

SesquiTrain '87 Travels 150 Miles In 13 Days

Led by a prairie schooner replica, a nearly three-mile-long horse-powered SesquiTrain will travel 150 miles through Southern Michigan during a 13-day celebration in mid-June, reports AAA Michigan.

Nearly 100 wagons, carriages and coaches representing Michigan, Iowa, Indiana, Georgia, Ohio and Canada will travel about four miles per hour, giving spectators an opportunity to see how settlers traveled to Michigan.

SesquiTrain '87 will begin its loop trip in Lansing June 15. It will camp at Charlotte, June 15; Olivet, June 16; Marshall, June 17; Albion, June 18; Jackson, June 19-21; Munith, June 22; Pinckney, June 23; Brighton, June 24; Fowlerville, June 25; Williamston, June 26; and returns to the state capital June 27.

Sponsored by the Michigan Department of Agriculture, the train will be accompanied by more than 136 outriders and Pony Express teams. Nearly 500 persons and 365 horses will be part of the train.

Participants may join the train at any time and stay as long as they wish. There is no fee, but advance registration is required with the Michigan Sesquicentennial office, 517-482-1987.

Spectators cannot ride in the train, but they can talk to the participants when the train stops or watch it as it travels. When the train makes camp, spectators can get a close-up look at the wagons, including the prairie schooner.

The lead wagon is one of 50 built by an Arkansas carriage-maker in the early 1970s. It represented Michigan in the 1976 Bicentennial Wagon Train Pilgrimage to Valley Forge and is on loan from the Michigan State Historical Museum where it has been on display since 1980.

The smaller successor to the Conestoga wagon, the prairie schooner's large wheels were developed to navigate the rough trails common in the Midwest in the 1830s.

Those who wish to see the schooner and other wagons under way may do so as it follows this route: I-69 access road from Lansing to Charlotte, Old U.S. 27 from Charlotte to Marshall, Michigan Road from Marshall to Jackson, M-106 from Jackson to Pinckney, Pinckney Lake Road from Pinckney to Brighton and Grand River from Brighton to Lansing.

At each encampment in host towns, a group of local youths will perform "Make Mine Michigan," a musical history of the state written by two music teachers. Local entertainment will follow.

While in Charlotte, the Mini-Theatre of Charlotte will perform "Sesqui-What?", a spoof of the state's 150th year of statehood, followed by square dancing and a western sing-a-long.

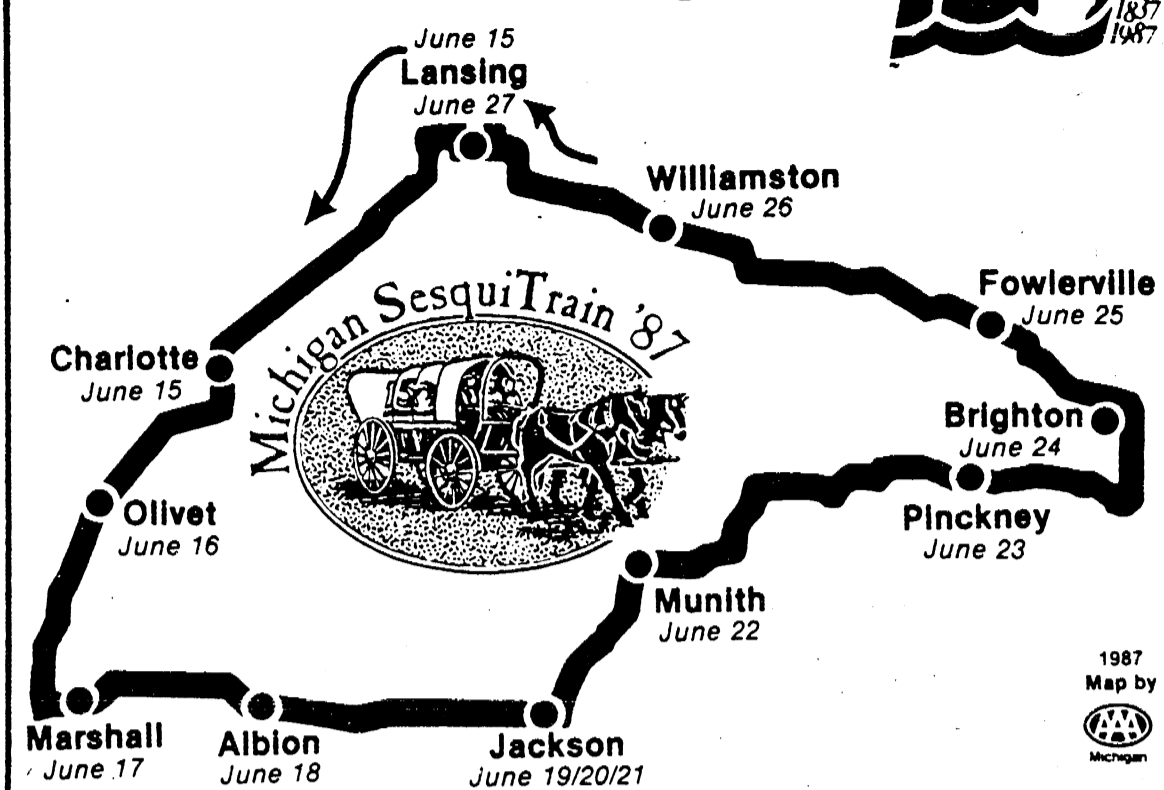

For children, the Girl Scout troop at Parkview School will have a display of pioneer life at Kardel all at the fairgrounds, where the train will set up camp.

A chicken dinner will be served by the Lions Club, and the Future Farmers of America will provide breakfast before the train leaves in the morning.

Pigs donated by area farmers will be roasted to feed the wagon train participants at the Starr Commonwealth Schools in Albion.

When the train enters Albion, it will be greeted by an equestrian team which will escort the wagons to the campground site behind Albion Senior High School. Local church groups will provide breakfast and dinner for the wagon train while in Albion.

Celebrate Michigan's 150

A display of real horse power in motion can be seen June 15-27 as SesquiTrain '87 loops through Southern Michigan. The horse-drawn wagon train begins its journey in Lansing and camps at 10 cities before it returns to the state capital. More than 100 wagons, carriages and coaches will make a train nearly three miles long as they travel four miles per hour. The train plans to follow this route: I-69 access road from Lansing to Charlotte, Old US-27 from Charlotte to Marshall, Michigan Road from Marshall to Jackson, M-106 from Jackson to Pinckney, Pinckney Lake Road from Pinckney to Brighton and Grand River from Brighton to Lansing. Spectators can watch the train en route and talk to the participants in camp. Anyone interested in taking part should contact the Michigan Sesquicentennial Office at (517) 482-1987.

Broil Funds Help Build Manchester

For the past 33 years money from the annual Charcoal Chicken Broil has helped renew and improve the village. By its 30th year, in 1983, funds raised by the Chicken Broil totaled more than $110,000.

The service groups involved in the planning of the Broil have financed projects mostly for the youth in Manchester, putting lights on the playing fields, purchasing and improving the parks and recreational facilities.

In 1983 the Blacksmith Shop was purchased and dedicated to the Historical Society. The building is now used as a meeting place for that and other local groups, and as a showplace during annual events like the Street Fair, Mayor Exchange Day, and Chicken Broil Day.

Chi-Bro Park, by the water tower on Ann Arbor Hill, is a little used park because it has no ball diamonds and little play equipment. But it is a beautiful natural park with a small lake and nature trails and a very peaceful atmosphere. It was purchased with funds from the Broil in the early 1980s.

Lately funds have also been expended to benefit the Senior Citizens. The Lifeline program in the area allows Seniors with health problems to activate a device which will summon emergency medical aid when they are unable to reach the telephone. It is possible that profits from this year's Broil will expand the program by buying more of this equipment.

Profits from the Broil have generally increased over the years, although the weather certainly determines much of the outcome. Most of the recent years have averaged between $7,000 and $9,000.

MACC Initiates Phone Study

As a means of assisting phone service improvement in the Manchester area, Jim Mann, Director of Organizational Relations of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, has developed a form on which businesses and residents can log details of problems encountered.

Forms may be obtained from Jim Mann at Spears and Associates, Mark VanBogelen at First of America, Judy Fahey at Fahey Realty, or David Little at Great Lakes. To insure the accuracy of the study, the logs need to be kept over an extended period of time. The Chamber of Commerce plans to turn in batches of forms to Michigan Bell each month, so businesses and residents should turn in their forms to one of the above locations on a regular basis.

Michigan Visited In Early Days

Game Was Abundant And Attracted Many Hunters Before Settlers Took Up Land.

Manchester Enterprise
March 24, 1927

Many more than 100 years ago French voyagers made their way from Quebec and Montreal to Detroit, Mackinac and also to various points on all the Great Lakes. Missionaries and adventurers had learned about the great empire of the west and had followed the explorers, and even substantial residents of eastern states had visited Detroit where they learned about the beauty and fertility of Michigan and they made excursions into the interior to verify the reports.

Naturally they traveled in the direction of Ypsilanti because they wished to see how the land looked at the source of the Huron river, but Ypsilanti had not yet been staked out. We have it from good reports that many visited this section, because it was on the good report of some of them that some of the first settlers here were induced to stake out claims.

Some continued west up the Huron river and passed what is now Ann Arbor and Dexter and then went south, passing the "Great bend of the Raisin," as this section was afterward known by settlers from the east. Continuing, some passed on down Evans creek until they reached its junction with the Raisin river near Tecumseh, then east to Monroe.

Early settlers afterward told about "land lookers" making a circuit similar to this.

Others landed at Monroe and came west from there through a trackless timber region for upwards of 25 miles.

We recollect attending many meetings of pioneers when a small lad and was fascinated, sometimes even frightened, by exciting tales of encounters with Indians and wild animals of various kinds and of the trial of cutting their way

Manchester Historical Study Group Needs Help

In the fall of 1985, the Manchester Village Council and Planning Commission decided to explore the possibility of establishing one or more state-designated historic districts within the Village and therefore re-established the Manchester Historic District study group which undertook some preliminary work on the subject some years ago.

Today this group is finishing the architectural and historical survey of the Manchester central business district buildings. This survey will be submitted to the Michigan History Division, Department of State, for their evaluation.

Our group needs some help on the history of what we are calling the "Exchange Place Historic District". This name was given the business district back in the 1860's where many of the buildings around us were constructed.

A map of the Exchange Place Buildings has been constructed by the group and included individual pictures of each separate building. The map and pictures will be on display at various localities the next 15 days. We would urge that each of you take a few minutes to look at the map and indicate any information that you might have regarding the buildings. The map

Senior Citizens News

A picnic deluxe is what we had on Thursday at Senior meal. Hot dogs, potato salad and beans were expected as part of the deal. Well lo and behold, when we arrived, Jan and Cindy were busy as bees. Extra helpers were there to carry out plans. Seventy-eight were greatly pleased. There was lobster Dorothy had asked for, and watermelon galleons, so artistic. What's a picnic without ants? Yes, half inch ones - realistic! When again Jan says 'It's a picnic', with that twinkle in her eye, we'll all be there with bells on, but for now we'll just say 'bye-bye'.

Senior meal program has ceased until September, although there are activities for those who are 55 or over to join. On Thursday, June 18, men will play golf.

Friday, June 19 - Everyone who enjoys bingo are welcomed to our air-conditioned Senior Center at 1:30 p.m. at a penny a card. Light refreshments will be served.

There will be no potluck on Wednesday, June 24 - time to go to weekly ice cream socials (Emanuel's is that day).

Thursday, June 25 - Golf will be played by the men. At 8:00 p.m., the monthly card party at Freedom Township Hall will again attract all of you who love Euchre. This is a fun way to enjoy these hot summer evenings - forget the heat and warm up to all the competition.

Looking ahead - A potluck is scheduled at 12 noon at the Center with bingo following for Friday, June 26. The Mich-Con presentation at the Michigan Theater will take place on Saturday, June 27. Departure time is 12:30.

On Sunday, June 28, there is still time to go along to the Crosswell Theater program. Bus will leave at 2:00 for the 3 p.m. show and seniors will enjoy eating out at Jonathan's Restaurant

Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jean Wheeler will celebrate their Golden Anniversary at an open-house on Sunday, June 21, 1987, from 2:00 p.m. until 4:30 p.m., at the Manchester United Methodist Church, 501 Ann Arbor Street. Hosting the open-house will be their children and grandchildren, Janice and Bill Wheeler and sons, of Weberville, MI, Pat and Bob Johnson and family, of Hendersonville, TN., Carol and Ted Wheeler and family, of Grass Lake, MI, and Kay and Jack Wheeler and son, of Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler have been Manchester residents for 48 years, moving here from Ann Arbor in 1939, when Mr. Wheeler began working for Ford Motor Company, and were helped in the construction of the Manchester Ford plant. He continued working for Ford Motor for 33 1/2 years, retiring in December, 1972. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler transported afternoon kindergartners to school, with Mr. Wheeler driving a school bus and Mrs. Wheeler using their car. Mrs. Wheeler worked as a clerk for Lannom's Variety Store and Manchester's Way Bakery, and as a secretary for Manchester Public Schools, working a half day each at the high school and middle school, from 1954 to 1962, and as a secretary and personnel manager for Manchester Plastics, Inc., from August, 1964 to August, 1981; working part-time for two years after retirement.

The Wheelers were married by the Reverend William Johnson, at the Marble Memorial Methodist Church in Milan, on June 10, 1937.

They have lived at their present address for forty years, where they enjoy flower gardening, reading, woodworking and volunteer work.

Friends are invited to stop by.

Michigan Visited

through the thick growth of vines, nettles and all sort of underbrush. They encountered many snakes, some of which they knew were poisonous and occasionally one would tell about being bitten by one. Of course no man was brave or foolish enough to attempt to travel along through the wilderness, often four or more traveling together.

Usually men found land that suited them, and making their way back to Detroit or Monroe, "located" a portion before returning east. Those men usually came a year or two later to begin active operations of clearing away for a home, but some disposed of their claim.

We recollect of hearing the early settlers speak about the great quantity of fur-bearing animals inhabiting this section and about how many of the men made hunting and trapping their regular occupation, finding even a good market for pelts and furs.

There were many bears in this section and, wolves, foxes, wild cats, otter, mink and muskrat galore.

We frequently heard people say that the reason Michigan was not settled as early as Wisconsin and other states was because the fur-buying companies did not wish it settled by farmers who would clear the land and destroy the trappers' paradise. That showed their ignorance, because there was vastly more money re-cieved from the fur catch in Michigan 100 years later, 1925 than was taken in two years when it was a wilderness, and the supply is so guarded that the trapper continues to reap a rich harvest each year.

Another reason why Wisconsin was settled first was because of its bid for foreign immigration, while General Cass and others chose rather to have their New England friends locate in this Beautiful peninsula.

Art Bill Signed Into Law

Legislation to create warranties on the sale of art works such as lithographs, etchings and photographs, was signed into law earlier this week. Representative Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor) sponsored the primary bill, HB-1066-which requires that specific information be made available to purchasers on works of art which exceed $100 in value. Such information includes the artist's name, the medium used by the artist, the year the multiple was produced, and whether the multiple is part of a limited edition.

"This legislation will provide much-needed protection for artists, merchants, and consumers in the sale and purchase of art multiples," stated Bullard. "Pertinent information regarding the value of multiples can now be used to form the basis of a warranty. Then, if the information is found to be incorrect, the purchaser can get his/her money back, plus interest."

Taxpayer ID Numbers Now Required

As a result of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, a taxpayer claiming a dependent who is at least 5 years old must include that dependent's taxpayer identification number on the taxpayer's return. For most individuals, this number is the individual's social security number. This new law is effective beginning with 1987 tax returns.

If the dependent has a social security number, but the taxpayer does not know what it is, the taxpayer should contact a local Social Security Administration office.

To get a social security number, a dependent must have evidence of: 1. date of birth, 2. U.S. citizenship or legal alien status, and 3. identity. A public, hospital or religious birth record is generally sufficient for the first two items. A school record and certain other documents can be used for proof of identity. For more information, taxpayers may ask at any Social Security Administration office for the free leaflet, "Applying for a Social Security Number."

I received the other day a report from the National Academy of Education on reading called "Becoming a Nation of Readers" which evidently deserves better consideration. Instead of complaining about conditions it suggests remedies. Most studies to date are sitting on commission shelves because of people's indifference to the results in the matter. However the suggested remedies are right on target.

What the study tells as "new knowledge about reading" seems not to be new at all for most of its solutions were known and researched some two decades ago. For instance the Montessori schools have been using most of the ideas advocated since the early 1900s.

The commission chairman says that "It is not that we know what to do, it's merely that many teachers aren't doing it," says the commission chairman. Criticism should also be charged against many parents and school book publishers.

The report does not stress sufficiently the part that the parents should have on preparing children to read successfully in their school studies.

It states the need for parents to read to their preschool children and to talk to them in a way to encourage thinking and to broaden their knowledge with relation of their interesting experiences. For instance children who go to school knowing the letters of the alphabet turn out to be better readers. Learning language in its written form may be easiest in preschool years when the child's fast developing brain seems to have an aptitude for learning language the report continues. The child they say should be taught the sounds of the letters along with the names of the letters. The report recommends teaching of prereading skills in kindergarten and day-care schools.

The youngsters of course whose parents can't, won't or don't give them a stimulating home background that fosters learning to read are the ones who most need help. They are the ones who most often fail at school and perhaps the way to combat this condition is in expanded head start and home start programs.

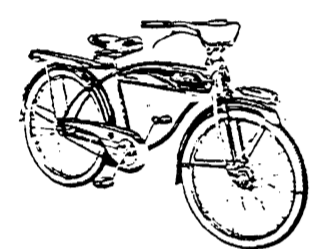

Phonics it insists should be used in reading programs and this report is critical of many basic reading programs and says that the best is not too good in this field. The commission insists that many of the skill-drill sheets that may not help.

It is claimed that there is nothing new in this report. Their recommendations could have been put into practice 20 years ago and a generation could have had an opportunity to learn to read well. It is hoped that these facts will lead to greater opportunities in this field in the near future.

Calvin Coolidge is said to have remarked that "Four fifths of our troubles would disappear if we would just sit down and keep still."

The story is told about the woman in Georgia whose husband was stopped by the State Police for speeding and she told the officer that "I always make him drive slow when he's drunk."

Daniel Boone was asked at the age of 86 if he was ever lost in the woods and he replied "I can't say that I ever was but I was once bewildered for three days."

Manchester Planning Commission

Regular Meeting
May 12, 1987

CALL TO ORDER

The Regular Meeting of the Manchester Village Planning Commission for May was called to order at 7:30 p.m. by Vice-Chairman Lowery in the Council Room of the Village Hall. Commissioners present: Lowery, Daverman, Walton, Smith, Kallewaard and Marshall.

APPROVAL OF AGENDA

The agenda was approved as presented, on a motion by Walton supported by Smith, carried unanimously on a voice vote. REQUESTS FROM PUBLIC TO ADDRESS THE MEETING

There were no requests to address the meeting. MINUTES OF PREVIOUS MEETING

Minutes of the April, 1987 Regular Meeting were read aloud by the Secretary, and were approved as read on a motion by Daverman, supported by Smith, carried unanimously on a voice vote. UPDATE ON ITEMS COVERED IN APRIL MINUTES

No information has been obtained on scheduling of working sessions with Bob Hotaling, consultant on revision of the land-use plan and zoning portions of the Village Code. Marshall suggested that time had been spent by the Village Manager in negotiating the description of work to be done and the price. The Village Manager was requested to work out firm dates for the working sessions. The Vice-Chairman suggested that the sessions include discussion of an inspection program for rental units.

The Vice-Chairman asked Marshall for information on the appeal by Gerry Mann to the ZBA. Marshall's report included information on the Council's attempt to appoint a separate Zoning Board of Appeals, so that the Council would no longer sit at the ZBA. However, only one application was received in response to the notice placed in the ENTERPRISE. There was discussion of the Council's current bypassing of the expertise, experience and reference material available from the Planning Commission in matters of zoning and land use. Marshall stated that he feels it is counterproductive to bypass the Planning Commission in this area. There was also discussion of the Commissioners' understanding that a ZBA appeal must have an originating action—a ruling of some sort by some official or body which is the "thing" from which the property owner wishes to appeal. In the Mann case, this probably would have been the denial of a certificate of zoning compliance by the Zoning Inspector. However, the Zoning Inspector was not asked to make an inspection.

OLD BUSINESS -

REPORT ON COUNCIL ACTION DEFINING DDA BOUNDARIES

Marshall reported on Council's action drawing boundaries for the proposed Downtown Development Authority, which included residential areas on South Clinton Street and Riverside Drive (zoned residential) along with the downtown area zoned C-2. (The Planning Commission's recommendation, made at an earlier meeting, had been to conform the DDA boundaries to the area already zoned C-2 commercial.) Marshall discussed his concerns that the residential areas included within the DDA could become subject to additional taxes to benefit the commercial zone properties. He also discussed other concerns about the advisability of a DDA, including the way in which a DDA would deprive local schools of additional tax revenue if property values increased.

Daverman related information on the process of defining boundaries for the Exchange Place Historic District. Smith discussed the ways in which the present Central Business District, the proposed DDA, the proposed Historic District and the long-range land-use plan interrelated and did not necessarily need to have all the same boundaries.

This led to discussion of the difference between modern city development plans, in which a central commercial core is surrounded by concentric circles of different uses, with residential areas on the outside; and the 19th century model, seen in Manchester, in which significant residential buildings are located quite close to the Central commercial core and are an important part of the local character.

NEW BUSINESS - VIDEO PRESENTATION

The video, "Harvesting Hometown Jobs", from the National Association of Towns and Townships, was rescheduled for the June Regular Meeting.

NEW BUSINESS - MAINTENANCE OF ZONING MAP

Marshall reported that Council has requested that the Planning Commission be responsible for maintaining the Official Zoning Map, and keeping it up-to-date as rezonings are approved by Council. Commissioners stated their belief that the Zoning Map is now up-to-date, and the Commission will be responsible for keeping it that way.

The Zoning Inspector requested a large copy of the Zoning Map for his use. A motion was made by Kallewaard, supported by Daverman, that a large Zoning Map be purchased and furnished to the Zoning Inspector. The motion was carried unanimously on a voice vote.

OLD BUSINESS -

SENIOR CITIZEN HOUSING UPDATE

Marshall reported on developer Garnett Johnson's proposal to Council: Her group would purchase the DPW property, possibly some adjoining property, and develop 24 units of Senior Housing on the site. There seemed to be agreement among Council members that the Village could use Senior Housing. Also that the present DPW site may be a viable one for the Senior Housing, if the Public Works Department could be moved, building reconstructed, land purchased (if necessary), etc. as a complete "wash" to the Village, because the Village budget is too limited to bear the cost of buying land and building a new DPW otherwise. The first estimate of cost of replacing the large DPW garage was over $100,000. An ad hoc Council committee was appointed to work with Garnett Johnson to see if her proposal would be economically feasible. This committee consists of John Hinkley, Wendell Reinhart, Dan Naimowicz and Joe Marshall. The committee's job also is to identify a site to which the DPW could be moved, and Marshall suggested that the Planning Commission should be consulted when a matter of land use such as this arises.

NEW BUSINESS - QUESTIONS ON FINAL SITE PLAN, MANCHESTER VILLAGE APARTMENTS

The Zoning Inspector reported on his research after an inquiry as to whether or not a fence surrounding the property was included in the final site plan for this development. His research showed that no fence was required in the final site plan.

OLD BUSINESS - REPORT ON HISTORIC DISTRICT STUDY COMMITTEE

Daverman reported that the committee was still meeting every two weeks and was making progress on the rough draft of the proposed ordinance and its other tasks.

ADJOURNMENT

The meeting was adjourned at 9:15 p.m. on a motion by Walton, supported by Daverman, carried unanimously on a voice vote.

Crispy Chicken, Tender Biscuits Bake Together In Single Pan

If you like the flavor of crispy fried chicken but don't like the mess of making it, try Country Chicken and Biscuits. This hearty family dinner combines corn flake-coated chicken with tender biscuits—all in one pan.

The chicken bakes for 40 to 50 minutes before you slide it over in the pan and add the refrigerated biscuits. As the biscuits bake, some of the flavor from the savory chicken coating soaks in, making them even tastier.

Drunk Drivers Prefer Beer

Drunk drivers most often drink beer, and beer drinkers are less likely to support drunk-driving laws than liquor or wine drinkers, say Dale E. Berger, Claremont Graduate School, and John R. Snortum, Claremont McKenna College, in Claremont, California. The two psychologists completed a survey of 1,000 American drivers in 1983, but only recently published their report. Over half of the beer drinkers say they drive while somewhat intoxicated, compared to 31% of liquor drinkers and 23% of wine drinkers. No matter what their age, sex, education, income or marital status, beer drinkers still account for the largest number of drunk drivers, says the researchers. The authors say the lenient attitude Americans have toward beer makes it easy for young people to purchase it and permits it to be heavily advertised. This may account for the fact that most drunk drivers prefer beer to liquor or wine.

Michigan — A State Of Highway "Firsts"

By Tom Shawver

Concrete roadways coursing through woods and farmlands are a taken-for-granted fact of life in a nation with the best highway system in the world.

So are the white center lines that separate opposing lanes of traffic and the painted yellow lines that mark no-passing zones.

Four-way, three-color traffic lights are commonplace at busy intersections. What they have in common is that all were conceived in Michigan, transportation "firsts" in the early decades of the 20th Century when the automobile came to the fore as the predominant mode of travel.

The Wayne County Road Commission built the world's first mile of rural concrete highway in 1909. It was completed in less than three months along Woodward Avenue between Six Mile and Seven Mile roads at a cost of $13,537.

Engineers and roadbuilders from far and near came to see how concrete stood up under the traffic of that period. The experiment was a success, speeding the development of modern highways in Michigan and throughout the country.

Edward N. Hines, the far-seeing chairman of the road commission, came up with another innovation that has been called the most important traffic safety device in the history of auto transportation. He called it the "center line safety stripe" and it was simply a stripe of white paint down the middle of the road to keep traffic on the right side where it belonged.

The center stripe first appeared on narrow bridges along River Road near Trenton, Mich., in 1911 and then on all pavements in the county. Later it was adopted nationally.

Fred W. Green, who was governor of Michigan from 1927 through 1930, first suggested painting a yellow line on hard-surface highways with hills and curves having restricted sight distances. The State Highway Department tried out "Green's yellow line" in 1928 and liked it.

So did motorists, who found it took the "guess and go" out of driving. Like the white center line, the idea caught on nationally.

The world's first four-way traffic signal with red, green and amber lights appeared in 1920 at the intersection of Woodward Avenue and Fort Street in downtown Detroit. It was the invention of William L. Potts of the Detroit Police Department.

Later, he devised an electrical interconnection of the signals of 15 traffic towers so that they could be controlled by a police officer from a single location. The network was the forerunner of today's sophisticated electronic traffic control systems.

Appropriate to the auto-making capital of the world, Michigan scored many other highway firsts. Among them:

1912 - William B. Bachman Sr., of Detroit, a founder of the Automobile Club of Michigan, began making roadside telephone poles in different colors to designate different routes. By 1920 he had banded 2,000 miles of Michigan highways poles. His work was the forerunner of a national system of uniform signing of highway systems.

1919 - Herbert F. Larson, engineer-manager of the Iron County Road Commission, set up picnic tables in a forest preserve along US-2 in the Upper Peninsula. A state historical marker there cites it as the nation's first such roadside rest and recreation facility.

1922 - The first practical highway snow plow developed in the United States was designed and built by Edward C. Levy, city public works superintendent in Munising. It was mounted on runners and consisted of two wooden wings, each 10 feet high and 20 feet long. The wings were retractable, permitting the plowing of a city street, county road or alleyway. Several Upper Peninsula cities bought the plows, but they became obsolete a few years later with the advent of rotary, angle and V-plows mounted on the front of trucks.

1923-1927 - The nation's first intercity superhighway was an eight-lane divided marvel, built on an 18-mile stretch of Woodward Avenue between Detroit and Pontiac. It had a 40-foot median for public transit service.

1929 - Using planks salvaged from old guardrails, Ionia County engineer Allan Williams built picnic tables and set them up along old US-16 in Ionia County. Soon they became a symbol of Michigan hospitality along the entire highway system, and other states followed suit.

1935 - The nation's first permanent highway travel information center, built along old US-12 near New Buffalo, at the Indiana border, was the brainchild of State Highway Commissioner and later Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner. The state's 11 such centers now host more than two million visitors a year, promoting Michigan's multi-billion dollar tourist industry.

1952 - The first five-lane highway was established in Detroit, allowing a center lane for left turns. It frees the other four lanes for through traffic and cuts down on rear-end collisions.

Watch Seedlings For Insect Damage

This spring, farmers need to inspect their fields regularly to make sure insects are not damaging the new seedlings.

"Newly emerged plants are very susceptible to injury from insects," says Robert Ruppel, Michigan State University Extension entomology specialist. "When plants are small, it doesn't take much damage from an insect to kill off a stand."

Cutworms can damage seedlings of all grain crops grown in the state. These small caterpillars are generally found in weedy and wet areas of a field.

The billbug is a large, hard shelled bug with a long snout. The insect hides in the soil during the day and feeds at night on the crowns of the small plants. Growers should look for rows of small holes across the plant crown.

The flea beetle is a small, shiny black insect that randomly chews small holes in the leaves of the plant.

To help the cost of insecticide applications, growers should spray only infested areas, not entire fields.

Farmers can also cut costs by banding the spray over the rows instead of spraying the entire field. This will usually require only minor adjustments of the nozzle arrangement on the sprayer booms.

Dry bean growers should plant only seed that has been treated with an insecticide for seedcorn maggot control to protect the seed from this insect.

no-till field, where the trash from the previous crop provides the slugs protection from sunlight, the pests can spread throughout the field.

Control slugs in corn crops with the slugicide Mesurrol if one-third or more of the plants show damage. There is no slugicide registered for other crops.

Other insects that can damage small corn seedlings are the billbug and the flea beetle. Both insects prefer grassy areas and grass margins around the crop.

Growers should spray with a registered insecticide if one-third of the plants show damage from either the billbug or the flea beetle.

Fishing Events Scheduled in Michigan

A $2,000 brown trout, at $1,000 coho, a $500 steelhead and the chance to win $5,000 in gold should help lure anglers to 73 fishing events scheduled through September in Michigan, reports AAA Michigan.

AAA Michigan's 1987 Fishing Events Guide lists 73 fishing activities which should appeal to sportsmen as well as provide excitement and entertainment for family outings. There are 25 events in East Michigan, 22 in West Michigan, 12 in Southeast Michigan and 11 in the Upper Peninsula.

Activities range from one-day contests such as Cass Lake's Bass Blastoff June 13 in West Bloomfield Township near Detroit to summer-long events like the Sesquicentennial Fishing Gold Rush that concludes September 13, on Lake Huron.

The Gold Rush, in which a lucky angler will take home $5,000 in gold coins, offers prizes for the heaviest chinook, coho, steelhead, lake trout or brown trout. A drawing among the top winners will determine the gold winner.

The 265-resident town of Honor will swell September 4-6 for the 22nd anniversary of the first coho plants on Labor Day weekend. Honor's fishing contest offers $1,000 for the largest coho caught. Individuals who would rather eat than fish can join some 10,000 persons to munch fish sandwiches at Bay Port August 1-2.

Michigan's productive lakes and streams will be even more attractive on Michigan's Free Fishing Days June 6-7 when anglers can fish without a license.

Additionally, anglers who put in their boats at state facilities or fish from state parks will have a free day, June 7, when all daily mooring or launch fees will be waived at the 11 state-owned harbors and 26 state public access sites.

The biggest fresh water fish ever recorded as having been caught with a rod and reel was a 468-pound sturgeon caught in California in 1983.

As in any period, styles varied with the person's taste and economic status. In general, women's dresses were full skirted and usually had leg-o-mutton slaves. The waist appeared very small because the skirts were full and the cape-like appearance of the bodice gave greater breadth to the shoulders. Boning or padding was used in the sleeves to produce the desired effect. Tightly laced corsets were worn, but women were advised on how to create the illusion of a small waist without the "agony as well as injury of tight lacing." Most dresses fastened down the center back with buttons, lacing, or concealed closings of hooks and eyes. Bonnets were worn, but larger brimmed hats trimmed with ribbons and flowers also became fashionable. Wadded, quilted petticoats provided warmth and width to support the full skirts. Bustles were also worn during the period.

Dress clothing for men followed the same contours as women's clothing. Coats with tails and waistcoats (vests) were double breasted and fitted at the waist, thus emphasizing the shoulders. Waistcoats went to the waist or just below and overlapped the trousers. They were fastened by lacing them in the back. Some had shawl collars that further emphasized the shoulders. Fancy cravats or ties (similar to bow ties) were popular. Men's shirts had full sleeves (some nearly as full as the women's) and separate collars. An ingenious blacksmith's wife is credited with the separate collars when she became tired of providing her fastidious husband with a clean shirt each day. Men wore top hats. All of the clothing

A Ride of 6,000 Miles

First Train From New York To California Direct.

Manchester Enterprise April 29, 1869

On Thursday the first consignment of six first-class passenger cars arrived in Detroit en route by Blue Line, for California direct. They are from the Mason Manufacturing Company of Springfield, Mass., and are admitted by railroad men on the different lines of road over which they have passed, to be the finest coaches that ever went West. They are certainly very elegant cars, and make up a splendid looking train. The interior appointments are all that can be desired for ease, elegance and convenience. The wood-work is very beautiful, made up of black walnut, birds' eye and curly maple, ash and satin wood, and beautifully inlaid. The painting and decorations are chaste and beautiful. The elliptic top windows are of elegantly cut glass. The ventilating apparatus with the latest improvements. Windows with double blinds; and the seats, which are of Burton's patent, are cushioned with the Wasson patent, and are certainly all that can be desired for comfort, or as they will be designated on the plains, "high for comfort." The cars are furnished with all the conveniences desirable for a long journey. The trucks are of the latest make and with three springs, and the cars are supplied with Crean Patent Safety Brake, the same as used on the New York Central. The train is in charge of Mr. Robert Knox, the gentlemanly agent of the Central Pacific Railroad of California; and we should say that the company had made a happy choice in selecting him as their first conductor from New York to California. We wish him a pleasant trip. The train left Thursday noon for Chicago; from thence it goes to Omaha via the Northwestern Railroad, and from Omaha to Ogden, the terminus of the Union Pacific, 900 miles further west.

On Monday next there are expected here two locomotives for the Central, and during the next week two baggage cars and four more coaches. There are sixty cars now ready for use, and will be sent on as soon as they can be got out of the works. The first regular trains are expected to commence running on the 10th of May.

Saturday-Night Vandals

Saturday night, June 6, 1987, was a sad night for the people in Manchester, where the pride and respect for our American Flag is very evident. It seems a few, be it boys or girls, thought stealing American Flags would be an attention 'getter' - well it did. About seven flags were found in the river behind 200 Riverside Drive, near the Duncan St. Bridge. Isral Clouse and John Uphouse found them Sunday. The boys took them to the police station which was closed at that time, and then to the Johnson Control office, whose flag had their name on it. Two flags had part of their poles still attached. Perhaps the flags can be restored by cleaning.

Lets talk "Flag Pride" with our young flag stealers and destroyers. If any of you, (and I'm betting you have) a brother, father or a best friend involved with one or more of our recent

How The Broil Began

Michigan's Sesquicentennial reminding us of historical matters, now is a good time to recall the past of Manchester's most famous local event - the Chicken Broil.

In 1954, Luther Klager took some suggestions from Dr. Howard Zindell of MSU and presented them to the Exchange Club of Manchester, the fore-runner of today's Optimist Club. The idea was for a modest fundraiser, an outdoor chicken barbeque whose profits would go to a worthy local cause. Club members thought it was a good enough plan to put into action, and in July of that year, barbeque pits went up at the Athletic Field for the first time. The men of Manchester cooked enough chicken to feed about 1500 people, and the broil cleared about $1000. This money went to the first of many public improvements funded by the broil - a new fence for the Athletic Field. That first broil was sufficiently successful to repeat the next year, and the next, and the next...

33 years later, the broil is headed for its 34th go-round. Like most successful enterprises, it has both changed and stayed the same. The broil now feeds 12,000-14,000 people, several times the population of Manchester, and with the growth in volume have come improvements in efficiency, so all those hungry mouths can be fed as quickly as possible. For example, a conveyer belt now speeds the assembly of take-out dinners, themselves one of the broil's first innovations, and the butter used to baste the chickens in now sprayed on instead of dabbed with a brush. Each committee has its separate task polished to a skill. The basic recipes, however, have not changed. The chicken still roasts slowly for two to two and a half hours for maximum tenderness, flavored only with butter and a dash of salt. The cole slaw is still assembled according to the secret recipe of Dr. Jones, who was Manchester's dentist back in 1954. The rest of the meal is the same good old American fare as always - potato chips, radishes, and dinner rolls.

In the 1970's when the energy crisis was pinching fuel tanks, a new tradition began - the horse and wagon shuttles from the High School parking lot. The sound of big hooves clopping and the jingling of harness has become as much a part of the broil as the sight of men in white caps turning racks of golden chicken in a haze of fragrant smoke.

By now, some Manchester families are introducing a third generation to working at the broil. This year's broil takes place July 16, starting as usual at 4:00 p.m. at the Athletic Field. Come on out to enjoy some chicken and celebrate this part of Manchester's heritage. Tickets are available at many local businesses or from broil volunteers for $4.50 before the broil, and $5.00 at the gate.

Wars, what would they say and think of your deed?

What do you think about, or do when on Memorial Day our Manchester great band members strike up the Star Spangled Banner, the Marine Hymn, Anchors Aweigh, in honor of all the brave men who LOST their way of life and FREEDOM to make a free America for you and me. I know what I do - I cry.

So young people, the next time you want some fun, don't choose to dishonor our beautiful American Flag, and Country. Some day in your future you will know what I mean and I'm sure you will be sorry for what you have done.

Too bad, The Old Soldier in the cemetery is made of stone - just when he was given the American Flag to keep his history and honor alive, it had to be taken away from him June 6.
