

THE YEAR 2000 PROJECT

The Public Health Service has been giving health professionals an opportunity to help shape national health promotion policy for the years 1990 to 2000. In cooperation with the National Academy of Science's Institute of Medicine, the PHS has just completed hearings in seven cities across the country - hearings designed to solicit testimony from a wide range of individuals and organizations about objectives in health promotion and disease prevention that we, as a nation, might expect to achieve by the end of this century.

These hearings actually build upon a prevention program, now underway, that was launched in 1980 with the publication of Healthy People: The Surgeon General's Report on Health Promotion and Disease Prevention. This document, reflecting the best thinking of health experts and citizens from all parts of the country, called for a major reordering of American's health priorities. The report made it clear that if we were going to continue to improve the health of the American people, we would have to put less emphasis on the treatment of illness and injury and more emphasis on the prevention of disease and trauma and on the promotion of good health.

And that's what we've done. The current program lists 226 objectives that we think we can reach, or even exceed, by preventing health problems before they have a chance to occur, by modifying health-related behaviors and by bringing about changes in our physical environment. Because the objectives set precise, numerical targets and provide baseline data for measuring progress, we have been able to track improvements and spotlight problem areas in the nation's health status. How are we doing? Our data shows us well on the way to meeting about half of the 1990 objectives, and over the past eight years, the country has seen major reductions of illness and death in specified categories for infants, children and adults.

The year 2000 hearings gave us a better understanding of local health-care needs, of the opportunities for improving health status that exist at the community level and of ways to apply the lessons we are learning during the 1990 process. The hearings gave community groups and individuals a forum for proposing 1) precise, quantitative objectives for maintaining health and reducing death, disease and disability, 2) interventions to meet these objectives and 3) surveillance programs to assess preventive needs and efforts.

The year 2000 project will focus on such areas as detecting and preventing AIDS, cancer, heart disease and other chronic diseases, infectious diseases and injuries; improving maternal and child health, family planning, dental health, occupational safety and health, physical fitness and mental health; reducing smoking, drug and alcohol use; and maintaining health and the quality of life in older people.

Year 2000 objectives do more than just set targets, or goals, that we will try to reach by the end of the next decade. They also spell out the kinds of actions that individuals and organizations in our communities should take in pursuit of those goals. Smoking reduction, for example, will require: education by schools, health professionals and the media, and most of these educational efforts will need to be targeted to specific populations; services, such as counseling and follow-up by health professionals and smoking cessation classes by voluntary and health organizations, employers, hospitals, and health maintenance organizations; new technologies, such as nicotine gum, to reduce tobacco dependency; and economic incentives, such as preferred insurance premiums, to reinforce smokers' interest in quitting.

For more information about the year 2000 project or national disease prevention and health promotion objectives, contact the Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, Room 2132, 330 C. Street, S. W., Washington, D.C. 20201.

Official State Historical Marker To Be Dedicated

The home of Tom and Mary Walton

The Michigan Historical Commission will hold its regular monthly meeting for July in Manchester. They will meet at 11:00 a.m., in the Blacksmiths Shop at 324 E. Main Street.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday, July 21, 1988, the same day as the 35th Annual Chicken Broil. The members of the Michigan Historical Commission and accompanying support staff will also attend the Chicken Broil, and have indicated that they look forward to enjoying the renowned broiled chicken to be served.

While in Manchester an official state historical marker will be unveiled and dedicated at the home of Tom and Mary Walton. This will take place at 2:00 p.m. and the general public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The Walton home, located at 102 W. Main Street, is one of the oldest homes in the Village of Manchester.

Jabez Fountain, a wealthy Manchester flour mill owner, hired William S. Carr to construct a one-story frame residence in 1842. Carr, a native New Yorker had constructed the first store building in Manchester in 1837, and later served as a state representative and delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1850.

In 1850, Fountain sold his home to Dr. William S. Bessac, who added the present second story and cupola to the house about 1853.

Raynor G. Haeussler, Bessac's grandson, inherited the house, and sold it to its present owners in 1943.

The house has been listed in the State Register of Historic Sites. Commissioners Elizabeth Adams, William Wickers and Donald F. Wall, together with Dr. Martha M. Bigelow, Director of the Michigan Bureau of History will participate in the dedication.

Park Commission Formed

On the recommendation of President Mary Kallewaard the Village Council confirmed the appointments of six village residents to the newly formed Manchester Parks and Recreation Commission. An Ordinance permitting the establishment of such a commission had been in existence for a number of years but had not been implemented until these appointments.

At its organizational meeting the Commission elected the following officers: Jeff Schaffer, Chairman; Jack Gould, Vice-Chairman; Evelyn Panches, Secretary. Other Commission members are Lynn Niehaus, Pat Swaney, and Raymond Steele. The Council also appointed Ted Tapping as its representative on the Commission.

The purpose of the Commission is to advise Council as to routine maintenance practices at village parks and recommend to them possible capital expenditures that might improve the appearance and resident usage of the parks.

Already, plans are under way to repaint all the pavilions and provide additional water and electrical services at Carr Park, acquire more "kiddie swings" at Carr and Kirk Park, purchase benches, grills, and picnic tables, plant some shade trees for Kirk Park. A new sign at the entrance to Carr Park is also being considered. The Commission is also anxious to receive any suggestions for the improvement of the parks from residents. Individual Commission members may be contacted or written comments may be mailed or left at the Village Offices.

The Commission will be investigating the possibility of securing federal grants for park(s) improvements and is most willing to accept earmarked financial assistance from service organizations, corporations, individuals or other interested contributors.

Commission members feel that Manchester is already blessed with fine parks and it is their hope that this tradition can be strengthened.

35th ANNUAL CHICKEN BROIL THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1988

On the third Thursday of July, that is the 21st, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., Manchester's Annual Chicken Broil is taking place for the 35th time. If there is good weather, another 14,000 guests will feast on 18 ounce char-broiled chicken halves, accompanied by fresh coleslaw (including the secret recipe dressing) radishes, rolls, butter and potato chips with a beverage.

It is a great bargain for only $4.50 in advance or $5.00 at the gate. For this small amount you have a nice drive in the country, entertainment provided this year by Barber Shop and the Sweet Adelines quartets. In addition, free parking at the high school includes a carriage ride to the Broil.

Over the years this event has contributed more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of value to capital improvements in the community. The primary emphasis has been for the benefit of the community's youth, but in 1986 the Broil approved and paid for lifeline for the community's senior citizens.

The Broil has become part of Manchester's identity, and is unequalled for its size in such a short period of time.

It takes a lot of planning and cooperative effort to make a project like this work. In 1987 the Broil was the most successful ever, with the longest wait in line held to 17 minutes and net profits of over $10,000 dollars on 13,337 dinner guests. It takes over 600 volunteers, men and boys to make this event a success, and Manchester is proud to invite everyone to dinner on July 21st.

Secretary Of State To Visit Chicken Broil

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin will be Acting Governor of Michigan on July 21, 1988, and will be a guest of the Manchester Chicken Broil on that date.

Governor James J. Blanchard, Lieutenant Governor Martha Griffiths will be out of state on that date attending the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, Georgia. The Secretary of State, next in succession by law, will assume the duties of Governor in their absence from the state.

The Acting Governor is expected to arrive by helicopter at the Athletic Field at 6:00 p.m. and to be in Manchester for an hour or so. He will be presented with a gold lifetime pass to the Manchester Chicken Broil by Gene Bentschneider, President of the Annual Chicken Broil.

Mr. Austin has served as Secretary of State since his election to that office in November of 1970. Prior to his election he served as a delegate to the Michigan Constitutional Convention in 1961-1962.

The Secretary of State and Acting Governor will be greeted by bagpipers from the Glen Erin Pipe Band of Lansing, who will provide entertainment at the 35th Annual Chicken Broil.

The Secretary of State has often inquired of Former Governor John E. Swainson, a Manchester resident, about the Chicken Broil, and has been looking forward to the opportunity to attend and sample the famous broiled chicken produced by the Chicken Broil Committee.

Susan Hayes, Health Education Intern at Chelsea Community Hospital, tests the cholesterol level of Ray Dancer.

Chelsea Community Hospital will offer cholesterol screenings during the Manchester Chicken Broil. Cholesterol screenings will be offered by Hospital health professionals and Dr. Evelyn Eccles and Dr. Virginia Johnson, Manchester Medical Center, on Thursday, July 21 between 4:00-8:00 p.m. There is a $5.00 charge for cholesterol screening. Health information will be provided at the site.

For more information, contact the Education Department at Chelsea Community Hospital, (313) 475-3935.

Senior Citizens News

"Do You Hear What I Hear?" was the question I sang to our neighbor last Friday the 8th. Locusts singing back to me (already). We had another neighbor in our fun block who mowed his lawn singing "Jingle Bells", what would a person do without those who cheer us up when we get gloomy? Not much mowing around here, have been recording it on the calendar, but with that dandy rain Sunday, we may get our summer exercise again. Husband says the grass looks greener already (on Sunday eve). Don't forget to come for bingo on Friday, July 15, and each Friday at 1:00 p.m. at the Center. Saturday, July 16: Seniors who have tickets will leave at 12 Noon for Ann Arbor and the Michigan Theater Entertainment Spectacular.

Monday, July 18: The bus will leave at 9:30 a.m. on a shopping trip to Kerrytown and possibly Arborland. Lunch out will be enjoyed also. Call Helen Knickerbocker if you'd like to go along at 428-7239.

Thursday, July 21: Chicken Broil Day and we'll see you there. All the men folks will be working hard and we women enjoy our company, clean houses (which we have worked hard at, too) and the nice weather (which we've ordered).

Looking ahead: Saturday, July 23: Seniors will leave at 10:00 a.m. for Clinton on a shopping trip to Tecumseh. Give Helen a ring, as there is still a vacant spot or two on the bus.

Thursday, July 28: The monthly senior-sponsored public card party will be held starting at 8 p.m. at Freedom Township Hall. Come one and all! Happy 93rd birthday, Louise Huber!

Manchester Village Sewer Rates Increase

On August 1, the Village of Manchester will increase the cost of sewer rates to residents, according to Dick Kuntz, village accountant.

The new rate will reflect a 40% increase over the current cost of $10 per month flat fee. Residents will be paying a flat fee of $15 per month plus $1.62 per thousand gallons of water the user puts through the system.

Water rates will be cut to $5 from $10 flat fee per month. The water rate will remain 40 cents for every gallon over the first 9,000 gallons, which is free.

These new rates were approved by the Village Council at their last meeting.

The revenue from this raise will be used to pay for the bond issue sold to construct a new waste water treatment plant. The new facility is under construction and will be completed next summer.

Editors Note: While I know the village has budget problems and very little funds, I do wonder where the residents can generate the extra money to pay for the rise in our State Equalized Taxes, both for the village and the township, the new school millage recently passed and now pay more for our water/sewer rates.

What is the village offering us for our taxes? Our streets are terrible, we are assessed for garbage pick-up, and we must pay if we use the transfer site.

Certainly we should expect something for our tax dollars!

National Conference Confirms Importance Of Calcium

In the United States, 15 to 20 million individuals, primarily post-menopausal women, are afflicted with a bone-thinning, crippling, and costly disease. This disease is osteoporosis.

Much of the pain, suffering, and cost is avoidable, with calcium high on the list of preventive measures, according to a recent Food and Drug Administration Conference on Women's Health Issues.

Dr. Lou Avioli, founder of the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research, was one of the senior osteoporosis experts in the audience at the FDA Conference. Dr. Avioli noted that as the selected panel addressed the ways to prevent and treat osteoporosis, the role of calcium was one of the topics frequently discussed. According to Dr. Avioli, women continue to need 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams of calcium daily in order to prevent bone loss.

In a postconference interview, Dr. Avioli further said that while many women recognize the importance of calcium, studies show that many of these same women fail to get enough calcium in their diets. He stressed the importance of daily supplementation with the right type of calcium for women whose diets fall short in this basic mineral. "Before it can adequately be metabolized and before it can do the body any good, a calcium supplement has to dissolve and be bioavailable," says Dr. Avioli. In documented research, many private-label or generic calcium supplements scored poorly on this point - other commercial supplements fared much better. According to Dr. Avioli, it's important for the consumer to be informed about the differences, and he stresses the importance of selecting a scientifically-proven calcium supplement when supplementation is needed.

The issue of dissolution and bioavailability was addressed by Ralph Shangraw, M.D., conference panelist and chairman of pharmaceuticals at the University of Maryland. "Our study evaluated commercial calcium tablets to find if they would dissolve once taken into the body, and we found the results disturbing," said Dr. Shangraw. His study analyzed 35 widely distributed calcium carbonate products, many of them sold under private-label brands by retailers. Dr. Shangraw found that 11 products failed to dissolve after an hour in simulated gastric juice; in six others, only 10% of the tablet had dissolved after an hour.

Among the best dissolution performers in Dr. Shangraw's study: brand name calcium carbonate supplements, including Marion Laboratories' Os-Cal 500. Calcium carbonate preparations contain more available elemental calcium per tablet than other calcium preparations. Thus, individuals can take fewer of them to supplement their diets to obtain the 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams daily.

Along with increased calcium intake, conference experts also pointed to the importance of exercise and estrogen replacement therapy as methods to curb bone loss.

This FDA conference represented a significant milestone in focusing national attention on the prevention of osteoporosis, as well as on the commitment of the public health community in improving the status of women's health in the United States. The conference was the first in a series initiated by the National Conference on Women's Health and the Public Health Service. It attracted more than 500 health professionals from around the country who study osteoporosis and its causes and effects.

Raisin River Reveries Number II

Manchester Enterprise August 4, 1881

"And they builded them a city,"

And the name thereof was Sharon city; and all this "Hollow" was mapped off into town lots. In the old school district record, I noticed that quite a discussion was held over the location of the school house, and whether it should be made large enough for a future academy and place of worship.

But alas! Sharon city was too near Soulesville, and like Goldsmith's deserted village it has become one of the sweet Auburns of the past. Occasionally my spade throws up the top of an old-fashioned brown earthen teapot, or a rusted steel tobacco box-relics of a former civilization; or we come upon an old well, or a patch of bouncing bet(soapwort) or tansy, that marks where a house once stood, and fair hands planted "flowers and herbs."

And yonder farm-house at the juncture of those two roads, is the banking house of the "Farmers Bank of Sharon," a relic of those times when our currency was like milk, in that it would keep over night if it didn't "sour" financially. Many a man in those days would fain have asked the question of the backwoodsman, who came into a Detroit bank with a roll of "wild cat," and upon being told that it was worthless, draw the teller aside and anxiously whispered "I say, can't you tell a feller how to tell when money is goin' to spile?"

An added interest to this old "farmers' Bank of Sharon" rests in the fact that the father of the assassin Guiteau was its President.

Public Notice

In Accordance To The Requirements Of The Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments Of 1986, The Village Of Manchester, As Your Water Supplier, Is Providing This Information To Help Educate You On The Possibility Of Lead In Your Drinking Water.

There's a growing public concern about lead in our environment, the Village of Manchester recognizing the importance of their customer's awareness on this public health issue.

"Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard."

THE PROBLEM WITH LEAD

Lead is a soft toxic metal known to be harmful to human health if inhaled or ingested. Lead accumulates in the body and its potential for harm depends upon the amount of exposure. Low levels of lead exposure can cause subtle biochemical changes.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women."

There are three potential sources for lead to accumulate in the body; food consumption, airborne pollutants and the third potential source is from your drinking water.

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly."

The water provided by the Village of Manchester is substantially lead free. Our lead level is within the EPA's requirements and will remain in compliance even after the new rules are instituted.

YOU SHOULD KNOW

Although the water the Village of Manchester provides has no presence of lead - the opportunity for lead to leach into your water supply is still possible.

Typically, lead gets into your water after leaving the Village well. The most likely source of lead contamination is in the home or residence plumbing system.

The most common cause is corrosion (a reaction between the water and the lead pipes or solder).

"Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

1. If your home or water system has lead pipes, or
2. If your home has copper pipes soldered with lead, and
  - If the home is less than five years old, or
  - If you have soft water, or
  - If the water sits in the pipes for several hours without use."

IN THE HOME

Up to the 1900's it was common practice, in some areas of the United States, to use lead pipes for interior plumbing. Galvanized and then copper pipes replaced lead pipes, however, lead solder was used to join these copper pipes.

You can tell if lead pipes are in your home by scratching the pipe with a house key or screwdriver. Lead is a dull grey metal. Lead is soft enough to be easily scratched and will become shiny when scratched. You should be particularly cautious if you see signs of corrosion (frequent leaks, rust colored water, stained dishes or laundry).

TO MINIMIZE EXPOSURE

You can minimize exposure to this potential problem for you and your family if you:

Flush each cold water faucet by allowing the water to run until the water is as cold as it will get. Do this whenever water has been sitting in pipes for more than a few hours (such as overnight). This usually takes about 2 minutes. Flushing is important because the water that comes out after flushing has not been in extended contact with lead pipes or lead solder that may be in your household.

(Flushing water may be used for non-consumption purposes such as washing dishes, clothes or other household tasks; it need not be wasted).

Never cook or consume water from the hot water faucet. Hot tap water can contain higher levels of lead because lead dissolves more easily in hot water. It is especially important to avoid using hot water from the faucet when preparing baby formula.

If you need hot water for consumption or cooking, draw water from the cold tap and heat it on the stove or in the microwave. Use only thoroughly flushed water from the cold tap for any consumption.

It is now a federal law that all materials used for repairs or newly installed plumbing be lead-free. Make sure you check with your plumber before any work is done.

The water provided by the Village of Manchester is in compliance with current and proposed future U.S. EPA lead level limitations for safe drinking water.

It is our concern that our customers are not misled by commercial groups offering expensive services to solve a possible problem which can be handled by common sense. The Village of Manchester wants its customers to know the facts.

For additional information, contact the Village of Manchester, at 120 S. Clinton Street, Manchester, Michigan 48158, or the U.S. EPA. The U.S. EPA has a toll free hotline dedicated to this subject - 1-800-426-4791 - and they have also prepared a booklet on this issue.

This information has been approved by the U.S. EPA and meets EPA's lead public notice requirements.

FOOD AND DRUG INTERACTIONS

The effects that foods and drugs have on each other can determine whether medications do their jobs and whether your body gets the nutrients it needs. It might not occur to you, for example, to avoid taking a tetracycline capsule with a glass of milk. Yet, the calcium in milk, cheese and yogurt impairs the body's absorption of tetracycline. On the other hand, taking some iron supplements with citrus fruits or juices that contain ascorbic acid (vitamin C) enhances absorption of the iron.

The extent of interaction between foods and drugs depends on the drug dosage and on the patient's age, size and medical condition. In general, the presence of food in the stomach and intestines can influence a drug's effectiveness by either speeding up or slowing down the time it takes the medicine to go through the gastrointestinal tract and be absorbed into the bloodstream. It is usually not wise, for example, to take drugs with soda pop or acidic fruit or vegetable juices. These beverages may result in excess acidity that can cause some drugs to dissolve quickly in the stomach, rather than in the intestines where they would be more readily absorbed.

Foods often contain natural and/or added chemicals that can react with drugs in ways that make them virtually useless or even dangerous. Licorice that is extracted from natural sources, for example, contains a substance that, when consumed regularly in excess amounts, may cause an elevation in blood pressure. Continued use of products containing natural licorice extract can aggravate high blood pressure or counteract the effect of medication for high blood pressure.

Perhaps the most hazardous food-drug interaction is the one between monoamine oxidase (MAO) inhibitor, which are drugs sometimes prescribe for depression, and such foods as age cheese, Chianti wine and chicken liver. MAO inhibitors can react with a substance called tyramine in these foods and force the blood pressure to dangerously high levels, sometimes causing severe headaches, brain hemorrhage and in extreme cases, death. (The list of foods with which MAO inhibitors may react is quite long; anyone taking these drugs should discuss the possibility of food-drug reactions with the prescribing physician.)

Just as some foods can affect the way drugs behave in the body, so can some drugs affect the way the body uses food. Drugs may hasten excretion of certain nutrients, hinder absorption of nutrients or interfere with the body's ability to convert nutrients into usable form. Anticonvulsant drugs that are used to control epilepsy can lead to deficiencies of vitamin D and folic acid, because the increase the turnover rate of these vitamins in the body. Mineral oil, an old-fashioned laxative still widely used by elderly people and in nursing homes, can hinder absorption of vitamin D, vitamin K and carotene, a substance the body converts to vitamin A.

There are a number of things the consumers can do to prevent food-drug interactions:

- Read the labels on over-the-counter remedies and the package inserts that come with prescription drugs;
- Follow your doctor's advice on food and beverages that should be avoided while you are taking medications;
- Don't be afraid to ask whether and how the drugs you take might interact with your favorite foods or beverages be sure to tell your doctor about any symptoms that occur after you have eaten particular foods;
- Eat a nutritionally balanced diet from a wide variety of foods; if your overall nutritional status is good, use of a needed drug, even on a long-term basis is less likely to cause depletion of vitamins and minerals.

For more information on foods and drugs that are likely to interact, write to "Food and Drug Interactions," Dept 50, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Don't Get Burned: Protect Your Property With Homeowner's Insurance

Driving home from work, you smell the unmistakable odor of a recent fire. Suddenly, you turn the corner and find yourself facing the charred remains of the house you've called home for 15 years. This is a nightmare no one wants to consider, much less plan for. But according to the Michigan Association of CPAs, owning homeowner's insurance and maintaining an accurate record of your possessions can ease the burden of such a tragedy.

Homeowner's insurance provides protection for your most treasured assets: your home and personal belongings. Besides covering loss or physical damage to property, homeowner's policies protect against liability for another person's injury or for damage to another's property. In other words, if a limb from a tree on your property crashes onto the roof of a shed on your neighbor's back lawn, the insurance company will generally pay for the damages - up to the limits of the policy. The same fact holds true if your dog decides to bite a passerby during his daily walk.

Not all homeowner's policies are equal, however; there are seven basic forms of homeowner's insurance, each varying in the number of perils covered: Basic (HO-1), Broad (HO-2), Special (HO-3), Renter's (HO-4), Comprehensive (HO-5), Condominium (HO-6), and Older Home (HO-8). A basic policy generally protects against physical damage to property resulting from fire or lightning, windstorm or hail, explosion, riot, aircraft and vehicles, smoke, vandalism and malicious mischief, theft and glass breakage. If you own a home in a cold climate, consider broad coverage, which adds protection against damage caused by such events as an ice storm or frozen plumbing systems. Owners of property in areas prone to floods or earthquakes should explore policies offering protection against these specific perils, since they are not covered by homeowner's insurance.

Most insurers require that a home be covered for at least 80 percent of its replacement cost - that is, the amount you would have to spend in order to rebuild the house in the current marketplace. Remember that the 80 percent figure represents the minimum for standard coverage. If you are ever unfortunate enough to suffer a total loss of property, you may regret not insuring your home for full value. After all, if your house burns to the ground, you can only be reimbursed up to the face value of your policy. If you're insured for $100,000 and rebuilding your home costs $120,000, you will have to pay the difference.

As a general rule, the contents of your house are insured for no more than 50 percent of the coverage of your home. If your personal possessions are lost or damaged, actual-cash-value policies reimburse you for the current replacement cost minus depreciation. For example, suppose a fire destroys the rollout desk you bought for $1,200 four years ago. Even if the desk was in perfect condition before the fire, its actual cash value may now be considerably less than its original purchase price. But if the insurance company only paid you the depreciated value, you certainly could not replace the desk at current market prices. As a remedy, many insurance companies now offer policies that allow for the replacement of lost or damaged property, within certain limits.

If you have expensive items such as silver or furs, note that these possessions are covered only to a limited extent. To insure a special item against accidental loss or theft, whether in your home or away, you need a "Floater" policy. The insurance company will probably require proof of the item's value, such as a sales receipt or an independent appraisal.

Now close your eyes for a moment and imagine listing every single item in your home - every piece of clothing, every kitchen utensil and every gardening tool. If this sounds like a monumental task, imagine trying to create such a list in the aftermath of a devastating fire or burglary. As a safeguard, prepare a detailed inventory of your personal possessions, from coffee mugs to furs. In case of loss or damage, this list can be invaluable in substantiating your claim.

In a notebook, list all of the contents of your home, room by room; include a brief description, the date of purchase, and the purchase price. Supplement your written inventory with a visual record of your home's interior and your possessions. If you have a video camera, by all means, use it. You cannot videotape your personal property, take photographs instead. Pay particular attention to jewelry, furs and electronics. Be sure to keep your household list, the visual record and all receipts for major purchases in a fireproof container or in a safe deposit box.

All standard homeowner's policies include liability insurance. The standard limit for liability coverage is usually $100,000. However, in today's world of escalating damage awards in personal injury suits, many homeowners opt for excess liability coverage in the form of an umbrella policy. An umbrella policy supplements your automobile and homeowner's insurance, covering any claim that exceeds the limits of your policies, or results from a charge of slander or libel. Since excess liability insurance picks up where your other policies end, insurers require you to first have a prescribed amount of homeowner's and automobile insurance. Umbrella policies generally have a face value of at least $1 million.

Review your homeowner's policy frequently. Today many policies automatically adjust for inflation, but you should review your coverage periodically to be sure that you are adequately protected. CPAs caution homeowners to note a provision in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 that affects personal casualty losses where an insurance policy provides reimbursement for loss. If you sustain a loss that is covered by your policy and, for some reason, you decide not to file a claim, you may not deduct the amount of the casualty loss that your insurance policy would have reimbursed. You may, however, deduct uninsured casualty or theft loss, but only to the extent that the loss exceeds 10 percent of your adjusted gross income. In addition, the first $100 of each casualty loss is not deductible.

Farm Bureau Applauds Acceptance

Acceptance of guidelines for livestock waste disposal practices by the Michigan Agriculture Commission was "a real step forward" for the state's agricultural industry, according to Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie. If farmers choose to follow the recommended practices they will receive some protection under the state's Right to Farm law.

"This is not a win-lose situation," Laurie said. "Everyone is a winner in this event - the livestock producers and the rest of agriculture and the non-farm citizens of our state. Agriculture does play a major role in the economic stability of our state and there is tremendous opportunity for expansion of our livestock industry. This will allow that industry to make plans for the future, to be aggressive, expand and be an even greater part of Michigan's economy."

Laurie also applauded the cooperative efforts that led to the development of the guidelines. "Members of the livestock industry, Michigan State University, the Department of Natural Resources, the Soil Conservation Service, and others sat down together and said - what do we need to do to allow the livestock industry to operate as efficiently as it can, and to minimize its impact on the environment," Laurie said.

"This procedure of discussing it and coming up with a good common sense approach, and now having those recommendations finally approved by the state, shows that we in agriculture can develop a program to keep our environment clean and, at the same time, allow agriculture to operate the way we need to operate," he said.

Farm Tour Planned July 30th

The fifth annual farm tour organized by the Land, Food, and Justice Committee of Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice will be held Saturday, July 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"We will be visiting two Washtenaw County farms using organic, biodynamic, or low-input (reduced chemical) farming techniques," a spokesman said. "The tour will give participants an opportunity to learn about the problems and advantages such alternative growers experience on the farm and in the marketplace. This year, the problems are severe as our host farms, along with farms across the nation, experience the worst drought in over 50 years."

The morning tour will feature Tallady Farms in Augusta Township. This Centennial Farm grows grain on 2,000 acres with 200 acres devoted to the production of certified organic barley and wheat. About 400 beef cattle are fattened and brought to market each year. After a lunch featuring locally grown food at Lincoln Community Church, tour participants will travel to David Braun's organic farm in Ann Arbor Township. This Centennial Farm is also home to the newly organized biodynamic Community Farm of Ann Arbor. Community Farm is an experiment in growing produce for consumers who pay for it before it is planted, thus sharing farmer operating costs.

Separate commencement ceremonies were held for undergraduates and graduates at various locations and times during the week of June 6. Degree candidates from Manchester are Sandra A. Graber, BA English with honors and Kraig C. Sauter, BS Computer Science with honors.

Service, will moderate the visit to the Braun farm and give an overview of the current status of organic/low input agricultural research. William Casello of the Cooperative Extension Service will moderate the luncheon program. There will be special activities for children at lunch and on each farm. Cost for the day's activities, including lunch, is $6 for adults, $3 for children under 13. To register for the tour or to obtain more information, call Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice (313) 663-1870 before July 27.

Farmers May Get Reprieve

Farmers will apparently get a reprieve from a U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) ruling that would have made anhydrous ammonia, a widely-used fertilizer, prohibitively expensive and difficult to get. Under a pending House funding measure, lawmakers have urged the department to drop its bid to reclassify anhydrous ammonia from a non-flammable to a poisonous gas.

Farm Bureau had opposed the proposal, saying it would cost agriculture millions of dollars and possibly make the fertilizer unavailable. The U.S. Department of Agriculture joined with Farm Bureau in opposing the proposal.

According to Al Almy, director of public affairs for the Michigan Farm Bureau, reclassification of anhydrous ammonia would have caused higher transportation rates. "The current cost of shipping anhydrous ammonia within the U.S. is 53% above the railroad's cost of providing the service. In contrast, the premium paid for shipping poisonous materials by rail is 136% above a railroad's cost," Almy said. "All anhydrous ammonia moving by truck to farm communities would come to a halt if it were classified as a poisonous gas."

Anhydrous ammonia accounts for 45% of the U.S. fertilizer supply.

Students To Name New Space Shuttle

Students in kindergarten through 12th grade across the United States are invited to participate in a national competition to name a new Space Shuttle orbiter for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

Interested parties can obtain an Announcement of Opportunity by contacting the Council of Chief State School Officers in Washington, D.C., which is administering the program for NASA. School faculty members may request Orbiter-Naming Program Entry Packets by calling (202) 783-5109 or (202) 783-5113, or by writing: NASA Orbiter-Naming Program, Council of Chief State Schools Officers, 400 North Capitol Street, N.W., Suite 379, Washington, D.C. 20001.

Faculty members must provide their name, the name of their school and the address to which they would like the packet sent.

To enter, elementary and secondary school students will form teams and research a name for the orbiter. Each team, under the guidance of a school faculty member who will serve as team coordinator, will prepare a classroom project to support and justify the name selected. The name proposed must be the name of a sea vessel used in research or exploration.

There will be two entry divisions: Division I will include kindergarten through 6th grade and Division II, 7th through 12th grades. Orbiter-naming projects must be completed during the fall semester, and entries must be postmarked by December 31, 1988. Students in public and nonpublic schools are eligible. Winners from each division will be named at the state level in March 1989. NASA will announce the national winners in each division and the orbiter's name in May 1989.

Representatives of the national winning teams will receive an expense-paid trip to a NASA-related event, and a School Involvement Program will be conducted at the two schools.

The new orbiter, currently designated OV 105, is being built to replace the Challenger and is scheduled to be completed in 1991.

Winners from each division will

Manchester Plastics Plant To Expand

The 70,000 square foot expansion of Manchester Plastics, Inc. has been approved by the Village Council. The site plan had been approved by the Manchester Village Planning Commission at their July 12 regular meeting.

The site plan approval means immediate construction, beginning as soon as August 1.

The larger facility will employ at least 50 more people, "although the nature of the processes is not going to change" according to Emory Jonas, vice president.

Manchester Plastics makes plastic parts for automobiles and has eight divisions in the United States and Canada. The expanded plant will enable the company's increasing operations to run more smoothly. Mr. Jonas stated that they hope to make Manchester the central division of Manchester Plastics, Inc.

Correction

It was incorrectly stated in last week's Enterprise "Manchester Village Sewer Rates Increase" that, "the water rate will remain 40 cents for every gallon over the first 9,000 gallons, which is free." The correct statement should read "The water rate will remain 40 cents for every 1,000 gallons over the first 9,000 gallons, which is free."
