to other customers.

Who offers these accounts: Banks, as well as savings and loans, credit unions and even investment companies and retail merchandisers together offer a roster of choices. Add to that the varying fees and rates of return, additional services and limitations and the choices could be confusing.

But if service, convenience and safety are also important to you, don't let the rate of return or possible fees be your only guides.

Does the institution offer good terms on the products and services you want? If you decide to take out a loan in the near future, determine now if the rates may still be competitive. Can you sign up for overdraft checking protection to avoid a bounced check? Are the employees helpful?

An institution may have convenient automatic teller machines, but find out how long a check you deposit will be held before you can use the money. Can you cash a payroll check there?

Finally, to be safe, choose an institution insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund or the Securities Investor Protection Corp.

The choice of an interest-bearing account may not be based only on interest rates or services, but also on the number and size of your assets. Your CPA will consider all these factors and can help you decide what type of account is right for you.
