A Great Calamity At Clinton

The Woolen Mills Burn Early
Saturday Morning - Loss Heavy -
Partially Insured

Eighty People Trorn
Out Of Work

At about the hour of 6:30 on Saturday morning, just after the operatives had mostly all congregated for work, fire broke out in the large woolen mills located at this place, and in a remarkably short space of time the works were entirely consumed. The building was lighted with gas manufactured from gasoline, and for some reason, unknown at the time, the lights in the weaving room failed to work, leaving the room in total darkness. Mr. Hutchinson, the foreman of the room, gave a lamp to Teddie Codling, a bobbin boy, telling him to go down to the engine room and ascertain the cause of the trouble. Taking the light the boy descended to the bottom of the second flight of stairs, to the foot of the elevator shaft, when instantly an explosion took place with terrific force, throwing the boy and burning him severely. The explosion took place immediately off of the cleansing room, and James Wadsworth, an employee of that room heard his cries and went to his rescue at once. He hurriedly took him from the flames and carried him outside the building. With wonderful rapidity the flames ascended the elevator shaft and soon the entire building was enveloped in a sheet of flame and smoke.

Most of the hands escaped without trouble, but some of the overseers stopped to shut the doors to lessen the draught and some of them were nearly suffocated by the smoke before freeing themselves. Ed. Hutchinson, foreman of the weaving room, and S. Parker, loom-fixer, remained for that purpose, while Mr. Parker succeeded in getting to the door, and easily escaped. Mr. Hutchinson was unable to do so, and to save himself from becoming food for the flames, jumped from the window, which was in the second story. In doing so he sprained his ankle badly and will probably be laid up for some time.

When the explosion took place, C. C. Rowland, the engineer, was standing just back of the engine, in the engine room, which was separated from the main building by a heavy brick wall. A sewer pipe runs from the elevator shaft to almost the spot where Mr. Rowland was standing. The flames rushed through this sewer, striking him in the face, burning the hair from his head and face. The concussion of the explosion passed him, striking a window back of him, carrying it with the sash free from the building. While he was badly burned about the face and hands Mr. Rowland considers himself exceedingly fortunate that he was not more seriously injured.

The carding room was on the fourth floor, and off from this room, in the south wing, was a garret, used for storing wool to be carded. Philip Weingartner, foreman of the carding room, had stepped into this garret for some purpose, and when he attempted to return to the room was met at the stairway by a fierce volume of smoke and angry flames, cutting him off from escape. He made his way to the outside door. Seeing that there was no possible way for escape but to jump, and at the same time realizing that such a step would be almost certain death, his feelings can neither be fully explained or even imagined. He at once began to roll out the bundles of wool stored in the room to jump upon, and at the same time calling to the crowd below in order to attract their attention. When he was discovered in his perilous position, the people below were awestruck, but quickly made prepara-

Holidays -- Sometimes A Season For Mail Fraud

Many mail fraud promotions or schemes unfortunately focus on older adults. They typically include medical frauds, such as quick cancer and arthritis cures; hair growth and youth revival products; home improvements; investment frauds; work-at-home and charity frauds.

To prevent customers from being victimized, it is important to learn more about such promotions. The U.S. Postal Inspection Service says efforts to combat these frauds are more effective if dealt with at an early stage. If an individual is victimized or should become aware of such schemes in which mail is involved, the Postal Inspection Service requests that you report it immediately.

Consumer complaints are their primary basis for investigation.

If you believe that you have been the victim of mail fraud, include the following information when contacting the office of the Postal Inspection Service nearest you or refer the information through your local postmaster.

Get the full name and address of the individual seller of the products or services. Send copies of the advertisements relating to the order and copies of all correspondence between you and the seller, including envelopes. Enclose a copy of your cancelled check, receipt, or money order and indicate whether the money was required before receiving the merchandise.

Be Careful With Woodburning Stoves

Heating with wood requires extra care to keep your family and belongings safe. Remember the following tips for a safe heating season with wood-burning stoves.

Buy a stove that has been approved as safe to use. There are a number of testing companies, including Underwriters Laboratories.

Follow instructions for installation and keep in mind that stoves should be at least 18 inches from any wall.

It also must be placed away from any combustibles.

Curtains are often in the way, Hoffman said. Even a curtain that seems to be at a safe distance can be a hazard when the window is opened, causing it to be blown into the stove.

Furniture should be placed well out of the way, too.

"After a period of time, heat breaks down the resistance in overstuffed furniture and it will ignite," notes Richard Hoffman of the Saginaw Fire Department.

Other Tips:

The steel stove pipe should be at least 24 gauge.

Clean your chimney every heating season. Creosote - a tar and soot-like substance created by wood burning - builds up as the chimney heats and cools off. The creosote will eventually ignite if not cleaned.

Use a wood stove for its purpose. Don't burn garbage, papers or trash. These and other combustibles burn hotter than wood and can damage the stove.

Use wood that has been dry and stored for a year. It won't result in as much creosote as green wood.

When fueling a stove, make sure children are out of the way. Watch it for a while to damper it properly.

Have smoke detectors in place with batteries in them.

Keep all bedroom doors closed at night. When doors are left open, smoke enters the bedroom instead of building up in the hallway where smoke detectors are.

David Hamilton, of Detroit, and for the past year and a half has been run to its fullest capacity. There were about 80 hands employed and the monthly payroll amounted to $2,700.

The company have not as yet made public their determination for the future, but it is to be hoped that the mill will be rebuilt at once.

cleansing room, and a large amount was thus saved.

Until last spring the office and store room for manufactured goods were in the main building, but luckily at that time, the company erected a two story building east of the mill for those uses, and thus were saved from that loss.

Less than two hours from the first starting, the building, which was five stories high and 100 feet square was leveled to the ground. The entire wood-work inside, had from long use had become thoroughly saturated with grease, which caused the fire to spread very rapidly.

The building was erected in 1866, the original cost of the building and machinery being $95,000, and with the subsequent additions at the time of the fire represented an investment of about $130,000, of this the boilers, engine, picker house, foundation, office and ware-house are saved, and uninjured. The loss, including building, machinery, stock, etc., is estimated by the company at $150,000. The insurance on building and machinery, $35,000; on stock, $14,000. Total, $49,000.

The mill was built originally by Clinton people, and was for some years controlled and run by Alonzo Clark, Esq., but about three years ago it was shut down on account of litigation, remaining so for about 18 months when the principal stock was purchased by

The Wrestling Report

On December 1, the Dutch wrestling team went to the home of the 70's football dynasty, Hudson Tigers. In this tri-meet, which included Morenci, the maroon and gold looked good in handling the Bulldogs a 52-24 loss. But the Hudson Tigers look to be moving toward the day's of yesteryear when they had a dominate football program. Now the sport has changed. On the mat, the Tigers appear to be as tough as ever, handling the Dutch a 60-15 loss.

At 6:20 a.m., on December 5, the bus rolls beyond the village limits into the darkness. The Concord Invitational the destination. Ten teams enter the building there within an hour or so. As a team we wonder, what will the day ahead hold for us?

Wrestling with a young team, including eight freshmen, the Dutch metaled four. Two freshmen, John Donnellon and Chris Wiethoff, placed third. Senior heavyweight, Hector Devulder placed third also and sports a 4-1 record. Mark Fenelon, a senior, pinned his way through the tournament and claimed the championship with a pin in the finals over a tough Jonesville wrestler. Mark is now 4-0.

The team would like to thank the Wrestlerett's for their support. Your efforts are appreciated.

"First A Friend... Then A Host"

"National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week"
December 13-19, 1987

The joint resolution of the 100th Congress (S.J. RES. 136) proclaims the week of December 13, 1987, through December 19, 1987, as "National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week".

The theme of the 6th annual N.D.D.D.A.W. is supported by Federal, State, and local authorities and public interest groups. "First A Friend... Then A Host" brings the problem to the doorstep of where it often begins during the month of December--at corporate holiday parties and private parties for friends.

Washtenaw County groups such as T.E.A.M. (Technique for Affective Alcohol Management) and the BUCKLE UP Steering Committee, composed of members from both the private and public sector, are getting the message out to party stores and suppliers to party goods about responsible alcohol management and safe holiday driving habits by their customers. Some simple hints for party givers are: always serve food with beverages, have non-alcoholic drinks available, close the bar an hour before the party ends and if someone has had too much to drink make sure to keep his car keys, call him a cab or have him stay the night. Friends don't let friends drive drunk.

Information from the National Highway and Traffic Safety Administration confirms that alcohol related traffic crashes kill about 23,500 Americans every year and seriously injure 561,000 others. About 50 percent of all fatal traffic crashes involve a driver who is under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.

It is an appropriate time for individual drivers to be reminded that their best defense against the drunk driver is to buckle up. Individual party givers, by controlling alcohol consumption at their homes or offices, can help their friends avoid fines, keep their licenses, stay out of jail, avoid embarrassment and stay alive to enjoy life and friendship in the new year.

For more information, call Barbara Mueller at 971-4743.

The system is in operation 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Interested persons are invited to call 971-1122 at their convenience to listen to timely, up-to-date gardening information.

Saucy Ideas Dress Up Holiday Menus

Looking for new ways to add excitement to favorite holiday fare? A saucy solution starts with a basic white sauce enlivened with herbs, condiments, cheese or other equally flavorful ingredients.

At its most basic, a white sauce is nothing more than butter, flour, milk, salt and pepper. The melted butter is combined with the flour to form a roux. When milk is added and the mixture cooked, it becomes thick and velvety smooth.

For a perfect sauce, start with a heavy saucepan. Use a wire whip to blend the roux with the milk and to stir the sauce as it cooks. Add the milk gradually while stirring, and stir the sauce constantly while bringing it to the boil. To shorten the cooking time, the milk can be heated, then added to the roux.

The microwave oven further streamlines preparation and eliminates the need for constant stirring. Use a microwave-safe bowl or glass measuring cup about twice the volume of the ingredients to prevent boil-overs.

While a basic white sauce can be served over cooked green vegetables or potatoes, it most often is dressed up to complement whatever it will accompany. For example, fresh lemon juice and dill added to the basic sauce won't overwhelm the delicate flavor of poached halibut. A rolled beef rib roast, on the other hand, can take the more assertive flavor of a horseradish sauce.

Create your own flavor combinations or try one of the 20 variations which follow. Included are suggestions for appropriate "go-withs."

Living With Diabetes In The 80's

by Mary C. Brenob

Life for a diabetic never has been, and until a cure is found, never will be as easy as for someone in perfect health. But at the same time, life for a diabetic person has never been easier than it is in 1987.

During my 36 years as a brittle Type 1 diabetic I've seen a host of advances in the treatment and control of diabetes. Diabetics today are able to live lives similar to their non-diabetic friends with only minor exceptions. Proper diet is a keystone of living with diabetes and so much has been learned in the last 10 years about the health effect of various foods. Exercise, recognized for its value to non-diabetics is every bit as important to me. While selecting foods more because they are good for me instead of just good, and making an effort to walk regularly and for some distance is not easy, I feel it is easier than living with the alternatives or not living at all. Maintaining a proper diet and exercise program may be a little harder for a diabetic, but the payoff is a lot greater.

Today's diabetic finds it much easier to travel - even to other parts of the world. A trip to a different time zone requires some planning but certainly can be accomplished. Whether traveling or not, checking your blood sugar level and managing your insulin is so much easier and reliable than when I started out. A blood monitoring machine such as a Glucometer makes checking possible in a matter of minutes. And the results tell you what you're running right then, not what you might have been an hour or two earlier, as the urine tests used to do. Disposable syringes with sharp needles are such an improvement over glass syringes and stainless steel needles (not so sharp) packed in alcohol. And they're so much easier to travel with! Because everyone is more conscious of the importance of diet, it's much easier to get the right things in many restaurants. They are usually receptive to requests to prepare food without butter and sauces and to bring salad dressing on the side so you can control how much you use.

A woman with diabetes was once advised against having children. The past 10 years has seen a change in that too. Modern medicine has substantially reduced the risks. With extra care in managing blood sugar and regular medical consultation, the chances of having a healthy baby are very good.

The 1980's have indeed been good to those of us who must live with this disease. One requirement that will always remain is the need to maintain a positive attitude. I know it isn't always easy, but if you can look back over the advances made in treating and caring for the disease, it is much easier to be positive. Keeping yourself in the best possible condition now will put you in the best position to benefit from the advances which will be made in the future. With the advances I've seen I know a cure will someday be within reach. Who knows, perhaps it's just around the corner waiting to be found!

REPAIR YOUR DAMAGED WINDSHIELD FOR A FRACTION OF REPLACEMENT COST.

Most windshield breaks are repairable, and the cost is far lower than windshield replacement. The patented, proven Novus method can restore and repair windshields both structurally and optically, leaving damaged areas almost invisible. But act now! If crack damage spreads too far, it may become necessary to replace the entire windshield.

In the rush of Christmas shopping, a lady bought a box of fifty identical cards. She didn't bother to read them. She hastily signed her name and addressed all but one.

Several days later, after they had been mailed, she read the message of the unsent card. It said: "This card is just to say a gift is on the way."

God has sent sixty-six cards - the books of the Bible. They're just to say "a gift is on the way." The Gift? His Son.

There are two sides to a gift - giving and receiving. "God so loved the world that He gave." You will receive God's Gift, won't you?

An Explanation

Manchester Enterprise
February 25, 1886

Freedom, February 22, 1886

Editor Enterprise: Allow us a space in your column to defend our school in district No. 7, township of Freedom.

As is generally known Will Reed was engaged to teach the winter term of four months. He can into the school an entire stranger; we believe he came with the intention of teaching a good school, but the first day the scholars formed the opinion that the school would be a failure. He seemed ignorant of how to take hold, and told the scholars he had never been in a district school and did not know how to manage; but it was hoped as time passed on it would turn out alright, but much to the regret of the district, matters grew worse until two months had passed, when he gave up the school.

The parents and scholars join in wishing him success if he undertakes to teach again, but would advise him when taking a school to enquire as to the advancement in books of that school and to never make use of temper or slang in school again.

After being without school a week, Herbert Reed, his brother, came to finish the term. If he came with good intentions he had a queer way in showing it as it appeared his sole object was to have trouble with the older scholars and to try to have them turned out; but they would not allow themselves to be drawn into difficulty by him. He even went so far as to send them home, and from their classes without the least reason, to which the scholars will testify. Whether he wanted them out because he found himself deficient in their studies, we know not, but it was plain that he had something in view. Algebra had to be laid aside; he told the grammar class to diagram sentences; Had nothing to do with grammar, and in arithmetic he was nowhere. But the school went on until the fourth week, when, as he entered the school house, he claims he found the stovepipe taken down and his books scattered about the room, but as the windows were nailed down with two nails in each window, and an investigation showed that the sash was neither marred or the snow disturbed on the sills, we cannot see how anyone could get in without entering at the door, and the lock is not broken nor can it be taken off from the outside. It is evident who ever entered must have a key. He went to see the officers and told them he did not care to teach where he was served that way, and they told him he might as well quit for the children were not learning anything. Consequently we are without school again.

There seems to be false reports concerning the conduct of the scholars, such as boys drawing knives on teachers, and threatening to fight and throw teachers out of the school house, and causing more or less trouble and that some of the girls do just as they please, that no teacher ever could manage them, and many other rumors which we know to be the basest falsehoods, as the school has always had the name of being orderly and easily managed, which can be proven by several teachers that have taught the school term after term.

Hoping that the school will hereafter bear the name it had before and deserves of being one of the best district schools, if not one of the best in the county, we remain

Yours Truly,
TAXPAYERS.

Historic District Study Concludes

by Becky Doyle

Following two years of research and writing, the Manchester Historic District Study Group has presented its final draft to the Village Council.

Letters explaining the proposed ordinance, boundaries and goals have been sent to property owners within the tentative boundaries, and reactions have been generally favorable with some reservations.

"I don't see how it can hurt," said Harry Krauss, of Krauss Pharmacy. "What good are they (the downtown buildings) if we just let them go?"

While there is still a great deal of work to be done before the Council adopts the ordinance, including public hearings, the proposal states that any improvements made to the exterior of a building within the district would have to remain within guidelines that are designed to maintain the turn of the century motif.

Buzz Dean, owner of Corky D's and other property within the proposed district, voiced some concern about restricting business owners, saying, "We have not agreed with everything that has been handed to us by the village. I don't necessarily want it to be another Frankenthum."

Only future remodeling and new construction would be affected if the proposal were to be enacted. Existing buildings would not be required to change to conform to the code, and interiors would be exempt.

The proposal has been unanimously approved by the Planning Commission and is endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce. It is expected to be on the Village Council agenda sometime after the first of the year.

7 SHOPPING DAYS TIL CHRISTMAS

NCA Team Appointed To Evaluate MHS

Rod Morrison, Principal of Manchester High School, today announced that the North Central Association Michigan State Committee has appointed the team members who will be visiting Manchester High School on February 23rd, 24th and 25th. The team of members will be chaired by Mrs. Bonnie Riutta, Assistant Superintendent with the Brighton Area Schools.

NCA teams are composed of educators who volunteer their time and talents to help member institutions study and appraise the quality of their programs.

Principal Morrison explained that "NCA membership requires every school to undergo a complete evaluation once in each seven year cycle. The evaluation includes a comprehensive self-study by the school, then by a review by a team of outside educators." After the team's visit, the staff will consider the recommendations made by the team and the recommendations that resulted from the school's self-study. The staff will devise a schedule of steps toward improving those areas.

Principal Morrison called evaluation "a difficult but productive task. It's the kind of thing we all should do with our own personal life-plans every now and then."

The North Central Association, the nation's largest regional accrediting association, is a voluntary league of 5,000 schools and 900 colleges and universities within the 19 states served by the NCA. The Association works with the individual schools to improve the quality of education through a continuous process of evaluation and accreditation.

Chapel Fund Continues Successful Route

Dave Prohaska, a member of the Chelsea Lions Club and Rita Collins, sister of Jim Versailles, present Kathy Batell, Chaplain of Chelsea Community Hospital, with one of four braille books of the New Testament donated in memory of Jim Versailles. The Chelsea Lions Club raised money in Jim's memory and purchased the braille books for the Hospital's new Chapel.

Chelsea Community Hospital's campaign to raise funds for the construction of the new Chapel continues along its successful route. Just over $22,000.00 of the $30,000.00 goal has been raised. Over six hundred gifts have been received contributing to this amount. The campaign, which began on Sunday, October 18, designated Hospital Chapel Sunday, has involved clergy and churches from the Hospital's entire service area. In addition, individuals, businesses, industry and service organizations have been invited to participate in this campaign. Of particular interest to a number of donors are memorial opportunities such as chairs, artwork, and amenities to furnish the Chapel. Some memorial opportunities still exist. To date, seventeen churches have contributed in a joint effort towards the purchase of an altar for the Chapel.

Chelsea Community Hospital employees have been particularly responsive in contributing to the development of the Chapel. Reverend Kathy Batell, Chaplain and Campaign Chair, stated that renovation and construction of the area for the new Chapel is expected to begin around the first of the year. The campaign will continue until the goal is reached. For more information about the Hospital Chapel or Chapel campaign, contact Reverend Kathy Batell at the Chelsea Community Hospital.
