

Money Management

Where There's A Will, There's A Way

Three out of four Americans die without a will. The reason is obvious. No one enjoys contemplating one's own death. But consider this: if you die without a will, you do something that you would probably never have done while alive. You relinquish control over your assets and your survivors to the government.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, if you want to have a say over what happens to your family, your home and your financial assets after your death, you need a will.

If you still have doubts, take a quick look at what can happen if you die without a will. The state will name an executor for your estate, appoint a guardian for your children (if necessary), draw on your estate assets to pay creditors as well as state and government taxes and distribute the rest of your estate according to state laws. As a result, your child could end up being raised by a family member you distrust, your spouse could be saddled with exorbitant fees and taxes and if your spouse remarries, somebody else - or somebody else's children - could inherit your estate. If no blood relatives survive you, your assets could go to the state itself.

Some states will automatically divide your property equally between your spouse and children - with the surviving spouse unable to access funds placed in trust for minors even if he or she needs the money to provide for their present comfort and support. If you are survived by several children and no spouse, many states grant each child an equal right to administering your estate - a situation that has resulted in more than its share of family feuds.

A carefully prepared will, which most lawyers can draw up after one meeting, can prevent the state from enforcing decisions about your estate that you would never have made. Before you consult an attorney, take an inventory of your assets and decide how you want them distributed. Remember to think in percentages rather than dollar amounts.

Consider the implications of each provision of your will. Do you want to divide your assets equally between your two children if one of them has five children and the other none? Who would be able and willing to raise your children with values similar to yours if both you and your spouse died in an accident? Should your children have full access to their inheritance as early as age 18? Do you want to incorporate safeguards against the consequences of a spouse's future remarriage into your will?

One of the most critical decisions you can make about your estate is the selection of an executor. As overseer of your estate, he or she will face arduous and time-consuming tasks. Executors have to inventory all your assets, collect all money owed you, pay outstanding debts, notify insurance companies and collect the proceeds, arrange for your immediate family's living expenses, liquidate your assets, prepare and file all tax returns and distribute your estate. Because of the position's complex responsibilities, you may want to select a third party, such as a bank, to serve as executor or co-executor with a family member.

Besides insuring that your estate is distributed according to your wishes, a will can also reduce the financial burden placed on your heirs. For example the administrator of your will is required to post a performance bond to protect your estate from fraud, embezzlement or negligence. Bond fee premiums cost about $5 per $1,000 of the estate's gross value and are payable annually until probate is completed - which ranges from a few months to several years. The bond is meant to protect your estate, but may be unnecessary if the executor is a trusted friend or family member. If you wish, your will can waive this bond requirement in certain jurisdictions.

Tax claims on an estate can also be substantial. Since state laws vary, ask a tax specialist to review your particular state's laws on estate and inheritance taxes. Under the federal estate tax law, you do have a degree of protection. If the gross estate, including the value of all lifetime taxable gifts, is under $600,000, filing a federal estate tax return is not required. However, if estate assets exceed $600,000 even after deducting administrator's fees, funeral expenses, outstanding debts, and executor's fees, the federal estate tax rate kicks in at 37 percent and goes as high as 55 percent.

There is one major exception to this rule. Under the unlimited marital deduction, you can leave your entire estate to your spouse without incurring federal gift or estate tax - regardless of your estate's worth. But when your surviving spouse dies, tax will be charged against your estate and your spouse's combined, thus placing a potentially tremendous tax load on other heirs.

If your estate is substantially higher than $600,000, you can minimize the tax burden on future heirs by dividing your estate between your spouse and a credit-shelter or bypass trust, which can provide your spouse and children income for life and enable you to take full advantage of the unified tax credit. Another option is to divide assets equally between you and your spouse prior to death. Or you can make tax-exempt gifts of up to $10,000 (or $20,000 with your spouse's consent) per year per person. You can even consider educational or nursing home bills as gifts if you pay the bills directly. If minimizing the tax burden on survivors is a primary concern of yours, consult a tax professional or attorney about these procedures.

Once you draw up a will, keep it up to date. Revise a will after a marriage or divorce, or when tax laws change. Keep your will in a central location with a copy of all other essential records. Don't keep the will in a safe deposit box. When someone dies, the box may be sealed until tax authorities can inspect the contents.

Careful planning with a tax advisor and an attorney will enable you to create a will that provides for the well being of your family and insures your peace of mind in the here and now.

Why We Boys Leave The Farm

Manchester Enterprise
January 27, 1987

Farmer Boss and his son Dick lived in Central Iowa, and Dick, at the opening of our story, was attending the district school. The term of four months, of which Dick had attended about three, was nearly ended, when one day in March Mr. Boss told Dick he must stay at home and help him clean seed wheat. This fell upon Dick like a thunderbolt, for well he knew that his summer work had commenced, and he would miss the "last day," and the good-bye of his teacher with whom he was always a favorite.

Well, Dick obeyed and stayed at home, as a dutiful son should do. But fortune favored him and it snowed so on the "last day" that he couldn't harrow, therefore he improved the opportunity, and bounded joyfully away to school, and at the close came home with a sad countenance. Now he went to work with a will, and tramped after the gelding, on plow and on harrow, until his legs were almost ready to break off.

Dick worked faithfully and hard, and when in May his school mates organized a base ball club, he wanted to go one Saturday afternoon and pitch for them, that being his particular place. But Mr. Boss had laid out some particular work for that day, and he could not possibly spare him. He could go next time, but next time came and he did not go and finally, to make amends for a guilty conscience, his father promises him a new suit for the Fourth of July, if he will work well till then. The Fourth comes, and - another broken promise with it. Dick swallows his grief, and goes without his new suit, thinking some day he will buy clothes for himself.

Boys forget injustice very quickly and are ready to let some one do the same thing over again. Let it be said, to Mr. Boss's credit, that he did give Dick fifty cents for the fourth, but not very willingly.

One day after harvest Mr. Boss told his son that he might have that "runt of a pig," which was standing on its head in the front yard among the "rose bushes. Dick took possession, put the swine in a dry-goods box and fed it milk until it actually began to grow. Thus things went until the last of November when Mr. Boss's hogs were ready for market, and somehow Dick's "runt" got mixed with the rest, and had turned into one of his father's hogs, and of course the money must be his. Dick's heart was almost broken, and he went up stairs to bed in tears. Poor fellow; that was only the beginning - more broken promises were to follow.

School was soon to commence, and Dick had expected to go, but his father told him that if he would stay at home this winter, he might commence a two year's

6 important facts about wheel alignment

- Extend tire life
It's happened to almost everyone: buy a set of tires, and before long one or two tires are wearing out before the others. On today's cars, this applies to the rear tires as well as the front tires. The most common cause of unusual tire wear is improper alignment. Over the years, a properly aligned vehicle can save hundreds of dollars in tire wear.
- Spot problems early
A suspension system inspection is an inherent part of the wheel alignment operation. This gives the mechanic a chance to spot worn parts that would affect vehicle alignment. It also gives him an opportunity to spot small problems before they become big, costly ones.
- Ensure safe driving
A periodic four wheel alignment makes sure your car handles properly and, more importantly, provides an opportunity for inspecting the suspension system for defective parts. In some ways, the safe driving aspect may be the most important benefit of wheel alignment.
- Stretch fuel mileage
Fuel mileage increases as rolling resistance decreases. Proper wheel alignment sets all four wheels parallel which, in turn, assures minimum rolling resistance. This plus proper tire inflation provide top efficiency for maximum mileage.
- Improve handling
Does your car pull to one side, does the steering wheel vibrate, do you have to constantly move the steering wheel to keep your car traveling straight ahead? These and other handling problems can generally be corrected by four wheel alignment.
- Get a better ride
Proper alignment helps the front and rear suspension systems do their job. With all the system's components in proper relation, road shock is efficiently absorbed, so the vehicle is more stable, and you get a smoother ride.

* OLDIES TO TOP 40's

This year the Manchester High School S.A.D.D. Chapter included many members and was very involved in its focus of preventing drinking and driving. The following messages, sponsored by Curley Machined Products, are mainly directed toward the Class of 1988. Hopefully our purpose will go beyond graduation and will stay with the students into adulthood. Let's keep everyone safe so we may gather together again in our many class reunions. Afterall, Friends are for Life.

THINK BEFORE YOU DRINK
BEFORE YOU DRIVE

What's the big deal about drunk driving?

Think about it.

- Half of all traffic deaths in Michigan are alcohol related.
- The number-one cause of death among 15-24 year-olds is drinking and driving.
- On Friday and Saturday nights, one out of every 10 drivers on the road is drunk.
- Drunk driving is the number one traffic safety problem in Michigan and across the nation.
- More than 25,000 Americans died last year in alcohol-related traffic accidents.

May The Class of '88 Live On

*The time has come to look over the years
The time has come to shed a few tears
Not sad, but happy for what you've all shared
The good times, the bad times, And how you all cared.*

*When you first came to Manchester High, Everyone told you the years would fly by
And for they have, now you're at your last, And in just a few days, they will be part of the past.*

*But never will the memories be forgotten in your hearts
And for the rest of your lives
They will play a big part*

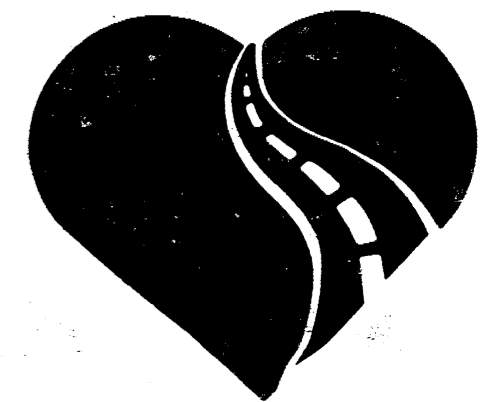

*From the playgrounds
To the proms
To your very last day,
You will hold on to those memories in a very special way.*

*You came here as friends
Now you'll leave as friends too.*

May the class of '88 live on.

Happy Graduation to you.

Record Deer Herd Worries Farmers

The record number of deer expected in Michigan this year is causing concern in the state's farm community. According to Ron Nelson, legislative-counsel for the Michigan Farm Bureau, it's a "pocketbook issue" for farmers.

"It's pure economics. The increased deer herd is browsing in great intensity of farm crops, so we're talking about a pocketbook issue for farmers," Nelson said. "When deer numbers increase, and the duration of their stay on the farm increases, crop damage becomes severe."

"Probably a farmer can afford to donate $100 to a few deer in terms of crops, but when they start donating $1,000 or $10,000, or possible more to that herd of deer on an annual basis, it gets to be a severe economic problem."

Nelson said there are several possible solutions to the problem including using repellents to deter the deer from entering an area, or fencing. But reducing the size of the herd through the hunting season is the best and most workable solution.

"A number of farmers are going to a leasing arrangement with hunters. Farmers have had some concerns in the past about liability, but there are a couple of laws on the books now that give a great deal of protection to a farmer who allows hunting either under a lease compensation arrangement or without any remuneration. I think farmers are in a pretty good position to encourage hunters on their land to reduce that deer population," he said.

Motorists should be alert to the increased deer herd movement, Nelson said, because of the dangers of car-deer accidents.

"Car-deer accidents, at least, are an inconvenience; at worst, resulted in five fatal injuries to motorists in the past couple of years," Nelson said. "The economic loss is fairly substantial, too, and this translates into higher insurance rates because the damage to the vehicle is very expensive to repair."

Michigan Wines Win Medals

Two Michigan wineries, Fenn Valley Vineyards and St. Julian Winery, Inc., received top honors in a prestigious international wine judging sponsored by the Washington, D.C. based Taster's Guild Wine and Food educational society.

Of the 140 medals awarded, eight total were presented to Fenn Valley Vineyards in Fennville and St. Julian Winery, Inc. in Paw Paw. Silver medal winners included St. Julian 1986 Seyval, 1984 Chancelor Noir and Solera Cream Sherry; and Fenn Valley Raspberry wine and 1987 Vidal Blanc Reserve. Bronze medals were awarded to the Fenn Valley Lake Shore Dry White, Lake Shore Blush and St. Julian 1987

Vignoles. The competition was held at John Grisanti's restaurant in Memphis, Tennessee with over 350 international entries, and 14 judges selected from around the nation.

"This competition offers proof that Michigan wines can more than hold their own in international competition," said Dr. Paul E. Kindinger, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, and chairman of the Michigan Grape and Wine Industry Council. "These awards are an important step toward our goal of demonstrating the quality of Michigan wines."

The Michigan Grape and Wine Industry Council, based in the Michigan Department of Agriculture, is actively involved in obtaining national recognition and appreciation for Michigan wines.

The St. Julian 1986 Seyval and 1984 Chancelor Noir were recently chosen to represent the U.S. in Italy, by the Sons of Italy in America. The Seyval was used by the Pope in his celebration of Mass at the Silverdome in September. The Fenn Valley

Raspberry was also selected by Taster's Guild as the national wine of the month during May.

Mich. Farmland Values Up

A recent survey of agricultural banks showed that Michigan farmland values rose about 2% in 1987. Michigan Farm Bureau economist Bob Craig said the reason for the increase is an improved farm economy.

"We are seeing farm income now stabilizing, and we are seeing some commodity prices on the increase," he said. "I believe that not only has the land market bottomed out but, as the report shows, farmland values are beginning to increase."

Craig predicts that farmland values will continue to move up in the next year, with some variation from one part of the state to another.

The survey, developed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, showed farmland values in Iowa up 13%, up 8.2% in Illinois and up 7.2% in Indiana.

Library Celebration

practical matter of needing people willing to give the energy necessary to make an activity happen. And so some ideas, such as the Literary Masquerade Ball, were sadly put aside as "not do-able" because it would simply take more work and planning that there were workers and planners!

But some ideas will be realized, such as a Puppet Show which will be offered to the children (and adults) of the community at the Summer Art Fair, this year to be called the Summer Heritage Celebration. A small group of experienced (and some not-so-experienced) puppeteers are now working on this delightful project. Be sure to look for us - and bring the children - at the Summer Heritage Celebration, in the park in front of the Library and at the Gazebo on Saturday, August 13th.

The group then heard that one project needed no more work - and that it would soon be noticeable: the Manchester Post Office will begin on June 1st to cancel all mail put through here with a stamp which honors our Library on its 150th Anniversary. Be sure to notice the cancellation stamp on your mail beginning the first of June and for six months thereafter.

Finally, much discussion of several loosely connected ideas came together with an obvious and satisfactory solution. First, we had considered having book bags, book marks, and book plates made to recognize the Library's anniversary. These would be commemorative, of fine quality, and offered for sale. At the same time, we discussed our desire to reprint two local histories of the Manchester area, one by Annetta English and the other by Jane Palmer. We realized that the sale of these commemorative (and useful) book-related items could be used to provide the funds to reprint these wonderful histories by Manchester women. Although the proceeds might not provide for all the expenses, this beginning would make sure that these books, now just in typewritten form and with only a few copies left, would not be lost. What a meaningful way to celebrate the Library's importance to the Community!

And so once again, we welcome all hands to lend support in any form to the Celebration. It is not too late. The Celebration will last for the entire year (at least!). If you would like to be more involved, call the Library at 428-8045, and they will help you to get in touch with those who are working on these projects.

Michigan Legal Milestone Marker

The State Bar of Michigan and the Mason-Lake Counties Bar Association will dedicate a Michigan Legal Milestone marker honoring an important Michigan outdoor recreation case June 7 on the Pine River in northwest lower Michigan. Titled "Public Access to Public Water," the Milestone commemorates the Collins V. Gerhardt case of 1925, which one outdoor writer has called one of the most important water rights cases in the nation's history. Placement of the Milestone was suggested by Michigan United Conservation Clubs, which is assisting with the ceremony, as is the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Huron-Manistee National Forest. The 1925 decision of the Michigan Supreme Court upheld the right of the state's citizens to the recreational use of public water, subject to restrictions determined by the state. Challenges to that course the next fall. This was quite an inducement, but "would he keep his promise?" 'Twas worth trying for anyway, and Dick stayed at home and fed cattle and hauled hay all winter. Another year rolls around, and the same general duties are performed by the willing boy, until the time arrives when his father said he could go to school. Mr. Boss, well knowing his promise, begins to study over the matter, and at last makes up his mind that those four hogs dying with the cholera, and that calf getting drowned in the river, will be a sufficient excuse for "breaking his promise." Perhaps Dick will be satisfied if I "promise" him that span of Clyde colts - I must "promise" him something. After supper he tells Dick how he has decided, and how he, Dick, has been fooled. The boy says nothing, well knowing the uselessness of argument in this case. He goes up to bed with a heavy heart, and the next morning when Mr. Boss calls him to build the fire, he does not respond. Where is he? Gone in the night, on account of "broken promises," to seek his fortune among strangers, most likely to a city, where God only knows what will become of him.

Final Track Results

League Meet

We competed at the Cascade Blue Division League meet at Michigan Center last Tuesday, and I mean we competed! Our boys brought home 10 medals, 3 "individual" league championship plaques, 4 "relay team" league championship plaques, not a bad days work! Denny Steele threw the discus 1327 (career best) to win the championship. This was only Denny's second year of throwing, so I would say this was a tremendous accomplishment in such a short time. He had surgery last winter on his knee, and this has hampered him this season. But apparently it didn't bother him Tuesday! Senior Craig Scully in his first year of throwing the shot put won the league championship with a heave of 45' 11-1/2, personal best. Not too far behind was senior Mike Stidham, also in his first year of shot putting. Mike tossed 43'8 (personal best) for third place and a conference medal! I couldn't even imagine what these two could've done if they had been out for track three years ago!

Nick Miller, Jamie Winzenz, Benji Winzenz, Brian Weidmayer teamed up in the 2 mile relay running their seasons best 8:56.5 to win third place conference medals. This was an astounding effort because the temperature was dropping, and the wind was starting to blow quite hard by this time. If you've ever seen the Winzenz's and Weedy you would know why a gusty wind would affect them. They're not very big, but they sure can run.

Our 440 relay team of Allan

Carson, Mike Brokaw, Brad Uphouse, Dwayne Archibeque got their conference medals by placing a close third. First and second place were only a step away! This race warmed up Brad Uphouse for the 440 dash, which is the next race in track. It warmed him up so well that he ran away from everyone to win the league title in 54.1 Not his best time but it was better than everybody else's.

Jamie Winzenz brought home the silver medal in the 2 mile run in 11:02.6 Remember he's only a freshman. So I would think this was a superb performance by someone so young. Like I've said before you're going to read a lot about him in the future.

This brings us to the final event "The Mile Relay" being that we're defending champs, everyone was out to de-throne us. But it didn't quite work out that way, as Mark Fenelon, Brad Uphouse, Mike Brokaw, Brad Wilson out ran everyone to win the championship for a second straight year in 3:44.0. Brad Wilson had a 20 yard lead on the final leg, only to let a Vandercork runner catch him with 100 yards to go. Either Brad was teasing him, or trying to give me a heart attack, he finally pulled away and we won easily. I wish he'd stop that! One thing about it if Brad's in front NOBODY gets by! After the race someone asked me where we get our quarter milers? I simply replied "Do you think all we grow is corn in Manchester?"

Guys, I'm so very proud and happy for all of you. Thanks for making this a season I'll always remember, ALWAYS!!

Money Management

Careful Planning Can Ease The Stresses Of A Spouse's Death

The death of a family member brings a whirlwind of anguish and grief. Never is this more true than when the death is of a spouse. Survivors are often ill equipped to deal with the consequences of a spouse's death; pressing financial and practical matters seem somehow insignificant and overwhelming all at once. Suddenly, you're confronted with unfamiliar tasks at a time when your inner resources are at an all-time low.

The Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you prepare for the possibility of a spouse's death far in advance, when your wits - and your spouse - are still with you. Your first priority should be writing wills. These critical documents guide survivors on subjects ranging from the distribution of assets, to guardianship of children, to an individual's preferences in funeral arrangements.

Funeral arrangements may be the hardest topic to discuss with your spouse, but an open discussion and mutually arrived at decision can save a spouse from having to rapidly plan heart-wrenching funeral arrangements in the earliest period of mourning when grief and time pressures are most debilitating.

When writing a will, assess your current financial situation and also project the future value of assets. If your estate is worth more than $600,000, you should consult a tax specialist to prevent your estate from being unnecessarily depleted by federal and state estate taxes. Even if your assets are considerably less, you may be able to insure a faster less complicated transfer of property by creating a living trust and deeding a house or other assets directly to your spouse. Alternately, property that is jointly owned - for example, your house - will automatically pass to your spouse without any drawn out legal proceedings. An attorney will be able to explain the benefits and drawbacks of both living trusts and joint ownership.

In addition to a will, you should draw up a letter of instructions - a simple list of instructions related to an individual's financial and legal status. Unlike a will, a letter of instructions is not a legal document; you can type it yourself, or write it long-hand if you prefer - but make sure that it is comprehensive and easily read and understood.

Include important phone numbers of lawyers, accountants, and doctors. Document employee, veteran and Social Security benefits; pension and profit-sharing plans; insurance policies and their beneficiaries; union membership; savings and checking accounts; investment holdings such as IRA accounts to mutual funds; and any valuable collectibles. List all potential creditors, including credit cards, the bank issuing your mortgage, and the issuers of any other outstanding loans. Note the location of such important items as your birth certificate, marriage certificate, divorce papers, Social Security card, safe deposit keys, income tax returns and the will itself. Finally, if you have purchased a cemetery plot, list the amount paid and the deed number.

Second only to the emotional devastation of a spouse's death is the blow dealt to the financial security of the surviving spouse. Sometimes, due to unforeseen complications such as a family dispute, assets cannot be distributed for many months. In these cases, the immediate benefits provided by a life insurance policy can save a family from suffering unnecessary financial hardship.

For most middle-income families, life insurance is one of the most important types of financial protection available. The amount of life insurance you should carry depends on how long you must provide for your heirs as well as on many other assumptions about the future. No two cases are alike. A good financial planner can provide meaningful help in determining the amount suitable for your situation. Remember, even if the surviving spouse is still capable of paying an average living expenses, the generally tax-free proceeds from the policy can make it far easier to keep up with mortgage payments or finance a child's education.

Social Security benefits are another source of income for widows and widowers whose spouses contributed the required amounts to Social Security during their working years. To collect these benefits, you must be 60 or older or at least 50 and disabled. If you have in your care a child under 16, or a disabled child of any age, you are also eligible. To estimate how much you or your spouse can expect from Social Security, call your local Social Security office and ask for a copy of Form 7004 (request for statement of earnings). Don't wait until retirement or your spouse's death to check both of your records, especially if either spouse has held a number of part-time jobs or changed jobs frequently. If you wait too long and then detect an error, you may have passed the time limit on correcting your earning records.

Since three out of four women outlive their husbands, women should take special care to prepare themselves for the possible death of a spouse. Actively participate in planning your family budgets, learn about your husband's benefit and pension plans and establish your own credit if you haven't done so already.

Preparing for a spouse's death may not be pleasant, but it is highly recommended. A tax specialist can offer further advice on providing for your spouse and minimizing the tax liability of death benefits and inheritances.

A heated knife blade will cut through fresh bread more easily.

News From Senator Lana Pollack

State Senator Lana Pollack (D-Ann Arbor) Wednesday introduced a new bill to establish a state-subsidized prescription drug coverage program for Michigan's low-income senior citizens. The new bill, which has the support of the Governor, is identical to one being introduced in the House by state Representative Thomas Mathieu (D-Grand Rapids).

On Monday, the Governor vetoed a senior citizens prescription drug bill because there was no money to pay for it. "There's a crucial difference between the vetoed bill and this new legislation that will make it possible for the Governor to sign this bill into law once the Legislature approves it," Pollack said. "This new bill is tied to other legislation that will help provide the funds necessary to pay for this program," she added.

According to Pollack, the new bill will not take effect unless bills levying a tax on smokeless tobacco products and closing tax loopholes on railroad property also becomes law. The Governor has indicated those bills could provide approximately $20 million in financing for the seniors prescription drug program.

Under the terms of the bill vetoed by the Governor, low income seniors 62 and older would have qualified to participate in the program. According to the provisions of the Pollack-Mathieu legislation, senior citizens will have to be at least 65-years-old to participate. Furthermore, the new legislation will require seniors to pay higher co-payments and permit the state Office of Services to the Aging (OSA) to decide on what deductibles are required. The original bill called for a co-payment of $5.00 or 50 percent of the cost of each prescription, whichever was less. "These provisions are necessary for effective cost control so that the program remains feasible," Pollack explained.

As with the vetoed legislation, the new proposal requires senior citizens to meet the following additional criteria:

- If single, have an annual income of not more than $9,000; if married, not more than $12,000.
- Be ineligible for Medicaid.

- If single, have assets totaling not more than $15,000; if married, not more than $20,000, excluding one's primary residence, a car, a burial plot, a prepaid funeral plan, personal possessions and household furnishings, and life insurance policies.

Bridgewater Townhall Listed In State Historical Register

The Michigan Historical Commission is pleased to announce that the Bridgewater Township Hall, Washtenaw County, has been listed in the State Register of Historic Places. The Bridgewater Township Hall is a simple, one-story, front gable-roofed, clapboard building, now sheathed in shingles. It has plain-raking cornices without returns, and rests on a stone foundation. A wooden hand-capped access ramp now frames the building's exterior. Interior space arrangements have been modernized to reflect the building's use as a township hall and meeting room. Type "B" designation is suggested. Bridgewater was first settled by Colonel Daniel Hixon after whom the township was first named Hixon in 1832. George Howe, in whose home the town organization took place in 1833, became the first township supervisor and had it renamed after Bridgewater

Mobile Home Issue Still Undecided

by Becky Doyle

Village Council voted Monday to send back to the Planning Commission for further study the issue of the proposed mobile home park request for rezoning a parcel of land from agricultural.

In sending the issue back to the Commission, the Council requested study of three points. First, that the petitioner's request for rezoning a 7 acre parcel be considered, instead of the recommended 4 acres that came before the Council with the Planning Commission's approval.

Bob Raymond, the engineer for the developer, said that after a closer examination the portion of land which is unusable because of a Consumer's Power easement is closer to the 7 acre figure and they would need that much to build the 108 units which they consider to be the minimum economically feasible.

Council also asked the Commission to consider "our concerns for their input for appropriate boundaries" to the park, and whether the portion on the north side of the easement which is presently zoned for mobile home

Austin Road Bridge was officially open for traffic Monday, June 6. The completion and opening of the bridge is six weeks ahead of schedule according to F. W. Des Autels, Washtenaw County Road Commission engineer.

Construction on the bridge began on March 14, 1988, by Argersinger-Morse Construction Company of Ann Arbor who was the successful bidder. Cost of the project was $196,432.46. Washtenaw County applied for critical bridge funding for the in 1986 and was awarded funds as a "Critical Bridge Project" in October 1986. 90 percent of the monies were from federal and state funds with the county supplying the other 10 percent.

Churches Denied In Business District

by Becky Doyle

The Village Council voted Monday to deny the request for a conditional use in the business district as a church. The request had been made by the Conquering Faith Fellowship that churches be added as a conditional use within the downtown business district.

Since the building in question had already been rented to another tenant, Reverend Ray Robichaud had told Planning Commission that the reworded petition was no longer suitable and that he wished the original petition to be considered.

The recommendation of the Planning Commission was that the use be allowed under the condition that the church would be in an existing building and only if the property in question was on the border of another zoning district.

Bill Kwolek read a statement recommending that Council adopt the reworded amendment to the zoning ordinance. He urged Council to consider the reworded petition as a take.

Mary Kallewaard also read a prepared statement concerning the right of a municipality to designate the use of land that lies within its borders.

Council passed a motion to deny the original petition with Kwolek dissenting. Kwolek made a motion that the reworded amendment be adopted. The motion died for lack of support.

Band Takes Trip To Washington D.C.

On Wednesday, May 18th, 10:00 p.m. the high school band boarded their buses and set off for a twelve hour trip to our nation's capitol. The first few hours the students were coming off the walls with anticipation, but gradually things quieted down and they slept between each stop. Boy did they sleep—standing up, sitting down, on each others shoulders, even stretched out on the floor in the aisles. Walking back to the restroom was like a 15 minute walk through a mine field. The buses rolled into the Twin Bridges Marriott Hotel at about 10:00 a.m. Thursday morning. The students had two rooms and 45 minutes to freshen up for a full day at the Smithsonian Museum complex. After the museum tour it was on the buses again and back to the hotels where they checked in and prepared for the performance of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Kennedy Center. Andrew Litton was guest conductor and Christopher Parlening (Classical Guitarist) was guest soloist with the orchestra that evening.

The following day the band visited Arlington National Cemetery and the Vietnam Memorial. They also had a performance at the Washington Monument that turned out to be just a little bit wet (remember guys?) Well that didn't dampen their spirits; they showered and took off for a performance of the musical "Annie" at the West End Dinner Theatre. Dinner and musical were fantastic. A tour of the Washington Monument at night followed. That night no one slept - even the chaperones hung out until all hours of the evening.

On their final day the band toured the National Cathedral and the Foreign Embassies on their way to the Kennedy Center for lunch on the top floor; a room with a view. Following lunch they
