District moves forward on new property purchase

Plans for new high school making progress.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Manchester Community Schools took a step away from "dead center" on Monday night as the board approved a motion to begin negotiations to purchase the Beuerle property located along Gieske Road.

A presentation by developer Larry Byrne was set at 6:30 p.m., prior to the scheduled board meeting, for the board to review Hogan Road Associates' property on M-52 at the southern edge of the village.

Byrne highlighted the desirability of the 55-acre property, currently zoned commercial-industrial, during his 30-minute presentation. Existing utilities, a pond and several acres of natural area were underscored. Byrne also noted the lack of distractions from the property—no high-tension wires, no gravel trucks and the neighboring businesses are "quiet," he said.

Board members listened to the presentation and asked a few questions before time ran out and the regular meeting was scheduled to begin.

"There probably isn't enough money in our budget to buy that property, but the biggest drawback in my mind is that it would be too far from the other schools," said board treasurer Lyndon Uphaus. "While we have these other options (on the north side of town), we'd prefer to pursue those."

In the regular meeting, which began shortly after 7 p.m., the board heard public participation prior to heading to old business on its agenda.

During public participation, several members of the audience questioned why the board wasn't considering the Klager property for its building project. Superintendent David

A new proposed location for Manchester High School is on 35+ acres of the Duane Beuerle property facing Gieske Road, across from the current athletic complex. The school board voted Monday to begin negotiations for this site. The footprint of Klager Elementary School is partially visible in the bottom left of the architect's proposed site plan.

Ogema explained that even if the district decided to build on the acreage available behind

Klager Elementary, it would need to consider additional property purchases to accommodate practice fields and other future growth.

"If we're purchasing property anyway, we might as well make it the site for our high school, and save the Klager property for future needs," he said.

Uphaus said that saving the Klager site provides an opportunity for elementary-age pupils to walk to school.

"You don't see many kids walking up Main Street to the high school, but you see a good number walking up the hill to Klager," he said. "Once they're in high school the kids want to drive. It's not a huge issue, but if you can make it convenient, why not?"

Tim Johnson from Wolgast Corporation, the construction managers for the school, presented a cost comparison on site development for the Beuerle and Gourley properties, along with pros and cons of each site.

The development cost for the Gourley site was estimated at $2.4 million, while for the Beuerle property, Johnson estimated a cost of $2.06 million. Ultimately, Johnson recommended that the board consider the Beuerle property.

Additional discussion among board members and more public comment brought no conclusion to the conversation.

"Let's do it," said board secretary Monty Okey. "I'd like to

Story time at the library

Next Tuesday's Story Time with Grandma Pat at the Manchester District Library will follow the theme, "Tickle me silly." Let Grandma Pat tickle your funny bone with silly stories and rhymes.

Story time will take place from 10:30 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 1:30 p.m. and is reserved for children ages three through six, accompanied by an adult.

Historical society to meet

Irene Kemner, local expert and teacher, will present "The Art of Rug Hooking" at the Jan. 15 meeting of the Manchester Area Historical Society.

Kemner will provide historical information about the design and production of the heritage craft, supplemented by examples of her own work.

The historical society will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday at the Blacksmith Shop in downtown Manchester, 324 E. Main.

New book discussion series begins

"Princess: A True Story of Life Behind the Veil in Saudi Arabia," by Jean Sasson will prove to be a great book for discussion, to experience and understand the Middle Eastern culture.

Come along on this cultural adventure by picking up a copy at the Manchester District Library where several copies are available. Discussion will take place at 7 p.m. on Jan. 17 at the library.

Community education classes under way

Beat the seasonal doldrums, and learn something new by participating in community education's winter offerings.

Currently in progress is "Building Strong Families: Parenting Young Children." The six-week course is held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday at the high school media center. Registrations still can be accepted by calling 428-7804. Cost for the course is $30.

On Monday night, two one-night dance workshops will be held at the middle school cafeteria. Ballroom Dance from 6:30 to 8 p.m. and Swing Latin from 8 to 9:30 p.m. The class, open to adults and teens, costs $20 per couple.

Call Community Education at 428-7804 to register.

Making every scrap count

Fabric production part of a study of colonial times.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Fifth-grade students in Heidi Huber's class recently got a first-hand look at textile production during a study of colonial America.

With the help of teacher consultant Kathy Lixey, Huber's students learned about how colonial settlers made their own clothing from homemade fabrics.

"This project gave the kids a chance to realize that the pioneers didn't just go out and buy themselves a new shirt at Target," Lixey said.

The students carded raw wool and spun it on a drop spindle, then used natural dyes to color their fabrics. The dyes were made from carrot tops, onion skins and oak leaves. The yarn was then woven on a table loom into small pieces of material.

"The kids were really excited by this," Lixey said. "Some of them even went home and made their own drop spindles.

"I think this project really gave them an appreciation of the work of fabric production."

She added that this helped to make clear to the students why quilts and rag rugs were such an integral part of colonial times.

"They didn't waste things," she said. "They utilized even the smallest scraps because they had worked hard to get them."

Bridgewater chicken farm embraces the future

Genetics operation proceeds with special use permit from Bridgewater.

By Sven Gustafson
Staff Writer

Having been approved for a special land use permit at the Dec. 10 Bridgewater Township Planning Commission meeting, the El Elsie chicken farm plans to expand its US-12 operation.

But don't count on finding any grade A eggs or poultry from the operation anytime soon. No, the inconspicuous chicken farm, located on private property east of Clinton, is in the business of developing human pharmaceuticals from chicken eggs.

The science is called avian transgenics, and involves raising chickens in a hermetically sealed, secured environment.

A request to tour the facility was denied.

The technology centers on the genetic modification of chicken eggs to carry human DNA for proteins used to fight diseases. Those eggs then hatch into chickens that carry specific human DNA, which gets harvested from the whites of their eggs.

"All of the functions of the body are controlled by proteins of some sort," said Steve Sensoli, executive vice president of GeneWorks, the Ann Arbor-based parent company of El Elsie.

"Many or most of the diseases we know of are caused by not making enough proteins, or making too many proteins in the body.

"We are kind of like a contract manufacturer (of pharmaceuticals)," he said. "We make the active ingredient."

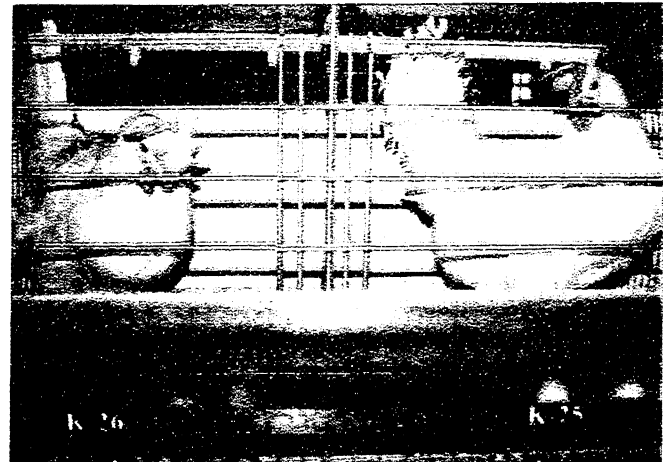

El Elsie has been operating out of one barn on 116 acres since 1999, Sensoli said. It bought the property, zoned agricultural, in 1998.

Sensoli described the existing barn as "a pilot facility where we keep all of our projects going."

The barn houses roughly 1,000 birds, and currently employs 20 full-time and three part-time employees under what Sensoli called "moderate security."

Workers are required to change into white coats upon arrival. They then go about daily inspections, examining the health of the birds and checking supplies of food and water. The rest of the time is spent cleaning.

The remainder of the work is done by conveyor belts, which bring the birds food and water, collect eggs, and transport waste. Sensoli said all waste falls to a conveyor belt where it is dried with blowing warm air. It then goes onto a second belt, is dropped off in a separate area where it is further dried. From there, an area farmer uses the waste as fertilizer.

"It's probably way overkill, but it's what the township wanted to see from the beginning," Sensoli said of the waste process.

"This is chicken manure, it's not chemicals or anything."

Since only egg whites are used, yolks and shells are another source of waste. Currently, they are taken away by a professional service. Later on, Sensoli said, the facility will have an on-site incinerator.

Jim Fish, chair of Bridgewater Township Planning Commission, said the operation meets with the objectives of the township's master plan by keeping the land in agricultural use.

"We are aware of the total plan," he said. "The applicant was very direct and forthcoming and met all the objectives of the ordinance."

"We are satisfied with the plan that they have proposed."

Having been approved for the special use permit, the company plans to expand in phases. First is the construction of two new buildings in 2002—a chicken housing facility and a storage barn.

Sensoli said the approved site plan calls for 20 more barns of various sizes for use in breeding, raising chicks up to five months of age, and for egg laying and collection.

He added that future expansion "is kind of dependent on how research goes, and kind of on how the customer receives this."

By the end of 2003, he guessed, the facility may have six buildings.

Although he said the facility is currently working on 15 different drugs, including rheumatoid arthritis treatments, blood replacement drugs, and cancer antibodies. But no products have yet hit the market, and Sensoli thinks the company is at least a year away from submitting anything to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for commercial approval. If things go smoothly, the company hopes to produce between 50 and 100 drugs using up to 80,000 chickens.

"It's really up in the air," he said.

Fish said that typical of any recipient of a special use permit, the township would monitor the activities of El Elsie over

Local pharmacist leaves a legacy of care

■ Millard Uphaus dies at age 90.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Long a familiar face behind the drugstore counter in Manchester, Millard B. Uphaus died on Christmas Day while living at the Towsley Village in the Chelsea Retirement Center.

Mr. Uphaus was born Jan. 2, 1911 in Manchester, the son of Theodore and Mary (Walker) Uphaus. He graduated from Manchester High School in 1928. He married Lillian Swarhout in 1941 and she survives.

"A friend that worked with me was going with a Manchester man, a friend of Millard's," Lillian Uphaus recalls. "They are the ones who got us together."

"We went to Walled Lake dancing and it just went on from there. We were married 60 years last June."

The couple has one son,

Thomas, who is the pastor at Clinton United Church of Christ. He and his wife Charmaine settled in Clinton just last November after several years serving a church in Rochester, Minn.

"Thank goodness they came," Mrs. Uphaus said. "It was meant to be."

Millard Uphaus graduated from the University Of Michigan School Of Pharmacy in 1933 and was a member of the marching band at the university. He was a partner with Raynor Haeussler and then a sole owner of the Uphaus Rexall Drug Store in Manchester upon Haeussler's retirement.

June Jenter said that she has known Millard and Lillian Uphaus since her marriage 54 years ago. "They were older than we were," she recalled. "After we retired we took them on a trip. When Ron and I decided to go to Pennsylvania where a former minister was living at that time, we had a delightful trip."

"We planned a fall trip, so the roads wouldn't be so busy. They were great to travel with; they were always up and ready in the morning, and we had a delightful visit with the minister and his family."

"He was such a caring man who took care of all of us through many illnesses," said family friend Karen Dorff Paul.

"He'd do things very quietly," Lillian Uphaus said. "He never would have bragged about any of it. But he's been up to the drugstore for people at any hour of the night and he never turned anyone down."

"If they needed medicine and they didn't have any money, he would do things like that but he was very quiet about it."

Uphaus "retired" after 35 years when he sold the drugstore to Harry Krauss in 1969, but he remained a familiar face behind the pharmacy counter.

"Until Harry put in a computer, then he didn't work behind the medicine counter any more," Lillian Uphaus said. "But it was still his store, his child, you know, right up to the end."

After selling the store, Mr. Uphaus often tutored math at the high school.

He was also a member of Emanuel United Church of Christ, a life member of the Masonic lodge and charter member of both the Manchester Optimist Club and its predecessor, the Manchester Exchange Club.

In recent years he has served faithfully as a member of the Manchester Senior Citizens RSVP, the Manchester Fair Board and the Oak Grove Cemetery Board. In 1997, the couple was recognized by the senior citizens group for more than 20 years of faithful service to the program.

A stroke in January 1997 left Mr. Uphaus unable to continue many of the activities he enjoyed, but he continued to drive until his wife sold the car.

"As long as it was there, it was a temptation to him," she said with a chuckle.

Last December, while Mrs. Uphaus remained in their family home on Vernon Street, Millard moved to the Towsley Village residence in Chelsea, where he lived until his death.

"They've both lived a real full life," June Jenter commented. "And she's a very spry lady."

Approaching her 91st birthday, Lillian Uphaus continues to be active with the senior citizens and occasionally is caught walking to town, according to Jenter.

Memorials in the name of Millard Uphaus may be made to the Emanuel United Church of Christ endowment fund, Oak Grove Cemetery road fund, the University of Michigan School of Pharmacy or the Manchester Senior Citizens' meal program.

2002 is here — Pass the Cheez-its

Like everyone, I felt a certain amount of relief in bidding adieu to 2001. The recession, an anemic job market, Sept. 11, anthrax, fear, anxiety and mistrust—it's enough to give anyone the hangover of the millennium.

The new year represents symbolic new beginnings and a time to take stock, gauge the wind direction, and take steps in new directions. It's when everyone makes that resolution to lose weight, rebuild the old Mustang engine, paint the kitchen, run a marathon, get a better job, slow down, write poetry, and generally Become a Better Person.

Now, everybody knows resolutions are made to be broken: after all, the alarm still jars us from the warm bed, butter still makes it better, and the bills keep beating a path to the mailbox. The surest way to make God laugh, the saying goes, is to make a plan.

Perhaps that explains why Americans are hell bent on returning to the pre-Sept. 11 world of fluff and diversion. One need look no further than our local media standbys to find evidence. Jennifer Aniston and her hairdo are back front and center, named as one of People magazine's 25 Most Intriguing People.

WDIV, the Detroit NBC Affiliate, is now offering "Five days of Weak," or twice-a-day of the bottom feeder The Weakest Link Survivor is wrapping up its latest, um, adventure. And in perhaps the ultimate telling move, Time magazine nominated departed New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani as Person of the Year.

Not Osama, of course. Although he single-handedly (and literally) changed the world landscape in 2001, from a PR standpoint, Osama's a hard sell. Giuliani did a tremendous job holding together our largest and best city in its darkest hour, but to see him on that cover, with the skyline of the Big Apple looking uptown—not downtown, where the twin towers lie in ruins—suggests that as a nation we are too willing to try and block out our troubles.

Even though Sept. 11 occurred in a different calendar year, as a nation we are only 122 days removed from that fateful day.

We are still at war against an ill-defined enemy, in case anyone has noticed, and there are still plenty of people—al Qaeda and otherwise—that frankly hate our guts. Last week an intelligent, quiet, anti-social ninth grader flew a Cessna into the 28th floor of a Tampa, Fla. high-rise, apparently in a show of solidarity with bin Laden, for whom he felt "sympathy."

The point is that like it or not, the world is a very serious place now. As shocking and sickening as Sept. 11 was, considering the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, Oklahoma City in 1995, and the 1998 U.S. Embassy bombing in Kenya, it should not have been as big a surprise. Nor should it lead us to believe in a profile of a terrorist defined by head turbans, overgrown beards, and a skewed interpretation of Islamic scripture.

Timothy McVeigh, after all, was your garden-variety, paranoid white kid who distrusted the government and figured out how to make a fertilizer bomb. Or Mark Koernke? He urged radio listeners to shoot an assistant U.S. Attorney in 1998, and was arrested in 1997 for rifle-whipping two men serving him subpoena to testify in a murder trial. Koernke, a.k.a. Mark from Michigan, lives in Dexter.

Now that terrorism has found footing in this country, it's time for us to wake up and smell the coffee. It doesn't mean we have to give up all our guilty pleasures and walk around straight-lipped wearing gas masks—that would be the ultimate surrender to the bad guys. But it does mean that we all have a stake in creating a safer, saner world.

The passengers aboard United Flight 93, which crashed into a Pennsylvania field, took matters into their own hands, and probably averted a much worse tragedy. Likewise, we can all brush up on Middle Eastern history, report suspicious activities in the community and reach out to troubled kids in school.

That said, I offer my wishes for peace and a better 2002:

Here's to economic recovery. Many of my friends, to one extent or another, have felt the crunch of the recession. Still, when we joke that we are going out to "stimulate the economy," we are only half kidding. The present economic slowdown is worse for a fearful, tentative public.

Here's to Congress approving a comprehensive airport security bill, and soon. Even Michigan's $8 billion tourist industry has felt the crunch of Sept. 11.

Here's to deciding where to build a new Manchester High School. Political power struggles are getting in the way of educating the next generation of leaders.

Here's to teaching your children well. As the son of an educator, I know teachers receive too much of the blame for the failure to reach kids. When kids who have never been taught to value education arrive in the classroom, there's little a teacher can do. So parents, just once in a while, turn off the Play Station 2 and hand your child a book.

Here's to humor, tonic for the soul. Laughter is one of the healthiest things you can do, and is more important now than ever. For a good laugh and alternative angle for news coverage, may I suggest The Onion, a satirical weekly newspaper available online.

Here's to emerging from 2001 smarter and stronger.

Here's to loving the land. One of my favorite things about 2001 was growing vegetables in a tiny, carport plot. There is nothing more satisfying than growing and eating your own garden produce.

Here's to irony, once proclaimed dead.

Here's to learning one small thing this year about Islam, a peace-loving faith.

Here's to wishing someone "Happy New Year." Never have I heard this phrase less.

Holiday revelry doesn't live up to its name

Now that the Holidays are past, I can examine objectively the nature of my family's celebrations.

Revelry? No, but humor played a part. So did stoicism. I fear the pall of Murphy's Law that hovers over my every endeavor expanded to include those gathered near me for Christmas 2001.

My brother and his fiancée couldn't make it on December 25, but planned to arrive three days later from their New York state home. The Buffalo snow didn't impede them. Their trip was elongated, however, by repeated stops to accommodate the undeniable symptoms of an intestinal flu that hit en route. In fact, just a block from their destination in a nice neighborhood of Dearborn, they were pulling over and hanging heads low over the gutter.

My mother harbors hopes that her neighbors didn't recognize them. In case they did, I'm sure she'll inform everyone she meets that her son was genuinely ill, not merely suffering from early New Year's celebrations.

NANCY HEBB

Proving that misery indeed loves company, I traveled to meet them in Dearborn the next morning after a sleepless night. I'd convinced myself that the pain radiating from my rear molar into my sinus cavity was bearable for another 36 hours, at least until the family gathering passed. Finding the guests still abed when I arrived, I accepted my Dearborn dentist's offer to see me at 10 that very morn.

He scheduled a root canal for 1:15 p.m.

Early to bed and late to rise, the ailing couple exhibited less Grinch green and more elf-like rosy (i.e. flushed) complexions when they got up and refused breakfast. They rallied goodheartedly, hoping to at least remain upright for the family gift exchange, or most of it.

The bag of boxes grabbed by my brother as he left New York turned out not to be the presents for family, but those for friends. Now in addition to churning inwards, the couple worried about what, indeed, happened to the actual gifts. Their house is tiny, without many places for a big plastic bag to hide. Of course, big plastic bags figure prominently on trash day....

So between my two appointments, we all gave an admirable imitation of consciousness, enjoying through our pain Dad's infectious chuckles as he leafed through Santa's traditional gift of a Far Side calendar. Mom got consumables: wine, biscotti, nuts. She only accepts gifts that require neither dusting nor "putting away." Well, consumables only need to be "put away" once, one hopes.

Here's hoping that the only infectious thing floating through the air around us was Dad's laughter.

Needless to say, the planned holiday luncheon was nixed. After my long and uncomfortable endodontic appointment, I returned to find both generations of my family napping. So I headed home to Manchester.

On the following day, they all joined me out here and sort of enjoyed a meal at Dan's River Grill. The soup was about all the out-of-towners could approach with a positive attitude. My tooth agreed. At least the time indoors and hot tea or coffee helped thaw their poor toes, which had goodheartedly "enjoyed" a tour of the farm, barn, and environs that constitute my projects for the coming year.

In addition to battling the forces of nature, my poor brother and his fiancée had to hear repeated opinions on how there was no point in being engaged another few years, and why not tie the knot while all the family's still upright and breathing? My brother, romantic artist through and through, wants to be married in Greece, in a temple of Aphrodite. The rest of us think that would make a nice honeymoon trip, but the vows themselves could be more domestic.

At least we managed to see each other and visit a bit, and express hopes for the future. I quickly agreed when the bride-to-be joked that they could send their prospective offspring off to Aunt Nancy's farm for visits.

It wasn't a traditional Christmas. But family was the focus, and that's what counts. I hope the New Yorkers get home without too much trouble, and feel better soon.

In a few years this particular trip will make a great story. One they can tell their kids.

When do we cash in on interest rate cuts?

I really am wondering for whom the interest rates are going down?

After all the ballyhoo last year about the interest rate cuts, my credit card rate hasn't gone down and mortgage rates actually have gone up since mid-2001. Do I have to borrow a billion bucks to benefit from these "rate cuts?"

A recent report in the newspaper really had me close to tears. The 29 top executives from Enron Corporation told a judge that they would be humiliated if they had to return the money they made from cashing in their stock just a few weeks before many of the company's employees lost most of their retirement funds. It really is cruel to be a conniving executive.

A recent report on National Public Radio about the state of nursing, the many shortages and bleak outlook for having enough nurses in the future took me back to a thought when my ex-wife worked for St. Joe. I'm Catholic and I know the church has written and preached extensively about the dignity of the working man. However, most Catholic hospitals offer little or no retirement for their employees, including nurses. And if you even breathe a word about unionization, you'd better look out for your job. An inconsistency at best.

DAVID HELISEK

Am I wrong or not about the deal that television makers are about to try and foist upon us? I have read that we are all going to have to get new televisions in order to receive the signals that broadcasters want to use in the future. The term for the signal is high definition television, or HDTV. I will correct myself if I'm wrong about this.

Sometimes I really get confused about politics and how they work. For instance, I recently reheard a remark that President Bush had made in April of last year. The statement was that the budget surplus was the people's money and it should all be returned. Recently, though, we have again gone into deficit spending, and I haven't heard whose deficit it is.

As a matter of fact, I don't believe I ever heard all through the 80s and 90s about anybody not wanting federal money as we rang up trillions of dollars in debt. I could be wrong about that, though. Maybe the airlines will return some of their recently scooped-up $5 billion in bailout money now that we're running a deficit.

It does amaze me that within a week after Sept. 11 the airlines knew that they needed billions in federal money. Most companies take months to come up with accurate financial plans. Of course, the airlines first wanted about $40 billion, so getting just five was a bargain to us taxpayers.

P.S. Welcome back to work to Dr. Ginny Johnson. We all hope her recovery is speedy and successful!

Education savings plan reform becomes law

Improvements make state program more accessible.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Lieutenant Governor Dick Posthumus has signed legislation by state representative Gene DeRossett (R-Manchester) to reform the Michigan Education Savings Program.

"These changes substantially improve the program," DeRossett said. "They make the MESP more accessible and a better investment option."

"The number one issue is to see that each child in the state of Michigan gets a quality education. When people begin to save early for their children's education, then we need to encourage that process as much as we can."

"Michigan was rated as one of the top five education savings plans in the nation, but with federal tax code changes we need-to bring some of those into compliance."

Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus congratulates State Representative Gene DeRossett upon signing House Bill 5317 into law.

DeRossett added that the maximum balance for such savings plans was increased from $125,000 to $235,000.

House Bill 5317 changes the MESP to allow more flexibility and bring it into compliance with new federal laws. Currently, non-qualified withdrawals from the account are subject to a 10 percent penalty. HB 5317 reduces this to 10 percent of account earnings, giving financially strapped families more options in the event of a financial emergency.

The measure also redefines account owners to include tax-exempt foundations and allows owners to change their investment strategy once each year. There is a choice of three investment options, and the accounts are managed by TIAA-CREF.

The new program also allows parents, grandparents, relatives or friends to contribute as little as $25 to create an account to save for a child's higher education, or $15 through payroll deduction.

"Every child that has been prepared to pay for their own education from this savings plan frees up money for less fortunate individuals who might need financial aid," DeRossett said. "I look at it as a responsibility issue. Planning ahead, and investing ahead, for your child's future education is important."

Since the MESP started enrollment just a few years ago, more than 15,000 accounts have been opened with more than $30.5 million in investments.

Forms to initiate the MESP savings plan are available from any Secretary of State office, or contact your own bank, tax preparer or investment firm to start a plan.

"This plan needed to be in effect for the New Year," DeRossett said. "It's a timely piece of legislation."

Quarter design contest

Michigan citizens invited to submit design ideas.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

On Nov. 28, Governor John Engler announced the formation of the "Michigan Quarter Commission," which will organize and judge a statewide contest for Michigan residents to submit design ideas for the new state quarter.

The "50 State Quarters" program was launched in 1997 through congressional legislation. As the 26th state to join the Union, Michigan's quarter is expected to come out early in 2004.

"I hope this wonderful opportunity energizes people of all ages—students, teachers, parents, history buffs—to submit the ideas that best represent Michigan," says Governor John Engler.

Choosing one small design to represent the state may prove difficult, as automobiles, lighthouses, the Mackinac Bridge, Motown, and the Great Lakes all are well-known icons of the state of Michigan.

Citizens are invited to submit their design proposals via the internet, fax, or mail by Feb. 15. For submission guidelines and a downloadable template for your design, visit www.michigan.gov.

Dinosaurs galore are here

T-Rex and other friends to be featured in library workshops.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Stories and activities led by the University of Michigan's Exhibit Museum of Natural History staff will be part of a three part workshop held at the Manchester District Library for families with children ages 6 to 11.

The free workshops are open to Manchester District Library cardholders, who must be accompanied by an adult. The activities will be held in the Village Room, one floor below the library.

On this coming Saturday, "Dig Michigan!" will be the theme as families will hear a story about fossils, "dig up" and examine fossils, color Trilobite models and create their own museum-in-a-box.

On Feb. 9, families will hear a story about dinosaur detectives, then participate in activities to solve dinosaur mysteries, in "Fossils and Footprints."

"Paleo Puzzles" will be the theme for March 9's workshop as families learn to determine the age of a fossil, make an impression and work together to assemble wooden dinosaur skeletons.

The workshops will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. each month, and because there is limited participation based on space, pre-registration is required. Call 428-8045 to register your family.

Once families have learned all they can about dinosaurs at the Manchester District Library, they are invited to participate in Dinosaur Discovery Day at the Exhibit Museum in Ann Arbor. Explore dinosaurs and the world they lived in on a special day full of crafts, experiments and activities. No registration is required and the activities will occur all day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on March 16 at the Exhibit Museum.

Manchester Township master plan enters final stage of development

■ Planning commission to unveil draft of land use plan at next meeting.

By Sven Gustafson
Staff Writer

The Manchester Township Planning Commission's first meeting of 2002 discussing the final issues of its revised township master plan. The commission expects to have a draft of the plan ready at its Feb. 7 meeting.

The current township master plan was adopted in 1990.

Planning commissioners engaged in a roundtable discussion on the topic of industrial zoning at last week's meeting. Don Pennington, planning consultant to the township, taped a copy of the working land use map on the table facing the eight commissioners.

"Zoning does promote (industry) and the zoning will allow it to stand," he said. "You're looking at policies here. Simply by putting a dot there... you're making a policy statement."

Pennington added that industry should be located along major transportation corridors.

But the matter of determining where to locate both industrial and commercial zoning is a complicated one. Because the planning commission has stated its preference for clustering such development, the scale of future developments may dictate the necessity of sewer, water, and gas line infrastructure.

"In some respects, we're spinning our wheels with our commercial and industrial," noted commissioner Jim Samonek. He pointed out the township has no sewer system, and because the village would prefer to annex any parcels it must tie into its own sewer system, the township would lose tax base to the village.

"In the past, that's how we've worked with Manchester Township, but it's been a good working relationship," agreed Village Manager Jeff Wallace. "It works best for the township and the village."

Wallace added the village council would be open to discussing other options with the township.

Asked about Samonek's comment, planning commission chair John Schmitt said, "With pretty much every municipality, that's their rule."

Planning commissioners also expressed concerns that current industrial areas are too spread out and dominate the village outskirts along nearly every major thoroughfare. They said businesses like the Manchester Stamping Corporation and C&L Recycling, both located on West Austin Road, occupy prime township locations on roads feeding motorists into the village.

"It's a balance between where industrial is located and can be serviced, and what's happened so far leaves something to be desired," vice chair Paul Siano summarized.

Siano also expressed concern over establishing zoning for heavy industrial, saying the commission needed to take a more proactive approach.

But Pennington said the commission needed to clearly define the term industry and outline what types it wants to zone for. He said his thought was that it be "very light industry leaning toward technology."

"You do not have to provide for every type of land use in the township," he said.

The commissioners abandoned thoughts of clustering industrial zoning along US-12, instead focusing on the M-52 corridor south of Manchester village limits. There, they examined an inverted triangle-shaped parcel defined by Logan and Sooten roads and the village boundary near the River Raisin reservoir. The parcel is approximately 120 acres.

In the end, Schmitt removed a lone red dot from the west side of Sooten Road with a pocketknife. Each red dot represents five acres of commercial zoning.

He then added five green dots, representing five-acre industrial-zoned lots, to the 120-acre parcel.

"The decision in my mind is already made," he said. "We can argue whether we want 20 acres or 40 acres or 80. That's the only argument we've got left."

"We've talked so much about establishing the character of the community," Pennington said. "You made the decisions based on the character of the community."

Pennington will bring a map back as a draft to the Feb. 7 meeting.

Due to several announced absences, planning commissioners voted unanimously to cancel its Jan. 17 meeting. The next meeting will be at 8:00 p.m. on Feb. 7 at Manchester Township Hall.

SANDRA LEE STEMEN

Age 58, beloved wife and mother, died Jan. 5, 2002 at the Chelsea Community Hospital. She was born Dec. 3, 1943 in Wayne, the daughter of Delbert and Louise (Birnbaum) Johnson. On Feb. 13, 1962 in Saline she married Milton E. Stemen and he survives. She had been a Saline resident for 35 years before moving to Manchester in 1997. She was a member of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Saline.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, include three children, Rodney (Dianne) Stemen and grandsons, Blake and Travis, of Montana; Stephanie (Matt) Seidl and grandsons, Derek and Tony of Dexter; and Timothy Stemen and Pamela Malocha of Manchester; two brothers, Eric (Jackie) Johnson and Robert (Sandy) Johnson; two sisters, Susan (William) Johnson and Linda Johnson. She is also survived by several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents and one brother, Gerald Johnson.

Funeral services were held on Jan. 9, 2002 at 11:00 a.m. at the Robison-

Bahn Miller Funeral Home in Saline with the Rev. William F. Natis officiating. Memorial contributions may be made to the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church in Saline or to the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan chapter.

ARLENE M. CLASSON

Arlene Marie Classon, age 65 of Leesburg, Fla., died on Dec. 23, 2001 after a brief but brave battle with cancer.

She was born Nov. 29, 1936 in Wyandotte, the daughter of Joseph and Agnes (Mourski) McCrea. She moved to Leesburg from Chelsea in 1994.

Mrs. Classon was a member of St. James Episcopal Church in Leesburg, an active member of the national sorority of Beta Sigma Phi and a retired teacher. She earned a degree from Eastern Michigan University after raising her three children. She also did volunteer work for Angel Flight and was a part of a singing group that visited hospitals and nursing homes in the Leesburg area.

She loved gardening and many kinds of crafts. She also loved to travel, go to the zoo and to Disney World.

Mrs. Classon is survived by her husband David C. Classon of Leesburg; a son, David F. Classon of Huntington, Ind.; daughter Brenda (George) Macomber and their two children Garrett and Caroline of Manchester; and daughter Jennifer (Matt) Shiver of Cumming, Ga. She also welcomed the addition of two granddaughters and two great grandchildren when David married his wife Connie and four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren when Brenda married George. Also surviving are her brothers John Henry of Taylor, Robert McCrea of Riverview, and Richard McCrea of Seabrook, Texas.

She was preceded in death by one grandson in 1994.

Funeral services were held in Leesburg and visitation was held at the Jenter and Braun Funeral Home, Manchester Chapel on Jan. 2. She was laid to rest on Jan. 4 after a committal service at Michigan Memorial Park in Flat Rock.

time. Fish said he has seen the facility.

Sensoli said the company is working with a number of pharmaceutical companies, but declined to name any, explaining GeneWorks is "under confidentiality."

Betsy Raymond, a spokeswoman for pharmaceutical manufacturer Pfizer, which employs over 3,000 people at its Ann Arbor campus, said the company is not involved in the technology, but is keeping tabs on it.

"I would characterize it as one of many new things that we are monitoring," she said. "This is an exciting time in discovering new medicines."

In fact, chicken eggs are only one part of the transgenics puzzle. Plants and mammals, such as corn and goats, are also used as hosts for human DNA.

Avian transgenics is still considered an alternative, if commercially unproven, field of biomanufacturing. The egg process is touted as a cheaper way to produce large quantities of pharmaceutical-grade proteins than traditional methods, which involve mixing chemicals or building large bioreactors. But critics cite concerns over contamination, a lack of regulatory rules, and potential ethical and social questions raised by genetic modification.

Sensoli said there is a difference between raising genetically modified chickens for food, and raising them for pharmaceutical uses. He hopes people see the difference.

"They're more against it in the food-supply thing," he said. "That's not our business."

Sensoli mused it might take $100 million to build a bioreactor that gets online in five years. A chicken farm, on the other hand, may take only $3 million to build and one year to get online. And he said chickens produce pharmaceutical protein at less than a hundredth of the cost.

"There's not enough space or money on earth to do this," he said, "so people look to Mother Nature. Nature makes proteins very inexpensively."

Asked to forecast the annual amount GeneWorks would save manufacturing and marketing all 15 drugs currently under development, Sensoli guessed

"hundreds of millions or low billions" of dollars.

The idea of utilizing human DNA for medicine dates back as far as 1976, with the founding of Genentech, a San Francisco-area company that pioneered the science of recombinant DNA technology.

They produced the first human protein in a microorganism in 1977, and later cloned human insulin. By 1982, Genentech marketed it as the first recombinant drug, licensing it to the Eli Lilly pharmaceutical company.

Sensoli said transgenics technology has been practiced for nearly a decade with goats. He said six or seven companies in the world now use chickens, with another three using cows, goats and sheep.

To date, GeneWorks has raised about $18.5 million from outside investors, and has no further plans to pursue funding.

The total cost of the current facility, including costs of the land, equipment, and barn construction, was $700,000.

One thing for certain is that the market for biomanufacturing is growing rapidly. A recent study in Genetic Engineering News stated that the market reached $1 billion in 2000. According to a recent estimate by Viragen, Inc., a Florida company involved in avian transgenics, ten cell-derived antibodies to date have been approved by the FDA, and are expected to generate over $2 billion annually. By the decade's end, the market is forecast to reach $24 billion.

Viragen announced the production of what director of communications Doug Calder called "the first clinically relevant and functional" human antibody using chicken cells to treat melanoma on Oct. 3, 2001.

GeneWorks is seeking a patent for making birds that lay eggs with pharmaceutical products contained in the egg whites. Sensoli, who called the technology "pretty complex," said the company would look toward educating the public after receiving the patent.

"As things unravel more, as we get the product out there, we'll probably do more," he said.

make a motion to authorize the superintendent to begin negotiations with the Beueries."

During the closed session which followed Okey's motion the board discussed how much acreage it would consider purchasing, as well as a proposed price for the property, according to Oegema. But when the board emerged from closed session after about an hour, there were no motions made nor any action taken.

"We're hoping to have something to bring back to the board for the regularly scheduled Jan.

21 meeting," Oegema said.

At the meeting, Oegema indicated that the board was aware the recommended amount of property for purchase was "at least 40 acres." Although current drawings provided by the architects included 30 to 35 acres, he explained that the drawings were used for cost comparison purposes. He also stressed that the board will not "discard" any property until it makes a deal.

On Tuesday morning, Oegema said the board has moved on to discussing electricity, mechanical systems and other details of construction.

"We're moving ahead," he said.

Consumers Energy offers PeopleCare program

For Michigan families on the edge of survival, the slowing economy means even more pressure on their already shaky finances. These families know that an unexpected layoff, a cut in pay or hours, or even a trip to the emergency room with a sick child can derail their efforts to build a better life.

Usually, they can make ends meet and stay self-sufficient with only a little bit of help: A bag of groceries. Some medicine. A tank of gas so they can get to a new job.

Consumers Energy and The Salvation Army created the PeopleCare program to provide that help.

PeopleCare helped more than 15,000 families across the state last year, providing food, shelter, clothing, and other emergency aid. As it has in the past, Consumers Energy is providing $1.5 million in energy bill credits for 2002. The Salvation Army determines eligibility for energy bill credits and other help and distributes the aid.

Consumers Energy customers can help make PeopleCare work for families in need by checking a box at the top of their January energy bills.

Customers may donate $1 a month or make a one-time donation of $5. Larger contributions may be sent to:

PeopleCare
P.O. Box 24121
Lansing, Mich. 48909-4121

"PeopleCare began in 1983 with a simple goal: Help people in need," said Carl English, Consumers Energy's president and chief executive officer. "Over the past 18 years, PeopleCare has helped more than 245,000 people with quick direct assistance.

"Consumers Energy and its 8,700 employees are proud to be part of PeopleCare and help people in need in our communities."

The Salvation Army is one of the oldest nonprofit organizations providing social service assistance in the United States. Its expertise in screening applicants and process aid was among the reasons that led Consumers Energy to team up with it for PeopleCare.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, is Michigan's largest utility providing natural gas and electricity to more than six million of the state's nearly 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

FREEDOM TOWNSHIP SYNOPSIS OF REGULAR BOARD MEETING DECEMBER 11, 2001, 8:00 P.M. AT FREEDOM TOWN HALL

At 7:00 PM the Township held its first "History Open House." The open house was attended by approximately 50 residents. There were a wealth of materials, genealogies, and pictures related to the Township.
A good time was had by all. The Open House lasted until approximately 9:30PM.

1. The regular Board meeting of Freedom Township was called to order by Supervisor Little. Clerk Schenk, Deputy Treasurer Judy Anthony, Trustees Horning and Weidmayer were present as well as several residents at 8:00PM. Treasurer Steve Anthony was absent.
*Non-voting member
2. Schenk moved to accept the corrected minutes of November 13, 2001 and to receive and file the Treasurer's report, Little seconded. A roll call vote resulted in all ayes, motion carried.
3. Audience Participation - Judy Anthony asked about hail rental and how "resident" was defined.
4. Reports: Planning Commission-A public hearing was held on a riparian ordinance and also about the definition of a corner lot. The regular meeting followed the hearing. All amendments passed unanimously. The Township Board will have to approve the changes at the next meeting. They discussed the Kuebler pit. They reviewed a copy of the Bridgewater Twp Junk ordinance. Bridgewater's ordinance is a general ordinance. Freedom has a junk ordinance in the zoning ordinance. The next Planning Commission meeting is January 15, 2002. The annual recap from the PC was available. Zoning Board of Appeals did not have a meeting. Ordinance Enforcement Officer-The owner of the junk cars requested until January. The OEO is working on other junk cars. The OEO was requested to monitor the Kuebler pit for excavation. The pit is not to be mined until the Township receives a letter from Stuart, and a 50,000 line of credit from the new operator. Zoning Inspector-1 permit was issued last month. A county Soil Erosion meeting was attended by Larry Lindemann and Bob Little. Question on Barackman land combination-referred Z and to Dick Steffans at Washtenaw County Equalization. Library-Diane Horning reported 200+ new memberships since July, and over 100 renewals. January 4 & 18 will have story hour for children. They are starting book discussions. History Project is still happening! Thank you Bob Miller for organizing it.
5. Old Business: We are still waiting on a furnace quote from Brooklyn & Brian Koch. The latest is from Wahi-$5,300. Parking lot sealer-noting new to report.

Computer whiz Adam Knapp on his own

Local teen passes first-level technology certification.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Manchester High School senior Adam Knapp has done something that many adults and college graduates have a difficult time doing.

And he did it on his own efforts.

Washtenaw Community College currently offers a series of three, 12-session online courses to prepare for the A+ certification test, which is the first level of certification in the technology industry.

Knapp, 17, prepared for the test on his own as an independent study for high-school credit, and passed the certification on his first attempt Jan. 3.

"This certifies that Adam knows core computer hardware and current operating systems," said Theresa Schenk, the finance director for Manchester Community Schools. "I think we should be very proud of him—as a high school senior, he passed a test that many adults could not pass!"

Last summer and during the school year, Knapp worked for Tina Maly, the technology director at Manchester High School, doing some troubleshooting and was instrumental in helping wipe out an insidious virus that plagued the school computers at the beginning of the school year.

Asked what made him decide to pursue the A+ certification, Knapp said that getting better at skills he already had learned and gaining some credibility in his chosen field were motivations.

"I thought it would be interesting because I've always been interested in computers," he said. "And I knew it would give me some credibility, so I wouldn't be just a kid with interest in computers."

Knapp recalled discovering some training software for the 1998 standard at the school and he then learned there is a newer, 2001 standard.

"It's a 1,200-page book with accompanying software," he said. "I took it as an independent study, and self-paced myself through the book and the CDs. Mr. (Mark) West is grading me on this as a class."

"I went through and read all the material and watched an instructor on the CD. Afterwards, I took the test."

The test is computerized and done through a central testing center. It's an adaptive test where each question indicates a level of knowledge, and all succeeding questions also are based on the level of knowledge displayed by the test taker.

"Your score is ultimately based on a prediction," Knapp said. "Once you've scored enough, they can say you have passed the test."

The test can be anywhere from 20 to 30 questions long, selected from a larger pool of questions. As soon as the test taker has scored adequate points, the test tells him he is done and feeds out the score.

Knapp's score was 792 in operating systems and 801 on hardware, out of 1,300 points in each test. A passing score is at least a 600 on operating systems and 596 on the hardware.

"I was actually kind of surprised by some of the questions," Knapp said. "The test is designed to simulate what a good computer technician would know after 6 months of on-the-job training. The test maker provides more of a troubleshooting based test, but the ones I found more difficult were the rote memorization questions."

"It's a combination—what you should know, but it's also a very in-depth test, with two facets. The test incorporates everything a technician would do, from installing a hard drive to getting rid of a virus on a system."

Knapp is a man with a plan, and this step is the first part of his plan.

"I want to establish some credibility as far as my abilities in the computer field," he said. "It also will provide a lot more opportunities for summer jobs in that type of employment."

Knapp is active in maintaining the school's website and also is one of the co-editors of the student-run newspaper, Manchester Maelstrom. He is the treasurer of both Student Council and National Honor Society and the secretary of the Spanish club.

He is the captain of the varsity quiz bowl team for the third straight year and has participated in the English Essay and Social Studies Academic Games teams. Last spring, he was selected as a member of the Washtenaw Area Regional All Star Team for quiz bowl for the second straight year. In the fall, Knapp plays on the high school golf team.

He already is accepted at the University Of Michigan School Of Engineering, where he hopes to pursue Electrical Engineering.

Adam is the son of Mary Knapp of Manchester and was selected as the May Student of the Month by the Manchester Optimist Club.

During Coming Home week

last year, he was selected as the Student Leader of Tomorrow by the faculty and staff at Manchester High School. Outside of school, Knapp is active at Bethel United Church of Christ where he sings in the Youth Choir Plus and is an active member of the youth group. He also has played piano for ten years.

He enjoys downhill skiing, swimming and relaxing with his friends.

Schenk has high praise for Knapp's achievement.

"He is a fine example for the value of a combination of practical experience with the student's interest and abilities," she said.

"We're all very proud of him."

Thyroid disorder support

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Heritage Newspapers

Thyroid problems affect at least 5 percent of the population (10-13 million people) that are diagnosed and treated. The Michigan Thyroid Disorder Support Group is four years old and has grown to almost 500 members in the state of Michigan.

Did you know:

* An infant can be born hypothyroid and never be diagnosed.

* An ADHD child can have symptoms exacerbated by hypothyroidism.

* Postmenopausal women may develop hypothyroidism.

* Many males and females in the general population may seek help for undiagnosed thyroid symptoms.

Thyroid disorder is a silent taker of joy and happiness in one's life. It is rarely properly diagnosed. One can live a lifetime and suffer the severe consequences that a lack of thyroid hormone can produce in the body.

Tracy Green having experienced the devastating symptoms of Hypothyroidism, started The Michigan Thyroid Disorder Support Group so that others would not have to suffer unnecessarily. The support group reaches out to all thyroid patients (Hypo or Hyperthyroidism) in addition to any suspected thyroid patients during the whole year.

January is Thyroid Awareness Month. This is a national campaign led by the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists.

Endocrinologists are physicians that specialize in treating the endocrine glands. Their motto for the January campaign is "The Neck's Time is Now—Think Thyroid!"

Visit their site at: <http://www.aace.com/pub/tam2001/index.php>

One coaching position remains open

Athletic Director Wes Gall announced that all winter coaching positions have been filled and one opening remains for spring coaches.

Kathy Fusilier of Manchester will be the seventh-grade girls' volleyball coach as the season begins this week. For spring season, Manchester resident Tim Amburgey has been named the junior varsity baseball coach, and Amy Gall the junior varsity softball coach. Gall said the district is still seeking a varsity softball coach.

Defibrillator fund-raising program making progress

Upon receipt of a $3,000 gift from the Manchester Athletic Boosters, the athletic department's goal of obtaining four to six automatic external defibrillators is well under way.

A total of $5,200 has been donated at this time and a golf outing is being planned for late spring or early summer. This fund-raiser also will benefit the defibrillator effort.

Teams do well in holiday tournaments

The wrestling team attended two tournaments over the holiday break and brought home a third-place trophy from the Morenci tournament and finished sixth in the Montrose tournament, with only eight wrestlers participating.

The varsity volleyball team made it into the semi-finals at the Saline varsity volleyball tournament Saturday, but fell short in the last round.

The boys' basketball teams participated in the Chelsea tournament on Dec. 27 and 28. Freshman and junior varsity teams lost in the first-round games against Milford on Thursday, but both defeated Milan teams in the consolation matches on Friday.

The varsity team made it to the finals, beating Milford on Thursday but falling in a close game to Milan on Friday.

Details on wrestling and basketball are in this week's issue and volleyball results will appear in next week's issue.

Adult co-ed volleyball to begin Jan. 22

The Manchester volleyball league meets on Tuesdays at the Nellie Ackerson Middle School gym. This is a recreational "B" League for men and women 18 years and older in good physical condition.

Team captains and those wishing to form or join new teams must attend a registration meeting at 7 p.m. on Jan. 22 at the middle school. Teams returning from the previous league will have priority if more than six teams register.

For more information, see the community education brochure or contact Julie Morgan at 428-1937.

Wrestlers come home heavy-handed

■ Earnest effort results in medals and trophies.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

Associate Editor

During the long holiday break, the Manchester wrestling team fared well in two different tournaments.

The first trip took the team to Montrose where they brought home a sixth-place finish out of ten teams, despite taking only eight wrestlers along.

"All eight kids wrestled really hard," Manchester coach Steve Vlcek said. "We were 2-3 on the day, defeating Birch Run and Burton."

The team's losses were to tough teams from Union City and Durand and another good team from Yale.

Freshman James Tobias had a good day, facing his toughest competition of the year and going 4-1 on the day with four pins. Dan Fleck had three wins, one by a pin and James Meyer matched Fleck's record.

Junior Josh Tobias went undefeated for the day with an impressive 5-0 record, including two pins. Senior Russ also went undefeated for the day and collected three pins.

"Both Josh and Russ received first place medals," Vlcek said.

Sophomore Josh Knouse won three matches, facing some good competition. Two of his wins were by pin.

"Austin Scott had one of the tougher days," Vlcek said. "There were several state qualifiers in his class, and Austin won one match by a pin, but wrestled hard all day."

Todd Canter went 3-2 for the day with two pins, running his record to 9-5, and seven of his wins being pins.

Last Saturday the team traveled to Morenci.

"We knew this would be one of our easiest tournaments," Vlcek said. "The eight kids we took down were all focused and it showed as we took home our second trophy of the year."

The team achieved a third-place ranking out of ten teams, with all eight wrestlers receiving a medal for their efforts.

"This was great for some of our young and less experienced kids," Vlcek said.

James Tobias tore through the tournament with three first-period pins, bringing his record to 22-2. Fleck's first high school career medal was a well-deserved third place finish.

"Dan has really improved over last year," Vlcek said, "as his 16-8 record shows."

Meyer also took home a third-place medal with two pins for the day's effort and an exciting overtime win over an Onsted wrestler, bringing his record to 14-12.

"That kid was hot on our tails trying to get that third place trophy," Vlcek said.

Cruz brought home a second place medal after losing to a state qualifier from Quincy in the final rounds.

"Russ was leading until a little mistake," Vlcek said. "Russ now has a 17-6 record with 12 pins."

Josh Tobias went 2-1 on the day, losing in the finals to a tough senior from Clinton. His season record stands at 21-3.

"That kid was a state qualifier from last year," Vlcek said. "Josh really impressed me battling all six minutes (of the round) before losing 14-2."

Knouse also went 2-1 for the day, losing in the finals to last year's state runner-up. His record stands at 19-5 with 11 pins.

Scott also obtained his first high school career medal with a fourth place finish and a 12-12 season record. Eight of his wins were by pin.

"He had to win a last-second match to get into the medal round," Vlcek said. "Austin is one of our most improved wrestlers, gaining more and more confidence each week."

"Senior Alex Kormendi, returning from a vacation, didn't show much rust," Vlcek said. "He pinned all three of his opponents on his way to the championship."

"Alex has an impressive 14-1 record with 11 pins."

Saturday, the team travels to Clinton where they will see four or five state-ranked teams.

"This will really be a test for our kids as we face some of the best in the state," Vlcek said.

Wrestling will begin at 10 a.m. at Clinton High School.

Hoop tournaments successful for Dutch Varsity splits in holiday games

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

Associate Editor

The varsity team came out on top against Class A Milford in the first round of play at Chelsea's holiday tournament Dec. 27 and 28.

With a score of 61-50, Manchester coach Bryan Barnard says the team "gained some respect," not only from other teams but also toward themselves.

"We played really well in that game," Barnard said. "We were patient. We got the ball inside."

"To beat a Class A school with about 1800 kids, when we have about 350, says a lot for us."

In the fourth quarter the Dutch outscored Milford 21-11, and the team also did well from the free throw line throughout the game, shooting 20 of 29 from the line.

The game had standout performances from several Dutchmen. Nick Strobl led in scoring and rebounds with 18 points and 10 rebounds. Karl Schaible followed up with 15 points.

"Karl had a game that really stands out," Barnard said. "He only missed one shot—he was five for five from the floor and five for six from the free throw line. He also had four assists and two steals."

"It was a great game for him; he also played really good defense."

Brent Leverett scored eight points and led in assists with five. Mike Walter and Jon Schaible each scored seven points and Jacob Sawyer dunked in six points. Sawyer also led the team with three steals.

"It was a big win for us," Barnard said. "It was nice to get that win."

In Friday's championship round against Milan, however, the Dutch ran out of gas, falling to the Big Reds 49-60.

"They were a little bit bigger, physically, than we are, but that's not an excuse," Barnard said. "They got a lot of easy rebound put-backs; that made it hard on us."

"We worked really hard and then they would get two or three shots on their end of the court. It was hard to keep up." But Barnard was proud of his team's effort.

"Going into that tournament we were by far the smallest school there (of Chelsea, Milan and Milford)," he said. "It was a good thing to play for all of our teams—that kind of competition is good."

Barnard added that the score actually was a little closer than the final tally showed.

"At the end we had to foul them," he said. "But it was a one-point game at one time in the fourth quarter. For a bigger school, we played well but we ran out of gas at the end."

Leverett led the scoring with 18 that night, followed by Strobl, who again led in rebounds with nine and had a 10-point share of the final score. Walter with eight points, Karl Schaible with seven, Sawyer with five and Aaron LaRock with one rounded out the scoring.

"Brent had a nice game," Barnard said. "He got tired toward the end because he was in there so much."

"We pretty much depend on him to do a lot, and he did a good job for us."

Leverett led in assists with four and also had three steals in the Milan game.

Barnard credited Mike Walter with a quiet leadership in the game.

"Mike also played real well defensively and he had a good game all around, too," he said. "He had two assists and two steals in addition to his eight points."

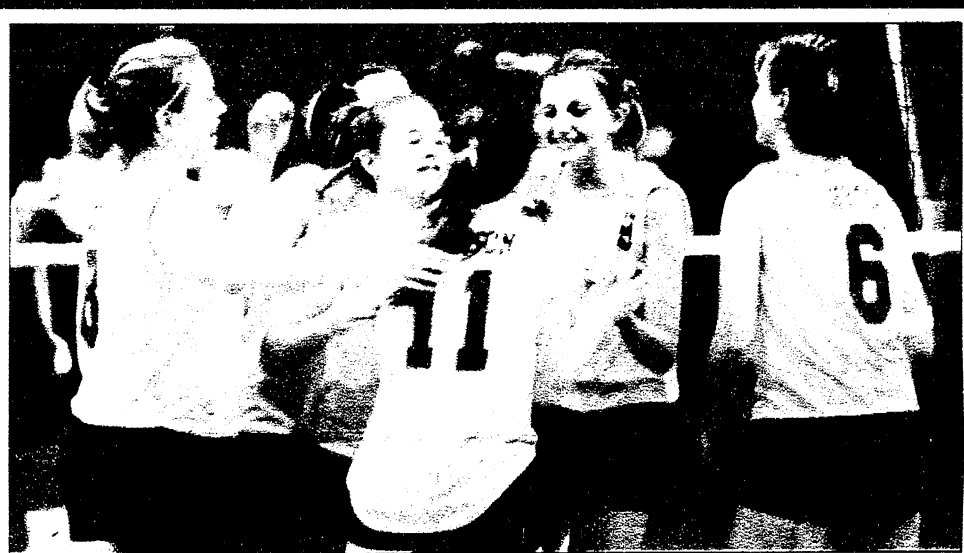

Strobl and Sawyer both had a good game on the glass.

The Dutch hosted Stockbridge on Tuesday and head to Michigan Center tomorrow night.

Barnard isn't sure what to expect from the Cardinals. "Last year they were .500 in the league," he said. "That's not bad; and playing on the road is always tough."

"We've just gotta be aware of it and we have to win one game at a time."

Volleyball victory

Dutch volleyball players rejoice after eliminating Warren Woods from pool play in last weekend's Saline varsity tournament. The Dutch lost in the semi-final round but gained experience in each game.

JV victorious in consolation

In the last game before holiday break, the Junior Dutch overran the East Jackson Trojans 82-26 on Dec. 21.

"Our press was effective in the first quarter," said Manchester coach Corey Fether. "It got us off to a big lead and then we beat them up and down the court."

As the Dutch forced 36 turnovers in the game, the Trojans struggled against both the Dutchmen's offensive and defensive play.

Leading Manchester was Dan Schulte with 17 points. Two other Dutch players scored in double digits as Jeff Miller contributed 14 points and Craig Lane had 11.

Ryan Hendricks led the team in rebounding with 10, and added nine points to the Dutch score. Mike Coval also scored nine points during the game.

Rodney Posky had six points, while Mike Taddonio dunked in five points. Lance Aiken, Dave Evilsizer and Jason Lindemann contributed five, three and three points respectively.

In a game where the home team held a commanding lead, Fether said that it was rewarding to see every player get plenty of playing time.

The Chelsea tournament Dec.

27 and 28 let the junior varsity show their mettle against bigger schools.

On Thursday, the team played Milford, losing 69-45.

"We were still on Christmas break," Fether said. "We only shot 25 percent from the floor."

The team got off to a good start in the first quarter with an 18-9 lead, but fell apart in the second quarter. A second-half rally failed to bring the Dutchmen the victory they had hoped for.

"We were disappointed, because we thought we had a good chance of playing in the championship game on Friday," Fether said of the team's first defeat. "That second quarter just killed us."

Jeff Miller led the team in scoring with 11 points. Posky added nine points and 10 rebounds and Lane scored eight points and grabbed four rebounds.

Schulte scored six points with seven rebounds and three steals; while Coval scored six points. Hendricks and Lindemann each scored two and Evilsizer added one point and four rebounds.

Friday the team made a spectacular comeback, beating Milan in the consolation finals 72-44 with a large number of turnovers caused by the Dutch press.

"The score was fairly close in the first quarter until Dave Evilsizer hit three three-pointers to build our lead," Fether said. "Everyone woke up after that."

And the Dutchmen never looked back. Five team members scored in double digits, led by Coval's 17 points. Evilsizer scored 12 points and had four steals. Miller and Hendricks each scored 11 and Hendricks contributed five rebounds and three blocks. Schulte was the final double-digit scorer with 10 points and five rebounds.

Lane added seven points; Lindemann and Posky each had two. Lance Aiken had six rebounds, three assists and five steals.

In each game so far, Fether has been pleased with the contributions from all of his players.

"We've had a different leading scorer in just about every game we've played," he said.

Tomorrow the team travels to Michigan Center.

Asked his prediction about Friday night's game, Fether said, "It's a conference game. All conference games are tough; we just have to be ready to play."

Frosh getting good experience in early season play

■ Team is 4-1 for season, undefeated in conference play.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

Associate Editor

The freshman basketball team, coached by Jim Krzyzaniak, played three games during the holiday break, coming out with two wins in non-conference games.

On Dec. 21, the frosh met a small Jonesville team and came out with a 71-41 victory.

"Jonesville had only six kids on their team," Krzyzaniak said. "It was a good opportunity for all of my kids to play, and all 10 played very well."

"In particular, I liked the contributions of Mark Trinkle, Eric Strong and Dan Randall. All three of them got some valuable playing time in this game."

Brett Melcher led the team in scoring with 22 points, followed by Andrew Little with 10 and Tom Breilein with eight points. Leading rebounders were Breilein with seven and Strong with six, while Melcher grabbed five steals and R.J. Layher got four.

With a 3-0 record after this game, the freshmen headed to Chelsea for the invitational tournament on Dec. 27 with confidence.

There they met Class A Milford and put in a respectable effort, but fell 65-52 in the final score.

"To be honest, I really believe we outplayed them and outworked them, but we just couldn't make any shots," Krzyzaniak said. "And we only shot 14 of 41 from the free throw line."

That poor percentage made the difference in the game.

Leading scorer was Andrew Way with 12 points, while Randall and Layher each had eight. Breilein contributed eight rebounds and five steals.

"We bounced back really well on Friday," Krzyzaniak said as the team turned around and ousted Milan in the consolation game with a 79-42 score.

"Again, I was able to play all ten players and they got some very valuable playing time," he added. "Milan is also a bigger school than we are and I am pleased with (the team's) effort."

Layher topped the scoring in the Milan game with 20 points, followed by two more double-digit scorers. Little with 15 and Way with 10. Leading rebounders were Breilein with eight and Way and Bergner each had five. Melcher and Mike Tremblay also contributed five steals each.

With a record of 4-1, the Dutch will meet the Stockbridge Panthers on Tuesday at home and travel to Addison on Friday. Games begin at 4 p.m.
