Village Bought A Chemical Engine

Manchester Enterprise
March 14, 1907

Sutphin's Successful Test On The Public Square Friday Night.

The village council has been much perplexed over the condition of our fire department since it was announced that "Romeo" was no good, and they have been working hard to find a way to give protection to property in the village against loss by fire. The use of the Babcock extinguishers in fighting fires, and especially when one is first discovered, has proved their efficiency time and again, and acting on the experience, the council decided to purchase a chemical engine. They entered into negotiations with C.H. Sutphin, manufacturer at Columbus, O., who brought a 45 gallon engine here, and on Friday evening the council and a large crowd of our citizens assembled on the public square to witness the test. A large pile of dry goods, boxes and other inflammable material was made, which was lighted, and when all was burning and the fire not enough to drive the crowd back, Mr. Sutphin took the hose and in a few seconds time completely subdued the flames. He accomplished his work so quickly and easily that all stood speechless with astonishment. In fact, we may say some were disappointed, because they did not think that he could accomplish it so easily.

As we said before, the engine is of 45 gallons capacity and there was a pressure of 85 pounds. Not more than a gallon was used on the fire. Mr. Sutphin then explained the simplicity of manipulation, throwing fine spray, or a large stream a distance of 50 feet or more.

The council were so well pleased that a meeting was called and the engine and ten Royal extinguishers were purchased for $335.00.

It is the opinion of President Freeman and others that it would be policy to purchase a 20 gallon machine to be kept on the east side of the river. Well regulated fire departments everywhere bring their chemical engines first into use and then, if the fire is too great for them they use the steamers, as it is well known that less damage is done to contents of building by chemicals than by being soaked with water. Several of our merchants have given orders for Royal hand extinguishers to place in their stores or residences and we wish others would do likewise, as most of the fires could be extinguished with one.

Hit or Miss

by farley

There are in the daily newspaper ads various TV and radio reports of the news, now and then an item tucked in between the more violent items, that brings a smile which is badly needed.

For instance the other night we stumbled across a news report from WCAU in Philadelphia when the announcer read that the Philadelphia Council had unanimously passed an ordinance requiring that all horses, except those used by the mounted police, be "equipped with manure control equipment." The announcer, after reading this, suffered a mild concussion but when he regained control he added, "I think that this ordinance should be broadened to include all members of the City Council."

Then there was the tale of the business man in a neighboring town who some time ago sold his business and retired. Some months later he decided that he and his wife did not need the large house in which they lived and so they and his faithful canine of many years, who was always seen with him, bought and moved into a mobile home nearby.

As we said, his dog was always with him all day and wherever he went. So when he went anywhere in his car, along went the dog.

A week or so after they moved into their new home, the dog's master and his wife left home in their car on an errand not too far away, putting the dog in the home and locking the doors.

Now you know the rear doors on most mobile homes consists of a sturdy frame covered with plastic coated canvas which makes a sturdy door but when the chap and his wife returned home they found that the dog had clawed a hole in the door and had crawled out.

Of course a search was immediately organized and the dogless fellow frantically searched the whole area frantically but to no avail. With a tearful face, exhausted and heartbroken, he finally returned home and tried to sleep. As daylight dawned he rose and went forth to resume his

Just a short note to let you know that in my opinion, someone deserves a pat on the back.
 Whether individual or Village effort - that ice skating rink and heater and porta-potti shows that these Village citizens care about the local kids.

Thank you,

Cooperative Extension Service

When Percy Spencer found a melted chocolate bar in his pocket he was mystified. He wondered if his laboratory work with radar would be connected. Later, others explored the radiation he worked with and designed the microwave oven to cook food.

A repeat program to teach how to use microwaves for more than just heating coffee or melting chocolate will be presented by the Cooperative Extension Service at the County Service Center, Hogback and Washtenaw on Monday, January 27, at 7:30 p.m. Marion Prince, Extension Home Economist will explain the basic principles of successful cooking in a microwave oven, demonstrate a variety of dishes and explain how to adapt your favorite recipes. She will discuss the appropriate utensils to use in the oven and will show how to prepare meats, vegetable and sauces.

The program, "Microwave and Beyond" is a part of the monthly series "Corner on the Kitchen" which is open to all regardless of race, color, creed, sex, national origin or handicap. Reservations are required and can be made by calling the Cooperative Extension Service office at 973-9510. A $3.00 fee will be collected at the door to cover food for tasting.

Common Science

Termites cannot digest wood by Joe Jeffers, Ph.D.

Termites can cause tremendous damage to wooden structures. Each year approximately $500,000,000 is spent in the United States on the control of wood-eating termites. It seems odd, then, to say that termites cannot digest wood. Termites can eat wood, but they cannot digest it. In order to digest a food any creature needs enzymes that can break the food material into smaller parts. The major structural material in wood is cellulose. Consider cellulose as a very long chain made up of as many as 1500 individual links. The links themselves are glucose molecules. Glucose is a high energy food that is needed in the diets of animals. As long as the glucose is tied up on the structure of the cellulose chain, it is not available as an energy food. In order to break cellulose down so individual glucose molecules are released, the proper enzyme must be available. Termites do not have the enzyme that breaks cellulose down into glucose. They do have, however, microscopic creatures called protozoa that live in their intestines. The protozoa do have the enzyme necessary to digest cellulose. They digest enough for their own uses and have enough left over to supply the termite as well.

A termite cannot survive without protozoa. It would die of a rather acute case of indigestion. A newly hatched termite instinctively lacks the anus of another termite to obtain a supply of the protozoa. Each time a termite molts it loses its gut linings and with them its protozoa. Again it must lick another termite to replenish its supply of protozoa. What does the protozoa get from all of this? It simply lies back and waits for the termite to deliver its dinner. In this relationship, a form of symbiosis, both the termite and the protozoa benefit.

Common Science

Other examples of symbiosis are common in nature. Cows routinely eat grass which has a high cellulose content. They cannot digest cellulose either, but types of bacteria and protozoa that live in their stomachs can digest it and produce enough excess glucose to supply the cows as well. We humans also do not digest cellulose. We have neither the proper enzyme nor the microorganisms that can digest it for us. Cellulose passes through us undigested, providing roughage in our diets. We get our major supply of glucose from starch, which is also a long chain composed of glucose units. The glucoses in starch are linked together in a different way than the glucoses in cellulose. Fortunately we do have the enzyme that breaks starch into glucose units. Humans do have a symbiotic relationship with intestinal bacteria, however. These bacteria, call E. coli, digest some foods we cannot and as a result supply us with vitamin K and vitamin B12. Symbiosis is not limited to animals. Plants in the legume family - beans, peas, clover, peanuts, etc. - have knots on their roots. Inside these knots live bacteria that can convert nitrogen from the air into ammonia, thereby supplying the plant with its own in-house fertilizer system. The plant in return supplies other nutrients to these "nitrogen fixing" bacteria.

Air Essay Contest Set for Schoolkids

What does air transportation mean to your community? That's the question thousands of Michigan students have been invited to answer for the third annual aviation education essay contest sponsored by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission (MAC) with other state aeronautics departments and the Federal Aviation Administration. The purpose of the contest is to help young people to better understand air transportation, its effects on people's lives and the economy of the nation. The topic of the essays is "Aviation in My Community."

In the first two years of the contest, $8,000 in prizes have been awarded to national winners. Regional and state prizes also are awarded.
A fifth-level student at Palmer School in Grand Rapids, Truc Bui, was regional winner in last year's contest.
Packets containing contest rules and judging information have been sent to all school districts in Michigan.

Students in grades four through twelve are eligible to enter the contest, which opened Jan. 15. Deadline for entry is March 3.
While the MAC recommends that teachers work with their classes in participating in the contest students may enter on their own.
Essay entries should be mailed to: Director, Michigan Aeronautics Commission, Capital City Airport, Lansing, Michigan 48906.

Zilwaukee Bridge 75 Percent Done

Working night and day in frigid weather, workers have completed the northbound span of the Zilwaukee Bridge.
Placement of the last of the nearly 800 reinforced concrete segments forming the northbound deck of the twin-bridge structure brought the construction season to a close.
The contractor, S.J. Groves & sons of Minneapolis, now can move the erection equipment into place by spring for work on the southbound bridge.

"I tip my hat to the contractor and to the state transportation department people who worked up there on the bridge in some of the coldest weather of the year to get the job done," said State Transportation Director James Pitz. "I also commend the contractor for devising an ingenious method of warming the concrete segments so that they could be erected in sub-freezing temperatures."
"We expected the company would call it quits for the season about the end of November," Pitz said, "but they decided to press on regardless of the weather in order to be ready to work on the southbound bridge early next spring."

Epoxy used to seal the joints between the segments, which weigh up to 180 tons apiece, needs temperatures of 40 degrees or more to set. The contractor devised a system of insulating material, ducts and propane gas-fired heaters to keep the concrete warm during the 48-hour period needed for the segments to cure.
The segments on the mile-and-a-half long northbound bridge are held together by some 2,000 miles of post-tensioned steel cable.
The bridge is nearly 75 percent completed. So far 540 of the 1,592 segments required for the project have been erected and all 53 support piers are in place.
Fabrication of the segments for the southbound structure will continue through the winter in a plant built at the bridge site for that purpose. Only 351 remain to be cast.
The bridge, which will replace a drawbridge carrying I-75 Freeway over the Saginaw River, is scheduled for opening in late 1987.

Hit or Miss

Manchester hosted the Grass Lake Warriors on Tuesday night and ended up winning our second game of the season, 62-56. We jumped to an early 13 point lead in the first quarter, outscoring the Warriors 17-4. Grass Lake tried to come back but it was too far to come and we won easily. Rob Smith led all scorers with 18, as Bill Broucek and John Curley popped for 11 each.

Our Little Dutch had a big lead at the intermission, but the Grass Lake squad fought back to win at the buzzer, 60-59.

Friday, the League-leading Napoleon Pirates came to town and downed us 53-28. We played a very tough first period to keep the score knotted at 12. Unfortunately, turnovers and mental mistakes allowed Napoleon to outscore us in the next 20 minutes 33-10. John Curley led our scoring with 10, as Kevin Creech added 6.

Our Little Dutch got back on the winning track by handily dumping Napoleon.

search. One of the first places he went to look was the area where he used to live and as he neared his former home he saw, sitting on the front porch of that home, wagging his tail. The dog who bounded forth to a happy reunion with his master. The dog's owner had been so desperate because he and his wife had planned to leave the next day to drive to California to visit their daughter. So now with the third member of the family safe and more or less sane the three were seen the following morning heading westward with three in the front seat with the one in the middle wagging his tail and with a smile on his face.

Attention! Class of '81

There will be a meeting to discuss our five year reunion on Tuesday, January 28, at 7:00 p.m. at Laurie Keister's, 14011 Pleasant Lake Road.

Attention! All Sportsmen Club Members

The annual meeting is January 30th, at 8 o'clock. Important issues and agenda.

Dutch Netters Struggle

Jodi Brokaw digs.

On Tuesday, Manchester travelled to Michigan Center, where we never got on track as the Cardinals downed us 16-14 and 15-8. Renea Drouare had 6 hits and 4 kills, while Kim Bailey had 8 hits and 3 kills. Treasa Rose had 15 sets and 3 assists, as Renee Yeutter had 10 service points.

Thursday, we visited Hanover-Horton. I have no stats, but understand that we lost.

Congratulations to the Wrestling Squad for beating Vandercook Lake Thursday.

Shakespeare Reading Club

The Shakespeare Reading Club met on the afternoon of January 7th at the Sharon home of Lenora Parr. After a short business meeting, conducted by the president, Hazel Walker, the program entitled Needlework: Women's Balm was presented by the hostess. She began with a review of the role needlework of various types had played in the confined and often lonely lives of American women from pioneer times down to the present. Then turning to a display of needlework from her own collection arranged on an old-fashioned clothes drier, she told the history of each piece before passing it around for closer inspection. Some pieces had come down to her from family members. Others had been acquired at local sales and auctions. The program closed as each member presented exhibited an example of needlework, either their own work or that of another.

According to custom, the meeting closed with members noting current events that had held special interest for them.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club held its January meeting on the fourteenth at the home of Mary Blossom. Traditionally the first meeting of the year includes a reading and review of the constitution and by-laws and an opportunity for members to make written suggestions for the following year's program. This and other business was conducted by the president, Janice Little. Following this year's theme of Women in Art, Elizabeth Beuerle and Joanne Okey presented a program on women in Dance.

They began with a brief history of the development of dance from its primitive beginnings, through folk and religious forms, to its present art form complete with special music, choreographers, dance companies and of course, prima ballerinas and solo dancers in modern dance styles. Those women especially noted were Anna Pavlova, Margot Fonteyn, Isadora Duncan, Maria Tallchief, Karen Kain, Martha Graham and Ruth St. Dennis.

The program was followed by discussion of dance performances attended in the past and of the Ann Arbor dance studio operated for many years by Ms. Okey's grandmother, Sylvia Hamer.

Drinking and Pregnancy

During the week of January 12, 1986, local and national organizations around the Nation sponsored a series of programs and activities launching the "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Campaign." And with good reason, too: fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) is one of the three leading causes of mental retardation in newborn babies. If you are pregnant or are thinking about having a baby, FAS is a health problem about which you should know something.

Almost everyone is aware that alcohol abuse over a period of time can contribute to many serious disorders in adults, including muscle and heart disease, malnutrition, digestive problems, and cirrhosis of the liver. Many also know that alcohol, when used during pregnancy, can damage the frail, delicate unborn baby.

For a number of years, researchers have been studying infants born to women who drank heavily during their pregnancies. What they found in a significant number of these infants is a disturbing pattern of physical, mental, and behavioral abnormalities—FAS. Babies with FAS were smaller and weighed less than normal babies, and they did not "catch up" later, even when they were given special postnatal care.

Babies with FAS also had small heads, facial irregularities, joint and limb abnormalities, heart defects, and poor coordination. Most were also mentally retarded. Many had a number of behavioral problems such as hyperactivity, extreme nervousness, and a poor attention span.

Not every baby affected by alcohol has all the symptoms of FAS. Some children have only one or two alcohol-related birth defects. Some of these more subtle defects can adversely affect a child's performance in school even when the child has a normal level of intelligence. And, even one alcohol-related birth defect is an unnecessary tragedy. The point is that all alcohol-related birth defects—including FAS—are completely preventable if women refrain from drinking while they are pregnant.

Research is just beginning to show the amount of alcohol that may harm the developing baby. While there are, as of yet, no hard and fast rules, we do know that even moderate amounts of alcohol pose a risk to the unborn baby. Women who consume two normal-size drinks a day, for example, increase their chances of miscarriage and of having a baby that is smaller than babies born to women who avoid alcohol altogether. Women who drink heavily during pregnancy—six or more drinks a day—clearly risk giving birth to a child with fetal alcohol syndrome.

There is much that we still do not know about alcohol-related birth defects. We are not sure at what point during pregnancy the developing baby is most likely to be harmed by alcohol. Nor do we know to what extent the effects of drinking may be made worse by such factors as smoking and poor nutrition, although both are of themselves dangerous to the normal growth of the unborn baby. Until all the facts are in, however, the best advice I can offer women who are pregnant or who want to become pregnant is to refrain completely from drinking alcoholic beverages.

Even without all the answers, there are two things that are beyond dispute. First, the more the mother drinks, the greater are the risks she takes with the health of her unborn baby. Second, there is no possibility of having a child with any alcohol-related birth defects—including FAS—if the mother does not drink at all.

To help ensure that your baby is strong and healthy, I'm sure you will agree that the safest and wisest choice is to avoid alcohol during this most important time of your life and your baby's life.

During this next year, the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, U.S. Public Health Service, is sponsoring the "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Campaign" in conjunction with the American Medical Association; the National Council on Alcoholism; the March of Dimes; the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC); the Agency on Developmental Disabilities, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services; and the Healthy Mothers, Healthy Babies National Coalition. For more information about alcohol-related birth defects, write the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information, P.O. Box 2345, Rockville, MD 20852 or call (301) 466-2662.

1987 marks the sesquicentennial of Michigan's statehood. In honor of that celebration, the Michigan Genealogical Council and the Library of Michigan will offer an impressive Sesquicentennial Pioneer Certificate to eligible persons. Anyone (resident or out of state resident) who can prove they are a direct descendant of a person who resided in the state of Michigan before December 31, 1837, is welcome to apply for this permanent remembrance.

All applications and verifying material become the property of the Michigan Genealogical Council and the Library of Michigan. The collection will be housed permanently at the Library of Michigan.

In 1976, the Michigan Genealogical Council and the Library of Michigan co-sponsored a similar project. Bicentennial certificates were issued to persons who could prove direct descendant from persons living in Michigan prior to December 31, 1876. Over 10,000 certificates were issued. The verifying material accompanying the applications produced a collection of almost 50 legal size file drawers of genealogical and historical data. This valuable material is a permanent collection at the Library of Michigan, available to countless genealogists, historians, students, and biographers.

Although the date of December 31, 1837, would appear to limit the number of applications, the Michigan Genealogical Council feels we will surpass the number of applications (10,000) in 1976 for a number of reasons.

(1) Genealogy has become the second largest hobby in the nation, outranked only by stamp collecting since the phenomenon of Alex Haley's "Roots" in 1976.

(2) In 1976, there were 15 member societies of the MGC in Michigan, numbering from 25 - 800 members per society. To date there are 60 societies (50 - 1200 members each society) and still growing.

(3) In 1837, there were 60,000 residents of Michigan. Though difficult to estimate, it is safe to assume over one million persons nationwide would be eligible to obtain the certificate.

(4) With the combined, anticipated publicity from the Sesquicentennial Publicity Commission, the Library of Michigan, and the MGC, millions of persons will be aware of this project.

The Library of Michigan will provide printing, space, equipment and limited postage for the project.

Michigan Genealogical Council will place a cost of $10 - $15 per certificate to cover the clerical and professional staff processing cost. Michigan Genealogical Council will provide volunteers from the 60 member societies for a variety of tasks.

A professional slide/tape presentation of the project would be an added plus to this project. Multiples of this slide/tape presentation would be made available to libraries, genealogy societies, and historical societies. In addition, the film would be available for use in classrooms for social studies programs in Michigan schools.

The MGC requests the Michigan Sesquicentennial Commission to consider this project as a designated Sesquicentennial project.

Financial support of $10,000 to produce the slide/tape presentation would be most helpful. Additional financial support to pay per diem expenses to volunteers for assistance at these presentations would enhance this project.

Interchange Project Ahead of Schedule

Work is progressing ahead of schedule on the reconstruction of the heavily-traveled interchange of I-94 and the Southfield Freeway (M-39) in Wayne County.

A $25,586,327 contract to complete the job was awarded to Holloway Construction Co. of Wixom by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

The firm was the low bidder on the final phase of the project to rebuild the aged interchange, built in the 1940's.

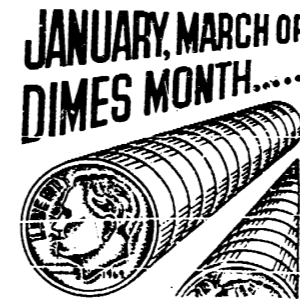

"We are working with the contractor to do everything possible to fully open up the interchange before the scheduled completion of the ramps in May 1987," said State Transportation Director James P. Pitz.

"We are paying $10,000 in incentive awards for each day the firm completes the project ahead of schedule to a maximum of 120 days. The aim is to minimize the impact on area businesses and residents, as well as motorists."

Although vehicles may drive straight through the interchange, they cannot make turning movements from I-94 to the Southfield Freeway, or vice versa.

The reconstruction is being done in three stages. Work on one portion was completed in 1981, and another section, now under construction by Holloway Construction Co., involves constructing I-94 on new alignment from Pelham Road to Ecorse Creek.

"That job is running ahead of schedule, and we recently opened the new lanes of I-94 through the interchange to traffic," Pitz said.
