The Spirit Of Giving

that she had always enjoyed the flowers the owners grew, and was glad to be weeding the bed. Others were tackling other flower beds. Still others went after an abundance of leaves.

Meanwhile, back in town, a very cheerful group was washing windows, grooming gutters and doing some general yard clean up. Sharon Township Clerk Teri Aiuto may have missed her calling — she was scampering across a roof, along the ridge and on the edge. It was appropriate — she might have been one of Santa's reindeer in another life.

The home of Olga and Earl Uhr has been a big focus of Christmas in April this year. Skilled volunteers have pitched in to make some serious repairs, including a bathroom renovation.

Since 1992, Christmas in April has helped repair or maintain over 36 homes in the Manchester area. The group hears about people needing a little assistance from area churches, the Community Resource Center, family and neighbors. They assist the disabled, elderly or low income, and all expenses are met by donations from area businesses, churches and individuals. Pam Green coordinates the program and can be reached at 734-428-9596.

Volunteers this year included the following: Marty Way, Ben Creason, Larry Benedict, Ava Goff, Fred Munson, Paul Kappler, Roger Kappler, Karl Kappler, Bob Luckhardt, Debbie Kelly, Monty Okey, Ron Milkey, Dennis Kittel, Nick Aiuto, Teri Aiuto, Michael Croghan, Char Major, Doris Sutton, Laura Sutton, Marti Tousignant, Sandy King, Jennifer Blumenauer, Jack Rathburn, Paul Marion and Randy Uhr.

-Pam Green/Wanda Fish

Christmas in April is an unlikely name for a spring activity. But it's appropriate because it leaves the same glow of giving, friendship and community.

Twenty-five volunteers showed up at St. Mary's Parish early on a perfect spring Saturday on April 24, ready to work. Along with a bag lunch and water, they were handed their assignments.

This year, the volunteers worked on five area homes that needed some repair, maintenance, or just some spring chores that were a little difficult for the resident, such as raking, weeding and gutter cleaning.

Faye Hull needed a ramp so she could get out and about more easily. Volunteers Fred Munson, Ron Milkey and Jack Rathburn did the job quickly, enjoying the spring weather. Faye, along with husband Bob, was soon out testing the ramp, appreciating the new-found mobility.

At another house, where the weeds and last year's leaves had gotten a bit overgrown, one of several volunteers remarked

Optimist Student of the Month - Brandon Baier

Junior Brandon Baier, the son of Hank and Kim Baier, has been selected as the April "Student of the Month" by the Manchester Optimist Club. During Brandon's high school years, he has been involved in many school and community activities.

Brandon has been an active member of the National Honor Society, and has been on the Honor Roll throughout his high school years. He has been active in Student Council, Social Studies Academic Games, Quiz Bowl and Equations Team. He serves as president of the Spanish Club.

Outside of school, Brandon's activities include playing on the Ann Arbor Hockey Team. He was inducted into the Who's Who of American High School Students and plans to attend the University of Michigan. He is pictured with his mother, Kim, and brother Justin, as his father was out of town on a prior commitment.

Take Your Child to Work Day

Carrie Keller & son Jimmy Murray

REPORTER JIMMY ON THE JOB

Last Thursday, I went to work with my mom for "Take a Child to Work Day." I got to see what my mom does at the Manchester Enterprise. She showed me what they do on Thursday, which is to tear down last week's paper. This takes about an hour and a half. Then they start adding current articles to the new paper.

Mom let me help her scan articles and pictures, and she typed some articles in. I found out what a gopher was because they let me "gopher" snacks at the On the Go, and the Bakery. I had a really fun time.

- Jimmy Murray

Chris Lilienthal - Drilling In On His Future

Chris Lilienthal, a 5th grader at the Middle School was looking forward to his 12th birthday on Friday, but Thursday, he was taking life very seriously. He was participating in his very first "Take Your Child to Work Day."

His mother Debbie Lilienthal works with Main Street dentist James A. Watson. Christopher was trying to be his own mother for the day, because he'd begun by helping with her morning activities at home, doing laundry, housekeeping and looking after his younger brother. "Lots of laundry," Chris said. Thursdays are Debbie's "late days" because the office is open later.

At the dental office, we caught Chris taking his lunch break and talking excitedly about his work and his plans. Chris is very interested in dental equipment, having a set of tools from his uncle to show off. He'd already learned how mouth moulds are taken for mouth guards and dentures. He thought the "impression stuff" didn't taste very good, but it was important enough to put up with the temporary taste.

At 12, Chris has a lot of thoughts about what he plans to do someday. "I want to be a dentist in the Army." He'd reached this decision because he thought the Army was a good thing, having several relatives who had served, including a grandfather and great uncle. He plans to talk with the Army "when I'm older."

Chris realizes there's a lot to being a dentist. He likes to study science, "but I'm not good at math." Asked how he's working on improving, "I've got Mathblaster on my computer." A good use for math is the need to buy dental equipment, he says - "You have to learn to buy quality tools at good prices," and he plans on using laser tools.

He expects to learn a lot in college, such as "how to drill and not hurt patients. You need to be sure to drill in the right tooth."

Chris was thoughtful about what it will take to be a good dentist. "You have to be gentle and calm, and you shouldn't yell at patients." Planning to work with both adults and children, he said he'd recently seen a program on dentistry that recommends ways to soothe dental patients. "You need a homey environment. Some dentists have little waterfall fountains and also use scented candles."

Mom Debbie was impressed at all her son's ideas. And Dr. Watson acknowledged his future competition was right there in his office, busy learning.

Matt And Mom Make Some Discoveries At The Market

Matt Friedrich found out something important on Thursday: his mom works hard and now he knows why she's tired when she comes home from work. "Maybe I should help out more at home." Matt went to the Manchester Market to work with his mom Julie. It was his first experience in the "Take Your Child to Work Day."

The 14-year-old had learned a lot - "How to check prices, rotate stock and bag groceries." Asked if there were important things to remember about bagging groceries, Matt was quick. "You bag cleaning stuff separate from food, and you put the heavy stuff on the bottom. Don't make the bag heavy." It was rainy, but Matt was cool with going out to the parking lot to retrieve carts. Maybe when he's older he can work part-time, he wondered. He's not sure what his future holds, but he'd like to do something that involves drawing and perhaps computers.

Mom Julie had made her own discoveries about her son on Thursday, and she was delighted. "He's a hard worker! I'm just so proud of him. He picks up on things quickly. I enjoy working with him."

-Wanda Fish

Three Tanners Found At Manchester Market

Rachel Tanner is an old hand at "Take Your Child to Work Day." This is her third year at Manchester Market with her father, Jeff Tanner. Busy stocking shelves when we arrived, Rachel said she looks forward to learning about the work her father does and thinks she might like to do this when she's older. Younger sister Heather, a 4th grader at George Long Elementary, was participating for the first time.

Rachel's in 7th grade at Grass Lake Middle School. She and Heather had arrived at work at 8:00 and had been busy all morning, bagging oranges and boxing strawberries. They had also worked with some of the produce. Asked if she liked to eat the produce and fruit, Heather said she "liked everything, especially fruit."

After lunch with their father at Frank's, the girls returned to work, stocking shelves. Rachel was determined to put things where they belonged properly, climbing on a milk crate and standing on the very tips of her toes. She might be "vertically challenged," but it clearly wouldn't slow her down. Heather helped her sister, but was a little more reticent to talk. Both were full of smiles, however.

Jeff Tanner thought the program is a good idea - perhaps a little more work than the girls thought. "It's a good idea for parents and kids. I like to spend the extra time with my kids."

We caught Polly Deacons on lunch break, compliments of Mr. Murphy at the Manchester Pharmacy, with her daughter Terre and friend Lauren Miller.

At Baker's Dozen, it's always "Take Your Daughters to Work" day, says Kim O'Connor, here with Molly (front) and Mackenzie (right) testing cookies.

Round and About

- by Toby

There are times when it is simply impossible to deny intrusion of horror into our lives. The terrible images from Kosovo, Albania and Macedonia are in our home, our refuge in which we count on shelter, warmth, food and, most importantly, love.

Then we added Littleton, where gun and bomb toting children blew away their fellow students and teachers. As the newest images of sobbing, bloodied teens unfolded, I did what a mom will always do—reached out to my children to assure myself of their safety. Both are hundreds of miles away from home and fully qualify as productive adults. Adult enough now to understand they will always be my babies. And adult enough to know why I was on the phone. "I'm okay, Mom."

Michigan is considering easing up gun regulations so more people can carry concealed weapons. Washtenaw County Commissioners will consider adding more regulations and bureaucracy to step up inspections of wells and septic systems at the point of sale. There may be problems, but we don't know for sure because the surveys were taken in other counties. Oh, due to budget constraints, the Sheriff's Department may have to reduce road patrols in rural areas that can't pay extra to retain them.

Hello? Maybe we ought to rethink some of the issues we can impact. Defer action on the gun issue, please. Shift County funds to where the need is proven—road patrols—from where the need is uncertain—more inspections and personnel to chase problems that may not be there in significant numbers. We can address potential problems of well and septic systems by stepping up efforts to educate homeowners about their responsibilities to protect their families and neighbors by using common sense.

State legislators may put concealed weapons in more hands. Every day, kids are dying because they've found a gun and mimic what they see on television. So, let's put more guns out there. On the other hand, Washtenaw County is contemplating spending more money to protect us from a problem that isn't making news. For the life of me, I cannot understand how our local and state governments can reach such opposite conclusions.

To the Editor:
How would you feel if every police officer you see made you feel like you're a criminal. For the kids of Manchester, this is how a lot of them are starting to feel. I don't feel it is a good town for them to grow up in; however everyone's parents seem to think it is. Adults see Manchester on the outside, as a safe place where no one will bother you. This is true as long as you don't leave your home.

If you grow up in Manchester you're in for a real treat; you will never have anything to do, and you won't be able to have fun until you leave town. Walking around town is probably not a good idea, because if the cops see you they will stop and harass you. If you want to ride your skateboard, you had better go to Ann Arbor or somewhere else, because the cops will tell you to go to the park, even though there is not anywhere to ride at the parks. Teenagers who own cars are automatically considered "drug dealers," and they will get pulled over for anything the cop can think of at the time. Some of their favorite excuses are "the radio was too loud" or "you have an air freshener hanging from your rear view mirror" or even "your license plate is dirty." After they pull you over, you can expect to be there for awhile. They will search everyone and anything in the vehicle even if there is no probable cause. The cops in this town think that the drug problem is a major issue, when actually it is a minor problem. Large amounts of money are wasted on drug enforcement that could be spent on better things, like something for the kids to do.

I think the cops in this town need to lighten up. We need some cops that realize what it is like to live in Manchester. Just because some kids are walking around, doesn't mean that they are getting in trouble or doing drugs. They also need to realize that the only thing we can do is walk or ride around because there is nothing else; if we had something to do we probably wouldn't be hanging out uptown. I think if they take into account these few things, the kids of Manchester won't grow up hating the police.

Sincerely,
Dan Stephens

Court expands police searches to passenger belongings

According to CNN.com, April 5, 1999, The Supreme Court has ruled that police can search the personal belongings of all passengers inside a car when lawfully seeking criminal evidence against the driver. By a 6-3 vote in a Wyoming case, the court expanded the already considerable police power to search motor vehicles without a court warrant.

"Effective law enforcement would be appreciably impaired without the ability to search a passenger's personal belongings when there is reason to believe contraband or evidence of criminal wrongdoing is hidden in the car," Justice Antonin Scalia wrote for the court. In dissent, Justice John Paul Stevens said, "Today, instead of adhering to the settled distinction between drivers and passengers, the court fashions a new rule." Under that rule, Stevens said, police might be able to search a taxi passenger's briefcase if they had reason to believe the driver had a syringe somewhere in his vehicle.

"The sensible rule ... is that such a package may be searched, whether or not its owner is present as a passenger or otherwise, because it may contain the contraband that the officer has reason to believe is in the car," Scalia said. He added that car passengers "will often be engaged in a common enterprise with the driver, and have the same interest in concealing the fruits or the evidence of their wrongdoing."

Wacker's Wins Earth Day Award

The second annual Washtenaw County "Waste Knot" Awards Ceremony was held Thursday evening, April 22, 1999 (Earth Day) at the Ypsilanti Marriott. G.E. Wacker Inc. was honored with a "Waste Knot" award for waste reduction, reuse, recycling and employee education. Keynote speaker for the evening's program was Hollie Shaner, president of the Nightingale Institute for Health and Environment.

Accepting the "Waste Knot Award" from Reno Feldkamp on behalf of the County Solid Waste Commission, are (from left) Tim and Lauren Wacker, George Wacker, and Kim Mahrle.

She utilizes her 22 years of nursing experience towards educating health professionals about the environmental impact of health care delivery. Other speakers included Dr. Eugene Glysson, Chair of the Washtenaw County Board of Public Works, and Dr. Rebecca Head, Director of the County Department of Environment & Infrastructure Services.

Bridgewater Township Board Revises Mineral Extraction Ordinance

The Bridgewater Township Board voted April 21 to amend the Township's Ordinance that regulates and licenses Mineral Extraction Operations.

The amendment requires that all mining operations that remove more than 50,000 tons of material per year, "shall have all truck access directly onto a Class A roadway, as designated by the County Road Commission.

The amendment will take effect May 31. Bridgewater Township has been frustrated by the slow pace of progress in replacing the existing Adrian Sand and Stone haul route which now exits the pit on Hogan Road south of Willow, turns west on Allen and south again on Bartlett to access US-12. For several years, the Washtenaw County Road Commission has been working with Adrian Sand and Stone to eliminate the section on Hogan and Allen Roads and upgrade Bartlett Road to a class A road, but cannot arrive at a firm commitment.

Residents who live along the present haul route report they are tired of the failure to maintain the route and the constant dust.

Just recently, the Bridgewater Township Planning Commission said it would approve a special use application by Adrian Sand and Stone to extend the mining operation to an additional 40-acre parcel when there is a firm agreement to build the Class A haul route.

Presently, the Washtenaw County Road Commission restricts loads from the Adrian Sand and Stone pit to Class B loads.

This and That

On Living and Dying

By Dave Helisek. Fourth in a series

Cancer is expensive. The two most important pieces of paper that I now have in my possession are the letters stating that I have a donor for my Bone Marrow Transplant (B.M.T.) and a letter from Blue Cross to the U of M transplant team that states that all transplant costs including the costs of finding and securing the donor marrow are benefits under my health care plan. The estimated costs of a transplant from the donor search to my being handed back to my family physician are in the two hundred thousand dollar range. It is a staggering sum.

My first inkling of how much cancer costs was my original form of treatment in order to bring my white blood cell count back to normal. I was prescribed interferon which I injected into my thighs or abdomen once a day. A one month's supply of interferon was three thousand dollars. That was one hell of an eye opener.

The mere fact that I dislike needles and here I was injecting myself every night, very similar to insulin injecting; made me think of what would happen to me if I didn't have insurance. We asked that question several times to different doctors in our travels, but no one wants to answer the "no insurance question." The interferon, however, was soon discontinued at the request of the transplant team because of problems with transplants if you are on interferon. They want it out of your system before they work on you.

The new form of chemo that I have been on since the first of the year is Hydrea which I take in pill form. The monthly cost for this treatment is about $146.00. I am very fortunate that the Hydrea, at the dose I have been on, doesn't make me sick. My energy level is nowhere near what it used to be but I'll take that over nausea and other symptoms, thank you very much.

I have also been informed that after I am released from the hospital, the cost of pills alone could reach six thousand dollars a month for the first few months. I just shake my head anymore when I hear these figures and hope that what I read in my book on insurance benefits from my workplace is correct. Most of my costs should be covered. I say "should" because the entire subject of insurance and who to talk to will be a subject matter for future articles. Right now I will just say that finding the right person to talk to on individual, smaller billing matters is impossible. My wife, Virginia and I now believe that there really is nobody in charge, there's just a big dart board and you're lucky if the dart hits the "yes, you're covered" square. If no one wants to throw a dart that day, you're just out of luck for a while.

My heart goes out to people who have the burden of finding the money to begin or continue treatment. I really can't imagine the stress that would be involved if I had to come up with a substantial payment in advance of the transplant. Rest assured, though, that if you aren't insured the hospital tells you up front that they want to see the money. The fund raisers that you see held periodically in all communities are critically important.

UPDATE: I begin my physical exams the week of April 25th, and if my donor and I both pass our exams I will be admitted to the U on May 11th. My mind now is focused on these dates and the hope that all proceeds according to plan. Rest, relaxation, trying to prepare yourself mentally and physically is now the key. Whatever small pleasures you enjoy in life, now is the time to partake. Your prayers are appreciated.

Manchester Wrestling Club

"In The House"

- by Darroll Trinkle

The Manchester Wrestling Club went to Leslie to compete the week of April 17. A lot of our wrestlers had a tough time this week. I would like to make a special notice that three of our wrestlers received their first medal of the season, Ian Burkhart, Beau Kingsbury and Calvin Briggs. This is the first year for all three of them, and all received a 4th place. Way to go guys!

Medaling in Greco on Friday: Group II, Bill Cloke - 3rd; Group III, Doug Sowle - 2nd; Group IV, Steven Gazlay - 2nd.

Medaling in Freestyle for cadets and juniors: Cadets: Mike Sowle - 1st; Derek Speiss - 3rd. Juniors - Will Slocum - 2nd.

Medals on Saturday: Group I; Cody Dotson - 3rd; Jesse Forner - 2nd; Patrick Dunn - 3rd; Drew Fischer - 4th; Calvin Briggs - 4th, Beau

Kingsbury - 4th; Will Dotson - 2nd; Will Rickert - 1st; Jordan Stachnik - 3rd. Not medaling, but worked hard, Jesse Powers and Patrick Palmer.

Group II: Kyle Dunn - 2nd; Cevin Walker - 2nd; Blake Salyer - 2nd; Ian Burkhart - 4th. Not placing, but gave it their all; Katrina Tobias, Emily Bolan, Jason Alber, Scott Conway, and Nathan Powers. Bill Cloke took a 3rd at Parma Western. Group III: Brad Alber - 4th; James Tobias - 1st; Brett Kingsbury - 4th; Dan Warner - 4th; Nick Burkhart - 4th. Group IV: Mark Trinkle - 1st; Jame Power - 2nd; Steven Gazlay - 2nd; and not placing, but wrestled hard - Michael Bolan.

Wrestlers of the week are Jesse Forner, Jordan Stachnik, Kyle Dunn and Dan Warner. This is Jesse's first year in the club and he has received three medals so far this year. This little guy works hard in practice and in competition. Keep an eye on him, he's just going to get better and better.

Jordan Stachnik is our heavy weight in group I. This is his second year in the club and he keeps improving each time he wrestles. Jordan also works hard in practice trying to fine tune his technique. Keep up the good work.

Kyle Dunn is our light weight of Group II. This is Kyle's third year in the club and he has always taken a first or second place. Kyle has always been a consistent wrestler, with great techniques. Watch this one, he's going to just get better.

Dan Warner is a Group III wrestler, and has been wrestling for several years now. This has been Dan's best year yet, and he keeps getting better and better. Dan has always worked hard in practice and it has shown in competition. Way to go Dan!

Editor's Note: In memory of Marilyn Knouase, who was a founding member of P.A.S.S., the Enterprise will be re-running P.A.S.S. articles written over the years. Marilyn was a strong advocate for all students, but in particular she directed her efforts toward helping those who are learning disabled in some form or another. The efforts of P.A.S.S. Committee members have made a huge impact on the increasing awareness of these students' needs.

I.E.P. is an Individualized Education Plan that is written at least once per year for many students within our school system (for more information on who qualifies for an I.E.P. call your child's school principal). The following information was taken from Help Me to Help My Child by Jill Bloom.

The I.E.P. is 1) a communication tool to inform you of exactly what the problem is, 2) a management tool to inform you of what should be done, 3) a monitoring tool to see that the plan is followed, 4) an evaluation device to determine how effective the plan is.

Even though our school evaluation team is very qualified to write the I.E.P. they need parent and student input. This form is very technical, do not be intimidated by this. You may add written pages to the I.E.P. or ask the evaluation team to include items you want included. You do not have to sign the form immediately - take it home if you need more time to review it.

When you attend the I.E.P. meeting (you are part of the committee called the I.E.P.C.), ask questions. You may invite someone to accompany you. Here are some of the questions typically asked at an I.E.P.C.

What are the recommendations based on (tests, classroom behavior, etc.)? Why are these approaches the best for this student? Which school personnel have received the training in the area recommended? How often, where and with whom will my child receive services? Are there special school policies that we need to know about (e.g. tape recorders are not generally allowed in school unless they are an accommodation)? When do we meet again? What do I do if it doesn't seem to be working? What can we do at home to help implement the I.E.P.?

By law the I.E.P. must include the following items:

1. Statement of the child's disability as it relates to his/her education
  2. Statement of the present educational levels of the student
  3. Description of the annual long-term goals and short-term treatment steps necessary to achieve annual goals.
  4. Statement of the least restrictive treatment conditions necessary to achieve goals.
  5. Statement of the specific educational services to be provided in the course of such treatment.
  6. An explanation of the rationale behind a particular treatment plan
  7. Projected dates for initiation, frequency and the anticipated duration of such services.
  8. What, when, where and whose services will be received
  9. Appropriate objective criteria for measuring progress and for determining the continuation and/or level of need.

- by Howard Parr & T.V. Ludwick

Howard says, "Since I can't blame the length of my recent columns on the Enterprise, I guess I may have to admit that I didn't take enough time to write less, though I haven't decided to accept all the blame myself yet. There must be someone I can get to share it. When I talked with T.V. about this I got the impression that she was so busy with the next Trumpeter that she wouldn't mind if I gave her "the rest of the story" about my problems with learning new things. So here goes, if she can use it.

Even though I have had problems learning the computer and now realize it isn't going to work out like my typing lessons did, I was reminded of the stories my Dad and his sister told about their learning problems. Only, this was learning how to drive a car for the first time. The first cars were not only totally different from driving horses, each one of them had its own system of operation. There was nothing standard about cars yet.

The year I was born Dad tells about raising enough wheat on the field west of our barn to buy a Model T. War-time prices still prevailed in 1919 so I suppose that helped. Anyway, he bought one in the fall from Ferd Huber, the Manchester Ford Dealer, but told him he didn't want the car until spring when the roads would be such that he could drive it. Ferd got more cars than he could store that fall and prevailed on Dad to bring it out and store it in our shed. Dad let him bring the new roadster out, but still told him he didn't want to use it until spring. So it was drained of its radiator water and jacked up on blocks to save the tires and stood there all winter. In the spring Ferd came out one day and in an hour or so showed him how to run the machine. That was it! Imagine.

His sister, Ethyl had other problems. Her older brother, Lowell apparently was able to take up most of the efforts of his father to learn to drive their Willys Overland. When Aunt Ethyl complained to her mother, she was told to just watch them as they drive' and that she was sure to learn how to drive if she paid attention. She did that faithfully and one day when her Dad called from the field that he needed more binder twine, she asked her Mother to take it in the car. When her mother asked her if she were sure she knew how to drive, she said she was sure. So she got the ball of twine, opened the garage door and drove down to the grain field. She says she never has forgotten the look on her Dad's face when he finally realized she was driving the Overland alone, very well, thank you.

Golly, I just had to put another sheet in the IBM. Better quit before I run into some more space problems with the newspaper. That's the "rest of the story," T.V. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest. I'm sure I might have developed some mental complications if I had to let this go unsaid.

You know how it is."

THOUGHTS FROM T.V.: One reason I like to go on vacation is that on my arrival home there in the Enterprise are Howard's articles. I love to read them - thanks, pal! And, being 'off the hook' for another week delighted me as he wanted to finish his trilogy (did I just make up a new word?). If you have something to say, isn't it hard to leave it unsaid? Thanks, too, to Jean Little for mailing future copy for use in a coming article. I need all the help I can get!

Twentieth Century Club

The 20th Century Club met on April 13 at the home of June and Ron Jenter. Since we did not meet in March because of bad weather we had much business to discuss but President Jean Little kept us right on track. Election of officers took place and committee reports given including that of the Project Committee. Diane DuRussel presented two very fine ideas. Discussion followed but no decision was made as the membership wanted time to think this through.

A silent auction followed the business meeting and some great items and yummy foods were auctioned off accompanied by groans and cheers.

Refreshments were served by June and co-hostess Olga Nickels. Our next meeting is our final meeting of the year and our annual spring luncheon to be held at the Brooklyn Hotel on Saturday May 15. Arrangements made by Sue Gisting and her committee.

American Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary met on April 14 with 25 members present. Several committee reports were given. Vivian Heckaman reported that 26 additional pairs of crocheted slippers had been completed for delivery to the Veterans' Hospital in Ann Arbor. The book honoring Manchester servicemen killed in action has been completed. Mary Blossom has spent countless hours gathering notes, letters, and interviewing family members. Copies are available for purchase or for viewing at the Township Library, Manchester Historical Society, and at the High School Library. The book is beautifully done and Mary deserves our praise.

A Bake Sale will be held on Sunday, May 2, when the monthly Legion Breakfast is held. Baked goods can be dropped off on Saturday morning or afternoon and early Sunday morning.

Committee members for the May 12 meeting are Joyce Stein, Linda Harvey, and Diane Hughes.

Spring Blood Drive Results

Sorry it has taken so long to get these results in print. Best intentions do not always pay off.

As those who donated will remember, on March 15, Emanuel Church hosted Manchester's Spring Blood Drive. According to those at the Red Cross in Detroit, we collected 60 pints of blood. This is very good. Our goal is always from 60 to 80 pints. So we did well.

Thanks go to Marti Vassoff and her staff of volunteers. These are the ones who keep the beginning and the end running smoothly. The 'in between' (the actual blood donating) is under the control of the nurses.

This time we had no first timers, but did have 6 people who made a donor mile stone. These were Patrick Walz who received his 1 gallon pin, Jerry Bristle who received his 3 gallon pin, Roger Day, Julie Manders, and Sue Staffeld who each received a 5 gallon pin. The last, but by no means least, is a testament to what commitment is. BOB PUNCHES donated pint number 120. This equates to 15 GALLONS of blood that he has given. This is FANTASTIC!!! Thanks Bob.

Thanks go to all of you who took the time to come and donate. If you were not there, a lot of people might lose their lives.

Manchester's Summer Blood Drive will be held at the American Legion Hall on Monday, July, 12 from 1pm until 7pm.

Please mark your calendars for that date.

If you find any of the above information incorrect or I have forgotten someone who crossed a mile stone, please call Marja Warner.

Manchester Area Historical Society

The Manchester Area Historical Society held its regular monthly meeting at the Blacksmith Shop on Tuesday, April 20. Mr. Jim Cameron, a history teacher in Saline, presented a program on the Saline Community Oral History Project. Before telling us about the project, he mentioned that a textbook used in high schools entitled Forging the Peninsulas has a photograph on the cover of Tim Armentrout working in our blacksmith shop.

Mr. Cameron stressed the importance of obtaining oral histories because people who lived through the events have a different perspective from history books. He is getting an oral history from his mother and plans to get them from his children to see how they view major changes in the family.

A coalition of groups (City Council, newspaper, historical society, St. Joseph Health System, library, schools, and the Evangelical Home) fund and support Saline's oral history project. He recommended several books that would help us get started and suggested we try to involve high school students. A requirement in his classes is that students do oral histories. He told us what information we should collect about the person being interviewed and the interviewer. He recommended that audio or video tapes be cataloged and a table of contents be made. Tapes should be kept in a room that is climate controlled. A release should be obtained from the person being interviewed and interviewers should be sensitive to the type of questions they ask. Don't ask point blank embarrassing questions—ask questions around the subject and they can tell you what they are comfortable with.

He encouraged us to develop our own project and offered to help us get started. He presented the Society with a notebook with sample forms and information on taking oral histories.

In closing, he told a story about his dad skipping school. When he was in kindergarten, he would go into the school, as if he were going to school, and go out a different door. He would arrive back at the school in time to leave with the other students. This man was to become superintendent of schools in Chelsea and a coach. Several of the men in the Society knew his dad and some played against him.

Pinnacle Engineering Rezoning Tabled

The Sharon Township Planning Commission decided April 15 to table the request of Pinnacle Engineering to rezone a parcel contiguous to its present building on M-52.

Pinnacle purchased the property, presently zoned for agricultural use and requested it be rezoned for industrial use. The Company plans to use the site for future expansion and for inside storage of equipment.

According to Planning Chair Roger Kappler, the decision to table was to allow time to sort out the mixed zoning in the immediate area.

Gusher at the dam

At least the weather was nice. The men working on upgrades to the Village water system were hard pressed to control the gusher created when they were trying to install a valve in the system on City Road near the dam. It took awhile to empty the pipeline so they could install the new control. One lucky volunteer got to stand in the hole and direct the flow towards the pump with his shovel rather than have water everywhere. He didn't report catching any fish.

Gardening

Gardening from the Ground Up

- by Ron & Barbara Kopp, Pine View Farms Nursery

Getting Started with Perennials...Part I

Perennial gardening has become one of the most popular types of flower gardening in the past few years. This trend shows no sign of lessening. Gardeners want flowers to beautify their yards as well as an abundance of flowers when entertaining. With our busy life styles, perennials are the perfect choice. They are plants that last for years in the garden. They can be divided and shared with other gardening friends, therefore are very cost effective.

First of all, what is a perennial plant? It is a plant that lasts longer than two years. Actually, trees and shrubs are perennials, but we usually refer to the plants with soft stems that die down to the ground each winter, and come up in the spring to start over, as "perennials."

Biennials are also popular plants to use in these gardens. A biennial plant needs two years to grow. The first year they generally form a nice green cluster of leaves, often evergreen, even looking bright under the snow. The second year is when they produce an abundance of flowers and seeds. These seeds of course drop on the ground, sprout, and the cycle starts all over. Because biennials produce many seeds, they will last for years in the garden and many people don't realize that it is not the same plant they first put in.

When starting a perennial garden, it is important to have a plan. These are some goals to strive for:

1. Try to create a continuous show of flowers throughout the season.
2. Learn the growth habit of each plant so they do not over-grow each other.

3. Create the maximum effect with the least amount of work.

Before you go shopping for plants, be sure you know:

1. Where will the flower bed be located? This will help you decide which plants are most suitable. Will it be the front of the house? Along a walkway? Is there a fence or a wall behind it? Will it be an island garden in the lawn?

2. Is it sunny or shady? How much sun will it get. Morning sun (only till 1:00 PM) or afternoon sun? Which direction does it face? Are there any large trees or decks that shade this area?

3. What colors do you like, and do you prefer tall or short plants for this area?

4. How large is the bed?
5. Do you have a particular plant you like, saw in a magazine, or a friend's garden that you want?

Next week, we'll continue with the planning of these gardens. For beginners, we hope to help you be successful your first year. Seasoned gardeners, may you become inspired to enlarge, rejuvenate or start new areas.

Send your gardening questions to "Gardening From the Ground Up", c/o The Manchester Enterprise

Thank You

I wish to extend my thanks to all who remembered me with flowers, "get well" wishes, visits and phone calls during my prolonged stay at St. Joe Hospital.
