and current scoutmaster Dave Roberts. Front Row: Ted Roberts, Willy Slocum and Andrew Roberts, represent the Boy Scouting Program in Manchester.

Each year in mid-January, the Manchester Optimist Club honors the Boy Scout and Girl Scout programs in our area. This season, the Boy Scouts provided the color guard and the Girl Scouts brought the featured speaker Ms. Sonya Jackson. Sonya is the Membership Marketing Executive from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. She presented a program describing the exciting opportunities offered to older teens in Girl Scouts. Sonya had personally enjoyed some of these opportunities by travelling across Europe in 1983. She is a graduate from time membership in Girl Scouting. The fast paced, highly stylized videotape segment was produced by a senior girl scout. It was convincing testimony to the variety and scope of personal expression available to teens.

I also had the pleasure of dining with the leaders and scouts of Troop 426. Ron Schook explained how the troop is growing steadily and has matured in the past several years. Scouts now range from 11 to 16yrs. This age spread enables the older patrol leaders to mentor the younger boys. This encoursoon to purchase a new camping trailer with funds largely earned through the sale of first aid kits.

The Optimists will continue to express support and appreciation to the adult scout leaders in Manchester. Scouting represents the best America has to offer its youth. It is an opportunity for adventure, achievement and service. Support our local programs by enrolling your child soon. Call Lucile Bruner at 428-8605 and Dave Roberts at 428-8104.

Parent Meeting to be held

A parenting workshop will be held on Wednesday, February 8th from 7:00-8:30 in the Klager gym for all parents grades K-8.

The program, which is sponsored in concjunction with the D.A.R.E. program, will be presented by Deputy Jon Scicluna, the D.A.R.E. instructor for Manchester Community Schools.

"This is an interactive workshop," comments Scicluna, "which presents information which supplements and supports the principles students learn in the D.A.R.E. program." All parents in the community are invited to participate in the Workshop.

Scicluna notes that the three components of the D.A.R.E. program are Police, Students, and Parents working together. "This workshiop will provide the third vital part of the triad for the program."

For further information, you may call Klager School at 428-8321. -MJC

Second Front Page: Milk Cap Mania

POG Craze Hits Manchester!

POGS have come to Manchester! No, it's not hogs, bogs or frogs - it's POGS - also known as Milk Caps. "Pogs" is the hottest new game and collector item for kids-no matter how old those kids might be!

POGS surfaced in Hawaii about two years ago. Actually, this is their second incarnation; the first time the game originated was during the depression. Caps from milk bottles were collected and used in a game that is a cross between marbles and tiddly winks. As in marbles, he (or she) who takes home the most POGS, wins.

An elementary school teacher in Hawaii discovered her old collection of paper-board milk caps, and showed them to her students. Teaching them a game she had played as a child, the kids went crazy over them and wanted some of their own. She went to a milk bottling company and asked them for extra caps. Voila! Now you know "the rest of the story". A marketing genius takes over, and POGS are born.

The craze hit hot and heavy in Hawaii and although it has taken some time to sweep across the U.S., everywhere it reaches the excitement builds with it. New caps are being produced all the time, but this Christmas it was reported that POGS were one of the "hot" toys it was impossible to get for your kids. Mostly, this was because large chains like Toys R Us did not carry them, and people didn't know where to find them.

POGS are not underground, and no shortage of "Pogs" exists, we are happy to report. On the contrary, they are available in mass quantities here in Manchester at Calamity Jane's. Not all "Pogs" are POGS, we must admit - the originals are trademarked and "milk caps" or simply, "caps" are the generic name for these items. Some actually have pull tabs on them as the milk bottle caps of old used to.

Many milk caps come in collector series - much like sports cards, they are numbered and come packaged. There are thousands of others which are more generic with symbols and designs on them. Many are symbolic - the "8" ball is a popular recurring theme, as are the ancient "yin and yang", animals and many, many more. All are as hot and collectible as anything else these days.

OK, so exactly how does one play with these POGS, or caps, when one isn't collecting them? Well, the ways to play are perhaps limited only by the imaginations of the kids who play with them. The basic instructions received with a starter kit suggest you stack up the pogs, all facing the same way (face down is the preferred way at our house.) Using a "slammer", which is a metal or lucite cap, you see how many caps you can flip over. Those you flip over you get to keep, and the remainder are re-stacked for the next player to take a turn. Any number of players can play, and all ages can enjoy the game and/or the collecting aspect, making it an ideal family pastime.

As any other self-respecting collectible, the milk caps come with their own array of accessories and other assorted trivia. All are, or soon will be, available at Calamity Jane's. One can get started very modestly for $5 or less, and then build a collection by skill, by trading or just by luck! But, if POG-mania has reached a frenzy at your house, you may plan to expect to spend a few extra bucks on containers (ever larger to accommodate those growing collections), pog mats, collector books with sleeves (much like those designed for sports cards), newer and better slammers, and, of course, more new caps!

It's an exciting game which can be enjoyed by the entire family. Inexpensive, fun, interactive, educational and non-violent - what more could you ask? We've even heard an occupational therapist say they are great for developing those fine motor coordination skills. Everywhere they go, these milk caps make more friends. They are on their way to fame!

You, too, can get in on this rage by stopping in at Calamity Jane's and see what is causing all the ruckus across the U.S. Prices start at just 25¢, so stop by, and LETTHE GAMES BEGIN!

Out of the Pen

- by garlene

It's My Year!

The year 4693 on the Chinese calendar, which began on January 31, is the Year of the Pig.

Now, being as red-blooded an American as the next pig on the block, garlene is always ready for any excuse for a party. The Chinese New Year seems like an excellent excuse this year, since it is specifically honoring garlene and her fellow swine.

Tradition has it that those born under the sign of the pig are extremely loyal; they are kind to their loved ones; they have quick tempers, yet they hate arguments and quarreling. Those born in the year of the pig live in the moment while planning for the future.

garlene doesn't know if these traits describe her, exactly, since she herself did not have the good fortune to be born under her own sign. Although she would hope that others would describe her as kindly. They sound like pretty nice qualities to have and proves that pigs are pretty nice people.

But, as she noted above, garlene is always ready for a reason to party. In fact, she is currently recovering from a weekend of parties celebrating an elementary school dance, a birthday, and then a Super Bowl.

The latter has become a tradition for the garlene family & friends, although no one has ever really watched a football game all season (unless the Flying Dutchpigs were playing). But amazingly, everyone becomes interested enough in the outcome of the same to be yelling and cheering on their randomly chosen teams - which somehow has become the underdog.

After pigging out on the enormous array of food presented, the easiest thing for a pig to do is waddle back to the couch and watch an interminable football game, is garlene's observation. And while one sits there, it is possible to watch uncounted million-dollar commercials for beer, soft drinks, cars, tires, fitness equipment (yeah, right!) and (gulp!) PORK.

EEEEEWWWWW!

Unfortunately, there is no football game presented on January 31 for Chinese New Year celebrations. Which is too bad, as garlene has noted that all the food writers in the journalistic universe have created Chinese recipes to assist in celebrating the Year of the Pig. And garlene squeals once again in dismay to learn that many of those recipes include (gulp!) PORK.

Parties and food - a common, yet vicious cycle. We are always encouraged to weigh as little as possible to be attractive to those around us. Does this mean that to be healthy and desirable, we must have no fun?

garlene fights the battle of the bulge just as hard as the next pig-but sometimes it seems like a losing battle. Before we know it, there will be yet another occasion for a party - Valentine's Day, Mardi Gras, St. Patrick's Day- and garlene and her fellow pigs will once again feel guilty.

Oh well - it IS the year of the Pig. I guess we can, indeed Pig Out. Enjoy - just stay away from that PORK.

EEEEEWWWWW!

Little Jimmy was frightened by the storm. But his mother said, "Don't worry, son. The wind brings the clouds so it can rain, and it rains so everything can grow. That's God working."

'But, mom,'' he asked, "when's God gonna quit work?"

No one is without storms. And the storms of sorrow, like those of the sea, enhance the faculties, the fortitude and the faith of the pilgrim.

A smooth sea never made a good sailor, and a life without rain makes a desert.

The grass is greener after a rain, and the sailor is braver after a storm. How are you?

MARIAN A. DAMMON SCHOLARSHIP MEETING

Howard E. Parr

A very small group gathered at the Blacksmith Shop on Thursday, January 26th to review progress with establishment of the Marian A. Dammon Scholarship at MSU. It now appears certain that the original scholarship committee has turned over to MSU administration of this project. This should assure continuity and efficient management of the funds donated. Over $5,000 has been received to date. The ultimate toal is to attain $20,000 which will assure endowment to make the scholarship operate indefinitely.

The first scholarship is scheduled to be awarded at a special ceremony in April to which Miss Dammon has been invited. Donors will be invited to this ceremony as well as an afternoon reception planned in her honor. A $1,000 scholarship will be awarded to an upperclassman majoring in English with a vocational objective to teach in public high schools. Full criteria for the scholarship have been worked out by the Committee, Katherine Brown at MSU with suggestions from Miss Dammon.

This appears to be a well thought out project now and is worthy of support by Miss Dammon's friends here. Those still wishing to join in this effort should direct their donations to:

Marian A. Dammon Scholarship Fund c/o Katherine S. Brown College of Education, Erickson Hall Michigan State University East Lansing, Michigan 48824-1034

Please, Tell

How about the Corn Bread Man? The WHAT? (Answer will be found later in this story - stay tuned!)

Last week The Enterprise reported the "Color Me READ" week activities which were kicked off by an assembly featuring Mr. LaRon Williams, a storyteller.

The week was designed to encourage kids to read, and particularly literature which has been recognized for its contribution to art. Books which have received Caldecott honors (for outstanding illustrations) were featured.

But another art the students were treated to last week was the very special art of story-telling. Now most parents, over the years, have told stories to their children; and those children have passed along some of the same tales to their own offspring as they grew up. These may be fairy tales, like "Goldilocks" or "Red Riding Hood", or they may be family stories like "The Tale of the Johnny Reb Cannon".

These stories and the times that are shared by families as stories are told, are a special tradition in many families and many cultures.

Mr. LaRon Williams shared not his only stories, like the Corn Bread Man, but equally as important, he shared the traditions of a culture very different from that which is known by the children of Manchester.

Each day last week, Mr. Williams spent time with each class at Klager, telling stories and sharing his own unique African-American culture. I was privileged to watch him as he shared these stories and traditions with Mrs. Pat Coelius' first grade. "Thirtysomething" years older than these little ones, I was equally as entranced by his tales and his amazing ability to relate a variety of concepts to these kids.

On Monday, the entire school had learned a routine with Mr. Williams and his African drum. The kids loved doing this and begged for more during their classroom workshops.

He also showed them many other instruments devised by Africans during their early days in America. He explained that most Africans had originally come as captives and did not bring their drums and other instruments with them. As music was an important part of their culture, they made up new ways of making familiar sounds - and he asked the students to think of ways to make a drumming sound without a drum. Demonstrating the variety of sounds that could be made by clapping, slapping your body, or stomping your feet, he showed how the African Americans had developed new traditions here. Playing "the bones" or a "thumb piano" and other percussion instruments reminded them of the old traditions they had left behind.

The students then played games with music, learned songs, and in fact learned a great deal more from Mr. Williams without realizing it. And soon these activities led into a story - The Tale of the Com Bread Man.

I'm sure you have all heard the story of The Gingerbread Man. Maybe you have even told it to your own children. But when Mr. Williams was 6 or 7 years old and his teacher said, "Class, I'm going to tell you the story of the Gingerbread Man, he had no idea of what GINGERBREAD could be. But Com bread? He ate that every day! He told us his story of the Com Bread Man (with much audience participation) which made the better part of a half-hour fly by as if it were just a couple of minutes.

Mr. Williams began his career in early childhood education and it was there he discovered his true talent for storytelling. Now living in Ann Arbor, he travels throughout Michigan delivering workshops and assemblies to schools and educational groups. Klager School Kids were very fortunate to be able to have him with them for an entire week. Thanks to the Klager PTO, and to Cyndi Nye whose hard work resulted in sponsoring grants from Washtenaw Council for the Arts and Michigan Council for Arts & Cultural Affairs, the entire week was a resounding

Some of Mrs. Coelius' students who wrote thank you notes to Mr. Williams recalled their favorite parts of the workshops: "I like the songs, stories and different instruments," said Miles. "I like when you played the drum," said Joshua. "I love your stories," said Emily M. "I like your stories and instruments and you were great," said

Martin. "I like when you say I go and we say I may," said Samantha. "I like the thumb piano," said Ben. And "I like the story Corn Bread Man," said Alexandra. Elizabeth probably summed it up best when she said, "Mr. Williams,

I love you!"

Klager Kids wound up their very busy week on Friday afternoon with a storyteller of different kind. Mr. Phil Potter, from Mobile Ed Productions of Redford, held an assembly on chemistry with many "explosive demonstrations

The river water is icing up again, now there is talk that we will get another 'heat wave' of 40 degrees. This yo-yoing up and down must be most frustrating for ice fishermen. We saw one ice shanty with just the roof showing at a nearby lake and I wonder how they retrieve it for further use. So many things I don't know and as I grow older, have decided I don't 'know' as much as I used to think I did. Maybe you just get more honest with time, suppose?

While talking with our cook, Jan Barbour, pearls of wisdom came forth. "While some gals speak of PMS, I have UMS and other assorted MS's, depending on my condition and outside forces." No, I couldn't guess what that malady was, either, although I can remember the first MS with no difficulty. Jan's is Ultra Mood Swings and they are brought on by snow and bad roads primarily. "You don't go into the ditch when it is only grey skies you have to contend with".

But, then the rains come and the potholes appear, Jan. You just cannot win sometimes, can you? We all want to watch you in action with UMS when all we've seen is your very jolly self—are you sure you have that condition?

Thursday, February 2: We are enjoying exercise class which begins at 10:30 for an hour. All this twisting and turning is held at the Senior Center. On to Emanuel's dining room for a special February treat honoring all 55 or older area seniors who celebrate their birthday this month. Guess what we'll eat to go with cake, candles, corsages, song and special tables and half-priced meal for birthday folks? Sauerkraut, that's what! That will bring our 'Dutchmen' out and be sure to call reservations in early to Linda at 428-8359, or Jan, before 10:30 at 428-7630. It all begins at noon and it would be nice if the birthday folks get there a little early for picture taking (some come late and are not pictured in the paper). Birthday folks and all are invited to the Center for bingo at 12:30.

Monday, February 6: Bus pickup for shopping at Tecumseh starts at 9 AM. First, call Erma Alber at 4288707 for your spot on the bus, if you haven't signed up at senior meals.

Tuesday, February 7: Here comes the very tasty macaroni & cheese for senior lunch, lovingly prepared by Jan, Margaret Gillow and Matt. Can't imagine fixing mac & cheese for well over one hundred people, but isn't it nice to see new faces at our meals? Welcome. Then, to the Center for activities that involve helping others with their talents of sewing, etc.

Thursday, February 9: To the Center for exercise class at 10:30 which gets our tired blood flowing. Beef stew will be served to all the eager eaters. It warms our souls. Bingo follows at the Center.

Looking ahead to the Saline Senior Citizens lunch on Monday, February 13. If you wish to go along, reservations need to be in by Thursday, February 9, so Rubena can call them for the count. Call Erma by that date to go along and enjoy.

Any 90 or older folks out there celebrating birth-days? Please call me at 428-7434.

Summer Institute Programs for High School Sophomores & Juniors

Michigan's Summer Institutes offer a unique learning experience for high school sophomores and juniors. It is a chance for students to explore contemporary thinking, technology and technique. It is a link to some of Michigan's best artists, researchers, business and industry experts, and to use state of the art equipment, labs and facilities.

There are two types of Summer Institutes. The two-week programs focus on the arts and sciences where each student selects a main intensive course for the entire two weeks and chooses from a sampler of exploratories and interdisciplinary activities. A sample of only some of the topics covered by the Summer Institutes include: Creative writing, Engineering, Dance, Ecology, Criminal Justice, Music Theater, Psychology, Chemistry, Robotics, Video

Yearbook Adviser Honored for Commitment

On Wednesday, January 25, June Weiland was honored for her commitment as a yearbook adviser at Manchester High School. This is her fourth year as Visage adviser.

Taylor Publishing Company set side this day to honor advisers nationwide for their contributions to the yearbook tradition.

"Each publication is made possible by the adviser's dedication to the staff members and to the project as a whole," said Alan Heath, vice president of marketing for Taylor. "The project is farreaching so that the adviser must consider a large budget, every person in the school and the quality and accuracy of journalism in the book. We know it's a challenging job and would like to thank all who take part in these special publications."

Taylor is a leading publisher of yearbooks for high schools, middle schools and colleges. Headquartered in Dallas, the company specializes in the technology to help make the staff members' and advisers' jobs rewarding.

Snow Sculptures at Klager School

Fourth grader Dara Jose puts a colorful finish on her dragon, while Val Kanta works on her project

The Self Esteem Committee at Klager School is in charge of coming up with one great activity a month for Klager Kids to participate in. They brainstormed and came up with a great idea - snow sculpturing! And yes, last week it turned out to be a truly great idea.

If one had picked a day especially for creating snow sculptures, it would have been last Thursday. Plenty of clean white snow; a sunny day with temperatures "not too hot and not too cold"; and lots of enthusiastic Klager Kids. Combine all these elements and you have a perfect day for this activity.

Wandering across the playground it was interesting to see who was creating what sort of sculptures. Definitely, the third and fourth graders had the advantage in this arena. Their advanced artistic knowledge and the ideas they created turned out some truly incredible snow sculptures including stegosaurus, mummies, sharks, animals and castles.

Volcanoes were also popular, especially once Mr. K's class brought out the food coloring! The first and second graders also had some great sculptures.

It was obvious the teachers and adult staff members were having an equally good time as the students! Mrs. Kay Miller and her stegosaurus provided entertainment for her third grade class.

Hot cocoa served by room parents topped off the day and warmed everyone up.

Manchester Wrestling

On Wednesday we traveled to Vandercook Lake to face a young Jayhawk team. As the final score could tell, we coasted to an easy 46-9 victory. The majority of our wins were by pins as Steve Spurr, Bryan Duvall, Dustin Williams and Ed Cruz all collected pins, and Jay Eiss won on points. I was hoping that this wouldn't affect our concentration for Saturday, where we would be facing our toughest competition of the year at Leslie.

During the seeding meeting on Saturday, I couldn't recall the last time our competition was this tough in every weight class. Charlotte, who is currently ranked fifth in the state in Class A, was definitely the toughest team there; while Hudson and Leslie, ranked second and fifth respectively in Class C, were also fighting for the top spot.

We only brought eight wrestlers with us and we knew what we had to do. We faced some kids we would face again in districts, and needed big wins for future seeding purposes.

We had two champions on the day, as Steve Spurr won it at 126, advancing his team high record of 26-1. Bryan Duvall did a good job in the finals, beating Charlotte's big stud by the score of 5-2 and running his season record to 23-5. Jay placed third, while avenging a loss he suffered last week against Justin Burch of Napoleon by the score of 9-3 proving that he just had an off week last week. His record now stands at 22-3.

Our big surprise of the day came from Ed Cruz as he was seeded sixth. He came through the brackets by pinning the third and fourth seeded kids, the last being in the consolation finals, raising his record to 18-14 on the year.

Ryan Eiss definitely had the toughest class at the tournament, with two state Placers and two other state Qualifiers in his class. His only loss came to the eventual champion by a score of 4-3 in a tough match, while he won an exciting match for fifth place by the score of 5-4, running his season record to 19-5.

Next week we face an up and coming East Jackson team who will give us all we want on Wednesday. On Saturday we face the bigger schools at the Chelsea Quad where wrestling will start at 10:00. Also next week, on the 8th of February, we will have our last home meet of the season. It's also Parents' Night; hope you can make it out to see the kids, if you haven't been able to catch them in action.

THANK YOU

Thank you to all who sent cards, flowers and all your prayers during my stays in the hospital. Special Thanks to those who brought food in after I came home. And thanks also to Rev. Carroll for his visits and prayers.

Very Special Thanks to my family for their loving care.

Lorraine Mahrle

A Special Thank You to all friends, neighbors and clients who sent cards, fruit baskets, calls and visits during my hospital stays and since my return home. A very special thanks goes to Dave Rowe and Keith DeZwaan, Farm Bureau Agents who assisted in some of the day to day business of my office. Of course I have to say Thank You to my lovely wife Ann who took over running the office and taking car of me, her daily hospital visits and family responsibilities, I don't know what I would have done without her.

Life - The Boulder

I know this may sound silly, but you know, if you stop and think about it for a minute, life can seem an awful lot like a boulder.

A boulder is, first of all, hard. As everyone knows, life too is hard. The obstacles, the decisions, the choices yes; life can be very hard.

What about the shape of a boulder? No boulder is shaped like another, and no boulder is perfectly round. Not even with twins do you even come close to having two lives be even remotely similar. Life is not set up perfectly, with nothing but smooth sailing. There are difficulties and choices which must be confronted.

And then there is the issue of weight. Compared to all of the rock on Earth, one boulder hardly seems to matter, but up close a boulder is very large and heavy. One life compared to all of the other lives on this planet doesn't seem like much, but a single life when viewed from close up is indeed important and carries a lot of weight.

A boulder at first appears unmovable and insurmountable. This is just how life appears to many - insurmountable. Both when people work together the puzzle pieces of life seem to start falling in to place. That boulder can be moved when people work together and think.

A boulder just sits there, right? Not once it gets moving. No, then it becomes practically unstoppable. Life, it seems, sometimes looks as though it is taking you nowhere - but once your life gets rolling, it just keeps going until the next challenge comes along.

So next time you see a boulder, stop and think about your life, and reflect upon it awhile.

Now, go out there and enjoy your boulder - er, I mean

Pack 421

February is the anniversary month of Boy Scouts of America. Boy Scouting was founded in 1910 and Cub Scouting began in 1930. Cub Scouting has been in Manchester for 45 years. To celebrate, Scout Week will be February 5th through 11th. Watch for posters and displays in our local stores. Watch for your local Cub Scouts. They will be wearing their uniforms to church on February 5th, Scout Sunday, and to school on February 8th, Scouting Anniversary Day.

Cub Scouting remains an excellent opportunity for young boys to have fun and earn awards while they learn about citizenship, community service, safety, conservation, and much more. The pack will be having a Bowlathon on February 18th to support our monthly activities. The anniversary month will close with the Blue and Gold Banquet on February 23rd.

We hope you will take the opportunity to learn more about Cub Scouting in your community by looking at our posters and displays.

Emanuel Fellowship Group To Host Dance

WHAT IS A SOUARE AND CONTRA DANCE?

The Emanuel Fellowship Group will be sponsoring a Square and Contra Dance on Friday, February 17th, from 8 - 11 PM in the Emanuel UCC Gym.

Featured entertainment are Manchester's own Raisin Pickers. The cost will be $3.00 per person, and everyone is welcomed. Refreshment will be available, of course!

Typically, at a social dance such as this, the dancing begins with some simple circle dances, called "mixers." These are usually easy enough for the youngest folks to master, and they allow people the chance to meet each other early in the evening and say hello.

Square dances are done in a square formation with four couples in each square. Calls like do-si-do, allemande-left, promenade and righthand-star may sound familiar to many people. Because there is a good deal of partner-swapping, folks meet and share the fun with each other.

Contra dances are done in long lines, sometimes with women on one side facing the men on the other side. Couples stay together throughout the dance and "progress" up the line by first dancing with the couple next to them and then passing them by to meet another couple. Many of the movements used are the same as in a square dance.

Beginning dancers, take heart: the dance caller "walks" the dancers through each of the steps slowly, before the music begins, giving new folks plenty of help as needed. After one or two times through the sequence, the music begins and the caller "coaches" during the dance. Even the least experienced dancers can catch on easily with the help of their more experienced friends.

After the dancers have had enough of being told what to do, the caller may take a break from all that directing and let folks free-style it to a relaxing waltz. Few square dance bands offer the variety of musical styles that the Raisin Pickers play. Expect to hear a little bit of everything from this versatile group - a tango, some swing, an up-tempo clogging tune, and don't forget the polka!

The Raisin Pickers take their name from the beautiful river that flows through the village of Manchester, where all five band members live: Bill Farmer on dobro, guitar and percussion, Mike Gleason on fiddle, tuba and accordion, Carol Palms on string bass, fiddle and washboard, Mark Palms on fiddle, guitar, harmonica and clawhammer banjo, and Gary Reynolds on five-string banjo, pennywhistle, trumpet and guitar. And if there's a piano in the place, one of them will likely play that, too.

Come hear why the Raisin Pickers' music is becoming so popular at area dances and on concert stages across Michigan. Some of their favorite tunes can be heard on their new recording "Palm Trees," available on both CD and Cassette.

The American Legion Auxiliary will meet at the Legion Home on Wednesday, February 8, 1995 at 7:30 PM.
