Hillegonds is serving his sixth term in the house and second as Republican leader. He could become Speaker of the House if enough seats change hands with the upcoming election and through reapportionment.

Sharon Twp. Approves Goals of their GDP

The Sharon Township Planning Commission voted unanimously to approve the goals, objectives and strategies of the Sharon General Development Plan July 25, however the introduction and other preliminary material were not included in the vote.

The Commission made several last minute changes in language relating to the controversial Planned Unit Development strategy which rendered the wording acceptable to the entire body.

Commission Chairman Bob Ward, a proponent of PUDs, said he thought there would be a future problem with the ratio of one dwelling to a ten acre minimum lot. "I believe if we had the PUD in place, it would provide a position of strength. There may be members in our community who may challenge it soon," Ward said.

Commission Secretary Sandra Thomson will write supporting data and a compilation of materials for analysis.

A subcommittee was created and charged with producing a planning map to present to the commission on August 8. The point was made that a planning map, like the General Development Plan, is a policy statement and not a law or ordinance.

But No Fire at The Enterprise

— Kathy Kueffner

Maxine Widmayer asked us if this issue of The Enterprise was going to be hotter off the press than usual.

If you heard the Village sirens going off about 8:00 Monday evening, or if you were uptown and saw our fire department pulling up in front of The Enterprise office, here's the scoop.

Vanessa, Lauren and I were working, putting the paper together, when we smelled smoke, but we couldn't identify the source. It seemed to be concentrated in the front office but we couldn't quite pinpoint it. So we investigated other areas, going outside the building and looking up at the second story windows to see if we could see smoke—and even going into the basement on a "You first."

"No, you go first," basis. (The basement of this early 20th century historical building is affectionately referred to as the catacombs.) As the odor increased we debated about calling the fire department, discussing how foolish we'd feel if it was an overheated copy machine (although we had turned it off and just about dismantled the machine eliminating that possibility), or something equally easily explainable. Then we thought about the other consequence: all our work with this week's issue going up in smoke! We thought Keith (barber shop next door) might want us to call, as would Kim (Ricket's TV) on the other side of our building, and Maxine (the laundromat), and...

So we called. Within seconds the fire department arrived. Their expert investigation found the source: a smoldering ballast (starter) on a fluorescent light fixture in the ceiling. Left, it could have, would have started a fire.

The Grass Is Always Greener...

I always expected when I left Tecumseh to go to college in Kalamazoo, that after graduation I would immediately move to a large city, around the size of Toledo or perhaps Chicago. But as my career path took some twists and turns, I ended up back in Tecumseh and working in a village. Not exactly my game plan, but a most pleasant experience.

No matter where I go in Manchester, I'm always greeted with a smile and hello from locals. I don't think people even make eye contact in large cities, let alone speak. Ok, maybe I'm exaggerating, they do make eye contact (Also known as "staring the other person down" to show dominance, as my other sister who is a Chicago resident told me).

The other morning as I came out of the Enterprise, a member of the Optimist Club was coming out of the barbershop and asked me if I was "our new editor". As we spoke he asked me to the annual dinner the Optimist Club holds in September so he could introduce me to the club members. Gratefully I accepted, as I still don't know as many of you as I would like. And when he said "our" new editor, the sense of community spirit was reinforced in me, of which I finally felt included.

Talk about community spirit, on Thursday evening I went to St. Mary's Ice Cream Social for a few minutes and then to the Gazebo Concert across the street. Impressive was the turnout for both events! Young and old enjoyed the food and social aspect at St. Mary's and the wonderful music by the Sweet Adelines and Three Men and a Daddy.

When I look at our mailings for the Enterprise, I now understand why people continue their subscription after they move away—they probably like to "live" the Manchester life vicariously.

Personally, I love to go to Chicago to see my sister and experience the culture through the museums, art galleries and especially the theater; I love to go to Toledo and see my other sister and experience the positive aspects it also has to offer. But as for me, I can visit either city any weekend I want and have become thankful it's an option and not an obligation.

—R. Zang

I wonder how many times you've gone down Sharon Hollow, east of Austin towards the River Raisin, and noticed the neat looking sheep with horns on their heads standing on rock piles near the red barn just before you get to the cemetery? Right, sheep with horns. Now, if we lived in or around Ankara, Turkey, we'd know better. We'd know that those sheep better fit the description of goats. And that's exactly what Andrea Clark, her brother Patrick, and parents Rick and Donna raise; goats.

I first met Andrea and Donna at the Manchester library, exhibiting a nanny and a kid on one of the Dorothy Davies Saturday deals, and didn't have trouble striking up a conversation. What I really remember was the fact that these goats had an improper name. According to Donna, most people call them Angora goats, an Anglicized version of their origin; Ankara, Turkey. But a breed of rabbit also goes by the name Angora as well as a breed of cat. What the Clark family prefers to call them are mohair goats. Why? Because of the wool or hair they produce. The mohair part intrigued me enough to find out more.

Most of the bleating type animals you'll see around here fit the sheep category, and the Clark family pretty much stumbled into the mohair business, Andrea finding out about them from a friend. Washtenaw County actually has very few of this breed, Michigan only totals about 9000. What makes this goat unique of course is the wonderful feel and texture of the mohair it produces. You know the softness of a mohair sweater. I got to feel the brushed out pelt of a young kid, a sad story in itself. But it was exquisite, like a baby's soft downy hair. Rick told me that mohair is valued for its strength, and its ability to take a dye. It also blends well with wool, a more elastic fiber.

The Clarks don't make their living from these animals, it's a family hobby and 4-H project for Andrea. But I know they work at it. Donna even ended up with a broken foot when she and Rick were working with them. The list of caretaking duties is extensive. Consider that the hooves need trimming because they grow like fingernails. Health maintenance, routine for most farm stock, include frequent administering of worming medicine and dipping for external parasites.

And then there's shearing. A mohair's coat grows a fourth of an inch every week. Rick has to play barber twice a year, a task which takes him awhile, because he works alone and because this breed of goat has wrinkly skin. An adult nanny will yield 6-10 pounds of mohair every time it's sheared. Multiply that by 100, and I'd confess that washing dishes sounds pretty inviting.

You won't see bags of mohair around here much because it's sent to the Northern Angora Goat Rancher's Co-op in Texas. Texas is where you'll find another 1.3 million mohair goats, the state that raises the majority of this species. South Africa actually produces more mohair than anyone else, joining forces with Turkey for global marketing. But Rick says that prices, although lower than usual, still yield a good return on investment.

I got a surprise when I found out how friendly and curious these curly-haired critters were. They came right up to me, checking credentials I'm sure, and once getting a little attention and a pat on the forehead went back to business. I liked the billy goats because they seemed so serious yet remained dude-cool. I guess studs have a reputation to uphold. King-of-the-hill? That's how it works. Every breeding season, a little competition takes place to determine who rules. "Buckwheat" dueled "Sinbad" last year and although outweighed, managed to parry Sinbad into submission by using his superior horns to lock his foe's horns into the ground. Sounds like a Disney movie scenario.

The nannies, according to Rick, earn praises for their breeding ability as well as their mohair. A herd of 40 nannies typically yield 45-50 kids every season. Yearlings usually birth one kid, while older nannies often have twins, and sometimes triplets. The older the nanny, the better the mother. Rick said that females must learn the job of mothering, and sometimes an older nanny must be tricked into accepting an ill-cared for kid when its yearling mother fails to perform her maternal duties. Rick has had great success doing this, losing only one kid since 1986 (the sad story). He told me that a mother identifies its offspring by smell, so that if the birthing fluids of the accepting mother is rubbed onto an orphan kid, she usually will accept it as her own. Timing of course is critical.

amazing faces, and infectious movements. Their little ringlets of mohair look button cute. Their hair remains the choicest of choice, getting the best prices of any mohair sold. Andrea has named and recognizes each of the 45 kids the Clarks have weaned from their mothers. The coyotes hanging out in the corn fields to the side probably wish they knew them by name too. But that's for Bear, the dog, to worry about.

I'd like to remind Mister Coyote that he better beware of Bear, the dog. It seems that Bear was bred to be a sheep and goat dog, a "Maremma" from the mountains of Italy. Bear doesn't like anyone messing with his goats, probably because he was born in a goat pen just like his mom and pop and understands that these goats are his brothers and sisters. Bear won't leave his goats unprotected Mister Coyote, because it's in his blood to do battle with wolves and such. Better stick with yipping and howling and playing Parcheest in the corn fields Mister Coyote. You'll live longer.

Chicago: My Kind of Town

— EWG

Every now and then, through-out my short time upon this old earth, I wind up doing something rather crazy. Maybe I should say silly, foolish or just plain and simple for the hell of it. Tonight is one of those nights and I am looking forward to goofing off. Two friends of mine and I were sitting at the restaurant this evening talking about the up coming morrow, and what time I would have to take them to the train for their trip to Chicago. Like the crazy nut I can be, I suggested that instead of them taking the train I would drive them for the cost of the train tickets plus one small deep dish pizza from downtown Chicago.

For those folks who have never visited Chicago you have missed out on one super town to visit. Some of the things that I remember are the old stockyards where the stench of cattle, trains and manure would almost gag the most stout hearted person. However, one of the very best restaurants that I have ever had the pleasure of eating at was the Stockyard Inn. (I'm really not sure that was the name, but it was something like that.) When first entering the building nothing seemed too impressive until the large waiting area was encountered. A huge table with an enormous pile of ice, all chipped and snowy white, greeted the newly arrived guest.

You were asked to select a steak from a case of steaks of various sizes, thicknesses and types. Your initials were branded upon the steak as well as the cooking instructions. One of the persons in our dining party asked for a steak well done and the Chef spoke up and said he would not ruin a good piece of Chicago Beef, if the diner wanted shoe leather go to a shoe store. After some conversation the diner was convinced to order the steak medium.

By the time I was asked how I wished my steak cooked I was afraid to state any particular way to have the meat prepared. Being a big chicken, and not wishing to arouse the wrath of the Chef I replied, "prepare the steak as you would wish to have it served to yourself". That was apparently the proper thing to say, as a large smile appeared upon the Chef's face and when the steak was served, it was absolutely done to perfection. Medium rare, melting in your mouth, and not requiring but the lightest of touches with the knife to cut into the meat. Tasted magnificent, and it was the first time this writer ever had his steak prepared medium rare. What a wonderful experience.

I used to attend the Heavy equipment shows in Chicago. These shows were held every five years and contractors were able to keep up on all the new technology, as well as find new places to eat and new foods to experience. Chicago is my kind of town and I'm looking forward to going there with my friends.

OUR JULY 18TH EDITION OF THE ENTERPRISE REPORTED: "VILLAGE COUNCIL ALSO ACCEPTED A BID MADE BY TIRB CHEVROLET FOR A 4 BY 4 PICKUP TRUCK TO BE PURCHASED ON A LEASE PROGRAM. TIRB SUBMITTED THE LOWEST BID BY NEARLY $5,000 WHILE STILL MEETING ALL OF COUNCILS SPECIFICATIONS, SAID COMMISSIONER BECKTEL."

Greg Marvin of Midwest Ford called me and related that the story as released by Larry Becktel was not correct. In reviewing the submitted bids, it appears that Tirb Chevrolet was in fact the second low bidder. Midwest Ford submitted the lowest bid for the 4 by 4 at $21,946.06, less any rebate at time of delivery. Tirb's bid was $22,305 plus any 1992 cost raise, less any rebate at time of delivery.

Midwest however stated their lease quote would be given at the time of delivery as rates are subject to change without notice. Tirb gave a fixed lease payment based upon a 1991 Chevrolet Truck with upfit.

Palmer Motor Sales, Inc., of Chelsea, did not submit a complete price.

This writer sees several inconsistencies in the "Request for Bids", and in the actual as submitted bids as provided by Midwest Ford, Tirb Chevrolet and Palmer Motor Sales, Inc. It's my opinion that none of the bids were complete and that all bids should have been returned for clarification, or thrown out and new bids requested.

Once again, it appears there is the need for a Village Manager who will receive proper bid requests, analyze bids, and make appropriate recommendations. If I were Greg Marvin from Midwest Ford I would have been mad also. EWG

Editor, Manchester has "done itself proud". The nineteenth century observance of the Fourth of July on the village green recalled us to the holiday's original significance as a celebration of our freedoms and remind us of the continuing costs of the "eternal vigilance" required to preserve them. It was sobering to hear the Declaration of Independence read again and appropriate that we acknowledge our debt to those who have given loyal service in support of whatever is, or has been, deemed to be in "the national interest". "Their not to reason why, theirs but to do and die". Our community's gesture to them was well conceived and organized and sincerely offered. I was sorry the audience was not larger.

But once again I find myself concerned that our modern technology has far outstripped our diplomatic and political skills. Our world is shrinking as instant communication and rapid transportation has truly made all the world's people our neighbors. And the "engines of war" have become increasingly destructive. Forty years of living in fear of nuclear war has given the impetus to perfecting our so-called conventional weaponry to deliver unprecedented destruction. Holding still to the adage that might makes right we blunder on assuming that our good intentions will justify our actions.

The lesson to be learned from Vietnam was not only that soldiers should be welcomed home as heroes. We must also understand and accept that young people raised with our traditional mores and values will suffer life-long trauma as a result of military service in wars where civilian lives lost equal or outnumber the military losses.

I lived in Ann Arbor in the sixties and knew many of the young men of conscience who, faced with the draft, refused to serve. They too have led haunted lives in the years since they were called cowards by many of their peers and labeled felons by their government. The amnesty granted condescendingly years later was never an acknowledgment of their right to "reason why" they were being asked to suspend all they had been brought up to believe "for the duration" of the war.

Sometime we must begin to teach a generation of our young that war can never be the solution of conflicting interests. Rather it sows the seeds for future wars. When will we compose the appropriate music, plan the festivities, and heed the oratory that professes our brotherhood with all mankind and recognizes that the dwindling resources of our shrinking planet (even air and water) must be shared because we are all in this together?

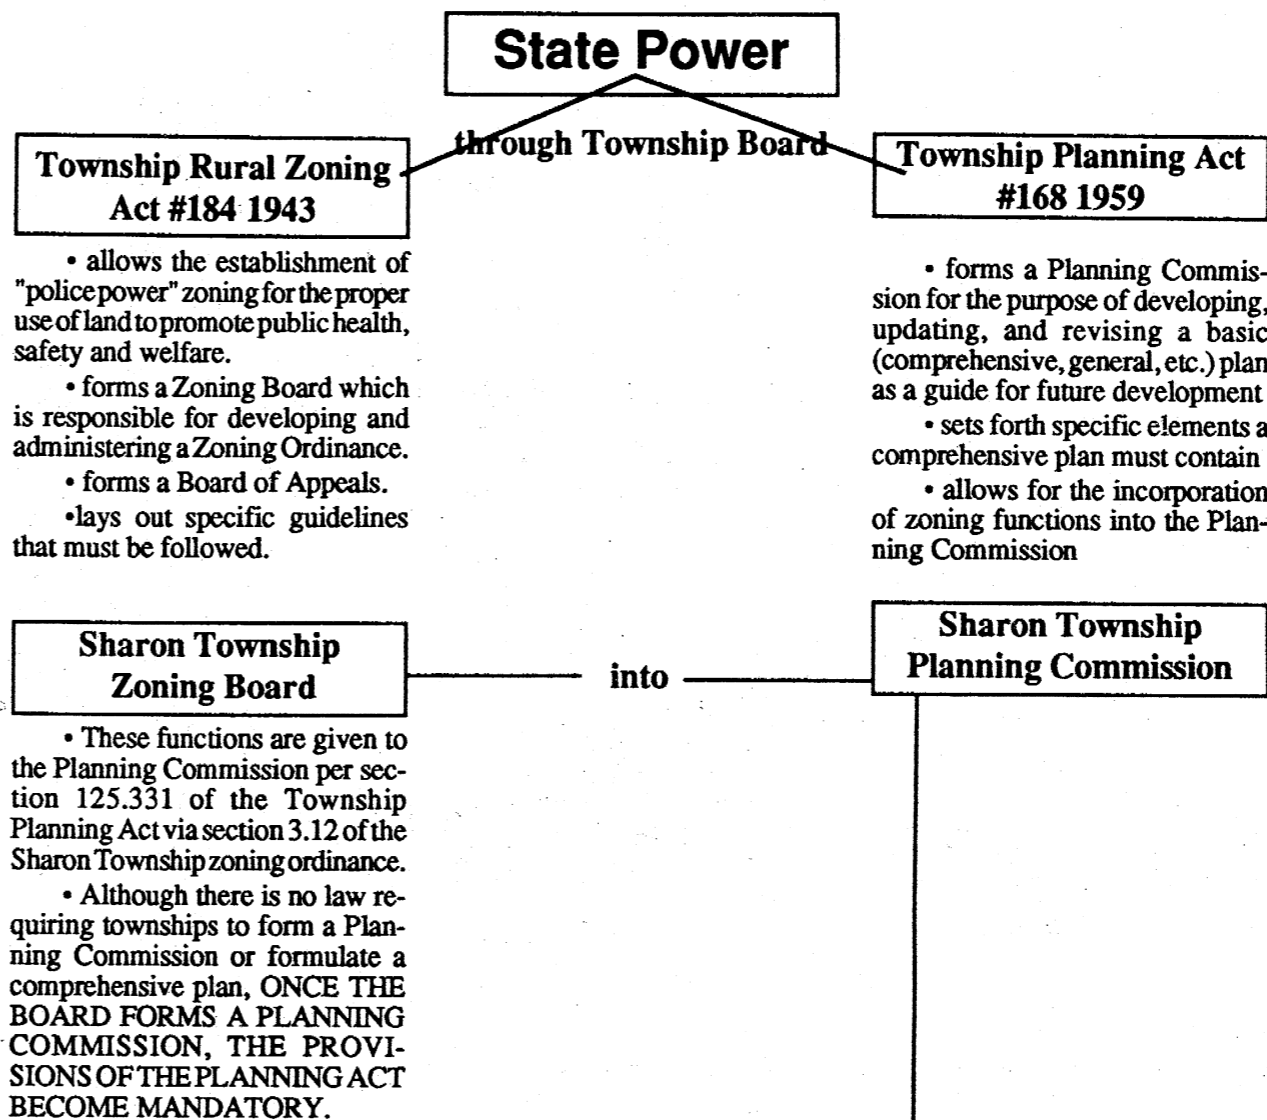

When can we as a nation demonstrate that honor and glory belong also to those in power who counsel patience and forbearance and to those young men who do not choose to kill and to the rest of us, whose numbers worldwide are legion, who share a deep longing that peace be given a chance?"

Perhaps we could begin by observing the anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki on August 6. Certainly that fateful day, 46 years ago, has lessons to teach that we have scarcely begun to grasp.

allows for the incorporation of zoning functions into the Planning Commission

These functions are given to the Planning Commission per section 125.331 of the Township Planning Act via section 3.12 of the Sharon Township zoning ordinance.

Although there is no law requiring townships to form a Planning Commission or formulate a comprehensive plan, ONCE THE BOARD FORMS A PLANNING COMMISSION, THE PROVISIONS OF THE PLANNING ACT BECOME MANDATORY.

Sharon Township Planning Commission

AS A ZONING BOARD

- administers the zoning ordinance.
 - hears rezoning requests
 - revises and amends the zoning ordinance as needed
 - is responsible for zoning regulations necessary to promote public health, safety and welfare
- According to the following experts:
- Ellen Plymoth, director of Public Health
 - The Health Dept. does individual septic systems.
 - When a subdivision is planned, they have a role.
 - SHARON TOWNSHIP IS RESPONSIBLE FOR REGULATIONS ON SEPTIC TANK DENSITY.
 - D.N.R., Barry Johnson of Environmental Health, experts from M.S.U. and E.M.U., Wash. Co.
 - all of these people can provide data and recommendations.
 - SHARON TOWNSHIP IS RESPONSIBLE FOR REGULATIONS REQUIRED TO ENSURE GROUNDWATER PROTECTION. THIS IS AN UNUSUALLY IMPORTANT ISSUE FOR OUR TOWNSHIP.
 - Tom Miller (administrator of Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act), Wash. Co. Planning Commission, D.N.R., Wash. Co. S.C.D., Drain Commission
 - all of these people can provide data and recommendations.
 - SHARON TOWNSHIP IS RESPONSIBLE FOR ZONING REGULATIONS TO CONTROL SOIL EROSION AND PROTECT FRAGILE SLOPES.
 - The Drain Commission comes into action only if someone wants to put something into a drain or alter a stream, etc.
 - SHARON TOWNSHIP IS RESPONSIBLE FOR REGULATIONS PROTECTING FLOOD PLAINS.
 - SHARON TOWNSHIP IS RESPONSIBLE FOR PROTECTION OF THE WETLANDS. MOST FALL OUTSIDE THE WETLAND PROTECTION ACT.

AS A PLANNING BOARD See Appendix A

The Township Zoning Act is the vehicle by which the State has conferred the above responsibilities. Other agencies may share responsibility. But with very few exceptions, gas and oil wells for example, the TOWNSHIP has the final responsibility. Further, the Environmental Protection Act, PA 127 of 1970 imposes an affirmative obligation on township officials to consider the environmental consequences of land development. In cases of inadequate regulations and/or allowance of harmful development the Township is viewed as being culpable in causing harm or potential harm to the environment. WE ARE LIABLE!

Cementing the Marriage Relationship

—Martha Stoner
 A very dear friend of mine who raised three children and who is now grandmother and great-grandmother counseled me the other day, "Take every opportunity you have to cement your marriage relationship." My two sons had just left for four days with their grandparents, and Michael and I were alone at a time when neither of us had work commitments.

times of distance when I see in the marriage the same rhythmic quality that I see in the natural world. As with all life, in marriage we experience times of inhalation or contraction alternating with times of exhalation and expansion.

At times, we wish to take a deep breath, retire into ourselves, ponder our situation, rest from relationship. At other times, we are ready to breathe out, join with another, discuss our partner's thoughts, enjoy connection. At times, we feel great distance between ourselves and our partner. Our partner must shout as if from the other side of a cavern, and, even then, we don't hear very clearly what is said.

At other times, it is as if all cares in the world have vanished. We sit close to our loved one. We feel their warmth. We almost breathe as one body.

Young lovers expect, I suppose, that the intensity of those first admersions and longings will remain forever constant. When the daily strife of labor in the world overwhelms, depriving the lovers of their energy and their ability to see the future, then it is easy to give up, to believe that intensity lost forever.

We realized that in the eleven years we have been married, we have never spent that many days in a row alone together not working. Now we had the opportunity to learn about each other again, to listen to each other, to share hopes, to clarify goals, to imagine the future.

Anger can be the result—perhaps a feeling that the loved one has somehow cheated or betrayed that early hope and possibility. Such anger leads to resentment and then to withdrawal of love—to denial of the possibility of remaking what has been tarnished. When a lover turns from the loved one with a refusal to attempt understanding, with a desire to hold onto anger, the bridge that the couple must create together over that cavern cannot be built.

It is not easy for parents to find such opportunities. Yet finding them is essential to the health of the marriage. In my experience, leaving my children for more than a few hours or a day at a time before they turned three was very stressful. I do not believe a mother should ignore her intuitive feelings. If she senses that those who are telling her to leave the child for a few days are missing the mark, I believe she should trust her own feelings.

It is incredibly difficult to let go of such anger. But it must be done. Doing so is one of the great gifts of human relationship. That horrible conflict becomes manageable, and the human being who has let go of the anger and who has taken the step toward the other has matured, has become a more healthy and capable person.

Then the mother and father need to find at least a few hours regularly every week when they can address each other's needs rather than their children's. But once the children have reached the age when going to a friends' overnight or visiting grandma and grandpa for a weekend is a joy to the child, then mom and dad have grand new vistas before them.

I remember when Michael and I were married. The Episcopal priest, James Holt, said to us and to the assembled congregation, "There will be times in your marriage when you will not feel your love for each other. It will be buried deeply beneath other less-positive feelings. In those times, you must act as though you feel that love. Then, the feelings of love will return."

My experience of marriage so far (admittedly, I'm pretty new at it) is that times of feeling close alternate with times of feeling distant. I find it easier to accept the

I think of this as the eternal gesture of watering the apparently-dead, drought-stricken plant. To your eyes, life appears to have deserted the plant. But after a day or two of watering, Behold! Life springs forth!

I think, too, of the importance of patience, of accepting the times of distance, the times of winter, if you will. For those times do not need to be the end; they may merely be times of rest before a new quality to the marriage can be born.

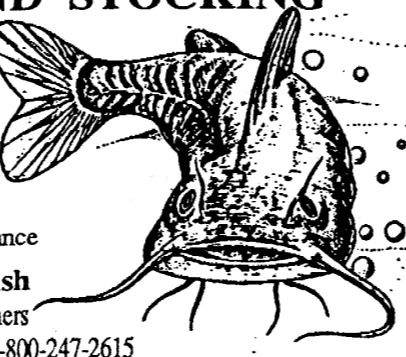

One final thought: Both partners must work for the marriage. If one partner reaches out and the other turns away, that bridge will never be built. But if both partners are hereby notified that at the time and place aforesaid and at such other time and place thereafter to which said apportionment may be adjourned, the apportionment for benefits and the land comprised within the J.J. Knapp Drain Special Assessment District will be subject to review.

All owners and persons interested in the aforesaid lands, are hereby cited to appear at the time and place of such reviewing of apportionments as aforesaid, and be heard with respect to such special assessments and your interests in relation thereto, if you so desire.

The owner of any land in the special assessment district who may feel aggrieved by the apportionment of benefits made by the drain commissioner may, within 10 days after the day of review, appeal therefrom by making application to the probate court of Washtenaw County for the appointment of a board of review and may further appeal from the report of the board of review by application for a writ of certiorari by the circuit court of Washtenaw County, all as provided in Sections 155 and 161 of the Drain Code (Act 40 of the Public Acts of Michigan, 1956, as amended).

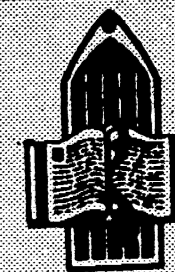

Act 186 of the Public Acts of Michigan, 1973, as amended, provides that the special assessment must be protested at the hearing held for the purpose of confirming the special assessment roll before the Michigan Tax Tribunal may acquire jurisdiction of any special assessment dispute. Appearance and protest of the special assessment at the time and place of review is required in order to appeal the amount of the special assessment to the Michigan Tax Tribunal. An owner or party in interest in property to be assessed, or his or her agent, may appear in person to protest the special assessment, or may protest the special assessment by letter filed with the drain commissioner at or prior to the time of review, in which case personal appearance is not required. If the special assessment is protested as provided above, the owner or any party having an interest in the real property may file a written appeal of the special assessment with the Michigan Tax Tribunal within 30 days after the confirmation of the special assessment roll.

Senior Citizens News

I am thankful most of the time for the safety caps on jars and bottles. Secretly one imagines that a two-year old could take that pesky cap off in a blink of an eye, why, oh why can't I? They don't read the instructions: "squeeze center while pulling up" is all you have to do. HA! Maybe we should wait 'til the moon changes, or our mood to do likewise and let that toilet stay dirty for one more day. I used the screw driver and pried and now I'm paying for it with lumps caused by moisture getting in the jar.

August is here (ready or not) and on August 2, seniors will leave the Center at 9 a.m. for Frankenmuth and the riverboat cruise on the Cass River. At this time, the bus is full (Erma at 428-8707 can tell you if there are cancellations). Rubena tells us they may stop at other points of interest while there or on the way home.

Monday, August 5: Jackson is the destination for a shopping trip. The bus will leave the Center at 9:30 a.m. and you may call Erma to go along.

Wednesday, August 7: Our last Ice Cream Social will be held at the United Methodist Church at 5 p.m. Bus pickup for seniors begins at 4:30. Ride along to the social by calling Erma first.

Looking ahead: Again, not on the Trumpeter calendar, is a trip. This one is the North Central Regional Fiddler's Convention at the Hillsdale County Fairgrounds. August 10, on Saturday, the senior bus leaves the Center at 10 a.m. and there will be a $3 admission charge. Over 100 fiddlers will be performing in the Grandstand and other areas throughout the fairgrounds. This is not a contest, their purpose is to promote Old Time Music, not competition. What a way to fiddle away your time, huh? Come along, call Erma for reservations.

Senior gals and fellows, would you provide us with some of those recipes that we keep hearing about? We need some for our upcoming Trumpeter soon to be published. Please write them down, sign your name and give them to either editor: Jo Simmons or Lenora Parr. We've been enjoying all the good cakes and pies and been wondering who made these, please let us share these.

Hiroshima Day

Hiroshima Day will be observed at the Gazebo from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday, August 6. Activities for children will include origami (Japanese paper folding), singing and active games that rely on cooperation and sharing.

Adults will be invited to share their experiences, concerns, and hopes as we ask ourselves what has happened to our national psyche during the 46 years of the atomic age.

Refreshments will be available and all are invited.

—Mary Goode

Following the women, a quartet called "Three Men and a Daddy" sang a set of tunes. Claiming they're not very well-rehearsed, the truth is that they've been w...ther all their lives, and entertaining folks with their music. Using some left-over red, white and blue straw hats from their Dixieland band, their "choreography" consisted of fooling with their hats and suppressing giggles, as they were clearly having a good time. One thing is sure, though, the quality of their singing was top-notch. And that is a completely unbiased opinion!

The Sweet Adelines rounded out the evening for us by doing what was only fair. They gave the audience the chance to share in the fun by leading us in a sing-along.

This week, don't be confused by an empty gazebo. There is indeed a concert happening Thursday night at 7:30 p.m., but it is moving indoors to the gracious acoustics of St. Mary's Church, across the street from the gazebo. An evening of chamber music will include the Manchester Baroque Recorder Ensemble playing airs and dances coming from the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries. Organist Marijim Thone and flutist Rhee Kyung

Kim will play pieces by Michel Corrette and Correa de Arauxo, as well as an organ pastorela by Domenico Zipoli.

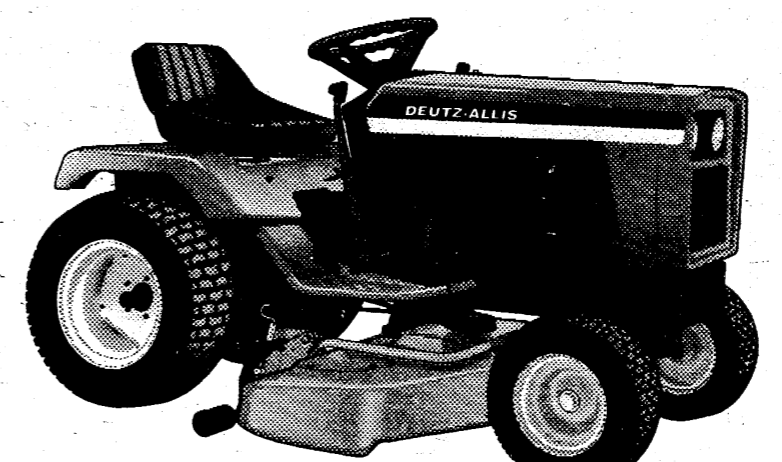

The Manchester Chamber Orchestra, a group of local string players, will play the now-popular Pachelbel Canon, and other pieces from the Renaissance through the Romantic periods. Playing the exciting "American" Quartet by Antonin Dvorak will be the Tree City Strings, from Ann Arbor.

On Thursday, August 8, the gazebo series will present a songwriters night. Four local performers will share the stage. Jay Stielstra is well-known throughout Michigan as the author of North Country Opera and Titabawassee Jane, as well as numerous other songs flavored by the people and scenery of the great lakes state. Deborah Ruzinski, with her own combo of woodwinds, has songs that combine lyrical poetry with offbeat humor. David Mosher is a singer/songwriter who some say belongs on Nashville's Grand Ole Opry stage. He is a skillful guitar picker with an impressive voice. Mark Palms, formerly of Maxton Bay, will debut his songs in a variety of styles on the banjo and guitar. His words and music provide a unique insight into the character and lives of all of us.

Concerts are open to the public, free of charge. Donations are gratefully accepted either in the donation cans at the concert or by mailing a check made payable to the "Manchester Recreation Task Force" c/o the Community Resource Center, 122 West Main Street.

Call 428-7722 for concert updates.

Jodi Parr Visits Washington DC

Jodi Parr of Manchester, was one of the more than 3,700 young people from around the country who have been examining her rights and responsibilities as a citizen as she experienced an exciting 4-H program this summer at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

Citizenship Washington Focus (CWF) has taken the theme "200 Years of Rights and Responsibilities" to celebrate the bicentennial of the Bill of Rights, and developed an issue oriented program encouraging 4-H members to become involved in citizenship projects upon their return.

The program which runs weekly from June 2 to August 3, helps young people, ages 15 to 19, better understand how government functions at all levels and how to effectively use local government processes to address issues. Delegates to CWF debated current issues, experienced government in action, and explored historical sites to increase their understanding and appreciation of their American heritage and their role as citizens of the world.

"Young people attending CWF will have the opportunity to better understand the privileges associated with the U.S. citizenship through visits to congressional representatives, workshops and educational field trips", said Richard Sauer, president of National 4-H Council. Jodi received a special honor, when she was selected to place a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

The Washtenaw County 4-H Service Club helped fund Jodi's trip to Washington, D.C.

Amy Scherdt in Honors Program

Amy Scherdt of Manchester was one of the 71 incoming Eastern Michigan University freshmen admitted into the University's Honors Program.

EMU's Honors Program, which currently has more than 780 members, provides a challenging alternative curriculum for students with superior academic abilities. To qualify for admittance to the program, each student is evaluated on his or her grade point average, standardized test scores, personal essays and letters of recommendation from teachers and counselors.

In addition to offering students an alternate program of study, the Honors Program provides smaller classes, early registration, special library privileges, maximum computing access and special social and cultural activities for its members.

Amy is a 1991 graduate and the daughter of Arthur and Carol Scherdt. She will major in accounting at EMU.

Congrats Linda

Manchesterite Linda Alber has competed several years now in track events at the Special Olympics held in Mt. Pleasant. This year she has traded her track shoes for a bowling ball. Here she is pictured at the fair proudly wearing her two newest medals—a silver for individual second place, and a gold for first place with a partner.

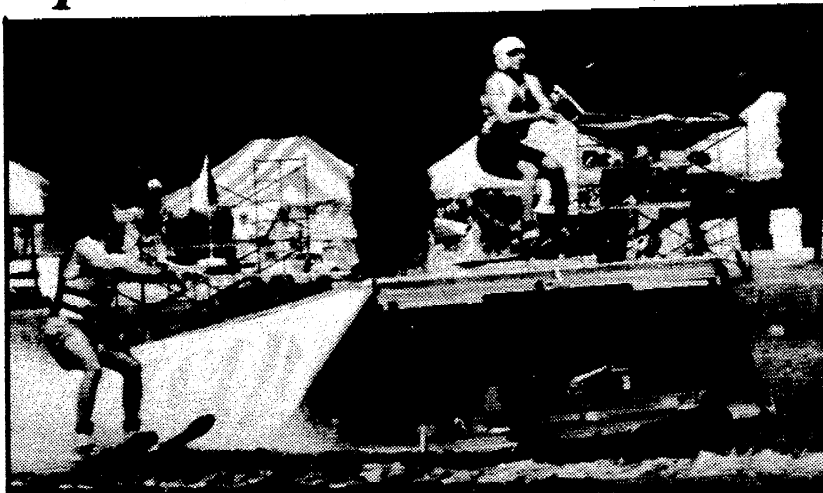

Linda Alber

Congratulations, Linda, for a job well done.

Physically Challenged Competition at Joslin Lake

The impressive display of skills shown by the physically challenged in the recent international contest at Joslin Lake in Bridgewater still leaves me awestruck. Watching two skiers pulled at 32 mph, approaching a six-foot high ramp, it seems impossible that the one jumping is blind.

If you'd like to experience some vicarious thrills, visit Joslin Lake August 9 and 10, when the U.S. National Competition takes place.

The Tour De France bicycle race two-time defending champion Greg LeMond of the United States was dethroned by Spain's Miguel Indurain.

The Detroit Lions won a pre-season opener 14-3 over the Denver Broncos in the Hall of Fame Bowl at Canton, Ohio.

Chi Chi Rodriguez and Jack Nicklaus are tied in the U.S. Senior Open Golf Tournament. They'll play 18 holes Monday to determine the winner.

MSU basketball coach Jud Heathcote was given a two-year contract extension and a raise. He will now earn $99,500 a year.

The Detroit Tigers, an American League team, are in last place for batting percentages but lead the league in team home runs and RBIs.

Lion's running back, Barry Sanders, is a holdout while renegotiating his contract. He is being fine $1,500 per day.

The last thing you need now is a problem with insurance that doesn't offer guaranteed home replacement cost coverage.

Insurance means 100% assurance, right? Wrong. Sometimes it doesn't. Although you wouldn't live in half of a home—that might be all the limits of coverage your present home insurance gives you.

Auto-Owners doesn't agree with that. They believe that homeowners insurance should ideally protect and replace 100% of your home. Because anything less, isn't 100% protection.

The Guaranteed Home Replacement Cost Coverage is from your "no problem" Auto-Owners agent. Ask him if your home qualifies, and find out what 100% peace-of-mind is all about.

BICYCLE HELMETS: A Necessity For All Who Ride Bikes

It wasn't too many years ago that bicycle helmets were a rare sight. Few riders realized that potential life-saving value of helmets; only the bicycle "enthusiast" bothered to protect his or her head.

But that situation is changing and changing rapidly. Bike helmets, especially seen now on the youngsters, are getting to be more and more commonplace. And for many good reasons.

Bike helmets are also more readily available now than ever before, both in bicycle specialty shops and in the major discount stores as well. Plus the price of protective headgear is within reach for most riders (or their parents). But how important is a helmet? It is no doubt that it is the most important piece of equipment. That even the casual rider should use. Age should not be a consideration.

The Michigan State Police, who keep track of bicycle accidents that occur on state and local roads, said that in 1989 there were 32 bicyclists killed and another 3,018 injured in 3,543 total reported accidents involving bicycles and motor vehicles. Interestingly, children under the age of 15 accounted for 16 or 50 percent of

Sharon Township Board Report

— Anne Rogers Marsh

The Sharon Township Board discussed two variance requests August 1st. The most pressing concerned Bob Sharp of Sharp's Construction. Sharp, whose 5 acre lot is non-conforming, has brought suit against the Township, and Zoning Inspector Gary Blades. The suit requests a judgement of monetary damages as well as a variance for his property. Blades, who entered the meeting late, said that his wife had been served the court papers by having them thrown at her in an abusive fashion.

The five-acre lot was split off from a ninety-acre parcel in the mid-1980's by Leonard Verrelli, who was then the Chairman of the Sharon Township Planning Commission, which created a nonconforming lot at that time. Verrelli still holds a warranty deed on the property, as it was sold under land contract. It is believed that Sharp wishes to develop the lot. Blades said that he didn't deny Sharp a land use permit, but asked him for additional information, as Sharp had no site plan or map. Blades said Sharp filed his suit after this conversation. The court date is August 8th.

The Sharon United Methodist Church is requesting a variance on 6.4 acres on property adjacent to the church on Pleasant Lake Road to build a parking lot and recreational area. John Savage, Chairman of the Sharon Township Board, said "I'm going on public record that I'm in favor of granting the church a variance."

Treasurer Paul Kluwe delivered the Treasurer's Report, which was read and accepted by the Board. The Board also passed a resolution to levy a tax rate increase of 0.9848. "We are conforming to truth in taxation (regulations), and the Headlee rollback," Savage said, "Same resolution as last year."

As state statute requires that delinquent tax funds be made available for public inspection, Kluwe left the documents concerning 1990 delinquencies on a table in the Township Hall.

Bob Ward, Chairman of the Sharon Township Planning Commission, reported on that body's approval of the goals, objectives, and strategies of the new General Development Plan. At Ward's request, the Board approved an extension of the moratorium on regular planning commission business until October 3, while the Commission prepares a zoning map and holds a public hearing.

Board member Willard Blumenauer was appointed Deputy Supervisor of Sharon Township during Savage's vacation.

Anne Rogers Marsh was approved as an alternate delegate to the Washtenaw County Recycling Program, to attend the meetings in Savage's absence.

The Board approved a motion brought by Dwayne Hazelschwert to charge a $25 interment fee for all township cemeteries. Previously, no fee was charged.

The next meeting will be held September 5th.

School Begins August 26

The Manchester Board of Education and the teachers association are in the process of negotiating a new contract.

An agreement has not yet been reached on a school calendar for 1991-92. Both the Board and teachers association have proposed Monday, August 26, 1991 as the starting date of school for students. The first day of school will be a half day for students. Kindergarten students will begin school on Tuesday, August 27th.

A tentative agreement has not been reached on the entire calendar for 1991-92. Therefore, these dates are tentative and subject to change as the bargaining process continues.

Vandals Apprehended Identified as local juveniles, one adult

On May 20, 1991 the Manchester School District was victim to $15,000 of Malicious Destruction of Property which was caused by unknown persons puncturing 72 tires on the school buses. On July 15, 1991 the School Board approved offering a $500 reward for information leading to and conviction of the person(s) involved in the incident.

Information was subsequently received which lead to the identification of one adult and three juveniles who were involved in the incident. All those identified are students in the Manchester School District. Names are being withheld pending authorization and arraignment. It is the request of the informant that the reward money be donated to a local charity.

Winner of Recipe Contest Announced

Being judges for the Blueberry Muffin Contest was a more difficult task than we anticipated. One reason was because the community response was overwhelming! Starting at high noon we received blueberry muffins galore, and at 6 p.m., when the last group of muffins were entered, the judging became even more challenging.

Excitement had been building all day and finally it was time to sample the muffins. Each muffin was unique in its taste, texture and appearance. Heart-shaped muffins with ton o' blueberries gushing out was a conversation piece among the judges, but not for very long because we couldn't wait to dig in!

All of the entrants should be commended. We didn't know Manchester was the home of marvelous bakers, which made it tough narrowing it down to just one winner. We did, however, come to a consensus. But first, honorable mention goes to Jane Worthy-Howlett, Elsie O'Dell, Donna Stockwell, Chris Brooks, Betty Schwab and Ardie Rose. To find out the winner and the award-winning recipe, please see page 6.

First Manchester Golf Scramble

On Sunday, August 25, 1991 at 8:15 the shotgun will be fired signifying the start of the First Manchester Golf Scramble. The outing is open to anyone who wishes to participate. We will draw names for teams just prior to the shotgun start. Each team will consist of an A, B, C and D player which will be determined by the average scores turned in.

Individual men's and women's and team prizes will be awarded for a wide variety of successes on every hole ranging from closest to the pins, accurate and longest drives, longest putts, team skins, having the correct number on your ticket stub. Local merchants, businesses, and individuals have generously donated 75 prizes so far.

While friendly competition is a part of any scramble, the intent of this outing is to have a good time and enjoy each other's company. This is why we are drawing for teams.

In addition to 18 holes of golf, and a cart, Green Valley will us.

be providing a continental breakfast, hot dogs at lunch, and a steak dinner following the golf. If your spouse or friend chooses not to play golf, but wishes to join up afterwards for the steak dinner, he or she is invited to buy dinner-only ticket.

Tickets are on sale at Keith's Barbershop, Krauss Pharmacy, Great Lakes Bancorp, Comerica, First of America and the Community Resource Center who is the sponsor of this event. When you buy tickets, please enter your average score on the registration so we can evenly match teams.

The cost for the golf day is $35 and the dinner-only ticket cost is $8. Green Valley is located on M-50 (Brooklyn Road) minutes west of Napoleon on the left side of the road.
