Chicken Broil, July 2033

—Howard E. Parr

Everyone in Manchester loves the Chicken Broil and for 40 years the project has continued until it is assumed that it will always go on and be successful the third Thursday of each July. In my contribution to this year's publicity I'd like to tempt you to think about what the Broil may be like 40 years from now, July 2033.

No doubt there will be further growth beyond the 14,000 dinners now served. How many more tons of charcoal, cabbage and chicken will be needed? How many more truckloads of chairs and tables and tents will it take? We may have to enlarge Alumni Memorial Field or move to a bigger area.

Possibly we should consider a location near some "copter" pad so flying diners can be easily accommodated. Perhaps the chicken can be cooked by microwave or some such.

All of our future needs will fall into place if we can continue to tap the leadership and worker resources in our community which feed into the various Broil Committees that run things.

There are about 650 workers on the master roster used this year. This will no doubt grow to over a thousand, unless computers somehow learn to clean and load grids, cut cabbage and mix the dressing, unpack chickens, count radishes, place a salt and pepper pack, knife and fork in each dinner box, and arrange and manage the thousands of details that fit into place at each successful broil.

I'd like to see computers do more, but somehow I feel there will always be the need for the unsung type of leadership and workers which has continued to improve and enlarge each Broil.

Jim and Ron Mann are currently part of the upper management level of the Broil and have been for many years. I collaborated with their mother, Dorothy, to get pictures of them from 40 years ago. Somewhere around town today there are boys who should be pictured in the Enterprise 40 years from now as leaders of the Broil.

You might know that an old school administrator would be specially concerned about overall management, and, I am. Six hundred fifty or a thousand workers can do a beautiful job on Broil day if all is planned for in advance.

From The Ground Up

— by BG

We all should thank those people who are responsible for the flower plantings on Main Street and in the parks. The bright colors add to the pleasant summer scene.

The rainfall has been about normal although the timing of some storms hasn't been great. A few weeks of dry weather might come during the summer — great for us but not for the gardens and lawns.

Prepare now for the possible dry spell by doing a good job of mulching to conserve the moisture in the ground. Destroy weeds that compete with the desirable plants for the available moisture.

Spraying is an inefficient way of watering — too much is lost to evaporation. A drip system or a perforated hose brings the water slowly to the plant's roots. Don't do it during the hot afternoon when the plants' systems are shut down.

Established lawns are surprisingly tough. The tops might turn brown as a defense against the lack of water but the roots are ready to come back with a rain.

Sometimes it is difficult to water everything in the garden. Decide what plantings are important and concentrate on watering those during a dry spell. Do you have vegetables, new perennial plants, young trees or shrubs whose loss might be felt financially? Is there a particular planting that is your favorite?

Hopefully, the rains will come in the proper amount and at the proper time during this summer.

Gardening is an important part of our lives from the kindergarten growing a Zinnia in a paper cup to the industries that create the supplies we use.

It gives us beauty, recreation, exercise, food and many more things. It can be as simple as a tomato plant in a can or as complex as a commercial nursery.

We can learn how to garden through childhood memories, videos, books, lectures, tours, demonstrations, but mainly, through experience. Those experiences can be our own and those of other people.

Do you have an easy method of planting bulbs? Are you successful with roses? Do you have a short cut to an earlier tomato crop? Has a certain combination of flowers been a winner with you? Have you overcome a problem with poor soil, not enough sun, an over-abundance of thistles? How do you keep helpful notes?

Would you like to share your favorite shortcuts and tips for handling garden chores? Would you like to write a column, a paragraph or two, or more, about your gardening ideas?

Send a double-spaced typed page about gardening with your name, address and phone number to "From the Ground Up by BG, c/o The Manchester Enterprise, P.O. Box 37, Manchester, MI 48158. We would like to share some of your thoughts with other gardeners.

The Day I Saved My Fish From Drowning

A sample essay inspired by the Enterprise Pet Photo (and/or) Essay Contest -- not an official entry

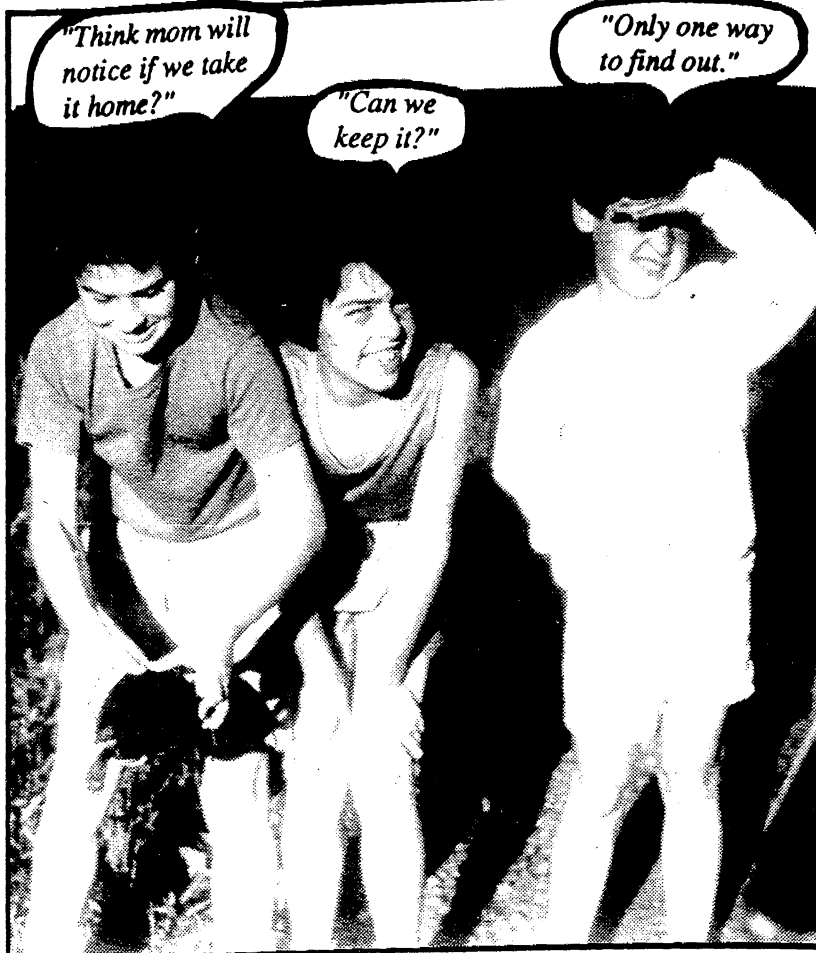

I came home one afternoon to find my large goldfish, Bud, stuck in the ceramic fish house in his bowl, unable to get out. There was only one hole he could have gotten in, so only one hole to get him out. I tried to bend him somewhat and succeeded in getting his tail out, but he also has a spike on his back that goes down—only when he wants it down. I couldn't get him out the same way he got in.

I called mom but she just laughed and said to call 911.

I was getting worried. Bud is kind of special. He was about 1-1/2" long when I bought him and now is around 5-1/2" long.

In desperation, I filled the sink with water (one hand in the tank, one hand in the sink to try to get the same temperature) and pulled Bud, still stuck in the fish house, out of the tank, put him in the sink and carefully rapped the ceramic house with a rock. When it broke, I put the fish back in the tank.

He didn't look too well. Probably had a headache and he was missing some scales. My Beta fighting fish started circling him and acting tough, (usually they get along great.) So I grabbed a clear cookie jar and caught the Beta in it and propped it in the corner of the tank. Once the Beta was confined, the goldfish became active again. A week and a half later I released the Beta into the tank again. Bud and Beta are doing fine, but no more cute fish houses for us.

Nothing is really lost. It's just where it doesn't belong. —Suzanne Mueller

The Last Minute Cook

From-the-Garden Recipes

Summer is the season to reap the long awaited benefits of fresh fruit and vegetable gardens that gardeners and farmers have prepared, planted and pruned throughout the year. Crisply pungent peppers and sweet cherry red tomatoes are at their peak waiting to be included in an afternoon picnic or family reunion dinner celebration.

The Last Minute Cook offers a few fruit and "veggie" delights using the gardener's finest that allow more time to indulge in the many outdoor activities summer offers.

"There are so many delicious dishes that can be made from the season's more popular ingredients — and some are just outside the back door," says George Bay, vice president of Bays Corporation, a Cordon Bleu chef and a last minute cook himself. "One way I have enjoyed my garden's bounty is to make a variation of Pannino or Italian bread salad, using sliced carrots, cucumbers, celery and tomatoes."

Try some of these Last Minute Cook from-the-garden recipes to add a little summer freshness to any meal:

Crunchy Apple Cole Slaw

Serves 4

Start with: 1 lb. deli creamy cole slaw

Add: 1 small Golden Delicious apple, cored and chopped; 4 slices crisp, cooked bacon, crumbled

Stir to combine. Chill to blend flavors, about 1 hour.

using fresh plump tomatoes and avocados:

Sonoma Smoked Turkey Sandwiches

Serves 4-6

1/3 cup regular or reduced fat mayonnaise

1 1/2 tablespoons honey mustard

4 Bays English Muffins, split, toasted

2 small avocados, peeled, pitted, sliced

16 ounces thinly sliced smoked turkey breast

4 Italian plum tomatoes, sliced lengthwise

8 ounces sliced hot pepper Monterey Jack cheese

Combine mayonnaise and mustard. Spread about 1/2 tablespoon on each muffin half. Top each half with several slices avocado, 2 ounces turkey, tomato slices and cheese. Broil until cheese is melted. Serve immediately.

Bays Muffin Salad Italiano

Serves 4

Start with: a selection of chopped carrots, sliced cucumber, sliced celery, sliced red onion and cherry tomatoes to make 1 pound.

Add: 1/4 cup bottled oil and vinegar or vinaigrette dressing; 2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil; 2 Bays English Muffins, split, toasted and cut in 1/2" pieces

Toss all ingredients and refrigerate 30 minutes until muffins have absorbed liquid.

When you have a bit more time, try this quick-to-prepare turkey delight,

Editorial / Opinion

To the Editor:

Thank you, "Annoyed in Manchester". (Letter to the Editor, June 24, 1993) You're not alone.

I wrote a letter last year telling it like it was, not as soft-toned as yours. I was told at the Spring Shop not to write another letter "as it could hurt somebody". Well, it is the "truth that hurts".

Very few Manchester residents come to the Spring Shop as they know everything is picked over or all gone. There is not a toy left for Manchester residents. (People) don't look things over, just take the whole pile of games and puzzles, etc. It's not fair.

You have to be there to see it.

— Grandma Gillow

Letter to the Editor:

On June 20th (Father's Day) at about 11:30 a.m., I met a stupid woman on the curves on Austin Road just west of Grossman Road. I was traveling west, she east.

Why stupid? Because she crossed halfway over the double-yellow line.

Why? So she could miss a squirrel. Not a deer, horse, or cow. A squirrel.

A split-second faster for either of us and we both could have been killed or injured.

I read of a woman in Florida last winter who rolled her car to miss a small animal. It didn't hurt her, but it smashed her daughter's skull. The girl lived, no thanks to her stupid mother, but she must have had much suffering and pain.

It's a sad state of affairs when people think that wild animal life is more important than human life.

Childhood Factors May Foretell Adolescent Drug Use

Can you predict which children are likely to go on to become adolescent drug users? It may indeed be possible. Factors such as extreme childhood aggression, substance abuse by parents or peers, and early drug use may propel youngsters into teenage drug abuse, say researchers supported by the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

Judith S. Brook, Ed.D., Martin Whiteman, Ph.D., and Pat Cohen, Ph.D., from New York Medical College and Columbia University conducted a long-term study seeking potential childhood predictors of adolescent drug use. Data, derived from interviews with both mothers and children, were obtained on 412 boys and girls at three stages: 5-10; 13-18; and 15-20 years of age.

The research team's findings documented specific patterns or characteristics of childhood behavior that proved highly predictive of drug use in the ensuing years. The scientists also examined the complex influences of parental behavior on adolescent drug use.

"We identified several predictors of adolescent drug use, with two being the most significant—excessive childhood aggression (e.g., bullying other children, getting into playground fights, aggression toward siblings) and risky parental behaviors (extreme use of alcohol, use of illicit drugs, or other dangerous behavior). These factors greatly increased the likelihood that a child would turn to drugs during adolescence," said Brook.

Other risk factors included early (pre-adolescent) drug use and peer drug use. Youths with friends or associates who took drugs were often likely to follow their lead.

Brook emphasized that parents should look for early signs—such as the ones she and her colleagues identified—that could promote drug use during the teen years.

Drug abuse specialists believe that prevention remains the most effective approach for deterring illicit teenage substance abuse. Therefore, Brook explained, in some cases treatment may be needed for childhood behavioral problems that heighten the risk for adolescent substance abuse. "Where unusual or risky childhood behaviors such as extreme aggression exist, there may be an underlying cause that needs attention." Counseling or other psychiatric or medical treatment may be warranted in these cases, she added. "In the long run, early recognition of childhood drug abuse risk factors, and intervention, where needed, can help thwart the use of drugs during adolescence," Brook concluded.

Gypsy looks at Show Biz

Starring Manchester's Meghan Hakes as "Gypsy"!!

It won't take long for you to empathize with the life and times of Gypsy Rose Lee during the staging of Gypsy at the Crosswell Opera House in downtown Adrian July 8-11 and 14-18.

Known as the legendary queen of strip-tease, Gypsy Rose Lee's story comes to life on stage with such musical highlights as Let Me Entertain You, Everything's Coming Up Roses, Some People and Together We Go.

The musical takes a comedic look at stage mothering and a tearful peek at the hard knocks facing a show-biz family as mother Rose forces her two unwilling daughters into stardom as vaudeville performers. The colorful panorama of the two-day-circuits in their heyday in the 1920s is the backdrop of Gypsy. The action takes place in the second-rate theatres and rathole hotels that mother Rose feels will propel her daughters to stardom.

Riddle-Solving at the Manchester Community Fair

How good are you at solving riddles?

The Manchester Community Fair does a lot of great things every year, but this year they've added something a little different: A contest which involves solving riddles.

In keeping with the theme of this year's Fair, "Year of the American Craft," the Fair invites you to consider that many crafts are dependent on agri-products. This little contest is a fun way of doing just that!

For instance, did you know that soap can be made from oatmeal? Of course we're not referring to plain old ordinary store-bought soap, but rather those very special hand-made soaps you might buy in a specialty shop, made by talented crafters. So now you know how to solve this riddle:

Little Boy Blue, come wash your face.

The sheep will be fine & the cows are in place.

The oatfields are safe; nothing else matters.

We'll use this as a base for a sweet smelling lather.

(Answer: The agri-product is "oatmeal," and the craft is "hand-made soaping making.")

So the contest works like this: Solve ten riddles by naming the agri-product and the craft that each riddle refers to. And should you need a little help with some of these puzzlers, there will be signs around the Fair offering "did you know..." information.

So join the fun this year at the Fair. Entry sheets for the "Year of the Craft Contest" will be available at the Fair.

A grand prize winner will be drawn from those entries having the most correct answers. The winner will receive a check for $25 dollars!

Just one more way to have fun at the Manchester Community Fair! See you at the Alumni Memorial Field, kitty-corner from the back of the Middle School, next week, July 6th through the 10th.

Miracle Testimony of Rev. Miller

First Assembly of God brings Rev. Duane Miller to Saline for a presentation of his miracle testimony, as well as a message centered around the theme of practical christianity which is the name of the company he heads up.

The date of Rev. Miller's appearance is July 4, at 6:00 p.m., at First Assembly of God of Saline, 300 Old Creek Drive, Saline.

"Life is meant to be a day-glo orange experience! Intense, vivid and alive, if not always fun and pleasant," notes Rev. Miller, executive director of Practical Christianity, Inc. Challenging all who hear him to live life to its fullest is Miller's focus. Communicate, motivate, and facilitate are the foundation of his ministry.

Today, Miller is a frequent speaker at church-sponsored gatherings nationwide, communicating the relevance of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to our contemporary circumstances and motivating individuals to be actively involved in life through the church. Just a few short months ago, Miller was unable to deliver his message in this manner.

In January of 1990, Miller lost his voice. Extensive diagnostic procedures brought the medical conclusion that he had severe nerve damage to the vocal cords. Miller was told that recovery was exceedingly unlikely. For three years, he communicated in a raspy, low whisper-like sound, which he strained to

Open House

The local branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be hosting an open house on Tuesday, July 6, at 7:00 p.m. The members of the congregation are opening their church doors to anyone interested in coming out for tours, presentations, answering questions and refreshments.

There will be a presentation on family history and tracing your roots, how to use the church's extensive resources which are accessible locally, and, in addition, find out how to organize all that information.

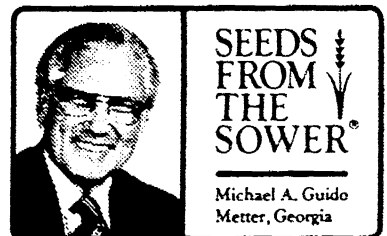

A presentation on strengthening the family will be offered. Couldn't we all use some ideas on how to relate better to our teenagers, children or parents? Have you always wanted to know what you could do to draw your family closer together? Come and see how this group of people works to have strong families. See what youth programs keep their teenagers busy and happy.

If you were wondering what the beliefs of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints consist of, come and see. Answer questions like "Where did I come from? Why am I here? Where am I going after this life? What does The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints actually believe about Jesus Christ?"

Did you know that Christ visited the Americas and there is evidence of His visit? A video on Christ in America will be presented during the evening. It is most interesting.

If nothing else, stop by for a tour, refreshments and a neighborly visit, July 6, 7:00 p.m., 1330 N. Freer, Chelsea, Michigan.

An agent for an oil company took me to see his new sign. It read: "Need Gas? Fill Up Now. No Service For 25 Miles." He missed a plane that night. Why? He ran out of gas.

Many don't practice what they preach - especially in religion. But lofty doctrine and low practice don't go well together.

If you say you're a Christian, show it. Either take the Lord into your life, or take Him off your lips.

A tough kid made the life of a small boy miserable at school.

One day the big bully set out to hurt the little fellow. He was frightened. But just then he saw his big brother, a karate expert. Running behind him, he yelled, "Now come on."

The boy, the bully, the big brother - what a picture! There never has been such a bully as the devil. And there never has been such a Strong One as the Lord Jesus who's not ashamed to call those who believe on Him His brothers.

When the devil attacks you, don't panic. Get behind your big Brother. Trust Him to whip him. The Bible says, "The battle is the Lord's."

MHS Students Paint Storm Drains to River Raisin

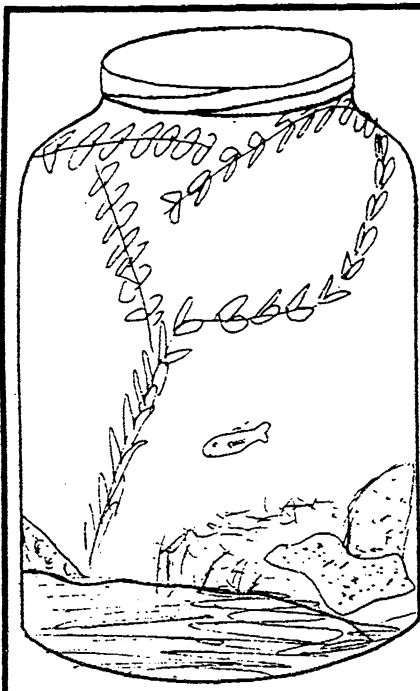

Students from Melinda Trout's Manchester High School biology class a few weeks ago took two hours after school to identify storm drains in the Village of Manchester that flow directly into the River Raisin.

The students, Shan Lee, Aaron Garrett, Matt Herman, Julie Luckhardt, Zach Maghes, Ron Marecle and Kelley Rains, were supplied with stencils and spray-paint by the Raisin Valley Land Trust (RVLT). The students applied a stenciled picture of a fish with the reminder "Don't Dump, Drains to River," on east side drains to keep the river free of used auto oil and other pollutants often dumped in storm sewers.

The student effort is the latest in a two-year-long collaboration between MHS art and biology teacher Melinda Trout, her students, and members of the RVLT, formerly the Manchester Area Resource Conservation Coalition (MARCC). Trout's art class students have created logos, posters, and displays for ecology "events" in the community.

In January of 1993, the Raisin Valley Land Trust donated $220 to Trout's biology class. With that money, Trout purchased several species classification handbooks, plus two water testing kits, one for identifying organic waste (e. coli) in the river, the other to check for heavy metals and phosphorus fertilizers.

Trout introduced the kits to students this year, with plans to involve middle school students in a program to monitor the River Raisin ecology next year. Since RVLT goals stress the importance of environmental education, the "ecology connection" speaking, requiring students to utilize higher thinking skills during the project. (A classroom mailbox system with written messages was the answer.)

After six weeks of recording observations, students were required to chart and diagram their results (see sidebar), and compare the closed ecosystem of the glass jar to that of the Great Lakes. Samples from student conclusions drawn from their essays about the delicate balance of an ecosystem and the impact of people on the environment include:

Jamie Knouase: "The ecosystem can be harmed in many ways. If we just cared enough for the ecosystem of both the Great Lakes and a little ecosystem like mine (jar), we would have a cleaner and healthier planet."

Trevor Schleicher: "As a society we are a part of this ecosystem. We are effected each day by it. We are effected by the soil, climate and just everything. People should be concerned about everything they do in this precious ecosystem."

Meranda Rose: "Just like closed ecosystems, lakes can be destroyed by the human race. Lakes are losing a lot of species, such as fish. Fish are becoming extinct due to overfishing and other human activities."

Shan Lee: "People need to - stop polluting - if (small) fish are caught put them back

- stop putting so much chemicals in water - quit building on shorelines"

Members of the Raisin Valley Land Trust salute Melinda Trout and her students for their interest and efforts toward preserving the health and beauty of our environment.

What is Cable?

Recently, it has come to my attention that there are people (from Jackson, MI and Ohio) who are going door to door with this phrase: "Have Cable in your home!"

The term "Cable" has become confusing. (They are talking about "satellite" — not "cable"). I would like to explain "Cable."

First of all, Cable is not a satellite dish.

Cable is a service performed by companies such as: Columbia Cable Vision, Clear Cable, Omnicom, Multivision or Televista.

Second, Cable does not cost $3,000 to $4,000. Basic cable service is less than $20 per month.

So, don't be confused. Call me and get all your questions answered and pricing on a satellite dish at $2,100.

Wes Gall Shortens His Field

— by Jon

This season ended Wes's first year as girls' softball coach following 17 years piloting the boys. Wes told me he enjoyed working with the ladies.

Yes, the decision to leave the boys in a potentially winning year was very difficult, but when the girls' coaching position became available, Wes decided he had to take it.

It seems important to Wes that a good community summer softball program would lead to a solid high school team. These young ladies need to get out on the softball field as early as possible to learn the basics of the game.

In my years of watching Wes coach the boys, he has shown himself to be very knowledgeable and can teach his subject well. Switching his talents to a different diamond, Wes has his coaching box 60 feet from home plate instead of 90 for the boys.

I feel confident today's leaders of the Broil are on the right track to assure continuity in management. Almost all of the major committees have co-chairmen, which means more than one person is involved and should be able to carry on as the ranks inevitably thin out each year. There are about 40 co-chairmen listed on the roster who manage everything from ordering supplies to cooking, firing, serving and even arranging publicity such as this.

Continuation of these management responsibilities is the heart of assuring successful Broils for the next 40 years.

We all owe these folks a special vote of thanks and should think twice before we ever tell one of them that "we don't have time to help just now".

In conclusion I wonder if some computer won't be pushing out publicity for the Chicken Broil in 2033 instead of another old, grey-haired guy sitting at his IBM typewriter.

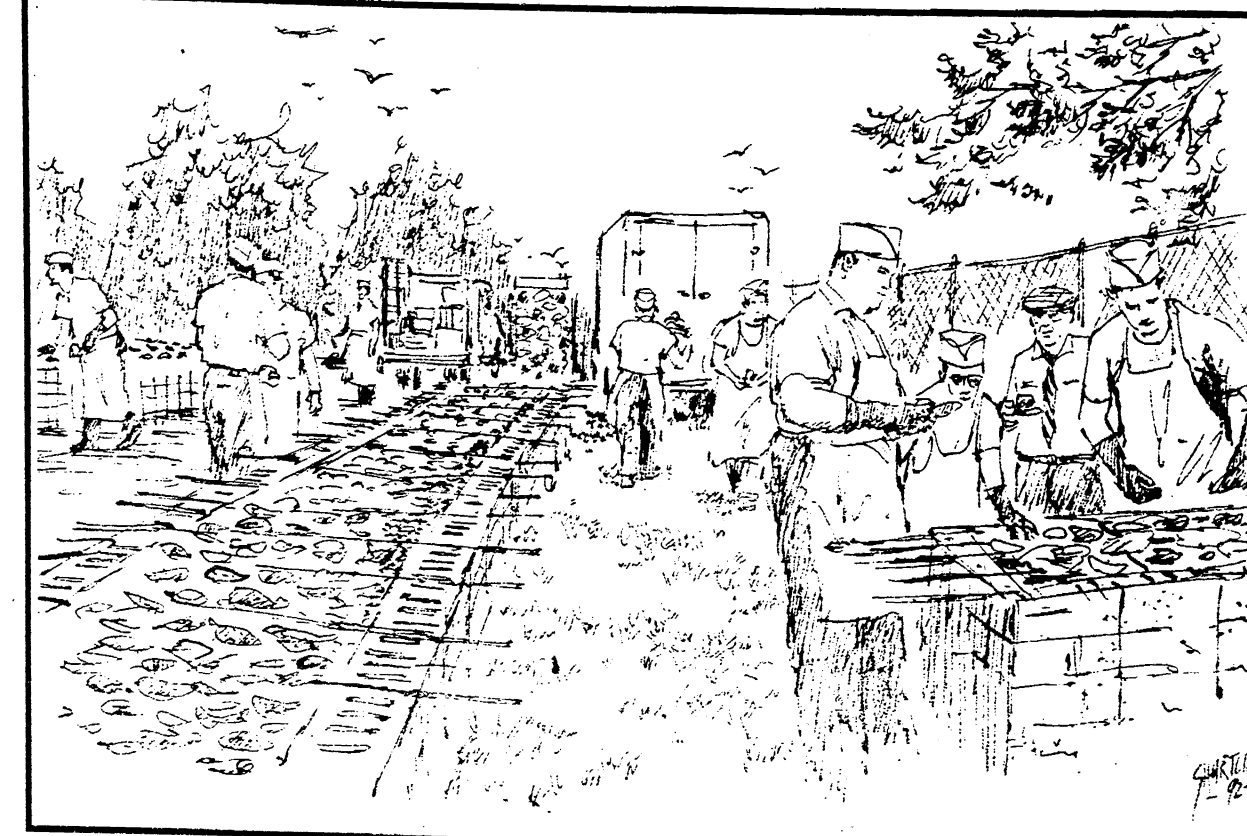

The Enterprise will be here to print the story, won't it? Or will that only be an irascible, oldish computer?

Anyhow, ON WITH THE 40TH CHICKEN BROIL ON JULY 15, 1993!

Kevin Anderson Receives Young Hero Award

Eight-year-old Kevin Anderson, of Manchester, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Anderson, received a Young Hero Award from Klager Elementary principal, Mrs. Yvonne Henry at the end of the school year assembly.

Kevin received this recognition for his fast thinking action when his baby brother began choking on objects that he had picked off the floor. Kevin's quick slaps on the baby's back caused the objects to dislodge enabling the baby to resume breathing normally.

Kevin will be a second grader at Klager next year.

40th Annual Chicken Broil

If it's summer in Manchester, the Chicken Broil must be right around the corner.

This year is even more special because it is the fortieth anniversary of the event.

Mark your calendars for Thursday, July 15th, and plan to do no cooking that evening. Let the men of our town do it for you.

Once again, the armies of the Chicken Broil will be out in force to cook up 15,000 or more chicken halves in the time-honored fashion. Radishes will roll, cabbage will be transformed into the famous secret slaw (see related story page two), and if all goes well, the skies will smile down on one of the biggest suppers in America.

On that day of the year, a stranger driving through Manchester can find out exactly what those signs at the village limits mean, the ones that say "Home of the Famous Chicken Broil." The deputies directing traffic and the clouds of smoke rolling from the athletic field are not signs of a major fire, and the horses pulling wagon loads of commuters from the high school are not evidence of a time warp.

This dinner, big enough to feed Paul Bunyan, is Manchester's main event, and it is still going strong after 40 years.

You can choose to partake on the grounds or pick up diners to go. The time you spend at the site will be filled with entertainment by roving barber shop quartets, the Sweet Adelines and a variety of stage bands. All this still only costs $5.00 in advance or $5.50 at the gate.

So, you fans of chicken and tradition, plan to come out on July 15th, for the annual treat. Serving starts at 4:00 p.m.

Proceeds from the broil always go toward projects that help Manchester community maintain its small town beauty and charm.
