Matt Laskowski Celebrity Bat Boy

Thirteen-year-old Matt Laskowski of Manchester won a special sweepstakes that entitled him to be Celebrity Bat Boy for the Detroit Tigers game on August 11th versus the Baltimore Orioles. Matt is pictured in the Tigers' dugout with Celebrity Bat Girl, Lisa Clark of Saline.

As Celebrity Bat Boy, Matt went on field prior to the game for an 'up close and personal' look at batting practice. This VIP Tigers experience included a photo with a Detroit Tigers player and recognition through a scoreboard and public address announcement.

Matt also received a host of Tigers souvenirs including a jersey, bat, ball, certificate and autographs from some of the players. He then rejoined his friends and family in complimentary Box seats for the game.

Matt, an eighth grader at Manchester Middle School, plays baseball for the Cubs Little League Team. His favorite player is Cecil Fielder. Aside from baseball, he enjoys football, basketball, swimming, collecting baseball cards, comic books, and computers.

Affordable Housing - An Endangered Species?

by Marsha Johnson Chartrand

"Low-to-moderate income families don't have much choice in desirable housing here in Manchester," says Dianne Schwab, Director of the Community Resource Center.

Dianne indicated that in the past two weeks, four clients have come through her office in an attempt to locate affordable housing here in Manchester. A majority of these clients are families. Some have found jobs here in Manchester and need, for various reasons, to live within the Village. Others are simply looking for an alternative to the high cost of housing elsewhere in the county.

To learn about the availability of housing in our village, a good place to start was with the Village Offices. Clerk Karen Tucker offered to share the Village of Manchester General Development Plan, adopted by the Village Planning Commission on January 12, 1993. The 1990 Census indicated that the characterization of the Village is composed primarily of families.

Our 675 housing units are predominantly owner occupied (71.3%). This exceeds the ratio in the comparable neighboring villages of Chelsea and Dexter. The building permit history of the village shows that single family development predominates.

When the figures also show that "the Village of Manchester will have the greatest population increase over the next twenty years of all communities in Southwest Washtenaw County", where does that leave us?

New development for multiple family use has had two major components over the last several years - the same years during which the single-family development has prevailed.

The multi-family developments have experienced their share of hot debate. Both the Manchester Apartments on Duncan Street and Manchester Manor on Hibbard Road have come under fire for disturbing our village's character.

Manchester Apartments has thirty-two units which are "full most of the time". According to their resident manager, Sherry Lynch, there are no vacancies at this time, although a waiting list is kept. Sherry indicates that there are often "people at the door" wanting to rent an apartment. While summer is their "turn-around" time, it sometimes takes time to ready an apartment for an occupant. The wait for an apartment is usually 6-8 months.

Rent is based on a sliding scale according to income. The minimum income is "around $11,000", depending upon what size apartment is required. There is a maximum income of $27,000.

From The Ground Up

— by BG

School is starting and summer is coming to a close. Some results of the vegetable garden will be preserved for the winter. How about taking part of your flower garden indoors?

Look around your garden for tender plants that could be rescued before the first frost. Impatiens, Tuberous begonias, Lobelia and geraniums do well in the house with the available light. If you have a sunny window or a grow-light, try Sweet alyssum, low Snapdragons, Pinks, Flowering Tobacco or any available annual.

The existing pots of flowers can be taken into the house or new combinations can be created, using the available plants with different pots and fresh soil. The green plant fillers found in some arrangements such as Dracena spikes, Sprengli ferns, ivy and Vinca Major (the common two-tone vine) will flourish in the house and can be used outdoors again next summer.

Parsley, Basil, Chives, Oregano, Mint, etc. can be potted and brought into the house for winter cooking. Herbs usually require maximum light to flourish.

When bring these plants indoors, lessen the shock of a new environment by cutting back and fertilizing. If you are worried about insects that might ride in on the plants, put the pot and all in a plastic dry-cleaner's bag and spray with an indoor insecticide. After a few hours, move the arrangement to its final location.

An added dividend of keeping these plants over the winter is the possibility of using them as a source of cuttings in the early spring. Even if the flowers don't live through the whole winter, you will have increased your enjoyment of the garden.

Thinking about winter on the hottest day in two years does seem strange but gardeners, by nature, are optimists, always looking forward to the next season and the next year. Who else would plant tiny seeds every year, knowing that the flower could take two years to appear?

Australia: the Great Adventure

— by Hal DeLongchamp

This day there were many things to do. We started at a small animal reserve owned by the Dutch. We visited their aquarium and saw sheep sheared. The reserve had a wombat, kangaroos — and something famous, and nasty — a Tasmanian Devil.

The Devils at one time lived throughout Australia and Tasmania, but because they are so dangerous the natives eliminated them from Australia. The Devil we saw was behind four-foot metal walls with heavy wire angled in about two feet. The Devils are all black with a white stripe around their tail and around their bodies. Their teeth protrude over their upper lip. When they are finished eating, there is nothing left. We were told they could eat a baby or small child in two minutes, and a man's hand in two seconds, bones and all.

Back in the bus we were on our way to the Sydney Opera House. The Opera House was designed to have the best sound possible. The outside of the building is covered with Italian ceramic tiles so no algae or mold will grow on it. There is no main room but it is divided into several rooms which are all different in color. We were told tickets can sell for $100-$700 depending on the opera.

We then drove down to Canberra to visit their Parliament and the Australian Army Monument. At the Parliament we learned about the Australian government and that's where I learned what the color of their flag was: red for their soil, green for their eucalyptus leaves. By the way, the eucalyptus leaves we buy here aren't leaves at all, but seed pods. Real eucalyptus leaves are long and narrow like willows.

It was cold outside at the Army Monument where we went next, and we were there for four long hours. They had army uniforms and gear on display that had been worn in battles. Everything was protected by alarms so you had to be really careful.

Our last dinner in Australia was at the Hardrock Cafe in Sydney. They would only let us order hamburgers which really upset everyone, but it was still fun to see and to buy some last minute souvenirs.

Then the next morning the vacation was over and we were boarding a plane for home. Everyone was exhausted; the flight home seemed short because we all slept the whole way. It was non-stop except for Los Angeles. When we arrived at Detroit Metro, awaiting us were balloons, cameras flashing, lots of hugs and tears, (except for my family because they are always late). Finally, a half hour later, my family arrived and we went to Big Boy's for banana splits. When I got home I crawled into my queen-size waterbed and conked out -- ahh!

Of the thirty-two units, eight are occupied by senior citizens, two of whom require barrier-free apartments.

A low-income, two-parent family with two small children indicated that they were discouraged from filling out an application for Manchester Apartments because their income, while within the guidelines for the sliding scale, was "too low"; the management company wanted to rent to people at the top of the scale to maximize their income.

The question has arisen whether this is within management's right to deny access based on income, when it meets the published guidelines. This family has resorted to camping in a tent, and living in a kitchenette motel until an affordable apartment becomes available to them.

Part owner and manager of Manchester Manor, Paul Antonelli, indicates that out of 105 occupied lots, there are about 45 children, which figures out to "probably" 20-25 families with children (20%) - lower than the distribution of families with children in the general population of Manchester.

About 20% of occupants at Manchester Manor are senior citizens - probably slightly higher than the population at large.

According to the General Development Plan Appendix A (Population and Housing), the age distribution of children under age 18 is 29.1%, the "family forming group" (ages 25-44) is about 33%, and senior citizens about 12%. Young families with children are the majority of Manchester's population.

Consulting the Enterprise about available housing, there are currently "more than average" numbers of classifieds under the For Rent category. Three of the ads now running have been in excess of three months; those are for efficiency and one-bedroom (non-family) apartments. Clearly, the demand exists for units in which a family can live.

Judy Fahey of Fahey Realty notes that there are homes available in Manchester as low as in the $80,000 range; a few may be found under $80,000, but most are in excess of $100,000.

With interest rates favorable and property taxes an uncertain factor, a home of one's own may be more affordable than some of the apartments in town.

Martha Mackres of Great Lakes Bancorp (930-6725) specializes in consulting with families who are interested in buying homes. She helps them find out what is affordable for them, and assists in financial planning to set goals if purchasing a home is out of the question for them at this time.

Having exhausted the "availability" part of housing in Manchester, now the "affordability" of quality housing comes to light.

Manchester Apartments sliding scale for low income tenants indicates that a one-bedroom apartment rents for $297-475, a two-bedroom for $317-515, and a three-bedroom for $338-550. At the low end of the scale, a tenant whose income is at or near the $11,000 minimum, would be spending at least 32% of their income on housing (based on $297 rent for a one bedroom apartment). Utilities are included, except for electricity.

Lot rent at Manchester Manor starts at $220 per month, depending on the lot and how many people live in the home. A single-wide manufactured home, according to Jeff Powers at Arbor Homes, has payments of around $230 per month, when the customer has a 10% down payment. So a two-bedroom home on a lot at Manchester Manor would run about $450, plus utilities.

The classified ads for rental apartments in Manchester show rents from $400 to $550 per month. Usually this figure does not include utilities unless indicated.

Gas and electricity can become costly in an older building, whether a home or a downtown storefront which has been divided into several small apartments. Often the house is not well insulated or appliances may malfunction, causing the utility costs to be disproportionately high.

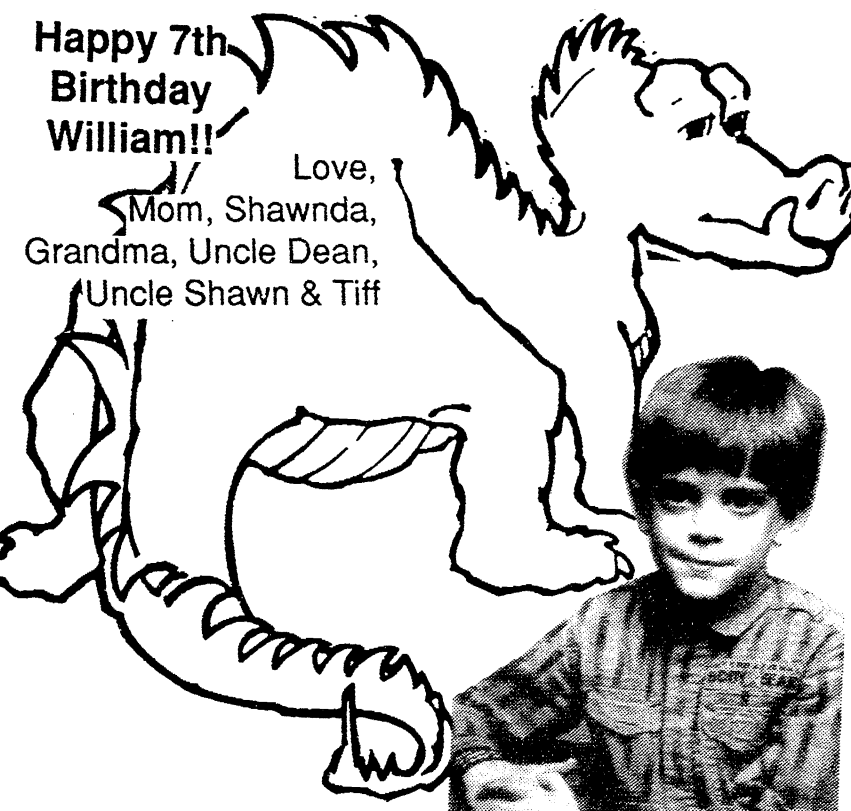

Unadvertised rents may be even higher than the $550 indicated above. According to the Enterprise, "Ads for good apartments at a good price are usually pulled the day the paper comes out because the apartment is rented immediately."

How affordable are homes in Manchester, really? According to Martha Mackres, although Great Lakes Bancorp will not do VA or FHA-guaranteed loans at this time, they will accept Private Mortgage Insurance (at an additional cost to the buyer) in order to avail the buyer a lower down payment - as low as 5% in some cases. An $85,000 home with 5% down and 1% interest, would equal a payment of approximately $685, including taxes, insurance, and PMI.

With a larger down payment of 20%, a standard mortgage for 25 years at 7%, would yield a payment of $477.08, a figure which does not include taxes or insurance.

though the multi-residential properties available in Manchester are often characterized as non-family units because of size, location, landlord preference, or whatever, the reality is that young families just starting out cannot always afford owner-occupied housing. Although the monthly payments on a home of your own are roughly comparable to rental payments on local apartments, it requires a substantial amount of cash to make this purchase possible.

Letter to the Editor: Good Schools are Everybody's Business

The recent enactment of SB 1, which eliminated all property taxes for school operating purposes, has many citizens concerned, and justifiably so, over the fate of our public educational system.

Regardless of whether you supported or opposed SB 1, I would suggest that the current situation provides an opportunity to not only correct a faulty funding mechanism, but most importantly, it provides an unprecedented opportunity for the citizens, the educators, the business community and the Legislature to work together to determine, first and foremost, what kind of educational system we want in Michigan.

If a longer school year, smaller class sizes, higher standards and greater local control will improve education, then by all means, we should look at helping schools implement these changes. If schools of choice, charter schools or a voucher system will guarantee all of our children an equal educational opportunity, then we should listen to proponents of these ideas with an open mind.

If there are new and basic skills that our students will need in order to be successful in the world of work, as the business community has told us, then this too must be part of the public debate and discussion.

But, before we can determine which proposal or recommendation will be best for our children, the essential first questions we must address are not "How much will it cost? Who will get it? Who will pay for it?" but rather "What do we — the citizens of this state — want our children to know and be able to do when they leave school? This is the focus of the House Democratic Education Task Force.

For years, the community of professional educators has been pointing to a lack of parental, business and community involvement in education, as one of the chief problems facing it, whether in the area of discipline or in the area of pupil achievement.

I would suggest that we proceed on the assumption that educators mean exactly what they have been saying: that a good education is a partnership, and that neither parent nor teacher, nor the business community — which is the consumer of the product — can succeed in this partnership without the sincere and willing cooperation of other partners.

And by "involvement," I certainly do not mean "rubber stamping" the latest and greatest idea for school reform or serving as an armchair critic of the educational system.

I mean involvement through analyzing what needs to be analyzed, questioning what needs to be questioned, supporting what deserves to be supported, and condemning all that warrants our condemnation.

I cannot stress enough how critically important it is at this time for the parents, the business community and other concerned citizens to take an active and ongoing role in revisions of our educational system. We must reach a consensus on the desired outcomes of the educational process and then work together to create a system that will facilitate those expectations in the most effective manner possible.

Meaningful parental, citizen and business involvement is essential if we are to have any hope of bridging the gap between what should be and what is, the gap between the concept of equal and total educational opportunity and the reality of maintaining and supporting education.

Although that gap will always be there to some degree, it will be bridged for many deserving young people only through the efforts of our citizens, our parents, our businesses and our educators who are dedicated and committed to seeing that the education being provided is the very best possible.

As the Carnegie Report pointed out in response to the Nation at Risk Report: "A report card on the schools is a report card on the nation. No matter what may be encouraged, set forth in guidelines or even mandated, our schools can rise no higher than the communities that support them. To blame schools for a 'rising tide of mediocrity' is to confuse symptoms with the disease."

—Wm. R. Keith (D-Garden City) House Democratic Education Task Force Chair

Letter to the Editor:

I wish someone would publish a "How-to" book on setting up a garage sale. Maybe I will.

For those who make their living in the resale business or those who simply want to treasure hunt or find a bargain on clothing, etc., garage sales are terrific! But those who are actually having the sale should keep some pointers in mind. I believe the following suggestions just might make your sale a success as well as keeping your customers happy.

It is very frustrating to see a garage sale sign that has no date or time. Many times I have driven far out of my way to find a sale that either hasn't started yet or that was actually the week before or even the month before. Please take your signs down when your sale is over and post the date and time. (It is also helpful to post the distance from the end of the road. Sometimes we might not have time to drive 10 miles down the road trying to find a sale but if we know how far we have to go, we can decide that.)

Signs should be readable, too! You can't read small print from the opposite side of the road and you don't want to cause an accident trying to!

If you advertise for "no early sales", then stick to it. It isn't fair to those of us who respect your wishes only to show up and discover you have already sold to a bunch of dealers, or whoever, long before your starting time.

If you don't advertise for "no early sales", don't be upset when people show up early. Perhaps they were just driving by and didn't see your ad. Many times the ad states the time but not the signs. You might miss out on your best customers by being angry.

Keep prices reasonable. Remember this is a garage sale, not a shop or a store. People who garage sale are looking for a bargain. Of course you want to make money at your sale, but it is better to get a small price for something you don't want, then to be stuck with it and end up giving it away.

One last suggestion: state in your ad the type of merchandise you are selling. Those who are looking for antiques do not want to drive out of their way only to find baby clothes and tupperware, etc. You might even consider putting your phone number in your ad so people can call to see if you have the type of stuff they want.

Garage sales are something many of us look forward to each summer and a great way to make some extra cash on unwanted stuff, but if you're going to have one, keep in mind that your extra efforts will most likely pay off! signed: "I don't stop at all sales, only the good ones!"

ideas and to inspire students to excel.

"Too often, the best teachers -- those who inspire students -- are teachers who beat the system. That means the system must change. Teachers should be rewarded for creativity, imagination and performance, not seniority or success in "not rocking the boat."

"And, freedom number four: Taxpayers must be freed from the burden of an unfair tax structure that discourages economic growth and job creation.

"Our goal must be a fair tax structure that meets the education needs of our children and that encourages investment and new jobs. That's a goal every state can share.

"With the ideas and brain power in this room, I am confident that we can create a new education system that challenges our kids to excel and rewards excellence. We can create a system that's fair and affordable to students, parents and taxpayers. And we can create a system that provides a much better return on our substantial investment for society at large. As I have said many times before:

"Freedom number three: Teachers must have the freedom to experiment, to try new ideas and to inspire students to excel.

"There are those who want to focus on school finance issues first. I disagree. Let's put together a plan to give our kids the best education in the world, figure out how much it costs, and then -- and only then -- decide how to pay for it.

"Accountants call this method of management "zero-based budgeting." I call it common sense. And this common sense should make sense to your constituents -- no matter where you live.

"Common sense is really what it takes to make government work the way Jefferson intended it to work. Common sense to keep the tax burden down and help people lift themselves up through hard work. Commonsense to limit the size and power of government and empower people to strengthen their families and improve their communities. Commonsense to give parents and children the freedom to choose a quality school that meets their needs and stands for nothing less than excellence.

"Holding On"

The final weekend of Devils Lake feature films is Saturday, September 4 and Sunday, September 5.

The new film "Holding On" will begin at dark, approximately 9:20 p.m.

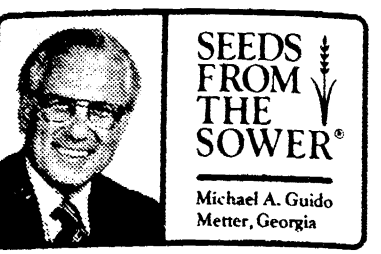

"Holding On" is a feature length, hard-edged drama that pulls no punches but still a film that all ages should be exposed to.

For Bobby Kingsley, holding on to what he believes meant a knife-point prayer for the sick mother of a tough gang leader. It meant the wrath of a high school drug lord and, finally, letting go of the girl he loved and a secret bigger than both of them.

The chain of events set off by Bobby's faith combine to make "Holding On" an inspirational thriller for all ages.

Instead of tossing about fretfully, waiting for the rooster to crow, trust the Lord fervently, waiting upon Him who makes all things work for your good.

The Lord has promised to keep His people, and the Lord will keep His promise.

Thomas Carlyle, the gifted writer, allowed a little rooster to ruin his nights.

He said to his neighbor, "Your rooster bothers me."

The man asked, "Does the crowing keep you awake?"

"No," said Carlyle, "it's not the crowing that keeps me awake - it's my lying in bed waiting for the rooster to crow."

The worst trouble which most people endure is the anticipation of the troubles that never happen.

Instead of tossing about fretfully, waiting for the rooster to crow, trust the Lord fervently, waiting upon Him who makes all things work for your good.

The Lord has promised to keep His people, and the Lord will keep His promise.

Gratitude is a milder form of revenge. —Nietzsche

Senior Citizens News

—T.V. Ludwick

September is here and school begins for our youngsters. Was it just last week that neighbor children were running through the water sprinkler? Now the groans can be heard. "Do we have to do our homework right now?" Moms think and sometimes answer: "Should I cook dinner, or sit down and enjoy myself?" Somehow they do manage to grow up and become people you are very proud of. This month's Busy Woman's Calendar thought for the month is: "The only thing wilder than kids' imaginations is their outfits". I guess if you can't beat them, join 'em, although hubby and I have never owned a pair of either cowboy or motorcycle boots. (They'd probably just pinch our toes anyhow.) And in that 90-degree weather, we went barefoot, isn't that as close to being a kid as a couple of seniors get?

Monday, September 6: The senior bus will leave the Center at 9:30 on a shopping trip to Oak Valley Center in Ann Arbor. Target and Meijer's will be visited and if you wish to go, call Emma Alber at 428-8707.

Labor Day brings more activity for coming months for our seniors, so get out and enjoy.

Tuesday, September 7: Here we go again! Our Jan and crew are going back to work in Emanuel's dining room to please our palates each Tuesday and Thursday noon. Today is "Italian-something" on the menu. Something of what? Maybe pasta or zucchini or pizza, or??? We will enjoy, come all who are 55 or older, but first call ahead to Linda at 428-8359, or to Jan in the kitchen at 428-7630 before 10:30 on meal days for your reservation. Then, go to the Center to help an activity get started at 12:30.

Thursday, September 9: August and September birthdays will be celebrated at noon lunch which features a ham dinner. Birthday 'kids' will get their meal at half-price and enjoy cake, song, candles, corsage and each other. Get those reservations in. Bingo will be played following meal.

The September-October Trumpeter is ready for you to pick up either at senior meals or at the Center when open.

Thanks to Del Ludwick for mentioning to me about a presentation being made in memory of his daughter, Beverly. Del and T.V.'s daughter passed away suddenly in January of this year. Beverly and her husband Rod were active in the Michigan Cutting Horse Association and often competed. At the last MCHA competition held in nearby Onsted, Rod (pictured center) presented a trophy in Beverly's memory to the MCHA for the championship. Pictured left to right: Tim Moore, Del, Rod and T.V., and Tom Moore. (The Moores sponsored the cutting horse show.) We appreciate having had the opportunity to share this moment with them.. KK

Tom Moore's daughter competed in the Junior Division. Quarter horses are usually the horses of choice for cutting cattle on the range or in competition. They're bred for their athletic ability, agility and "cow sense"; the rider must stay in the saddle, (which is not easy on a horse moving quick as a cat,) and not interfere with the horse doing his job. —Photos by Kathy Kueffner

Last Chance For Fair Fun and Fireworks

You don't have to wait until next July 4th to enjoy spectacular fireworks!

A full half hour of fireworks show will be held Tuesday evening, September 7, at the Saline Fair. (In case of rain, the show will be held Thursday, September 9).

Lyle Wahl, of Manchester, who is president of the Saline Community Fair Board, said: 'The Saline Fair Board is proud to present many activities for everyone's enjoyment. The fireworks display has been re-established from the 1950's. There's also Motocross Racing where riders will be jumping the 80-foot 'Saline Ravine.'

Wahl added, 'People seem to like the one-price admission which includes unlimited carnival rides.'
That price is only $6 to enjoy the rides and all traditional fair activities, livestock judging and auctions, horse and tractor pulls and grandstand entertainment. There is a charge for the Demolition Derby, on Monday night only before the official opening of the fair, adults $5, children 12 and under $2.

Words of comfort, skillfully administered, are the oldest therapy known to man. -Louis Nizer

There's a Merchant's Tent full of special booths and exciting displays.

Besides rabbit, poultry, swine and lamb judging Tuesday, fair highlights include a local talent show at the track and horse pulling in the arena. The Miss Saline Queen contest is scheduled for 8:00 p.m. at the track with fireworks afterwards.

Wednesday is Children's Day with special treats for the children including a magic show at 2:00. Motocross races will be held at 7:00 p.m.

Draft horses and Haflinger judging will be held on Farmers' Day, Thursday. A classic car show begins at 6:30 p.m. and grandstand entertainment is provided by Eclipse, (country music and oldies).

The theme for Friday is Old Settlers' Day with an antique tractor pull beginning at 8:30 a.m. Ladies Day begins at 1:00 p.m. The Rumbling Thunder Cloggers perform at 7:00 p.m. and the Waco Band entertains at 8:00. Senior citizens are admitted FREE to the Fair on this day.

Matthaei Botanical Gardens Announces Fall Gardener's Sale

The Friends of the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens will kick-off their Fall Gardener's Sale and fundraiser Friday, September 10, 5-7 PM (members pre-sale), Saturday, September 11, and Sunday, September 12, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. with an outstanding selection of quality landscape plant material.

One unusual offering this year will be Comus Kousa var. chinensis (Chinese dogwood) a not yet widely known but highly respected alternative to our native dogwood which is prone to disease and insect problems. The Chinese dogwood produces white flowers in late spring which later in the season become drooping raspberry fruits.

Also available will be the highly touted Stellar series dogwoods in both pink and white flowering forms. Stellar dogwoods are a cross between Comus florida and Cornus kousa and are bred for disease and pest resistance. They have a vigorous sturdy habit, and are very floriferous. These plants are so new that their cold hardiness limits have not been thoroughly tested; they should be planted in a protected site.

Additional choice plants include small white flowering trees such as Styrax obassia (fragrant snowbell); and Styrax japonicum (Japanese snowbell). Fagus sylvatica (European beech) and Morus sp. (contorted mulberry) are ideal for the bonsai artist because of their unique habit and are also attractive as a home landscape plant.

Perennial plants available include hardy chrysanthemums (in flower), hostas, fall flowering clematis, premier German iris cultivars, and unique daylily cultivars including Stella D'Oro. Most of the perennials will be packaged bareroot and priced very reasonably.

An assortment of dormant early spring wildflowers which are better suited to a fall planting will also be offered. Included will be Dutchman's breeches, three types of trillium, jack-in-the-pulpit, blackberry lily and Virginia bluebells.

It should be noted that the selection on some plant quantities is limited so shoppers may want to come early Saturday or Sunday or attend the members pre-sale for first selections.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens sale will be held in the Gardens auditorium. There is no charge and parking is free. The Botanical Gardens is located at 1800 North Dixboro Road. Take US 23 North to Geddes Road to Dixboro Road. Turn left onto Dixboro Road and go approximately 2-1/2 miles north. The Botanical Gardens is located on the right.

Lights on For Kids' Sake"

Consumers Power Company and the Greater Jackson Chamber of Commerce will be promoting the "Lights on For Kids Sake" campaign.
 "Lights on For Kids Sake" is a program that encourages safety for children who walk to and from school. Drivers are encouraged to turn on their vehicle headlights as a reminder to watch for children and school buses.
 Each year hundreds of children are injured, some fatally, as they cross streets to get to or come home from area schools. The "Lights on For Kids Sake" campaign emphasizes the need to be extra cautious when near school bus stops, playgrounds, schools and along routes walked by school children.

 Consumers Power and the Chamber of Commerce encourage others in the community, both public and private sectors, to join the "Lights on For Kids Sake" and to help make this school year safe for children.

Bay Cliff Camp: It's Special

Bay Cliff Health Camp, located just outside of Marquette in Big Bay Michigan, is a very special place. It is like no other summer camp you could ever experience. During this seven week session, children from all over the state of Michigan and surrounding areas come together to go swimming, take nature hikes, create their own art, or have fun with friends among some very hungry mosquitoes and the smell of burnt marshmallows.

One look at their bright eyes and smiles tells one that these children are happy and healthy, but there is one very special and important difference. These kids are handicapped. Aside from the campouts, cookouts, and other fun activities that fill their days, there is also the challenges and achievements going on in physical therapy, occupational therapy, hearing, and speech.

Despite the extent of each individual's capabilities, all have one thing in common: We're all normal human beings with feelings, who wish to be treated with respect and compassion.
 That is why Bay Cliff is so special. It is a learning experience for the staff as well as campers. While the campers are determined to get the bright-colored Legos to fit together, determined to type a sentence on a machine that helps them to communicate more freely and effectively, or just try to get that big electric wheelchair to go in a straight line without bumping into anything, the counselors and staff are breaking down any barriers or prejudgements they may have toward "differently abled" people.

The counselors learn what it's like to problem-solve and never give up hope. Most of all, they learn to laugh, love, and take with them a piece of that unconditional love, determination, and hopeful spirit that is especially present within these kids' smiles and hearts.

There were about 200 children between the ages of three and seventeen that attended the 1993 Bay Cliff Health Camp summer session, as well as over 200 staff members. Each with a special desire to learn and achieve personal goals, as well as make meaningful and long lasting relationships.

I feel that my experiences this summer have taught me a lot, not just how to go about achieving my own goals towards personal independence for the future, but also the importance of friendships, and recognition of others achievements no matter how big or small.

And so ended my first summer at Bay Cliff Health Camp. Not only was it the longest period of time I've spent in the Upper Peninsula, but it was also a very memorable experience.

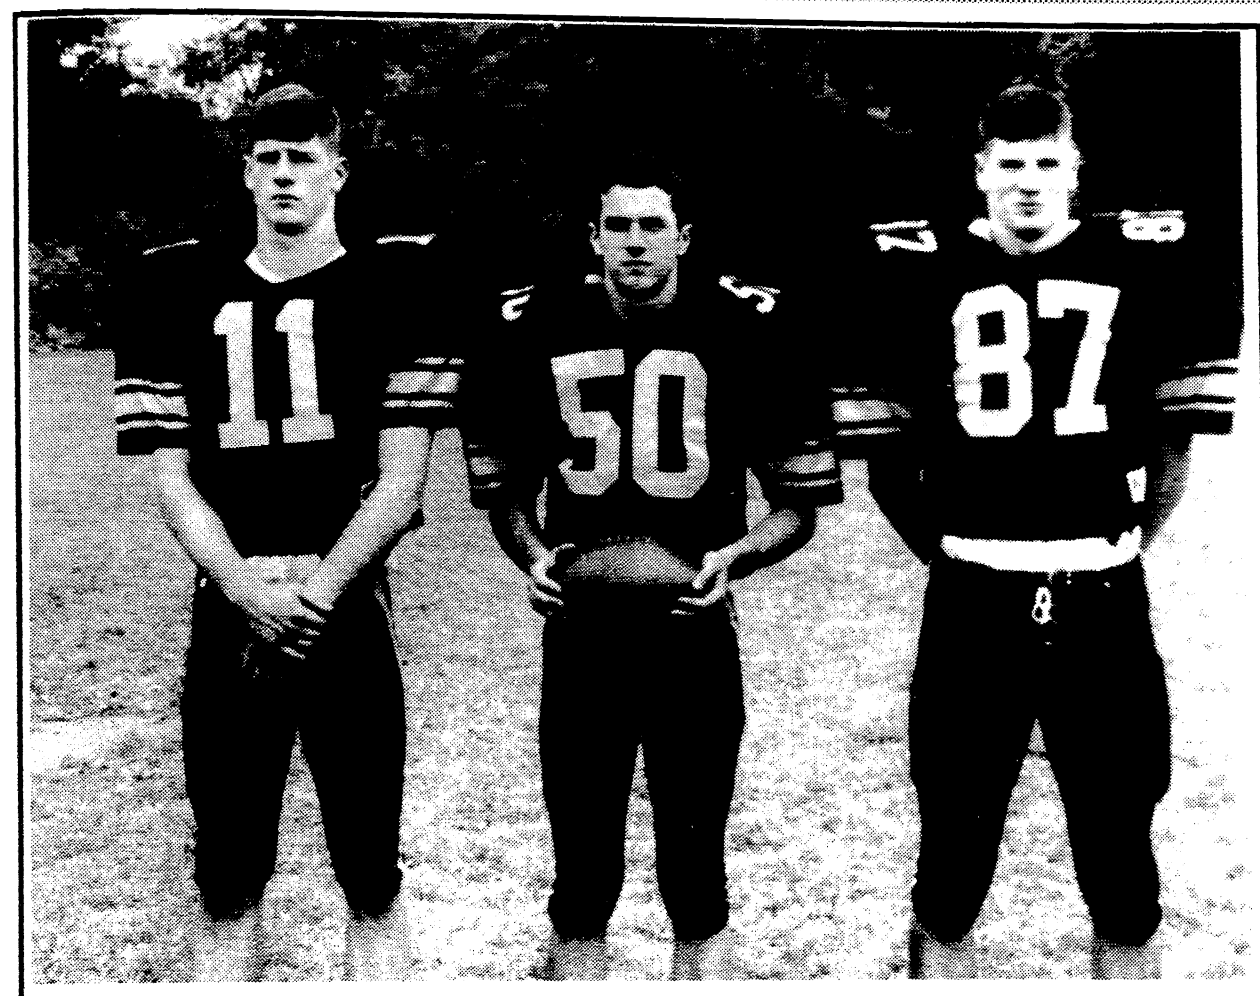

Sneakers. Schoolbooks. Seat Belts.
 Live it up this year.

So far it has all been practice. The Flying Dutchmen have been involved in scrimmage play with five different teams over the past two weeks. They have looked impressive in live play, featuring a swarming defense and a diversified offense.

After the scrimmage Friday, coach Gall had a good feeling as both the offense and the defense executed well. "There were some mistakes and we have some things to work on. We still have some things to learn."

Defensively, it was impressive to see 5-6 men in on almost every tackle. They track the ball well. They even managed to create several fumbles at or behind the line of scrimmage.
 The defense is quick. Only two TD's were scored by the four opponents combined, each team having 20 minutes to try and crack our line.

Last Friday the offense was led by three different quarterbacks, each taking a number of snaps. Many tight ends and wide receivers gathered in passes all over the field. The running backs showed power, speed and determination. Meanwhile, the men in the trenches created holes and, for the most part, held off on-rushing defenders.

Manchester has been successful in scoring more than any team they have faced so far. But then - it has all been practice! The real season begins this Friday against perennially tough Clinton.

Jon Hardenbergh, sports editor for The Manchester Enterprise for many years, has announced his retirement due to an impending move out of state later this year. We will say "so long for now" in a future issue of The Enterprise. If there is something any of our readers would like to contribute, for instance a special anecdote or photo, please let us know as soon as possible.

MMA Education Reform Action Plan (continued from last week) Recommendation #2: Building In Accountability

One of the most critical issues in the education reform debate is building accountability into the educational system. As taxpayers, business wants to know that the money that is spent on education is being spent wisely, and that students receive a quality education that will prepare them with the skills necessary to compete in today's global marketplace.

In addition, employers need to know what a potential employee can bring to the job—what level of proficiency he or she has with regard to critical skill areas. Industry has identified these areas, termed as "employability skills," and is looking for an accurate assessment of a candidate's attainment of these skills.

MMA feels that there are several current initiatives, that taken together, will make the education system accept responsibility for ensuring that successful high school graduates have proven that they have met the high standards that industry requires before they are given a diploma that certifies that they are ready for the world of work.

1. Education Warranty: A high school diploma should be earned and should serve as proof of proficiency for it to be of value to the employer community, and the public school system must establish an effective assessment system so it can accurately determine if the standards of the endorsed diploma are met before it is awarded.

The Education Warranty would serve as the guarantee that if a student who is said to have mastered the required skills and has been awarded a diploma as proof, is found to be deficient in one or more skill area, the school must provide the education necessary to eliminate this deficiency—at the school's cost.

Taking on the responsibility to correct assessment errors will force the education system to be more accurate in their assessment of students and will make the diploma a much more reliable indication of educational success than is currently the case.

2. Student Portfolios: Grades should not be the only measure of a student's performance throughout their K-12 years. They should be provided with an opportunity to showcase their accomplishments, experiences and special talents.

The Student Portfolio requirement of PA 25 will provide students with this opportunity, and should be fully utilized. Businesses need to be informed of the value of the portfolio in assessing a potential employee more fully than is possible by merely looking at high school transcripts, a high school diploma, or a resume.

4. Mandated Continuing Education: Teachers should be required to take continuing education courses in both their content area and methods of delivery to maintain their teaching license. These courses should focus on their area of specialty so they can stay abreast of changes and keep on top of new developments.

Teachers who are innovative and effective in the classroom, who under the current system might be ignored, would instead, rightly be rewarded through self-improvement grants and merit raises.

Teachers who are no longer competent to teach, who are currently being protected under the tenure system regardless of the deleterious effect of their incompetence on students, would no longer be able to teach in the classroom. A harsh, but necessary departure from the existing status if we are to achieve "excellence" in our K-12 system.

Together, a high school diploma that is guaranteed by the school from which it is received, and the full utilization of the student portfolio, can provide the proof of proficiency the employer community needs to employ students who will be successful in their career endeavors and contribute to the success of the company, and therefore, their own success in their careers.

Elimination of the current tenure system that does not encourage competence will help ensure student success before they get to that first interview.

Because the probability of being injured in a motor-vehicle crash during a 75-year lifetime is higher than 86%. Because more than $750 million is spent each year in Michigan on medical costs due to non-use of safety belts.

State to Reduce Manchester School Districts funding by $225,000

— Emory Garlick

School Board Secretary Paul Kluwe informed the Enterprise that the State of Michigan has revealed a $225,000 reduction of State formula funding for the 93/94 school year.

Manchester Schools has a fund equity built into their 93/94 budget of approximately $500,000. The fund equity is unappropriated reserves. The reduction of State funding will cut this reserve account in half.

Charles "Chuck" Cornell Retires

— Emory Garlick

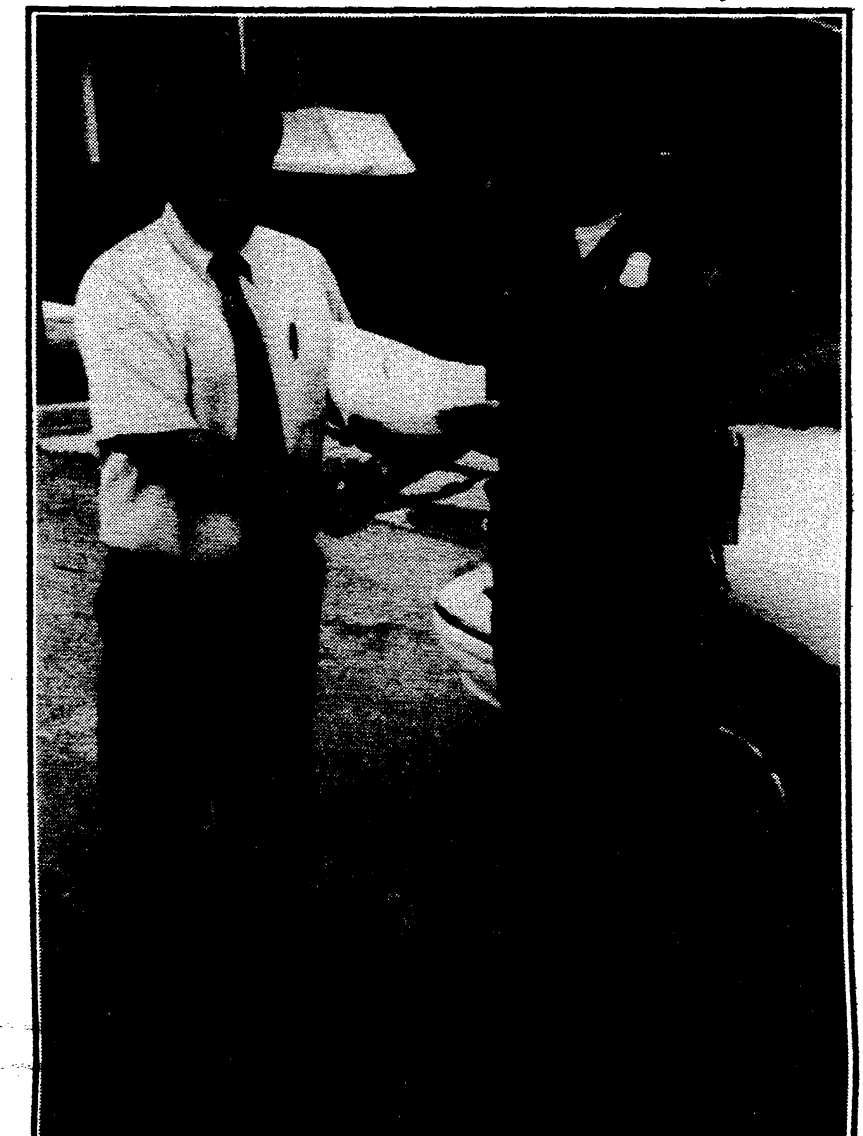

Chuck Cornell has decided to retire. After 23-plus years with the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department Chuck is hanging it up.

Whenever something was happening on the local scene his insight was invaluable in sorting out the details. Many of our more rambunctious lads came under Chuck's wing and with his guidance their lives were sorted out.

One of the unnamed lads related: "Chuck gave me hell. I was rowdy and undisciplined. Got drunk too often and wrecked several vehicles. I almost lost my family until Chuck came down on me. My driver's license was revoked and I was promised jail time if I didn't straighten out. Chuck went to bat for me. The probation officer said if Chuck would keep his eye on me, he would give me one more chance. I hate to see Chuck retire, he has helped a lot of us kids".

With that kind of tribute we are truly loosing a valuable asset to the community.

Good luck, Chuck, and thanks for a job well done!

Village Manager Jeff Wallace presents Officer Cornell with a certificate of appreciation.

Boy Scouts Honored

— Bill Kwolek

John Hugel, right, awards the rank of Life Scout to Senior Patrol Leader Dave Sweeton. The presentation also recognized Dave's mother, Mary Lou, for her contribution to her son's advancement.

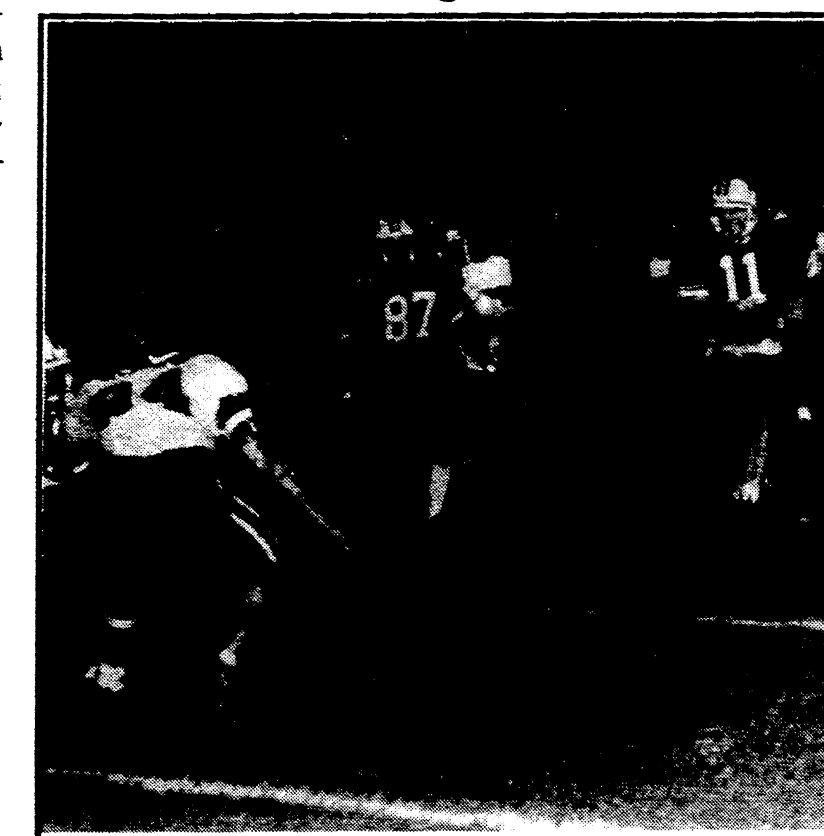

The scouts, parents and supporters of Troop 426 held their end of summer Court of Honor on the 17th of August at Emanuel Church. This year, Andrew Schook planned the occasion as a project to earn the Communications merit badge.

The ceremony started with the Color Guard leading those present in a recitation of the Pledge, Scout Oath and Law. Eloise Kemner awarded merit badges to Scott Burby for Fishing; Pat Chapin for Safety; Jason Campbell for Rifle Shooting; Will Roberts for Emergency Preparedness; Willy Slocum for Fishing; Ted Roberts for Metalworking and Emergency Preparedness; Andrew Schook for Leatherwork, Wood Carving, and Pioneering; and Dave Sweeton for Fish & Wildlife Management, Soil Conservation, and Mammal Study.
