A New Generation Provides A Weekend's Entertainment

in order to win control over her own destiny.

Meanwhile, back in Sherwood Forest, the play finds several young princes ready to make their match. Although many of them realize they are not prime candidates to win the Lady Robin's hand, they nevertheless hope to win the hand of some fair maiden!

Princes Harold and Gerald, played by Peter Schulte and Justin Turk, were the Smothers Brothers of Sherwood Forest, constantly finding a

Robin Hood - The Next Generation presented by the MHS Players, provided Manchester drama lovers with an evening of delightful entertainment on both Friday and Saturday night.

As introduced by King Albert and Queen Anne, played by Joe Tobias and Jessica Weber, the tale begins in - where else? - Sherwood Forest. Although little is really known about whether Robin Hood was a fabled character or a real person, playwright Shirley McNichol created this story under the assumption that twenty years have passed since Robin (also played by Joe Tobias) and his Lady Marian (Alyssa Chartrand) were wed. Their daughter and heir, Lady Robin, is set to become the new Queen - but only if she is married to a man of suitable (royal) lineage.

Young Lady Robin is of a modern mindset, and refuses to be told whom she may marry, even by the Queen - much to her parents' dismay. However, having flouted convention themselves, they find themselves unable to do much but hope for the best. Lady Robin finally agrees to be awarded to one who proves to be the best at swords and archery. Thus begins an increasingly tangled tale of mistaken identity, as Robin determines to disguise herself joke in every situation, before hooking up with sisters Katherine and Elsbeth (Rebekah Jackowski & Alexis Panches). Prince Rodney the Regrettable, (Sean Clifford) although hoping to no avail to avoid any mishaps, also finds a lovely (and lucky!) young lady named Rosamonde (Jennette Branch).

Lady Vendola (Erika Panches), however, has plans of her own. Scheming to get her inept son Lord Horvath (Dan Riesterer) upon the throne, she and the sorceress Capers (played by Keenan Shurtliff) develop a plan to further incapacitate the competition while giving

Klager KIDS and Parents Winners

In an Unprecedented School Board Action, half time Art Teacher to be added to Klager Staff

As one parent stated: "I have been trying to get the Administration to hire an art teacher for Klager for the past FIVE years. Even though my child is a seventh grader and it is too late for him, maybe some other kids can benefit."

As a Board member stated after taking off his "Official Hat", "We have been studying this for the past eight years and it is time to do something."

Karen Hinkley presented the Board with the need for an art program for Klager students. The group of parents at the board meeting were very convincing and the Board of Education unanimously approved the hiring of a half-time art teacher for the second semester of the current school year. The Superintendent was directed to post the need and hire a teacher. The program will be developed before the next term starts.

In other action, the board approved the Superintendent's plan for placing cameras on school buses.

Nationally Known Speaker to Visit

Preventing Drug Abuse is Everyone's Concern

Al Dicken, currently the West Bloomfield, Michigan Assistant Principal and Athletic Director, will speak to the Manchester community on November 28, 1995. Dicken is an experienced teacher, coach, health educator, and is one of the pioneers in the Detroit area for the establishment of student-support groups and drug prevention in the public schools and the community.

West Bloomfield is listed as one of the top 60 schools in the nation for its prevention-based approach to drug and alcohol abuse. Al has been featured in People Magazine, The Washington Post, and on television for his creative and highly effective student assistance programs and group facilitation trainings.

Bill Kindt, Manchester Community Schools' social worker for the past nine years, indicates that Dicken's talk with the community will be an informational and inspirational one for everyone involved. "Al is a very dynamic speaker," comments Kindt, "and I know how effective he can be because I participated in a training on leading an insight group led by him five or six years ago."

Mr. Dicken will speak to the Manchester community on November 28 at 7:00 PM in the High School band room. This is part of a community wide effort to raise the awareness within the community of an apparently significant increase in drug use in Manchester, Kindt explains.

Significant and alarming. Our use of alcohol and inhalants is higher than the national average per the February, 1993 survey of students in the Manchester school district. In addition, national statistics show that 16% of kids come from homes with a substance abuse problem, and "I can't see us as being any different in Manchester," claims Kindt.

Dicken's focus will be on discussing the most recent drug and alcohol survey results, how to detect if your child is using drugs, the importance of family rules, networking with other parents, and other prevention ideas. He will replicate interest, as well as provide lots of ideas and practical tips. "Everyone needs to do their own part in this effort," Kindt notes. "Our goal is to educate and alert parents to the signs and symptoms of drug use."

The 1993 survey showed that A & B students were nearly as likely to have tried drugs as other kids, and "I'm more concerned now than I was two years ago," says Kindt. One especially worrisome aspect of the survey was that kids indicated they would feel OK about riding with a driver who had had three to five drinks - or think it's OK to drink and drive themselves.

"Part of it is that more of these kids' 'don't care attitudes' come back to school. These attitudes have affected not only the kids who have a substance abuse problem, but all of the students at school."

There is a lot of frustration being expressed by teachers and staff with discipline problems stemming from these attitudes. Teacher morale is affected and the kids who want to learn are being disrupted by the constant disciplinary efforts of the teachers and staff. In school suspensions are among the solutions being explored by Interim Principal John Korican and new Assistant Principal John Easley to alleviate constant suspensions being seen as a "vacation" from school.

However, a room would be needed for this program and is unavailable at this point. Currently if an in-school suspension is instituted, John Korican's office is used, however, "that is also disruptive to the normal process of education," Kindt notes. Part time staff would also need to be hired to monitor the room during these suspensions. "Chelsea has instituted a similar program and has reduced disciplinary problems dramatically," according to Kindt.

This solution is expensive, but so is the problem.

It is these problems which we face which will be addressed by Al Dicken during his presentation to the community, as well as an after-school presentation to all Manchester school staff. This meeting will be mandatory for all staff members. The focus of his presentation will be drug education, using a team approach to drug prevention, and forming a positive parent-teacher alliance to help students who may be harmfully involved with drugs.

A portion of Dicken's presentation will be a display board of the most commonly abused drugs by today's youth. You may be surprised to find out that common household materials can be among the drugs displayed.

Kindt's optimism for this program is summed up in his concluding statement. "As a community, we haven't been pulling together; as a school staff, we could do more. This will be a stimulus to all of us to do a better job."

Can You Find The Drug Dealer In This Picture?

You live in a nice middle-class neighborhood. You don't see drug dealers on the corner. Your kids are only in grade school. Why worry? Because drug dealers don't necessarily look like the ones on television. In fact, studies show that your kids are more likely to be pushed into using drugs by someone their own age - someone they think is their friend.

So tell your children that anyone who offers them drugs is not a friend. Next, be an informed parent. Call 1-800-624-0100 and ask for a free booklet called Growing Up Drug-Free - A Parent's Guide To Prevention. Then - and this is really important - get to know your kids' friends. And their parents. Because with you in the picture, chances are a drug dealer won't be.

Out & About

- by gar

This is Thanksgiving week and a friend of ours from the Enterprise is headed to Moldova, a part of the former republic of Romania. That trip is to pick up two young orphaned sisters who are separated by a considerable distance in Moldova. What also makes this unique is that the sisters are natives of Poland. The girls are eight and ten years of age, and were separated while in a Moldova orphanage. Apparently the younger girl suffered a great deal of stress from the separation from her sister. The girls have been reunited since the adoption proceedings were initiated and subsequently approved.

Our friend and her husband, we will call them M & P (for Ma & Pa), have had to undergo a great deal of physical, physiological and profile testing before they were approved as potential adoptive parents. Testing of routine things which we never would consider or be subjected to as natural parents. Have you had or have you been exposed to measles, mumps, whooping cough, and all the other childhood diseases? Have you been tested for HIV and other potential or infectious diseases?

In addition to all the testing, it was necessary for them to develop some language skills in both Romanian and Russian, languages used in Moldova, necessary for traveling within the country side and being able to communicate with the girls. M had to acquire a passport, arrange the plane reservations from the USA to Europe, Frankfurt, Germany and then to Moldova, Bucharest and return.

The trip goes well as of this writing. M arrived in Frankfurt and called home at 2:30 AM and departed for Bucharest. Bucharest, called the "Paris of the Eastern bloc Nations," did not support it's claim. The city has no heat or water for most of the day. Electricity and water is available for four hours out of each 24 to the general populace. It is our understanding that M's arriving meal consisted of a can of Dinty Moore Stew, cold and without utensils.

We wish them all the best of luck both on the trip there and back. We hope the girls are well and are conducive to travel. Hopefully things work out for this couple and the two youngsters. The adjustment ahead for all parties and for the inclusion of these two youngsters into our society will not be without challenge. We wish them well.

This should prove to be a real Thanksgiving for M & P and two little girls when they leave their Moldova orphanage. Good Luck and Godspeed home.

IN MY OPINION

For years I have thought that deer hunting was something fun that men (and yes some women) enjoy. Boy was I wrong! This is serious business.

High tech has hit the sport of deer hunting. Now it probably hit awhile ago but I just became aware of it this year. What happens is this; you get all your buddies together and they all have these two way radios (expensive walkie-talkies). Then this army of sportsmen start planning their strategies. It's time to flank, outflank and surround their prey.

For one day out of the year I knew exactly where everyone in the neighborhood was. I knew where they were headed, what they thought was important and when they stopped to take a leak.

On the serious side i would like to say that in all the time I was listening I did not hear one swear word nor did I hear anything rude or obnoxious. Also they were aware of where every person was so as not to shoot in that direction. One person reminded his team that there was a farmer out combining his corn and they were instructed not to shoot in his direction, too.

All in all it was great fun listening to these "great white hunters". I believe they all got a deer, too. I'm not sure though because my husband and my son had the nerve to take their radio and join the forces.

Next year I'd like to leave one of those little radios out in the woods. Maybe the deer can listen in and get a fighting chance . . . then again they may die laughing! But then that's just . . . My Opinion.

The Manchester Enterprise welcomes letters to the Editor, Guest Editorials, and your comments, suggestions and opinions.

We ask that all letters submitted for publication be signed!

Should there be extenuating circumstances for withholding your name, we will give that full consideration.

Dear Editor,

After reading your editorial comment in the November 9th edition, we feel compelled to write a response. We were impressed with the amount of space you used to get in every detail of who attended the meeting. We thought at least he is going to get all the facts in the story whether he agreed with us or not. But it was not to be.

You missed the entire point of our appeal and that is self-defense. Your second paragraph implies that the whole thing started in a matter of a few minutes. This is not true. The "trash talking" that you mention started during third hour and came to nothing. However, the other boy involved in the situation did tell other students after third hour that he was going to fight with our son. No one reported it as this student always talked this way and no one took him seriously. "Trash talking" as labeled by the Superintendent, Mr. Niedzwiecki, was nothing more than "my bike is faster than yours, you can't ride," etc. We would label it "boys being boys". Our son and the young man were in class together during seventh hour, and there was more "trash talking". At the end of the hour which was also the end of the school day our son left to go to his locker. While walking from the classroom to his locker he was followed by the other young man who was trying to get him to fight. Our son continued walking away trying to avoid a fight but the other boy was determined that he wanted to fight. You also forgot to mention that the other boy's locker was in a totally opposite direction and had he gone to his locker there would have been no fight. While walking toward our son's locker the other boy pushed (assaulted) our son who responded by pushing him back and telling him to leave him alone. As our son got near his locker he was again pushed by the other boy nearly knocking him down. At that point our son after regaining his balance turned around and told the other boy to leave him alone and that he did not want to fight. Another student then said something to our son and he turned his head to hear the other student. As he started to turn back to face the young man that he was having the problem with he was struck three times in the face without warning. At that point he made the decision rather than stand there and be punched he was going to protect himself and he began to fight back. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Easley, Asst. Principal, arrived on the scene, and the fight was stopped. Both boys were then taken to the office and within minutes suspended without talking to any of the numerous witnesses. To us that sounds like a "rush to judgment." (All of the facts above were substantiated by witnesses at the board hearing.)

After talking with our son in detail that night, I decided to take him to school the next morning and talk with the Principal and the Assistant Principal, as we were sure that our son had not explained the situation to them clearly the night before, probably because he was mad by then, and that after hearing the full story our son would not be suspended as he was not fighting but merely defending himself. I also wanted to make sure that they did not have other information that my son may have "forgotten" to tell us that might change things. We were still under the impression that "everyone", even students at Manchester High School, have the right to defend themselves against an attack. We could not have been more wrong.

In your third paragraph you seem to be saying that we appealed because the administration did not follow the rules. Even though that is true, we appealed because we felt the punishment was unfair under the circumstances. Don't misunderstand us. We think the no fighting rule is good but it needs to allow for self-defense. Had this been a fight between two boys due to tempers, etc., there would have been no appeal, and our son would have also received additional punishment at home. This is the first time in our lives where we have run into a situation where if you are attacked instead of being able to defend yourself, you can expect to be punished. Isn't that victimizing the victim?

The Board of Education's decision affirmed the suspension but waived it if our son performed 20 hours of community service. One thing you did manage to get right was that I was irate. Not only because the board tripled the suspension (from 6 to 20 hours) for our son but because of their suggestion that he spend two hours a night for two weeks helping the janitors clean the school. Can you imagine the "trash talk" that would lead to for any high school kid? Would not the board then be creating another situation that could lead to another fight?

Do we regret our appeal? NO! ~ We did the right thing under the circumstances just as our son did. We are proud of our son. He did exactly what we have always told him. He tried to avoid the fight but when he was attacked, he had the right to fight back. Would any parent tell their child different? In assault and battery cases juries are instructed by the trial judge that "A person has the right to use force to defend himself under certain circumstances. If a person acts in lawful self-defense/defense of others, his actions are excused and he is not guilty of any crime." They are also further instructed, "The person claiming self-defense must not have acted wrongfully and brought on the assault. However, if the defendant only used words, that does not prevent him from claiming self-defense if he was attacked." Words are not an assault nor are they an excuse for an assault. The administration believes that our son entered the fight by his words. Don't we teach our children to live the law of the land? We would have won this case in a court of law. What message is this administration giving to our children?

We thought in a small community like Manchester our kids would be safe, and we would not have to worry about these things. Our son now has a record and F's in all his classes for that day of suspension. We don't know about anyone else but we sure don't feel good about sending our kids to a school where if someone decides to attack them, they can expect to be punished for being a victim. Punished even if that attack were to put them in the hospital. Gar, there is something much more important at stake here than preserving the integrity of the educational process as you stated, and that is the integrity of the individual and choosing to do right.

A Visit to the Washtenaw Intermediate School District

by EWG

Few of us, outside the educational community, know the function of the Washtenaw Intermediate School District or what services they have to offer.

With that in mind we made a trip to Wagner Road, just north of Scio Church Road, where they are based. Superintendent Michael O. Emlaw met us and conducted a tour of the facilities and provided background.

WISD, according to Emlaw, is your regional educational service agency. "We coordinate and deliver services and programs to improve education in 10 school districts in Washtenaw County. (Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Lincoln, Manchester, Milan, Saline, Whitmore Lake, Willow Run and Ypsilanti.) We offer training for teachers, bus drivers, secretaries, administrators, board members, other school staff and parents with the latest in technologies, techniques and methods.

"We provide research assistance and a resource library of journals, books, curriculum materials, films and videotapes. We coordinate programs and services that are too expensive for a single school district to operate or that are specialized and serve only a few students, including direct services for youth and adults with special needs. Some of the services are required by law others by demand. We are governed by a five member Board of Education. Mr. Mark VanBogelen, a Manchester resident, is a Board Trustee of WISD."

Emlaw continued, "WISD is a team of 200 employees serving: over 40,000 students, 1,560 adult education students, 4,800 school employees and 70 public school board members from 10 public school districts and 25 non-public schools. We are funded with federal, state and local dollars. In 1993-94 the general and special education dollars were primarily from local taxpayers, over 67%. (See chart)." Dr. Emlaw conducted a guided tour of the buildings while giving us that information.

The first building we toured was High Point. High Point, is a specialized school building, a beautiful facility. Constructed in 1973-74, with state of the art equipment and amenities designed to educate mentally handicapped persons previously housed at State of Michigan facilities, such as Lapeer or Ypsi State.

According to Emlaw, "The State mandated the shift to the local districts and WISD constructed High Point to accomplish the task. Later the State and the public began to understand that a goodly share of the handicapped could be better served by each local district, as participants within their district school systems.

"High Point has changed; we now serve the more demanding and medically fragile of the handicapped."

Of the rooms we observed different age groupings were present. One classroom had 19 to 26 year old participants, from autistic to socially needy. They were being introduced to computers as a method to express their needs and responses. Another exercise area had paraplegic students who were working with staff members. These students were middle school grades. A third grouping had severely impaired lower elementary age children. Their special needs required medical monitoring. A full-time staff member and three assistants were busy suctioning trach and caring for their needs. The students educational needs had to be coordinated with their physical requirements.

Gerri Allen, Public Information Director for WISD, and Superintendent Michael O. Emlaw

(This writer was very impressed with the care being given to the students. The staff members were willing to share their expertise with me and I truly was impressed with their dedication.)

The building is equipped with several classrooms and open work areas with large pads on the floor. Many physical devices to assist in care needs. A large gym that was constructed for basket ball gets limited use because of the change in use and needs of the students. A large indoor pool has a hydraulic lift which was provided by the Kennedy Foundation. This lift allows students, or wheel chairs with students, to use the pool. The lift creates a movable floor with varying depth of water.

WISD leases unused

space to other agencies for related education needs. One of the unique services provided is a day-care center for children of staff members. Persons from the surrounding area can also use the day care services for a fee.

As we were completing the tour of High Point, school buses from the different districts were arriving to pick up their students. As you can well imagine, a cold wintry day, creates unique needs for warm clothing. Just one more task the High Point staff was so ably conducting.

In our next article we will be covering the main building and its "Elvira Vogel" addition. As you probably are aware, Elvira Vogel is a resident of our district and was a 30 year staff member of WISD. Greatly admired and respected by Washtenaw Intermediate School District, the new facility was named after Elvira.

High Point Center provides a focal point for the WISD Complex

At this time of year we are reminded of the many things we have to be grateful for—Family and Friends and the opportunity to be a part of this community

News Briefs for Seniors

by Howard Parr

I'm going to quit playing onesy-twosy with you. TV is just having to go through a period when her full time job is getting her health back where it was. So, I'll keep plugging away in the meantime and hope she is soon back to her normal self. She wanted in the worst way to write this one, but both Del and I felt she should take a breather and just get better. She did get out to meals Tuesday, Nov. 14th but didn't sound like she felt ready to run any race just yet. Something about blood tests and a call to come back to the hospital for some transfusions or something like that. Sure a long way from that in-grown toenail Del was worried about initially.

"Over the river and through the woods..." 'Tis that time again. I'm sure we'll have a house full as will most of you. A great time to get together and hang out with no deadlines or such. But we can never have just nothing to do. Have made it the practice for several years now to have a family Christmas cookie bake off the Friday after Thanksgiving. We each get some batches baked up ahead of time—our contribution is always springerle and lebkuchen by the dozen. Then everyone else brings a couple or three unbaked batches which can be rolled out, decorated and baked during the course of the baking day. The oven and the electric bill take a beating that day but the mounds of decorated cookie varieties are impressive when it is over.

Then they have to be divided up into packages to be taken home by each contributor to await Christmas in the freezer. We miss our 18 foot Amana at times like these, but are getting by. Sometimes I even put unbaked dough and certain batches of baked cookies out in our "large refrigerator"—otherwise known as the camper. They keep well out there and with this kind of weather the bill for cooling is dirt cheap.

As I said last week, our cook has Thanksgiving Day off.

Monday, November 27: No trips scheduled. The bus is being inspected by a representative from MDOT in Lansing. This time he will also check our maintenance file. He was most helpful last year getting us some free parts under the warranty programs and offering good suggestions. He even gave us a clean bill of health on our program and told me how to set up the files to assure good maintenance this year.

Tuesday, November 28: Blood Pressure before lunch at the Church Hall. Macaroni and Cheese at noon followed by a presentation on Home Security by AAA.

Thursday, November 30: Salisbury Steak at noon followed by Bingo at the Canter at 12:30. Call Erma - 428-8707 for transportation and the church office 428-7630 for food reservations.

The program will be held on Thursday December 14th at 1:30 PM at the Pittsfield Township Hall at corner of Ellsworth and State Rds.. Their is ample convenient free parking. Bring a friend.

TAX AIDES NEEDED

The Washtenaw County Council on Aging is in need of individuals interested in becoming Tax Aid Volunteers, to assist low income senior adults in obtaining Homestead Property Tax Credits, Prescription Drug Rebates, and Home Heating Credits. Council on Aging volunteers obtain nearly a half a million dollars annually in tax credits for Washtenaw County senior citizens. A training workshop is scheduled for early January 1995. For more information, please call the Council on Aging at 712-3625.

Manchester FFA Members Attend National Convention

The week of November 6 through 10 found two of Manchester's young people joining at least 25,000 other young people at the FFA (Future Farmers of America) National Convention. Manchester was represented by Marie Haeussler and Jon Hochstetler. Mr. John Hochstetler also accompanied the group as a guest/chaperon. Mr. Dave Mellor, Manchester and Saline Agri-Science teacher headed the Saline members. The Saline and Manchester FFA met at Jonesville with other Region II FFA Chapters to start this week long adventure.

As with other conventions this one was not all work. The group did there share of sight seeing, souvenir shopping, and good eating. The first stop was Chicago, where they visited the Museum of Science and Industry. Time was spent at the Top of the Sears Tower and the Chicago Board of Trade. They also visited Shedd's Aquarium. There they learned that for the first three years the aquarium had no fish, but people came anyway to see the Greek architecture. Shedd's Aquarium spent $50,000 to have 150 train cars bring in salt water. That may not seem like much but this happened back in the 1920's.

Tuesday found this energetic group at John Deere Headquarters. There they saw equipment and parts. The parts warehouse is 41 acres under one roof. They saw new machinery that hasn't been in a showroom yet. John Deere fed them lunch.

Wednesday afternoon started the convention but first, a tour of the St. Louis Arch and the Anheuser Busch Brewery. While a brewery may not be my idea of a student field trip the kids enjoyed it (and the gift shop). They came away with some interesting facts. Like the larger tanks they saw hold 200,000 six packs per tank!

The sections of the arch are constructed by using equilateral triangles (each side being 48 feet). The arch is 630 feet wide and 630 feet tall. The students visited the gift shop here but the consensus was that it was a bit pricey. After the arch tour they ate at a McDonald's. Now that may not seem like such a big deal, but this McDonald's is on the Mississippi River and the only floating McDonald's in the world.

Finally to the convention. After a quick stop at the hotel to change into official dress the students were there! There they listened to motivational and inspirational speakers. These speakers stressed that FFA kids could do whatever they set their minds to. The most important message seemed to be that these FFA kids could make themselves a better person to themselves and their community.

Thursday was a full day of convention activities. There were seminars during the day on fund-raising and how to work in the FFA. The kids went to a rodeo in the afternoon and then to a concert featuring Collin Ray.

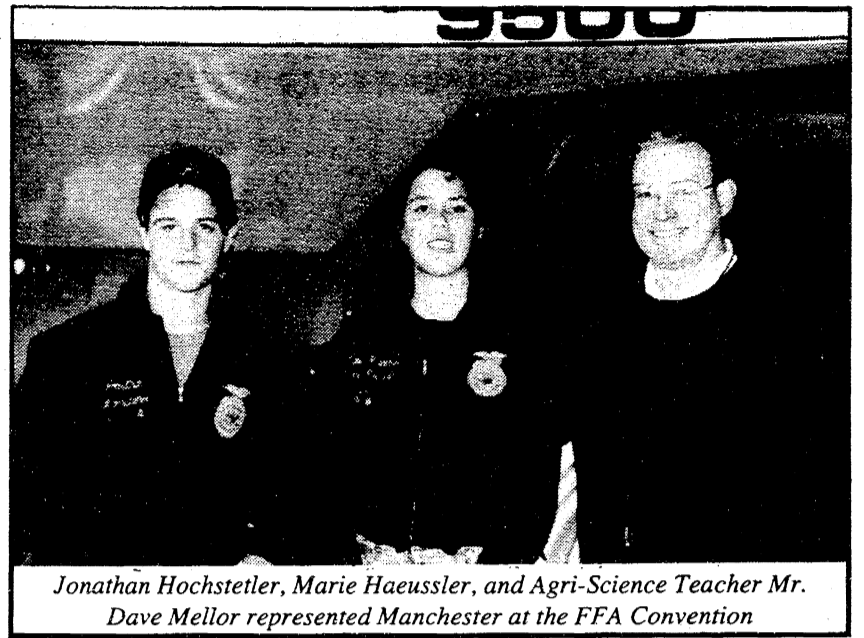

Even away from home Mr. John Hochstetler found a seminar for school administrators and board members that he attended. Then again maybe he went because Miss America was a guest speaker.

Friday, the last day, found Jon and Mr. John Hochstetler in a entrepreneurial seminar. The guest speaker there was Senator Richard Lugar, the only farmer on the Senate agriculture committee.

In the afternoon the group witnessed Bryan Corbin from Saline receive his American Farm Degree. Of all the FFA kids in the country only 1% earn an American Farm Degree.

Friday night the group got on the bus to head for home. It was an all night drive to get these students back to Michigan. They arrived home exhausted, but ready to work for the FFA chapter to which they belonged.

Lady Dutch Varsity Post Final Game in Tournament Play

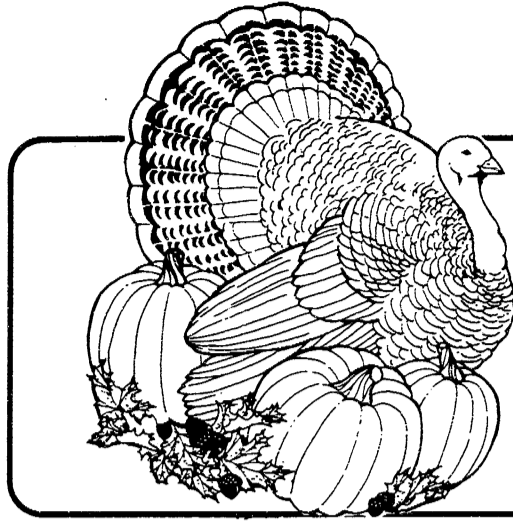

Last Wednesday, November 15th, Our Manchester Varsity Women's Basketball Team fought Vandercook Lake in the District's play-off tournament. Lindsay Hosmer, Tracey Staples, Cortney Whitaker, and Amy Gall were moved up to Varsity for the play-offs. Our Lady Dutch played hard, but in the end, succumbed to Vandercook Lake, 29-33.

The first quarter began with a Michelle Schaible three-pointer, before Vandercook Lake inched ahead 6-8. In the second quarter, Manchester demonstrated their skill as they out scored Vandercook Lake 8-2. Stacey Mann and Julie Porter each sunk a pair of lay-ups to put Manchester up, 14-10.

Vandercook Lake made up most of what they lost in second quarter, by outscoring Manchester, 6-9. Michelle Schaible put in a pair of free-throws and Julie Porter made two excellent shots to keep Manchester up, 20-19.

The fourth quarter was a free-throw contest, with fouls galore. Michelle Schaible sunk four, followed by one by Jamie Knouase and one by Julie Porter. With only forty-five seconds remaining, Manchester looked beat 26-32, but Michelle Schaible led the battle onward as she sunk a three-pointer, putting Manchester to within three. Unfortunately, Manchester simply didn't have enough time, and ended up losing 29-33.

The night's MVP was Michelle Schaible, and Stacey Mann and Julie Porter played excellent games. No one likes to end the season with a loss, but because tournaments, such as this one, nearly every team must end their season with a loss. The game marked the end of Sandi Fielder's, Katrina Bihlmeyer's, and Jamie Knouase's high school basketball careers. This is not the end of the Dutchmen though. Manchester will be back, ready to go next year. Next week will be a year-end review of our Junior Varsity and Varsity Women's Basketball Teams. As for next year, well I guess you're going to just have to find out for yourself.

SHERIFF SCHEBIL OFFERS SAFETY TIPS FOR SHOPPERS...

The Thanksgiving holiday is fast approaching and along with anticipating those traditional family get-togethers, turkey dinners with all the trimmings and football games galore, many of us will also be thinking about getting a jump on the hustle and bustle of holiday shopping.

Traditionally, the day following Thanksgiving is one of the busiest shopping days of the year, with throngs of citizens taking advantage of this four-day holiday to begin filling their Christmas lists. With this in mind, Sheriff Ronald J. Schebil of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department would like to pass along to citizens a few safety tips that can help ensure their protection as they venture out on their shopping sprees.

SAFETY TIPS FOR SHOPPERS

- Never leave your purse in a shopping cart or on a counter unattended. Purses should be carried close to the body and secured under one arm.

- If using credit cards, request to receive your carbons back or OBSERVE the sales clerk destroy them. Always remember to retrieve your credit card and/or driver's license immediately after each purchase.

- Avoid carrying large sums of money.

- If you leave packages in the car, keep them well concealed. Place them in the trunk or cover them with a blanket so they are not readily visible.

- If you shop at night, also shop for a safe parking space. Try to park near a well-lighted area and be sure to make a mental note of the aisle in which you've parked. Be certain your car doors and windows are locked upon leaving your vehicle. (NOTE: Never leave keys in a car or leave the motor running while your car is unattended; not even for a moment!)

Other suggestions:

- If someone is following you on foot, cross the street, change directions, or vary your pace. If you are being followed by someone in a car, turn around and walk in the opposite direction. If the person persists, record the license plate number and call 911 immediately.

- Before you leave the store, place your keys in your strongest hand, wedged between your fingers, and keep that hand free to open the car door quickly.

- Before getting back into your car, be sure to double-check that the back seat is unoccupied. Upon entering the vehicle, lock the door immediately, even before starting the car.

- Whenever possible, shop with others. Suggestion: Car pool to and from the shopping center, set up a rendezvous location and time and stay in a group when returning to the parking lot.

"Be a smart shopper", reminds Sheriff Schebil. "Remember, self-protection begins with you! By following these simple precautionary tips, your protection and that of your family's will be better ensured."

The Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department would like to wish you a safe and happy Thanksgiving holiday!

We've come a long way
Since that first Thanksgiving Day,
But we'll never lose sight
As we savor each bite,
Of the brotherhood, the good cheer
That makes it all so dear.

Best Wishes From All Of Us

THANKYOU

Heartfelt thanks are extended to Manchester Fire Department Rescue Squad and Huron Valley Ambulance Team who responded to Del's 911 call on October 23rd. They say Gary Weidmayer drove the team & I to Chelsea Hospital, from which I was air-lifted to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital (none of this do I remember). We also wish to thank the staff at Saline Community Hospital where I was admitted on November 10 for three days. Thank you Dr. Charles Lyon and nursing staff for your care and concern.

Your kindness came through in many get-well wishes: cards, phone calls, visits and food. Herman & Rubena Boelter, Howard & Lorena Parr and our family are deeply appreciated! Thank you, Pastor Vincent Carroll, for visits, prayers and encouragement. I could feel your many prayers from all of you healing me. God Bless You.

Horvath a boost of powers. It's a very satisfying scene when Vendola's plan literally backfires!

Matt Laskowski, as Prince Jared's sidekick Ambrose, had some of the play's best lines and used them very effectively! His delivery and sense of humor were appreciated by the audience and cast alike. Ambrose did receive his comeuppance, however, when Lady Madolyn whisked him off to the chapel at the end of the play with a wry, "Yeah, right!" in response to his wish for someone to draw his bath...

The sophisticated humor of the production was entertaining for adults as well as children, and all could appreciate the play on their own level. The modern references (from baseball and Abner Doubleday to "All taxes are the responsibility of the winner") provided a counterpoint to the Elizabethan costumes and theme.

Experienced actors Jessica Smith as Robin and Andrew Schook as Prince Jared, displayed remarkable maturity and character in their roles. The entire cast and crew worked well together in this ensemble production. Director June Weiland and her assistant Craig Vitale deserve congratulations for their fine work with all these young people and providing an opportunity for their creative talents to shine. A March comedy is planned for the Drama Club's next production - we'll be waiting!

Will There be Lights on Main Street?

We are getting in the holiday spirit around here. But something is missing. In the past Manchester's Main Street has been aglow with Christmas lights. We, here at the Enterprise have been asked when we can expect to see those wonderful lights this year.

The trees were trimmed last week and according to a village council board member the lights will be added sometime this coming week.

Shortly you will be singing. "It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas", and Manchester's street will be the "Main" attraction.

Also the Enterprise has been in touch with the North Pole. We are trying to get Santa's schedule for his visit to Manchester. We will let you know as soon as those elves give us the date.

Tired of giving or receiving that small appliance for Christmas?
