Hats off to the graduating class of 2002

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

As the graduating class of 2002 waved goodbye to Manchester High School Sunday, several new alumni took an extra boost from area businesses, organizations, and residents.

The "most highly decorated" class in the recent history of Manchester High School also earned a host of awards at the honors banquet on May 23.

Valedictorians Aaron LaRock, Adam Knapp, Jacob Geyer, Kristi Trinkle and Annie Wiley shared a 4.0 cumulative grade point average and also shared this year's Nellie Ackerson Valedictorian Scholarships with each earning $500 awards.

"It is because of our parents, our teachers, our friends and families that the Manchester High School Class of 2002 possesses such an outstanding degree of success," Trinkle said in her valedictory address. "We as the Class of 2002 have a lot to be proud of. We proved ourselves academically and are now ready to lead the way towards a brighter future."

Justin Henderson, the class salutatorian, received the Luther Kluge Scholarship, presented by the Manchester Optimist Club.

John and Susan Ochs award the Agricultural Success Scholarship to a senior who plans to pursue a career in agriculture. Yvonne Lowell received the award this year.

Three graduates received the Manchester Community Scholarship, a 20-year-old award given by the Student Council through donations from area businesses and individuals. Donors to this scholarship fund included Premier Contracting, Mann Real Estate, Emanuel UCC youth group, Kiwanis of Manchester, Manchester United Methodist Church, St. Mary's Catholic Church, Pilot Industries, Manchester Veterinary Clinic, the Manchester Enterprise, MEA-WLEA and Manchester Student Council. Mike Walter, Karl Schaible and William Brinkman each received $500 awards for their scholastic efforts.

Board trustee Polly Deacons was selected by the Hagerman family to present the second annual Robert J. Hagerman Memorial Scholarship to Kristi Trinkle. This scholarship was established last year in memory of Robert Hagerman, by his family. He believed strongly in the value of community service, which was the main criterion in the selection process.

The Manchester Manor Scholarship, provided by the Bartlett and Antonelli families for a student pursuing a college education in business, was awarded to Ashley Schlosser.

Four graduating seniors received the Manchester Athletic Booster Scholarships. Brie Hyde, Jennifer Schulte, Aaron LaRock and Karl Schaible were each awarded $750 scholarships given to athletes whose parents are members of the Manchester Athletic Boosters. Natalie Weidmayer was named Ms. Dutch and Karl Schaible, Mr. Dutch, for their representation of the spirit of athletics both on and off the field throughout their high school careers.

The second annual Manchester High School Alumni Scholarship was presented by Guy Little and awarded to Ashley Schlosser and Jennifer Schulte. The Manchester Alumni Association made its selection based on need, scholastic achievement and community service. Schlosser and Schulte received $400 each as the scholarship fund has grown significantly in its second year.

The Class of 2002 shows their high spirits as they are pronounced official graduates of Manchester High School. The class, with an overall GPA of 3.01, is one of the most academically successful groups of graduates in recent history.

NEWS BRIEFS

Fly the flag proudly this summer

Manchester American Legion Post 117 has donated a new American flag to be flown in front of the Manchester Township Hall and Fire Department. The members of Post 117 are proud to support local volunteer fire fighters and their support crews.

Anyone who wishes to purchase an American flag for their home, business or organization, please call the local Legion at 428-8500.

A four-by-six foot nylon flag is only $23 and is exceptional quality. Cotton flags also are available as well as nylon flags in smaller sizes.

Planning commission seeks members

Due to a pair of recent resignations, the Manchester Village Planning commission is looking to fill two seats on its nine-member panel. The commission is working on an updated general development plan and a new annexation proposal to expand village boundaries.

The planning commission meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month. Interested parties should contact village manager Jeff Wallace at 428-7877.

School election set for Monday

The annual school election will be held on Monday with polls open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Manchester Area Fitness Facility, located behind the high school parking lot.

Absentee voter ballot applications are available at Manchester Community Schools' central administration offices, from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. On Saturday, June 8, the office will be open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. for application and ballot pickup and return.

"A Gathering of Gardens" tour set

Six local gardens will be featured on a tour around the Manchester area on July 13.

The tour, sponsored by the 20th Century Club, will also feature a raffle and exhibitors at the Gazebo including the Vine Haus from Blissfield, Keeper's Cottage of Saimie, and Manchester exhibitors Calamity Jane's, McLennan Landscape, Hearts Ease Gardens, Fusiliers Greenhouse, Nativescape, The Flower Garden and Dig It Photo.

Tickets are available at Calamity Jane's and McLennan Landscape in Manchester and from members of the 20th Century Club.

County struggles with police shortage

■ Village, Bridgewater Township feel less pinch than Ypsilanti-area contract agencies.

By Sven Gustafson
Staff Writer

A staffing shortage at the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department is forcing police substations across the county to juggle deputies and add significantly to labor costs as more deputies are required to work overtime hours.

"Right now we're short 10 positions," said Washtenaw County Undersheriff Herb Mahony.

The county is authorized to employ 113 deputies to help patrol the 11 communities and four school districts under contract with the WCSD.

"Right now there's a national shortage of law enforcement officers," Mahony explained. "There's just a shortage of people wanting to get into police work."

The 10 vacant positions represent 50 shifts and 400 unfilled hours each week, and are filled by deputies working overtime. Those shifts pay time-and-a-half—roughly $23.50 versus $15.66—that cost an extra $3.132 per week in labor costs alone, based on the starting annual income listed at $32,573 for county deputies.

And that figure could grow in coming weeks.

"With projections of retirements coming up this month, we are down 12 at the end of the month," said Police Cmdr. David Egeler, who deals with human resources for the WCSD.

Egeler added that the number of time-and-a-half overtime hours fluctuates from week to week, and has added costs such as retirement pensions and FICA (Social Security and Medicare tax) costs.

"Obviously it's expensive, but it ends up being the same rate as a position with overtime," Mahony said of the overtime shifts. "We're not going to lower our entrance standards just to get people in the door."

"We're handling it in stride. We'd like to get those positions filled as soon as possible."

Mahony said the application, screening and training process, which can take up to seven months to complete before an officer is eligible for unassisted road patrol, slows the process of filling positions.

Both the Village of Manchester and Bridgewater Township contract with the county for police coverage, receiving four and one police service units (PSUs) respectively for 24-hour coverage eligibility.

"Because Manchester is obviously the smallest part of Washtenaw County as far as the contract, it's going well down here," said Police Sgt. Jim Anuskiewicz, who oversees the WCSD substation in Manchester.

"What our responsibilities are as far as the contract is concerned is to insure that the village and Bridgewater Township receive 1,880 hours (of labor per deputy) per year. As long as we meet those needs, we have fulfilled our contract."

"If we have shortages in hours, then we fill that with overtime."

So far, Anuskiewicz said, neither Bridgewater Township nor Manchester has been shorted contract hours. Four officers currently staff the Manchester substation, leaving one deputy slot for overtime fill-in.

"Of all the entities and all the contract areas in the county, it is my opinion that Manchester is being affected the least of any contract area," he said.

With four regular deputies, things are simpler in Manchester than Ypsilanti Township, where Anuskiewicz was police sergeant until transferring on May 1. There, Anuskiewicz was in charge of scheduling 44 deputies.

That, he said, "was extremely more difficult than here in terms of juggling the hours."

"Where you see a lot of our officers working a lot of hours is over near Ypsi," Anuskiewicz said. "Down here, we're only doing it once a week."

Part and parcel of the overtime slots is the reality that many officers are working long, grueling hours.

"Unfortunately, because of vacation and everything that comes up, that does come up," said Mahony. "There are some people who are working 16-hour

Musical season swings in at Gazebo

■ Gemini set to perform next Thursday night.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Ann Arbor's popular "Pied Piper twins," Gemini, will open this year's Gazebo Concert series, held at 7:30 p.m. on the village green Thursday evenings throughout the summer, beginning next week, June 13.

Twin brothers San and Laz are a musical celebration for the whole family, but especially for children. The twin brothers' voices, stage full of instruments, sparkling original songs and traditional music from around the world make for a delightful show. Kids and adults alike will enjoy singing along with their uncannily matched voices and nearly a dozen instruments.

The duo has an upbeat flair and involves everyone, from tots to grandparents, in making music. From boisterous fun to hushed lullabies and tender ballads, San and Laz will make listeners smile.

Ann Arbor natives, Gemini have been making music together for nearly 30 years. They have recorded six recordings for children and families, which have won numerous awards. Their first video was voted one of the Top 10 children's videos by the American Library Association in 1992. They also have received the songwriting and recording "Popular Award" from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) every year since 1995.

Gemini's appearance at the Manchester Gazebo is among many free family concerts at which they will perform this summer. This activity is funded in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and the Michigan Humanities Council, Knights of Columbus Council 4354, Manchester Recreation Task Force, Manchester Kiwanis and the Manchester Men's Club.

The June 20 Gazebo Concert

Gemini, also known as Ann Arbor's "Pied Piper twins," will appear onstage at the Gazebo next week to kick off the 16th summer concert season. Gazebo concerts are held each Thursday at Wurster Park throughout the summer. Rain location is the Emanuel Church fellowship hall.

will feature the Chelsea House Orchestra performing traditional Celtic jigs and reels and on July 4, local acoustic duo JAR will appear on the Gazebo stage.

Palmer Ford reopens Manchester auto facility

■ Former Stu Evans showroom will house used cars, light maintenance.

By Sven Gustafson
Staff Writer

A few weeks after falling victim to a Ford Motor Company market consolidation, the empty Ford dealership at 510 West Main Street in Manchester has partially reopened as a used-car operation run by Palmer Motor Sales of Chelsea.

John Chamberlain, manager of the Palmer Manchester lot, said the dealership reopened on May 21 with a limited inventory of used cars.

When contacted last week, Palmer co-owner Biff Weber said he hoped to have the Manchester dealership fully opened as early as this week, but had established no date. Weber had yet to order new signage for the dealership.

"I want to get everything set before I jump up and down," he said. "Hopefully, we'll be ready to go in another week or so."

Weber said he was currently interviewing candidates for at least two technician openings in the Manchester dealership's service garage. He is also looking to hire parts and sales workers.

"I'd like it to be a full-service facility even though I can't sell new cars," Weber said.

He added that the facility would likely offer services like maintenance, light repair and oil changes, "just some light work, make it a little more convenient for Manchester residents so they don't have to drive all the way up (to Chelsea).

"I hate to leave Manchester in the lurch,"

Weber said the new business, which would be called Palmer Motor Sales or Palmer Ford Mercury, could eventually employ up to 10 workers.

When Stu Evans Ford closed its doors on May 3, all 19 employees were effectively terminated. Weber said he recently hired one former Stu Evans employee for the new business and has interviewed two others. Other former employees were reportedly offered positions at Stu Evans Lincoln Mercury dealerships in Clinton Township and Garden City.

In resigning his franchise agreement with Ford, Stu Evans President John Evans ceded the Manchester marketing area to Palmer Ford, saying Palmer was "the right organization to handle this." Weber has described the move as a way to concentrate distribution in more regionalized areas, and said Ford has determined Manchester is no longer a distribution point for new cars. As of last week, Chamberlain said there were roughly 15 cars on the lot, saying that number might grow to 25 or 30 as regular inventory.

Weber said although Stu Evans is gone, Ford continues to lease the Manchester building from Greg Marvin, the former owner of Midwest Ford.

"Right now we're on a contract for a few more months and we'll just extend it with him," Weber said.

Midwest Ford closed in 1997 to make way for Stu Evans.

Weber said the new operation will sell used Ford, Lincoln Mercury "and any other type of used vehicles" out of Manchester.

"I think Manchester is a wonderful opportunity for us," he said. "We're used to the Manchester/Chelsea-type market. It's difficult when you're a big city dealer. Everything's pretty much the same; the pace is just a little bit slower."

Palmer Ford currently employs nearly 70 people at four locations in Chelsea, where it has been in business for 90 years. The dealer has won the Ford President's Award, based on customer satisfaction surveys recognizing outstanding sales and service, for four years running.

House passes helmet law

The state House of Representatives last week approved legislation by state Rep. Gene DeRossett to revise Michigan's mandatory motorcycle helmet law.

"This is about giving experienced adult riders the option to choose not to wear a helmet," said DeRossett, R-Manchester. "It expands personal freedom and responsibility."

House Bill 4823 lifts the helmet requirement for people 21 or older who have two years of riding experience or completed a motorcycle safety course sanctioned by the state Board of Education. Those meeting the age and skill requirements would have the option not to wear a helmet. Thirty states permit motorcyclists to ride without helmets, including all of the states bordering Michigan. Research indicates that helmets may cause many accidents because they limit visibility, hearing, cause rider fatigue and trap heat.

Fatality rates over the last 25 years have been virtually the same for states with and without helmet laws, according to the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration.

"Our goal is to give riders the skills and training to avoid accidents," DeRossett said. "It is a question of personal choice and increased responsibility."

The measure now goes to the Senate.

House approves DeRossett land-use legislation

The state House of Representatives approved legislation on May 23 by state Rep. Gene DeRossett to redevelop urban areas and promote better land use.

"This is a momentous development in Michigan land-use policy," said DeRossett, R-Manchester. "The development pressure we are feeling in Washtenaw County is directly related to the inability of cities to redevelop their own abandoned properties. This is a big step in reversing that trend."

House Bill 4852 is the product of three years of legislative work by DeRossett and Republican leadership. It is part of a five-bill bipartisan package to revitalize urban areas by clearing the titles of an estimated 55,000 tax-reverted properties. Large areas of many cities are closed to development because their ownership is in question.

"We need to get this property back into private hands so that it can become productive again," DeRossett said. "This is about restoring the entrepreneurial spirit that built our cities."

The measure establishes a new method to clear titles by allowing local governments to exempt tax-reverted parcels from property taxes for up to five years and borrow money at low interest rates from the state to facilitate clearing additional titles. A new tax would be imposed on the property with half the proceeds going to help local governments clear titles on other tax reverted property or repay state loans. The remainder of the tax revenue would go to state and local services.

"This legislation provides a powerful new tool for Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick and municipalities across the state," DeRossett said. "We cannot ignore the fact that a city built to hold 2.2 million residents now has less than half of that amount."

Embarrassing moments seem to follow me

There exists an elite population for whom embarrassing moments occur seldom, or even never. You've probably met a few of these folk. When something unexpectedly trips them up, they not only land on their feet but those feet are clad in really nice-looking shoes.

I'm not one of these lucky individuals. My feet, usually encased in rubber boots, carry me into odd predicaments and uncooperatively slip out from under me at inopportune moments. They are gifted only. I've decided, in puddle and cow-pat locating.

I just returned from picking up a sandwich and salad after a long day in and around various barns. Since Frank's Place lay between one barn and another, it made sense to stop en route. I envisioned a quick park-and-dash scenario: money in hand ready to pay, hustle out the door and back in the truck without offending anyone's sensibilities.

There weren't any parking spaces in front of Frank's. I pulled around the corner. The traffic in and out of the Clark station and Subway thickened

NANCY HEBB

SHEEP SHOTS

so that I had to walk through unsuspecting, relatively clean people.

Unlike Charlie Brown's buddy, Pig Pen, the cloud wafting around me didn't just contain dirt. It was more olfactory than visual, although I sported plenty of stains, too.

As I scented the air with the odors of ovine colostrum, after-birth, iodine, mud and muck, I saw our Village president and her husband, the picture of polite society, meeting for a meal in town. I forced a smile, clasped my carry out boxes to my blood-and-other-fluid-spattered jacket, and said hello. Shuffling awkwardly toward the truck, I realized my keys weren't in my fist, or my pockets. They sat on the counter in Frank's, forcing a return walk through a gauntlet of embarrassing encounters.

I'm beyond worrying what most people think of me in passing. Assaulting acquaintances and strangers alike with smells best left in the barn is another story, however: my apologies to Manchester.

I could have gone home and changed, first, but ... um ... yes. I have several excuses. First, the cost of petrol in the truck tank is prohibitive. Second, it was late and I hadn't eaten all day. Third, I'm weary. Not even in the distant past decades of pulling college all-nighters have I been more knackered, wrung out, dragging, and dog-tired.

At every squeak of not-yet-a-week-old puppies, I'm out of bed to check on them. Mother dog wants to go out every two hours. The consequences of not getting out of bed to let her out smell worse than anything in the barn, requiring midnight fumbling with a mop, pail, and Clorox. I'm not whining about it. I realize human motherhood is much more difficult.

Still, the ewes require checking, lambs need tail docking and a few sheepish "pets" need thrice-daily bottles. As if I hadn't washed enough amniotic fluid off my hands in the past couple weeks, the Stray Cat (she still needs a name, suggestions welcome) presented me with half a dozen mouse-size creatures that look nothing like cats.

In fact, on a Sunday afternoon she came running toward me across the basement floor with two mewling bodies dragging behind her, umbilical cords still attached internally.

Newborn kittens are really ugly. That realization hit as I warmed the stone-cold runt on a two-liter Pepsi bottle filled with water heated in the microwave (the heating pad was with the puppies), putting drops of puppy milk replacer on its tongue once a minute (I didn't have kitten formula).

The vet assures me they'll get cuter in a few short weeks. I opined that they look like wingless bats, black and wrinkled and without any nice markings to tempt prospective adoptive humans. I'm told stripes or shading might show up later. I hope so. One looks like it might be an attractive blue-gray, but most look an unvarying, solid, inky black.

I don't even want to imagine the amount of bad luck half a dozen black cats portend, particularly when they're in a box in my bathroom. Or how embarrassed I'd be if anyone stopped by the house right now. It looks like a zoo.

To add to the ambiance, the bathtub drain is plugged. Since the only light in there burned out this morning, that problem isn't terribly noticeable. I'll have to stop someplace, on my odoriferous trip from one barn to the other, to buy Liquid Plumber and light bulbs.

I long for a hot bubble bath and ten hours of uninterrupted sleep. Maybe I'll chuck all this post-natal responsibility and go buy some new shoes. Then again, I'd probably just step in something nasty.

Time to get back in the rubber mukluks.

So you want to create your own web site

So you want your own website.

Suppose you, your family, your company, or your organization want to get your own web presence. What do you have to do to make that happen? There are five different tasks you need to perform to turn your idea into a place on the web. Here they are.

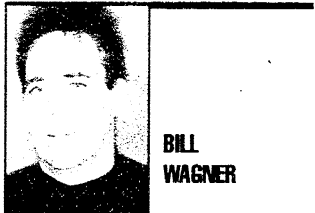

Determine your requirements

Why do you want a web site? Are you publicizing your organization, or just trying to share some files with friends? Before you do anything else, ask yourself why you want to be on the web.

Are you building a commerce site? The web can be a great equalizer for smaller companies looking to gain more geographic reach.

Are you trying to publicize your organization? Are you looking for new members, or to gain more support? Or, are you trying to provide services for your existing members?

The answers to these questions will help you select the right features you need from a web hosting provider, and help you determine the content you need.

BILL WAGNER

NET SAVVY

Also, consider how professional you need your site to be. Are you sharing some files with friends, publicizing your favorite music, or are you trying to promote your business? If you are trying to create a public presence for an organization or company, the more you will want your own domain name. If you are just trying to keep some friends up to date with your latest vacation photos, you can pick a free site from Yahoo, MSN, or one of the other online communities. If you are trying to build a business, you will want your own free-standing site.

Develop some content.

Even before you pick a host, start developing some content. You can use any text editor to write HTML content. I use Macromedia Dreamweaver for our company site. It is simple to use, has quite a few features and lets me see a preview of the site while I am creating it.

By creating some initial content, you will further refine your requirements. Also, you can try it out on a few friends before publishing it to the entire world.

Pick a domain name.

If you need to get your own domain you need to find an available one. The easiest place to find a domain name is at www.netnames.com. Search for any of the domain names you want (for example, "Manchester") and they will tell you which are available. You do not need to add the final zone to your domain search; netnames automatically searches the .com, .net, .org, and .us zones for you.

You can use any of these domains, regardless of the kind of organization you are registering: .com is for commercial sites, .org is for non-profit organizations, while .net is for network providers. The internet has been growing very fast over the last several years, so you may need to try quite a few names before you succeed.

Find a host.

Once you have created some initial content, and determined what domain name to use, you are ready to find a host. You do not want to host your own site. There are more than enough web hosting providers that will do it for you. Hosting companies also tend to crop up overnight in many areas. You can search using Google and find quite a few possibilities in the area.

But remember, you really don't need a local hosting organization. There is no reason your web host provider needs to be in the same geographic area. If you have any peculiar requirements, you can use web hosts anywhere in the world.

I recently needed to find a web host that would let me create my own web application using ASP.NET; the closest host I could find was located in Florida. Depending on the features you need, hosting can be as low as $15.00 per month. A good hosting company can also help with getting your new domain registered, and getting the domain live. They can also help with the next step:

Publicize your site.

What if you create a web site and no one comes to visit? After your site goes live, you will want to register it with all the common search engines: Google, AltaVista, Ask Jeeves, and Yahoo would be the main ones. Before you register your site, try to imagine someone was looking for you. What would they type into the search box to find your site?

For example, we registered our company site using the keywords that we expect people to type when they are searching for us: "Software Development, C# .NET Java C++ Consultants".

All the search engines will give you the option to give your own keywords.

The reality of death strikes too close to home

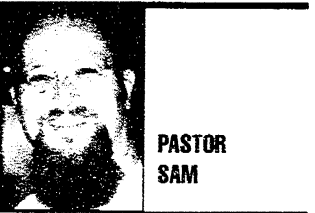

"Motorcyclist killed in M-59 collision" reads the headline on the front page of Sunday's edition of the Livingston County Daily Press and Argus. The motorcyclist was a friend of mine. The tragic, horrific details of the accident are beyond belief. I have been unusually close to tears many times today. I called my deceased friend's wife on the telephone after I saw the headlines just to make sure it was indeed my friend. Unfortunately, it was.

Whatever the theme for this week's column was supposed to be, it has changed. I have been somber the past nine hours, and I am not like this. Jim was 43 years old when his life tragically ended on Friday, a little after 7 p.m. While the rest of us were just settling down with our hot dogs, chips, popcorn, and pop to watch the Red Wings demolish the Avalanche on Friday evening, my friend was being thrown 20 feet in the air and later pronounced dead at the hospital.

What a different world from one living room to the next. Hysterical crying in one as the family receives the dreaded phone call ... and exuberant shouting in most others as the Red Wings scored quick and fast in Friday night's game.

None of that matters now, at least for my friend's family. Their lives are forever changed. There are two teenagers, one boy and one girl, who will forever long to kiss their dad before going to bed. There are two teenagers who will never again (this side of heaven) see the smile on their dad's face.

In ten years or so, there will be a wedding. Oh—it will be beautiful! The attendants stand in a row with matching dresses and tuxedos. Beautiful candles flicker softly. Flowers and smiles and gifts galore. A beautiful young bride will grace this wedding, causing all eyes to gawk and "ooh" and "ahh" as she makes her way down the aisle. But she will be walking alone.

PASTOR SAM

I'm sorry, friends, but this day has changed me. I haven't been super-close to Jim the past few years, after they transferred and moved to a new city, but knowing how the lives of the members of Jim's family will forever be changed has changed me, too.

It has caused me to consider the frailty of this life. It has made me realize my need to kiss and hug my wife and children one more time before getting into my car the next time.

You may be wondering what this has to do with teenagers. Let me tell you, I would love to help all you teenagers grasp the reality of death. Teens are dying in car accidents way more than I would like. Teens are drinking (and many adults are encouraging it!) at home parties. Overdoses are occurring all the time at every hospital.

I know, I've been there with teens that have been on the verge of death after taking pills. They didn't take the pills in order to commit suicide. They preferred, rather, to take the pills to get a cheap high.

Teens, you must listen to this youth pastor who has been touched by the reality of a friend's accident. His accident served as a horrible reminder that people die sooner than they need to. Lives are cut short. Destinies reduced to motorcycles and automobiles crumpled nearly beyond recognition. Life is short, but that doesn't mean that you have to play by risky rules. Foolish decisions you make now could cause your parents and siblings heartache and grief.

I am overwhelmed by feelings of hopelessness and sadness as I recall articles I have read about young guys and girls whose lives have been cut short by murderous madmen. I have needed the grace of God in those hours after reading articles that have made my blood boil. Madmen have literally ended young futures, productive futures, endless-possibilities futures.

Teens, you all know that normally I am the most upbeat guy around, but today is different. I am sad. I am overcome with grief, knowing that possibly some of you reading this right now will die an early death because of poor decisions you will make. Young person, life is short, and you have an incredible future ahead of you. Make sure you get there.

If I have the capacity at all today to encourage you, allow me to say this to you. Try to understand how fragile life is. Respect it. Don't be foolish. But—don't allow that to scare you into doing nothing with your life. Anything worthwhile in life will require a certain amount of risk. Just don't be foolish with your actions.

By nature, God is faithful. He can't change that part of Himself. And He will be faithful to encourage and comfort those grieving right now. I repeat—God is faithful. Period.

"Lord, comfort all those who are mourning around our globe. Give grace to the families who are left behind, trying to pick up all the pieces. We know it is hard. Lord, so we pray for the families. Help this generation of teens be wise in their living, that they need not die prematurely."

Friends, death is a reality. You don't want to go there.

Mock crash demonstrates crisis rescue techniques

■ Fire chief recognizes fast actions of teens.

By Michael Rybka
Special Writer

A mock car crash was staged May 30 at Manchester High School to illustrate the dangers of drinking and driving. It also demonstrated the dramatic actions that need to be taken by a rescue unit.

The event was organized by Manchester High School senior Russ Cruz and included a special presentation recognizing three Manchester teens who helped evacuate a home on fire in Chelsea last month.

Participating in the enactment were Fire Explorers from Manchester and Chelsea, the Stockbridge Medical Explorers, the Chelsea Area Fire Authority, Stockbridge Ambulance, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and graduating seniors from Manchester High School.

The Explorers is a volunteer group comprised of young people between the ages of 14 and 20 who are trained by professionals in either emergency medical response or fire-fighting techniques. Participants from the Chelsea post included David Culverhouse, Marius Varner, Rob Wall, Tom Miller, Russ Crawford, Eric Walter and Josh Reeter.

They often accompany their mentors on actual runs where their training, as evidenced at the event, can prove invaluable.

Chelsea Fire Inspector Matt Tuttle, who is a Fire Explorers adviser, and Ron Hodder, formerly of Stockbridge Area Ambulance, who is the Medical Explorers adviser, narrated the event.

Katie Wall, a Dexter firefighter who serves as an adviser to the Chelsea Explorers, supervised.

The scenario began with Manchester High School seniors Damien Evans, Ryan Maggetti, Jeff Panches, Kevin Taylor and Wesley Waggoner climbing into two cars designed to look as if they were in a collision.

The seniors were made up to look as if they were seriously injured. Beer cans were placed at the scene to illustrate the cause of the so-called accident.

Far off, sirens could be heard as a group of "bystanders," comprised of Chelsea Explorers and Manchester High School sophomores Brittany Gardner and Erica Lowell, as well as Alex Kormendi, looked on in horror at the crash site.

Soon, fire vehicles from Chelsea responded along with Stockbridge Ambulance personnel and deputies with the Washtenaw County Sheriffs Department, and the Explorers went to work.

Hodder said it would be unusual for some of the Explorers to recognize the victims, but he said they are trained to focus on the task at hand.

The scenario assumed that the only way to rescue the victims in one of the cars was by extrication with hydraulic tools, a process Tuttle described as "loud and scary."

Blankets were put over victims in the car, as well as over the Explorers involved in the extrication, to protect everyone from glass shards as the windshield was removed with a special saw.

Next, the "jaws of life" were used to take off the roof of the car and its supporting structure.

When the operation began, Hodder said that ideally the process should take 15 minutes. The Explorers had it removed in 14 minutes.

Officials said that each Explorer unit has a coordinator who, upon seeing someone doing something unsafe, will yell "freeze," whereby all action is stopped until the situation is remedied.

The demonstration emphasized the importance of stabilizing a vehicle before extrication, the care taken in removing an accident victim from the vehicle, the necessity of stopping all bleeding and the administration of cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Besides warning against drinking and driving, Hodder also spoke against playing car radios so loudly that an emergency siren could not be heard.

Hodder said he was proud of the Explorers and that they set a positive example for the community.

Cruz, who is a first lieutenant with the Chelsea Explorers and president of the newly formed Manchester-Sand Lake Explorers, said it was difficult to organize the event in the midst of final exams, but well worth it.

"If just one more student than before leaves here realizing that drinking and driving is dangerous, it'll be worth it," Cruz said. The mock disaster was followed by Ellenwood presenting plaques to the three Manchester teen-agers who helped rescue the family in Chelsea. Andrew Mahony, 17, John Jameson and Lauren Engel, both 16, noticed the home on fire May 4 while driving back home to Manchester.

The teens knocked on the doors and windows to awaken the home's five occupants, and used a garden hose until firefighters arrived.

"It's no exaggeration to say that lives may have been saved that night," Ellenwood said as the students erupted into applause.

SENIOR CITIZENS NEWS

We watched the World Trade Center television program on Thursday and to me it was most impressive. It brought tears to my eyes.

When we toured that great city, while visiting my niece and nephew who live and work there, it is hard to imagine that it is not invincible to all outside forces determined to destroy it.

It was fun to watch the thousands of folks passing by while we stood in front of Macy's. And, what fun we had shopping in those great department stores.

Barbara took the men on a ride around the Statue of Liberty, which they enjoyed immensely. I am determined to go back again some day.

Orthopedic educational series set

Injuries to the musculoskeletal system (bones, joints, muscles, ligaments, tendons) or conditions such as arthritis and osteoporosis rank number one the U.S. in visits to physicians' offices, report researchers from the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons. Furthermore, 28.6 million people incur injuries to the musculoskeletal system each year, which account for more than half of all injuries.

These musculoskeletal injuries and conditions have a significant impact on the quality of life for those who are afflicted, as well as their families and loved ones. However, improvements in treatments, surgical procedures, and rehabilitation have reached an all-time high.

The orthopedic specialists at Chelsea Community Hospital invite the public to a free educational series on bone and joint conditions. The series, "Let's Talk Bones," will include topics of particular interest and incidence in our population. Meetings will be held monthly from 7 to 8 p.m. and will include the following topics.

On June 13, B.J. Page, D.O., hand specialist and orthopedic surgeon will speak on Hand Problems and Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. Arthritis of the Hip & Knee will be covered on July 18 as Gregory J. Golladay, M.D., total joint specialist and orthopedic surgeon visits. Mark C. Pinto, M.D., a sports medicine specialist in orthopedic surgery, will discuss Rotator Cuff Tears at the Sept. 19 lecture. Concluding the series will be William R. Lee, M.D., general orthopedic surgeon, speaking on Foot, Toe and Bunion Problems on Oct. 3.

All sessions will be held at the Chelsea Community Hospital Health & Wellness Center Conference Room, located at 14800 E. Old US 12, on the campus of Chelsea Community Hospital. Free parking and refreshments will be available. Advance registration, at 475-4103, is required.

Chelsea Orthopedic Specialists specialize in injuries and diseases related to the mus-culoskeletal system and offers combined excellence in all areas of orthopedics. The practice is uniquely located in the Chelsea Community Hospital Health & Wellness Center, offering patients treatment on many different levels including physicians, therapists, and personal trainers. To make an appointment for a consultation, please call (734) 475-4028.

Generic drugs.

Safe. Effective. FDA approved.

According to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration

"A generic drug is identical, or bioequivalent, to a brand name drug in dosage form, safety, strength, route of administration, quality, performance characteristics and intended use. Although generic drugs are chemically identical to their branded counterparts, they are typically sold at substantial discounts from the branded price. According to the Congressional Budget Office, generic drugs save consumers an estimated $8 to $10 billion a year at retail pharmacies. Even more billions are saved when hospitals use generics.

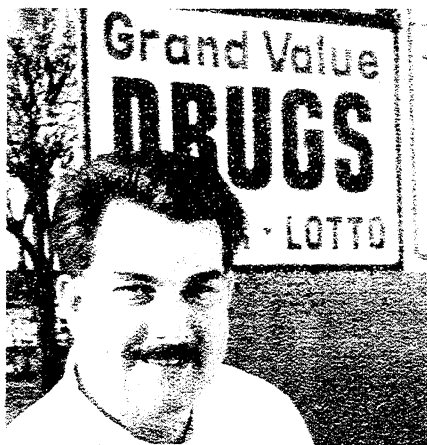

Health professionals and consumers can be assured that FDA approved generic drugs have met the same rigid standards as the innovator (brand-name) drug. To gain FDA approval, a generic must:

- contain the same active ingredients as the innovator (brand-name) drug (inactive ingredients may vary)
- be identical in strength, dosage form and route of administration
- have the same use indications
- be bioequivalent
- meet the same batch requirements for identity, strength, purity, and quality
- be manufactured under the same strict standards of FDA's good manufacturing practice regulations required for innovator (brand-name) products.

New drugs, like other new products, are developed under patent protection. The patent protects the investment in the drug's development by giving the company the sole right to sell the drug while the patent is in effect. When patents or other periods of exclusivity expire, manufacturers can apply to the FDA to sell generic versions. Brand-name firms account for an estimated 50 percent of generic drug production. They frequently make copies of their own or other brand-name drugs but sell them without the brand name."

In a letter sent to health practitioners by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration about the therapeutic equivalence of generic drugs they write, "For both brand-name and generic drugs, the FDA works with pharmaceutical companies to assure that all drugs marketed in the U.S. meet specifications for identity, strength, quality, purity and potency. In approving a generic drug product, the FDA requires many rigorous tests and procedures to assure that the generic drug is interchangeable with the brand-name drug under all approved indications and conditions of use. For these reasons, the FDA-approved product labeling does not recommend that any additional tests need to be performed by the health care provider when a switch occurs from a brand-name drug product to a generic equivalent drug product."

Sharon Township recycling operation feels the heat

■ Unlicensed business receives DEQ warning, zoning violation notice.

By Sven Gustafson
Staff Writer

Sharon Township businessman Matt Anderson has arrived between a rock and a hard place.

The owner of Interactive Metals, a scrap metal recycling facility on Washburne Road, is running an increasingly scrutinized business these days. He has received zoning violation notices from the township and a letter of warning from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

Stan Idziak, an inspector with the Waste Management Division of the DEQ in Jackson, sent the letter dated April 30 to Anderson. It contends that based on an April 23 site inspection, Anderson is operating a solid waste processing plant without a license.

Interactive Metals violates township zoning ordinances because it operates on an old dairy farm on land zoned for agriculture. As such, it has attracted the ire of neighbors who object to the dumpsters, excavation equipment and semi-truck traffic that have become increasingly common at the site.

Idziak said the DEQ letter presented Anderson with two choices: apply for a solid waste processing license or convince the DEQ the operation does not require one. The letter established a response deadline of May 31.

"I was kind of surprised because I had checked into all that stuff to make sure I wasn't breaking any of those laws," Anderson said of receiving the DEQ letter. "I guess I've got a neighbor problem."

The allegation that Anderson is operating an unlicensed processing facility is based on the DEQ's Part 115 governing solid waste operational memos, which outline acceptable types of materials, covers and proper license and construction permit application procedures.

In responding to the DEQ, Anderson said he prepared a four-page letter, which he hand-delivered to Idziak's office in Jackson on Friday. He said the letter makes the case that his business does not need to apply for the license because it meets parameters "that would make the allegations that were put forth not so."

When contacted early Monday, Idziak confirmed receipt of the letter, but would not discuss its contents barring a Freedom of Information Act request.

"I think I'm gonna go back out and take a look there and see if anything's changed," he said.

Idziak, who was alerted to the facility by an anonymous tip, said he discovered numerous open containers of metal and construction debris during his April 23 inspection.

"There was a whole bunch of metal waste ... behind the silo," Idziak said. "There were a series of roll-off containers containing construction debris."

Yet Anderson is quick to dispel alarm.

"I got my response to the DEQ. We are in compliance," he said.

"The complaint was that I'm acting as a transfer station and I'm not," he said. "When the complaint came through, there were a couple boxes (of trash) here ... and now, they're gone."

Anderson, a Manchester native and high school graduate who has run Interactive Metals for at least four years, said his business recycles "all sorts of materials"—mainly ferrous (iron-based) and non-ferrous metals—and provides dumpsters for jobs.

"The trash I pick up and take it to a landfill. It's not coming here," he said.

Presently, the DEQ warning is limited to the lack of a license, and does not address any environmental contamination, Idziak said.

The DEQ warning is the second to be issued to a Manchester area scrap facility, after C&L Recycling on West Austin Road in Manchester Township. C&L, which failed to meet a January deadline for compliance, is currently under investigation by the DEQ Office of Criminal Investigations.

Anderson once weighed purchasing C&L to relocate there, and discussed the possibility with the Manchester Township Planning Commission in December. He said he has since nixed the idea.

Anderson now plans to move the business to an industrial-zoned location outside of Adrian, and is awaiting financing approval and other formalities from the bank before purchasing the property.

The zoning violation notice letters, which Sharon Township Zoning Administrator Dave Wilson said were issued "some time ago," ask Anderson to move his business and clean up the property.

"The township has been a little lenient with him because he has been working toward that goal," Wilson said.

"We hate to disrupt somebody's business and livelihood for the sake of the ordinance, but it may be coming to that if we don't see some dates."

Wilson planned to contact Anderson Monday to establish moving dates, which would be discussed at tonight's township board meeting.

"He just kind of (ran his business) inside a barn to start with," said Sharon Township Supervisor Gary Blades. "It's a case of where he had a little business and then it became very successful."

"I think he knows that he's gotta go. He knows he's gotta go and we're all trying to help him

Interactive Metals, a scrap metal recycling operation, is under pressure to relocate from its Sharon Township location, where it is in violation of the township's agricultural zoning. The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has also accused the owner of operating without a solid waste processing license.

do that." Anderson, who also lives on the rented Washburne Road property, said he would continue to keep his residence there after the business moves to Adrian.

MANCHESTER'S CHOICE FOR SCHOOL BOARD

Re-elect
RON ELLISON
for Manchester Board of Education

- 20 year Manchester resident
- Board member for the last four years
- Current school board president
- Bachelors degree in Business/Marketing from Central Michigan University
- President of American Title Company in Jackson

- Manchester Optimist Club member
- Member of St. John Lutheran Church
- Strong supporter of Manchester athletics and band programs
- Married to Debbie 19 years
- Two children, David and Lindsay, both students in Manchester public schools

WORKING HARD FOR YOU
Ron's passion for Manchester Public Schools runs deep, not just because he currently serves as the board's president, but also because his two children grew up in the school system. Over the last four years, he helped make the new high school opening in 2004 a reality. He is also working with local units of government to improve their line of communication with the school district as a member of the Southwest Council of Governments.

LOOKING OUT FOR YOUR BEST INTEREST
As a trusted veteran of the Manchester School Board, Ron places importance on his ability to work well with school administration, staff and fellow board members. He prefers not to run on a platform of issues; he simply wants to work toward the overall improvement of the district.

RON TALKS ABOUT THE OPPORTUNITIES

- "Charter Schools are forcing public schools to rethink how education needs to be delivered to students. Parents want smaller class sizes and more course offerings. We must realize that because of Schools of Choice and Charter Schools, we are now competing with other districts for students, so we need to listen to our "customers" and strive to improve the way we provide education."
- "The community has given us a new high school which will enable us to provide an excellent environment for the students to learn. Now we need to make improvements to our curriculum in order to fully utilize this asset."
- "Along with the new school will come financial challenges to our budget, not only from the new building but also from state funding cuts. I would like to continue to work with the administration and fellow board members to meet this challenge."

- "We cannot control the funding we receive from the State of Michigan, but we can control how we deliver education to the students. To improve the schools, we need board members, administration and staff to work together as a team."

EXPERIENCE IS THE KEY

If you are a parent of more than one child, you have surely come to recognize that building sibling relationships can often be hard work. While each of your children has built a strong individual attachment to you, it will take time for siblings to learn to respect and care for each other.

This may be intensified by a young child who, before the age of three, is not mature enough to share. Although sibling rivalry is normal, it is sure to become annoying to the rest of the family.

The good news is that, in allowing your children to work out most of their conflicts by themselves, you are providing an ongoing opportunity for them to begin practicing social skills and expressing emotions. They gain confidence in keeping trying and work harder in relationships by asserting themselves.

By watching reactions, they learn how their actions hurt or please others, which helps them begin to experience and identify both positive and negative emotions. They try different solutions for the same problem, while increasing in their problem-solving skills.

As children grow in these relationships, they will need less of your undivided attention and gain more affection for each other.

To help lessen sibling rivalry and help children handle their feelings, do not compare siblings in front of them. Obviously there are times you will need to mediate conflicts. In doing this, resist the urge to make judgments.

Always encourage cooperation and remember to praise pleasant interactions. Make it clear to your children that abusive behavior will not be tolerated. Try to prevent and redirect aggressive behavior to avoid the need for punishment.

Children who show signs of being hungry, tired or overstimulated may need sibling interaction to be limited or stopped.

Don't worry about treating your children equally - it can't be done. Value each child's individual strengths and give loving support to each, based on their needs at the time. Working your children alone to work things out for themselves when possible will help them learn to respect and care for each other.

Remember that sibling "battlegrounds" are grounds for learning!

Kiwanis takes on doll project

The Kiwanis Club of Manchester and friends of Kiwanis have begun a special project for children who are being treated in local hospitals. The 15-inch dolls are cut and sewn by at-home volunteers, then finished off at Kiwanis stuffing parties.

Kiwanis "hospital dolls" were born through the efforts of the Kiwanis clubs of Australia and are well-traveled throughout Europe. The soft, huggable toys help children cope with anxiety.

The first few months of the local doll project has produced about 125 dolls that have been delivered to Chelsea Community Hospital, Herrick Hospital in Tecumseh, Bixby Hospital in Adrian and St. Joseph Mercy Health Systems in Ann Arbor.

Kiwanis member Bonnie Hertler presents a "family" of Kiwanis dolls to Diana Coleman of Chelsea Community Hospital, one of several local hospitals that were beneficiaries of local Kiwanis efforts.

The faces and bodies of the dolls are featureless, which allows hospitalized children to decorate them, an activity which greatly reduces the stress that young hospital patients may experience. With their artwork on a doll's face, or by marking the area on their doll at which they feel pain, children are able to express their feelings about their hospitalization.

Doctors and nurses often demonstrate medical procedures with Kiwanis hospital dolls to help children better understand what is happening to them.

Perhaps the best part of the project is that, when they are finished in the hospital, the children get to carry their new "friend" home from the hospital!

The Kiwanis Club of Manchester makes it their mission to be "serving the children of our community and the world."

Dr. Jerrold Utsler Estate Auction

Saturday, June 8th, 2002 • 10:00 a.m.

LOCATION: Saline, Michigan. Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds. I-94 to Exit 175, then West 2.3 Miles to Stop. Go Left 1/2-Mile to Building A on Left past traffic light.

This will be an exceptional estate auction, worthy of your attendance, as numerous finer items of Artwork, Bronzes, Furniture, Glassware, Lamps and Collectibles will be sold to the highest bidder(s) without reserve. Over 300 Cataloged Lots of high quality items, all from one estate.

- HIGHLIGHTS INCLUDE:
- Signed Original Tiffany & Handel Lamps • Fine Glass Collection of Steuben, Baccarat, Lalique, etc. • Art Collection - Kwon Artists - Oils, Prints & Engravings • Sterling Royal Danish 117 pc. Formal Set w/Service Pieces • Bronze Collection (1870-Present) - 19 Bronzes • Vintage Asian Wares & Porcelain Collectibles • Quality Rugs, Runners & High End Furniture

We will have two auction rings running at the same time; one ring will sell from the catalog in lot # order and the second ring will be selling all of the fine kitchen, household, garden and garage items from the estate. Bring a friend. This exciting auction is slated to be the best quality estate sold publicly without reserves in the last 10 years in Washtenaw County.

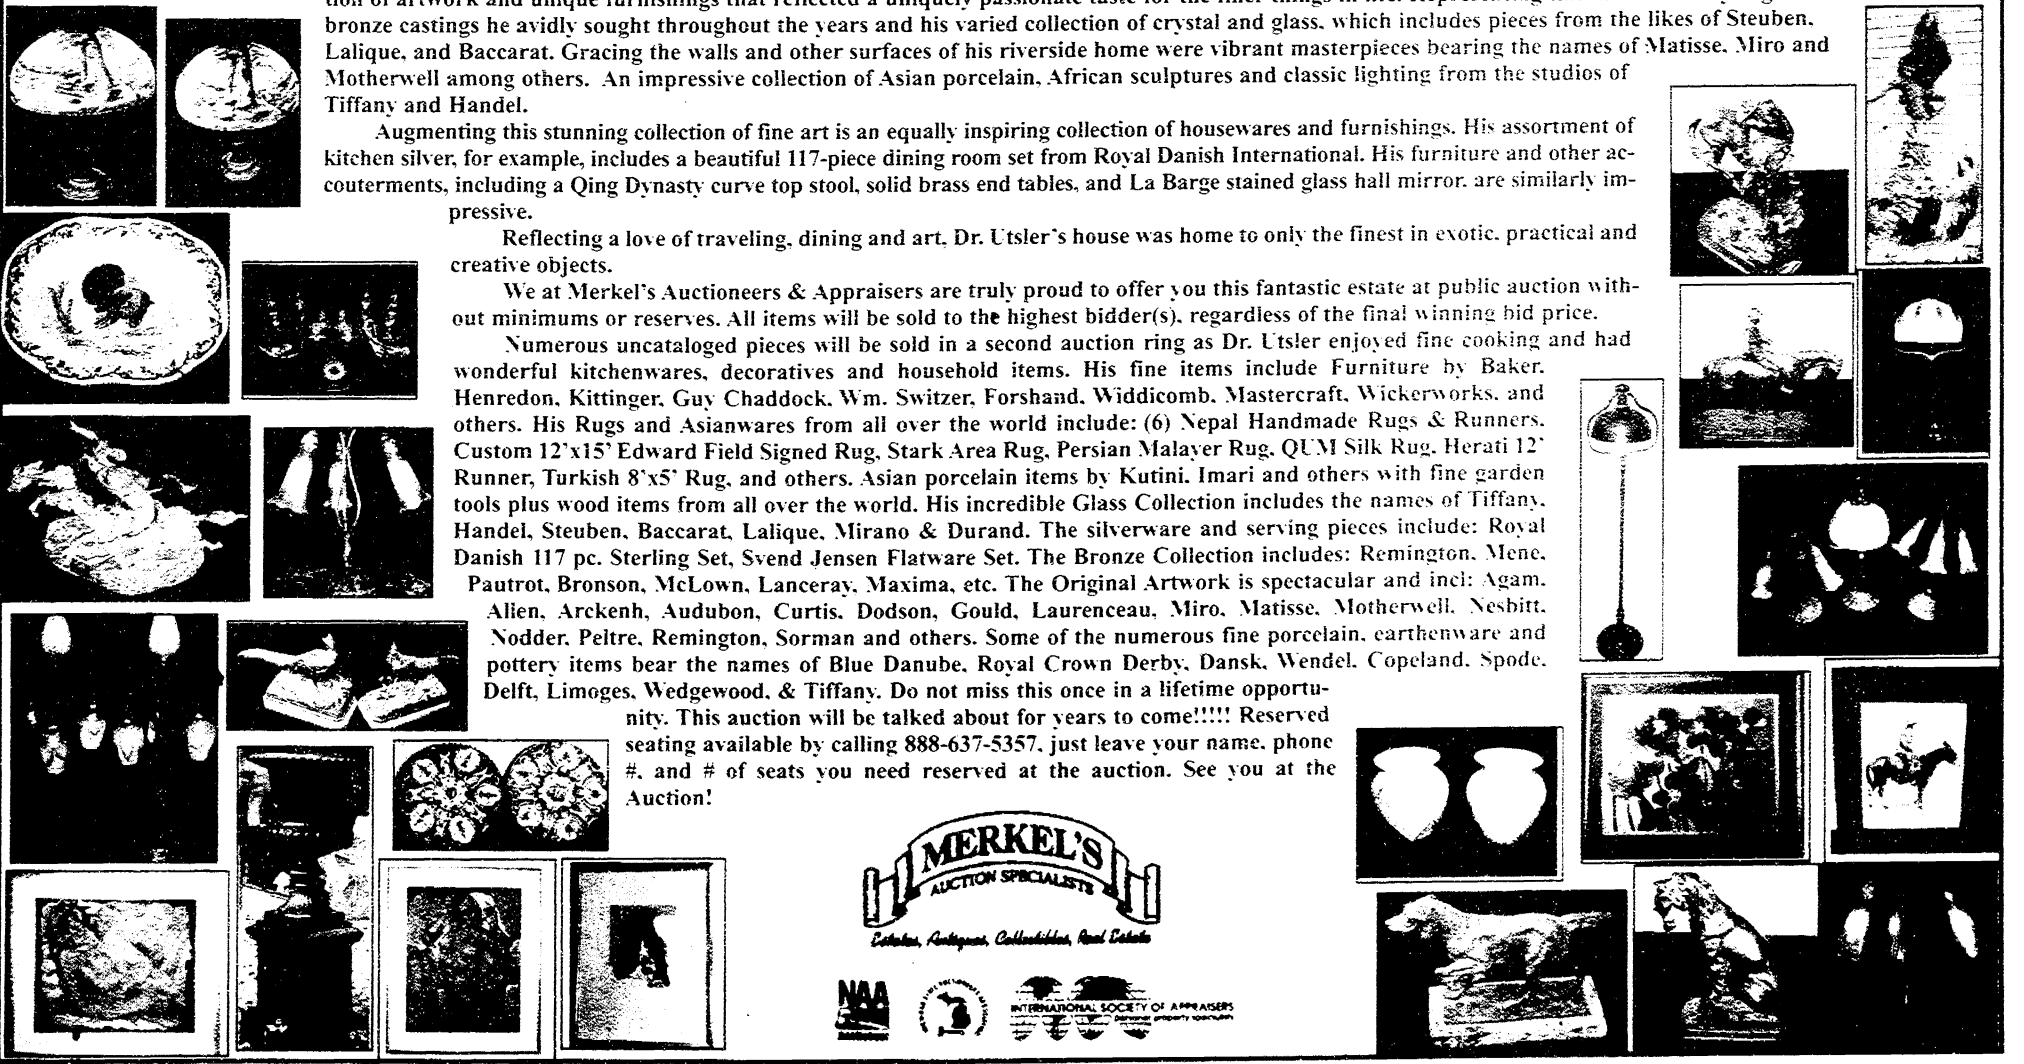

Using his intuitive understand of beauty in objects and paint-laden brush strokes, Ann Arbor, Mich. resident Dr. Jerrold Utsler, M.D. amassed a collection of artwork and unique furnishings that reflected a uniquely passionate taste for the finer things in life. Representing this are the nearly organic bronze castings he avidly sought throughout the years and his varied collection of crystal and glass, which includes pieces from the likes of Steuben, Lalique, and Baccarat. Gracing the walls and other surfaces of his riverside home were vibrant masterpieces bearing the names of Matisse, Miro and Motherwell among others. An impressive collection of Asian porcelain, African sculptures and classic lighting from the studios of Tiffany and Handel.

Augmenting this stunning collection of fine art is an equally inspiring collection of housewares and furnishings. His assortment of kitchen silver, for example, includes a beautiful 117-piece dining room set from Royal Danish International. His furniture and other accouterments, including a Qing Dynasty curve top stool, solid brass end tables, and La Barge stained glass hall mirror, are similarly impressive.

Reflecting a love of traveling, dining and art, Dr. Utsler's house was home to only the finest in exotic, practical and creative objects.

We at Merkel's Auctioneers & Appraisers are truly proud to offer you this fantastic estate at public auction without minimums or reserves. All items will be sold to the highest bidder(s), regardless of the final winning bid price.

Numerous uncataloged pieces will be sold in a second auction ring as Dr. Utsler enjoyed fine cooking and had wonderful kitchenwares, decoratives and household items. His fine items include Furniture by Baker, Henredon, Kittinger, Guy Chaddock, Wm. Switzer, Forshand, Widdicomb, Mastercraft, Wickerworks, and others. His Rugs and Asianwares from all over the world include: (6) Nepal Handmade Rugs & Runners, Custom 12'x15' Edward Field Signed Rug, Stark Area Rug, Persian Malayer Rug, QUM Silk Rug, Herati 12' Runner, Turkish 8'x5' Rug, and others. Asian porcelain items by Kutini, Imari and others with fine garden tools plus wood items from all over the world. His incredible Glass Collection includes the names of Tiffany, Handel, Steuben, Baccarat, Lalique, Mirano & Durand. The silverware and services pieces include: Royal Danish 117 pc. Sterling Set, Svend Jensen Flatware Set. The Bronze Collection includes: Remington, Mene, Pautrot, Bronson, McLown, Lanceray, Maxima, etc. The Original Artwork is spectacular and incl: Agam, Alien, Arckenh, Audubon, Curtis, Dodson, Gould, Laurenceau, Miro, Matisse, Motherwell, Nesbitt, Nodder, Peltre, Remington, Sorman and others. Some of the numerous fine porcelain, earthenware and pottery items bear the names of Blue Danube, Royal Crown Derby, Dansk, Wendel, Copeland, Spode, Delft, Limoges, Wedgwood, & Tiffany. Do not miss this once in a lifetime opportunity. This auction will be talked about for years to come!!!! Reserved seating available by calling 888-637-5357, just leave your name, phone #, and # of seats you need reserved at the auction. See you at the Auction!

shifts. For a short period of time we've got some people working a long number of hours.

"It's not uncommon in law enforcement for people to work double shifts."

Anuszkiewicz said deputies in Manchester normally work standard eight-hour shifts, "unless there come the circumstances where we need to fill a midnight shift." Anuszkiewicz added the county maintains a rotating list of deputies to staff the overtime shifts.

"If there's a vacant slot down here in Manchester, it's not necessarily the sole responsibility of a deputy from Manchester to fill that slot," he said.

"They increased our overtime budget for this year because this is the first year we've had to deal with the contract budget," Anuszkiewicz said. "With all these townships going to contract this year, that actually increased our road staff" while the county sheriff lost county-funded positions.

Egeler said the county was short by as many as 18 deputies in the late 1990s.

"In the department's history, this is not the worst time," he said.

Anuszkiewicz mused that the relatively low pay rates for non-federal law enforcement officers combined with factors such as the increased public scrutiny of police officers may have combined to limit the profession's appeal.

Mahony noted that the increase in federal law enforcement officers since the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks "just adds to the already short numbers of people out in the job pool."

He said the WCSD was lucky to have four to five applicants per job, and that one-third of those applicants typically do not pass the department's background checks.

Meanwhile, the Washtenaw County communities that do not contract with the WCSD do not suffer from a similar shortage, according to Michigan State Police Cmdr. Beth Moranty, who works at the Ypsilanti post. That post has 31 assigned troopers, which is its allocation. Each of them, she said, typically works standard eight-hour shifts.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor, "Because of relatively attractive salaries and benefits, the number of qualified candidates exceeds the number of job openings in Federal law enforcement agencies and in most State police departments."

But the $32,573 annual starting salary at the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department actually stacks up well compared to $29,670.48 for the Michigan State Police. Both departments have comparable maximum annual salaries near $46,000.

Mahony said four deputy positions would be filled as soon as the deputies complete mandatory 16 to 20-week Field Training Officer programs that will allow them to do road patrol unaccompanied.

"Everybody's going through the same crunch right now," said Egeler. "It just seems to be a cycle."

"It's just going to take us some time to recover."

Play day to mark school year's end

Starting a new tradition for last day of school.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand Associate Editor

As the final school bell of the year echoes through the hallways of Nellie Ackerson Middle School at noon next Tuesday, students completing fifth through eighth grades will have a new option for fun after school gets out.

"Hooray Day," begun last year at the middle school, will be a fun place for middle school and younger kids to hang out and participate in moonwalks and other activities with their friends. Last year's event was open only to middle school students, but this year the PTA and student council are opening it up as a community event.

The after-school hours between noon and 3 p.m. will be open to Klager Elementary pupils and pre-schoolers and admission will be by ticket. Activities will include moonwalks, face painting, popcorn, snow cones, pizza, pop and more. Tickets will be sold at the gate at 5/$1, and activities will cost between two and six tickets apiece. Students also are welcome to bring a sack lunch and join in the fun.

The event will be cancelled for rain and no rain date is scheduled. The fun will be at Alumni Memorial Field across from the middle school.

Ground rules include: elementary school students must be accompanied by an adult, and any students participating in shaving cream or wet clothing will not be allowed on the grounds.

The Ackerson Middle School PTA hopes this will help get summer off to a great start!

Colorful art program part of Riverfolk's charm

■ Students showcase photography skills.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

"This is the beginning of something wonderful." CRC Director Chris Kanta said in introducing Manchester's artist-in-residence program to the Manchester Area Historical Society at its May 14 meeting.

The program, part of the preparation for the Riverfolk Arts and Music Festival to be held Aug. 3 at Carr Park, brought together 12 high school and alternative school students with Manitou Beach artist and photographer Jan Kaulins. The results of this collaboration were unveiled at the historical society's meeting with the students' hand-colored photographs taking center stage as Kaulins described the process and philosophy of the project.

Kaulins, whose career spans a quarter-century, is well known for his work photographing cities, particularly Detroit, New Orleans and Miami South Beach. He also has a body of work including vintage motorcycles, cars, drive-ins, cigar boxes, and old diners available in this format. Many of his photos were taken while traveling the country on his Harley-Davidson in search of vanishing bits of Americana.

"Before the relatively recent advent of color film, photographers, since The Civil War, have used pencils, dyes and paint brushes to add color to their black and white photos," Kaulins said.

After local historian Howard Parr made a well-received presentation about Manchester's architecture and shared historic photos with the students, it was decided to document the Manchester area and its surrounding townships in 2002.

"The kids were swept off their feet" by Parr's presentation, Kaulins said. With a high level of interest and enthusiasm, the eight Manchester High School students and four Alternative Education students selected one subject each.

"They had a hard time deciding," Kaulins added. "There are so many wonderful subjects in this area."

The end result represents scenes from each of the four townships, including the village.

Before showing each completed photograph, Kaulins explained the difference between documentary and artistic interpretation in this type of work. While some students decided on a "documentary" or realistic style, others took artistic license with whimsical colors or selective attention to details in the photos.

The Pleasant Lake Hardware building and the Pleasant Lake Inn in Freedom Township, E.G.

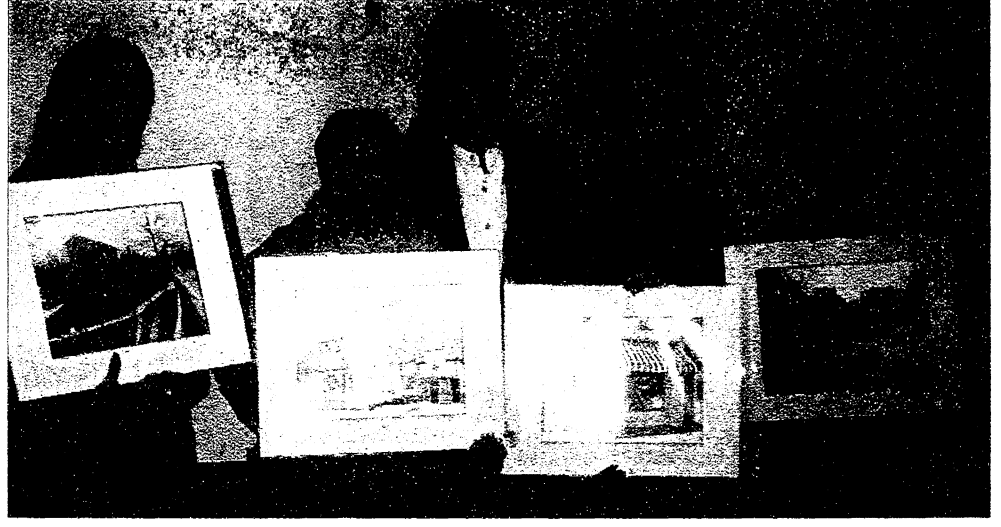

Mann feed mill in Bridgewater and the old mill at Sharon Mills County Park in Sharon Township are subjects of the outlying townships while downtown scenes predominate in the village photographs. Each provides a unique look at a familiar landmark.

Beauty, of course, is in the eye of the beholder. And the students found their own beauty in each photographic subject as they took artistic license with their project.

While choosing their photographic subjects, students did research on the structures they chose and also wrote an artist's statement and biography, which was part of the assignment. Under Kaulins' direction, they learned about photographic composition, faced challenges in scheduling and discovered how subtle changes in lighting can affect the outcome of the photos.

The artists' medium of pencils which they used to hand-color the details on the black-and-white photographs. Some of the students chose to highlight only certain parts of the subject while others, with great attention to detail, hand-colored individual bricks on the buildings.

such as the John Schneider Blacksmith Shop.

Some of the students, whom Kaulins described as having "true artistic temperament," were never quite satisfied with the outcome of their work, and continually tried to do it over.

"I finally had to take their erasers away," he joked. "You can be too self-critical."

The goal of the project, according to Riverfolk coordinator Mark Palms, was to give the students contact with professional artists such as Kaulins and provide an outlet to showcase their talent. Since art is a big part of the Riverfolk Festival, Palms consulted with high school art teacher Marianne Sachs for student referrals.

Ashley Schlosser, one of the students with "artistic temperament," said that she thought the project was an "awesome idea." "We needed more time, though," she said. "I would have liked to do it when we were less pressed for time."

As a career artist himself, Kaulins also spoke to the students about the possibilities of making a career out of their own artistic endeavors.

"If your heart is in it, it's gonna be good," he said. "And if it's good, it'll sell."

And, he joked to the members of the historical society, there just happen to be 12 photographs, which would fit ideally on a future Manchester Area Historical Society calendar.

The students' artwork will be on exhibit between now and the Riverfolk Festival and each piece will be sold at a silent auction at Carr Park the day of the festival. All proceeds will benefit The Community Resource Center.

See each of the photos at www.riverfolkfestival.org, or visit them at the Manchester Enterprise offices in mid-June and at the Manchester Community Fair June 25-29.

It's been a steamy spring in the first grade

Students in Suzanne Birgy's and Pat Merrill's first grade classes pose underneath the rainforest canopy they created in their classroom as part of a study of life in the tropical rainforest.

■ First-graders prove they've learned a thing or two about tropical rainforests.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

The first-graders at Klager have been learning under the canopy of a steamy rainforest for the last several weeks, and they have learned a lot!

Six students were kind enough to inform this reporter on the many wonders of the tropical rainforest. Olivia Greene, Dane Smith and Benjamin Tamagne from Pat Merrill's class; and Maris Cook, Phillip Louis and Roslyn Vashon from Suzanne Birgy's class shared their knowledge of the most biologically diverse ecosystem on earth.

"THERE ARE four layers in the rainforest," Olivia reported. "The floor, the understory, the canopy, and the emergent layer." At the floor level, trees have extremely large bases to support their height, according to Ben.

Further up, the trees branch out and create a dense canopy that allows rain to enter, but prevents heat from escaping, and produces a very steamy environment.

"It gets really hot in the rainforest," said Olivia.

"They get 80 inches of rain in a year," said Ben. "That's a lot."

Despite the canopy, which blocks 98 percent of the sunlight from reaching the understory and floor, many plants have adapted to life in the shade.

"Some plants grow on branches, not on the ground," Maris commented.

"Their roots hang down like piñettes," added Roslyn. "A bromeliad is one."

THE MORE exciting part of the rainforest for these students was undoubtedly the animal life.

"Half the animals in the world live in the rainforest," said Dane.

"Some are nice, and some are not," added Phillip. "Frogs are nice." "Except for the poison ones!" Maris chimed in.

"Poison dart frogs have enough poison in their body to kill 100 people," Dane said.

"They have sticky pads on the bottoms of their feet to help them climb trees," Ben added. "They're my favorite animal because they're really colorful."

The bright colors are actually a way of warning predators away from poisonous prey.

"Some bugs and spiders are light colored, which means 'don't eat me,'" said Maris.

ONE OF the few animals that live on the ground is the tapir, Ben said. "It has a nose like an elephant's trunk, but shorter."

Also on the ground are many, many kinds of ants.

"Brown ants, black ants, red ants ... if one animal kills another, there's a kind of ant that comes and they eat a whole animal in five minutes," Phillip said in amazement.

Surprisingly, monkeys may also be found on the floor of the rainforest, as Maris revealed.

"They don't just swing in trees." Of the many monkeys that can be found, the loudest is the howler monkey, said Ben. "You can hear them from a mile away!"

"BATS LIVE in the understory," Ben continued with a grin. "Mostly vampire bats."

But don't worry, he stressed: visitors to the rainforest need not fear one turning into a vampire.

Three-toed sloths are very slow-moving creatures that also live in the understory, said Roslyn. "They live in trees, and turn green!"

"That's because they move so slow that mold and moss grow on them," Ben added.

"They're related to anteaters, and they carry their babies on their backs," Maris said.

The moss helps the sloth to blend into its environment, since it is otherwise defenseless against predators.

Manchester grads continue their German studies

■ Though far from home, local students may often see a familiar face.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Two Manchester graduates will be studying German in separate programs at Albert Ludwigs University in Freiburg, Germany next year.

In a coincidental move, Chrissy Abbott, a 2000 Manchester High School graduate and Peter Schulte, a 1999 graduate, both will be attending Ludwigs in different academic programs.

Susan Davis, the Manchester High School German teacher, notes that both Abbott and Schulte were "outstanding" students in high school and she is excited that each of her protégées will continue their studies of the language abroad.

"I'm very proud of them," she said. "We have kept in contact over during the time since their graduation; in fact, Peter comes and team teaches with me whenever he's in Manchester."

Schulte, who has lived periodically in Germany since his graduation, will continue his studies toward completion of a bachelor's degree in computer science at Ludwigs.

"Right after high school, I studied for two semesters at the Technical University of Darmstadt," he said. "I've been admitted into Ludwigs as a German student and I will probably stay on there and do the master's program as well."

"They are both offered there and it's a very internationally-oriented university."

Also attending Ludwigs and majoring in trilingual education is Schulte's fiancée, Marleen Zinger, who was an exchange student in Manchester during their senior year. Through her, Schulte learned about the programs available at Ludwigs.

"The combination of my major and hers are only offered at a few universities in Europe," he said. "That's why we made the choice to go there."

But also, he said, Freiburg is in southwest Germany, and "That means I'm going to be doing a lot of skiing!"

Like his fiancée, Schulte is learning about teaching after working with "Frau Davis" several times and bringing his knowledge of the spoken language to her classroom.

"I know most of the kids anyway," he said. "But it's weird; most of the seniors were freshmen when I was here, so that's all I know. I'll have to start learning all the names next year."

Schulte said that when he team-teaches with Davis he will take over about half of the classroom time and commonly follows her lesson plan.

"Sometimes, however, I take off on a tangent of my own," he said with a grin. "I compare the linguistics or something ... it's interesting to the kids and to Frau Davis, too."

Abbott, on the other hand, will be attending Ludwigs through a cooperative exchange program at Michigan State University, where she has attended for the past two years. The ambitious junior is excited about her plans to have a double major of German and finance.

Asked what career plans could materialize from the combined major, she said, "Making lots of money."

"I'd really like to work for

Manchester student meets Special Olympics challenge

■ Jake Ederly has his own cheering section.

By Darci Chrestensen
Special Writer

On May 14, teacher Joanna Van Raden took several eighth grade students to the Special Olympics, held at Huron High School in Ann Arbor.

The whole point in going to the Special Olympics was because fellow student Jake Ederly is the very first student from Manchester ever to go to the Special Olympics. The students wanted to be there to show their support, not only for Jake, but for all the other kids participating.

Jake is 13 years old and he did an amazing job at the Special Olympics. His parents, Kim and Jack Ederly, staff, administration, and Jake all decided he should participate in the Special Olympics because they wanted him to interact more with children. The Special Olympics was a fun experience for Jake because he likes to be around other children and participate in sports events.

Jake's Special Olympics coaches this year were Levi Clark, Mike Coltre, Zach Neal, RJ Ederly (his brother) and Ryan Kleinschmidt. The coaches did a great job. The weather wasn't always good enough for them to practice and they had to run with Jake. The coaches were really helpful in encouraging Jake to keep going, keeping him focused on running, and getting to the finish line.

Jake started training in April. He trained at the track during first hour two days a week until the Special Olympics, where he participated in the 50-meter dash and 100-meter dash. This is the second year he has done these two events. He also tried a new event this year, called the 30-meter softball throw, but his mom thinks that he likes running better than throwing.

He placed fourth in his heat for the 50-meter dash and sixth for the 100-meter dash. In the softball throw he placed near the end.

Jake was supposed to carry the torch for the Special Olympics but it was too windy the day of the ceremonies. To be asked to carry the torch was a great honor for Jake.

This was a good experience for Jake, because he learns best from other students. The coaches were good role models for this sporting event because they kept encouraging him to do his best. Jake's personal cheering section could be heard down on the track and helped him stay focused.

Jake is a visual learner and does well when he sees what and how the other children are doing something. He did a wonderful job and is a great athlete. Keep on going, Jake!

Special thanks to Mr. Jim Woodhams, Special Education Supervisor for the Manchester district for providing the transportation for our students that day; bus driver Jim Sewell; Athletic Director Wes Gali for providing Jake a Manchester uniform and Mr. Curt Fielder for supplying a stopwatch.

The parents who attended the trip were Mrs. Michelle Bond and Mr. Tim McConnell; teachers, Mrs. Joanna Van Raden, Mrs. Anne Walkowe, Mrs. Dorene Shirey, and principal

Mr. Tom George; and paraprofessional, Mr. Greg Smith

Here is what some of the students who attended the Special Olympics had to say about their experience:

Brian Guenther said, "It was fun at the Special Olympics. We went there to cheer Jake on and that is what we did. It was cool to watch the people win, they are so happy when they win. Jake did a great job in his sports and tried his hardest. I was happy I could go."

"The Special Olympics was very inspiring," said Zach Jacob. "To see all of those kids participating in what seemed like difficult events for anyone like the 800m run and 400m run, but everyone looked like they were enjoying it. I enjoyed going to the Special Olympics not because it got me out of school for a day, but because I was able to cheer someone I see every day."

"The day I spent at the Special Olympics was very fun and educational," Zach LaCross added.

"I learned that even people with great mental and physical challenges could overcome any obstacle in their way. Watching all those kids run track and participate in the field events was very encouraging."

"It helped me realize that sometimes when I don't want to do something, because I don't want, that I should think twice about complaining because the kids at the Special Olympics have to overcome difficult challenges every day."

Brandon Osmundsen said that attending the Special Olympics was a very fulfilling experience.

"I enjoyed watching it," he said. "Jake did a really good job in all of his events and so did all the other kids that were in it. It was amazing to see how these kids with disabilities were giving all their effort in completing their task in front of them. I would encourage everyone to go to the Special Olympics and watch these amazing kids achieve something so big."

"At the Special Olympics there were many disabled people who wanted to run or wheel chair," said Josh Ritter and Brent Long. "We watched them run and we cheered Jake on. We thought that the Special Olympics were a lot of fun. We also think that the Special Olympics help the disabled."

Ian Callaway said, "I thought that Jake did a great job at the Special Olympics. Everyone did a great job and I'm glad I went. It really changed my point of view about the Special Olympics."

The Special Olympics was a very inspirational experience for me," Stacey Coval said. It was a good experience because it made me realize how fortunate us kids are not to have a disability. I had fun supporting those who are less fortunate than me. I hope I can go again someday."

"I thought that the Special Olympics was a good experience," said Matt Fusilier. "I had a good time watching it. It was interesting to see how lucky I am not to have a disability. To see those kids participate in a track and field event is very inspirational. It gives them hope and pride."

Travis Ockerman said, "My experience with the Special Olympics was a very good thing. At first, I laughed about it and thought that it would be a very comical event. But once I got there my mind was totally changed."

"I saw kids that no matter how

An exceptional teacher who helps students excel

■ Special education teacher retires after 13 years in district.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

Albert Einstein once said, "Only a life lived for others is a life worthwhile."

As a man who strongly disliked school because of its monotony, he undoubtedly understood the value of teachers who go out of their way to provide an exceptional learning environment for their students.

One such teacher is Sue Whitney, who will retire from Manchester schools at the end of the school year. Teaching first and second grade special education, while heading up the literacy program in Manchester, she has spent the last 13 years striving to help her students excel when traditional education does not succeed.

"I provide support for youngsters who learn differently," she says of her career. "It's not uncommon to have above-average kids, they just don't absorb information in the 'normal' way."

WHILE ENROLLED in undergraduate study at the University of Michigan, a counselor suggested Whitney pursue special education, recognizing that her love of children was a unique gift and an important tool.

Armed with a Bachelor of Science in special education, and later a master's degree in education, Whitney tutored students in reading in her Ann Arbor home until her husband's death in 1988.

That year, she began an interim position in Milan, working with students in the reading lab, which introduced her to the routine of public schools.

In August 1989, Whitney began her job in Manchester, working with special education students in first and second grade.

Sue Whitney

"I got lucky," she laughs. "To get a job in the public schools at age 51? That's lucky."

WITH HER young students, Whitney's primary focus is on literacy, which provides a strong background for further learning.

"We try to help the kids toward a love of reading," she says. "If not that, then we want them to be confident with reading and with the other tasks that will be asked of them."

Building individual relationships with her students has become very important to Whitney.

"Our principal (John McGuire) has said a lot of parents tell him they just want their children to be with someone who loves them.

"Patience and affection, that's the priority. It's so important for a child to like the teacher."

One approach Whitney uses to connect with her students is a lunch date, where her students take turns bringing one guest to eat in her room, a fun "vacation" from the cafeteria.

Whitney has also co-authored a book with teacher Joanna Van Raden which utilizes poems and phonics exercises to help children play with and learn to use language.

"The book hasn't been published," Whitney says, "but it was still a fun project to work on. A lot of the teachers use it anyway."

WHITNEY HAS seen special education evolve dramatically over the years.

"Thirty years ago, there wasn't nearly the support or structure of today's programs," she says. "It's a completely different animal today. Special education is highly organized and structured.

"It's not just a dumping ground for the kids with problems," she says, referring to the dying stigma that special education is for the "bad" kids.

"Now people realize that a lot of children who struggle with learning are intelligent. And there are specialists who work with all kinds of issues.

"It's great to see (the students) grow. Some come with such low skills, and it's exciting to see them develop. Their chances of being successful are much higher."

With the improvements in special education also came greater accountability to the standards set by states and regional school systems, as well as improved methods for evaluation.

THE DOWNSIDE to a constantly changing and improving program such as special education is the inevitable paperwork. Whitney just considers it part of the job.

"You want to work with the kids, and it takes time away from creativity, but it's necessary," she says.

But what she feels most strongly about is the staff she works with on a daily basis.

"They are so dedicated," she says. "They set such high standards for themselves besides just their accountability to the head of special education. And they are fantastically creative.

"We have such a great support staff ... just superb paraprofessionals. It's uncanny how we keep getting such good ones year after year. To come to school every day and see such a great staff, it's so rewarding. They're like my family!"

ASKED WHAT she anticipates most in her retirement, Whitney laughs and shrugs.

"Sleep late and have long lunches," she says. "I suppose I should say that I'll read, travel, and garden ... and enjoy life.

"I think I'll enjoy having more flexibility in my schedule. I want to keep busy, volunteer at the hospital, but also take those long lunches with friends."

HONORS

WASHTENAW COMMUNITY COLLEGE GRADUATES
Washtenaw Community College graduates for December 2001 and candidates for April and June 2002 recently were announced. They were honored at commencement held on May 18.

Graduates and candidates from Manchester include Leslie Erin Aris; Denise Sharon Koffman; Eric B Mackres; Debora Rose Spring; Rebecca K Stahley and Teresa Lorraine Wallace.

WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY DEAN'S LIST

Four Manchester graduates are on the Dean's List at Western Michigan University for the winter term 2002. They are:

Benjamin L. Grenier, the son of Louis and Rose Grenier, majoring in management.

Carmen Kapa, the daughter of Gary and Carolyn Kapa, majoring in elementary groups.

Kyle W. Harris, the son of Albert F. and Mary Harris, a mechanical engineering major.

Bradley Kemner, the son of David and Eloise Kemner, majoring in aviation flight science.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN HONORS CONVOCATION

Several Manchester students received recognition at the University of Michigan honors convocation in March.

Students receiving university honors (3.5 grade point average in at least 12 graded credit hours) included Lisa DuRussel, Susan Harter, Lucas Millheim and Erin Willey.

Wiley and Harter also were named James B. Angell Scholars, awarded to full-time undergraduate students maintaining an all-A record for two or more consecutive terms.

WASHTENAW COMMUNITY COLLEGE HONORS RECIPIENTS

Full time students at Washtenaw Community College who have achieved academic excellence, earning a grade-point average of 3.8 or better, were recently honored.

Jamison Abbott, Leslie Aris, Marie Beaudoin, David DuRussel, Melissa Hoefl, Kathryn Horodeczny, Jennifer Knight, Eric Mackres, Natalie Martin, Sandy Miller, Amanda

Pierson, Kevin Riegler, Amy Saunders, Katherine Sondeen and Angela Tyler, all of Manchester, were among the honorees.

UNITED STATES ACHIEVEMENT ACADEMY

Kevin Walter, a junior at Manchester High School, has been named a national award winner in mathematics by the United States Achievement Academy. Walter was nominated for this award by Kristin Cole, a teacher at Manchester High School. He will appear in the USAA's official yearbook, which is published nationally.

He is the son of Terry and Faye Walter of Manchester and grandson of Curt and Joan Day, also of Manchester.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

Noah Gordon of Manchester was one of more than 500 Central Michigan University students who displayed projects or participated in creative performances during the ninth annual Student Research and Creative Endeavors Exhibition.

Gordon, a junior at CMU majoring in journalism with an emphasis on public relations, examined how participation in athletics affected individuals later in their adult lives. The title of his research was, "What sports taught participants about life."

A graduate of Manchester High School, Gordon is the son of Michael and Anne Marie Gordon of Manchester.

Since 1980, WXYZ-TV, Channel 7 has honored graduating seniors from public and private schools who have demonstrated excellence in academic, extracurricular and community pursuits. The program has honored more than 4,000 high school seniors in its 23-year history, making it the longest-running program of its kind in the Detroit market.

WXYZ-TV hosted the students at a special picnic May 18, where promotional spots were taped featuring the students and Channel 7 personalities. The segments will air on the station throughout the summer months.

RAIN FOREST

MANY OTHER animals use the color of the rainforest for protection. One kind is the red-eye tree frog.

"They are unnoticeable when they close their eyes, because of their green body," Maris said. "They hide on top of leaves."

"Emerald boas are green," Dane said matter-of-factly. "They start out yellowish, but the older they get, the greener they get."

"Boas will eat almost anything, except for bugs and really big animals," Maris said. "They sneak around and blend in with the trees, and then they snatch the animal and swallow it."

THERE ARE many more things to learn about tropical rainforests, from the diversity of plants and animals to the effect rainforests have on the earth, and more importantly the effect that humans have on rainforests.

But to learn more, you may just have to ask the next first-grader you see!

SWWC director maps plans for retirement

■ Diane Skinner has taught in Saline since 1973.

By Paul Tull
Special Writer
Officially it's called the South and West Washtenaw Consortium.

The name is a mouthful, a jaw-breaker, a super-moniker and then some. It has the sound of big government, a bursting bureaucracy about it. In the field of public education, South and West Washtenaw Consortium—SWCC—could stand for "Sure Way to Wages, Careers." Or "Student-Work Worth Cash."

For 20 years, the Saline, Milan, Manchester, Chelsea and Dexter public schools have—by pooling teaching facilities, portions of their staffs and their budgets—been offering lifetime career opportunities to students searching for a fulfilling line of work. Starting in their third year of high school, students who opt to explore the career and technical education programs offered by SWCC can choose from 15 or more work-study classes that the consortium offers. Auto Technology, Building Trades, Child and Adult Care, Hospitality/Culinary Arts, Cosmetology, Electronics, Print Graphics, Health Sciences, Machine Tool Tech, Marketing, Metal Processing and Welding Tech, and Visual Imaging Tech are the current offerings. Turf and Landscape Management, and Agriscience are recent additions.

THERE'S LOTS of busing involved. With only a few exceptions, the courses and classes are located in or adjacent to Saline. This means that students living in other areas are bused to and from their SWCC locations. One of the Building Trades classes is centered in Chelsea and one in Saline; the Print Graphics sessions are based in Dexter; the Health Sciences are taught in Chelsea, as well as at Saline Community Hospital; and the Cosmetology teaching sessions are held in rented space at the Huron Valley Beauty Academy on Stadium Boulevard. With these few exceptions, the SWCC sessions are all located in Saline.

Busing and teaching costs are shared proportionately by the five school districts.

"Busing is a major part of the consortium budget," says Diane Skinner, principal/director of Career and Technical Education with SWCC.

And Diane ought to know. She travels from school to school, class to class, making sure that the mission of the consortium is being accomplished. Based in a small office at Saline High School, she is a smiling leader and inspirer.

"I believe in what we're doing," she says. "We're constantly monitoring the day-by-day progress of classes, and we follow up the employment successes of our graduates. One year after earning their diplomas, close to 80 percent of the program's alumni have found employment. A surprising number go on to college, aiming for a profession such as nursing or engineering that they've already gotten a head start in, as high school students."

The South and West Washtenaw Consortium was launched in the 1979-80 school year. David Mieras, a longtime teacher in Saline, was the key organizer. After building a strong foundation for the new program, Mieras retired in 1996.

Skinner, his successor, was born and raised in Jackson. She moved to Clinton in 1969, and commuted to Eastern Michigan University where she earned a bachelor's degree in home economics and science, a master's degree in consumer management, and a specialist degree in educational leadership.

"I COMMUTED to EMU through Saline," she says. "and I knew Saline was where I wanted to teach. In the fall of 1973, I started teaching home economics and biology here."

In 1981, Skinner joined Mieras on the faculty, and in 1989 she was named director of Career and Technical Education with the consortium. She has served as adviser to Future Homemakers of America, Big Sisters/Little Sisters Club, and was sponsor of the Saline High School Class of 1979 and part of the Class of '89.

Married to Gary Skinner, a pilot captain with Northwest

Airlines, she and he are proud parents of daughter Terry, an upcoming junior at Michigan State, and son Tony, a member of the Class of 2002 at Saline. Soon he will join the student body at Western Michigan University. His major: aviation. Terry is studying to become a nurse, but ultimately she may end up teaching the subject herself.

SKINNER WILL retire at the end of the current school year. The Skinners will make their home at Lake Columbia in the Irish Hills. Gary has signed up for two years flying the Metro-Honolulu route. If things work out, they'll become "Hawaiians forever." If they decide they belong here in Michigan, they'll build a larger place at the lake.

And wherever they stay, Diane Skinner will always treasure memories of her happy, productive years as a teacher and director.

Now and then, she'll probably read again the fan mail from former students, such as this one from Ann Slesky Glover:

"Congratulations, Mrs. Skinner! I will always think of you as a wonderful teacher and a fun class sponsor. You've touched a lot of lives, inspired many, and you were a role model for me. I wish you lots of happiness and good health in the retiring years to come."

SKINNER IS already helping prepare her successor for the upcoming change in management. She is confident that SWCC will continue to be an ever-growing "Sure Way to Wages, Careers."

Incoming director...

By Renee Collins
Heritage Newspapers

This fall, when students in the South and West Washtenaw Consortium return to their classrooms, there will be a new face to greet them.

New, at least, to students in Milan, Manchester, Chelsea and Dexter.

Saline students already will be familiar with the new director of the SWCC, Jean Britton, who has served as an assistant principal at Saline High since 1996.

Britton, who has made education her career for three decades, will replace Diane Skinner at the consortium.

The SWCC office, which once was housed in Pleasant Lake, is located in the old Community Ed office at Saline High, so Britton won't have far to go to her new job.

"Diane has done a great job at the consortium, so I expect I will be able to slide in smoothly," says Britton.

IN HER "before Saline" days, Britton was the principal at Addison High School. Prior to that, she taught for 18 years in Dundee.

Britton earned her bachelor's degree in education from Siena Heights College (now University), and went on to Eastern Michigan University for her master's degree in education and her specialist degree in educational leadership. Most of her teaching experience has been in the vocational education area.

At Saline, she has been directing discipline and attendance for the junior class and part of the sophomore class. She also is in charge of student activities, and is the MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) coordinator for the High School.

"I've also handled teacher evaluations," says Britton. "I have always enjoyed working with the students in Saline—they are great kids—and it won't be quite the same going to the consortium. I'll miss the kids and that is the sad part about making this move."

"But, I'm also ready for a change and for a more diverse, broader group of students and educational challenges."

Jean Britton

Building homes, building relationships, building futures

■ Consortium students learn teamwork while constructing a house.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Brick by brick, the students in John Ruhl's building trades class at the South and West Washtenaw Consortium are nearing completion of the exterior of their house at 7161 Wapiti Way in Saline.

When completed, the 2,887 square-foot home east of the industrial park will feature a two-car garage, laundry and mudroom, a kitchen with pantry and breakfast nook, a family room with fireplace, living and dining rooms and four bedrooms, including a Jacuzzi master suite.

An open house was held at the building site last Thursday to welcome parents and friends of the program to see how much the class has achieved since last September.

The foundation, brick work and shingles are the only parts of the home that have not been completed by students in the building trades class, who hail from Chelsea, Saline, Manchester, Milan and Dexter.

Alex Plouff, a junior from Saline, said that he had learned a lot in the past year.

"I worked on a construction job last summer," he said. "But what I learned here was a lot more complex."

"One of the most important things I learned was how to deal with other people on the job."

His classmates agree.

"We all grew up," said Dan Maurer from Chelsea. "We learned a lot about working together—just like in the real world."

Ross Davis, also of Chelsea, said that an important lesson he learned in the class was "accepting responsibility for your mistakes."

"You have to accept responsibility," he said. "And then you fix it and go on."

Dexter student Nick Stabnau

said that he had fun working with the other students and sharing skills with other. Next year, Stabnau will remain in the consortium but will transfer to automotive technology.

Asked how he might use the skills he's learned in building trades, Stabnau said, "I will use a lot of the same skills in any job."

"I also will remember what I've learned here someday when I'm building my own house."

Morie Church, Ruhl's assistant, said that many students feel the same as Stabnau do.

"It's like any class," he said. "Some kids will enjoy it and others are just here putting in time."

"But it gives the kids confidence in handling tools, and an ability to work as a team."

This winter, the students learned a great deal about working as a team when they raised the roof trusses for the house, Church added.

There are two building trades classes in the consortium—a morning class and an afternoon one.

"The morning class starts a job, and the afternoon class picks up where they left off," Church said.

As the end of the school year approaches, the building trades class will complete the work needed to close in the house for the summer and next year's classes, including six who will be second-year students, will finish the inside work on the house.

"It's gone real well," Church said. "This has been a good class."

Not pictured are class members Ryan Hendricks and Ian Chartrand from Manchester. This year's students completed the roughing in and next year's class will do the interior and finish work on the house.

Daimler-Chrysler or another German company," she said. "I'd like to get an internship there—that's what's on my plan for my life."

While in Germany, she hopes to achieve fluency in the language as well as accomplish some of her academic and career goals.

"I understand a lot of German, but I haven't had much opportunity to speak it."

While in the consortium program, she will take classes from American professors or teaching assistants, to aid her in the transition to a German-speaking curriculum.

Before leaving for Freiburg in late August, Abbott will be continuing her job at the high school until school ends next week, as well working at the Manchester Market and at the Crowne Plaza in Ann Arbor as a banquet server.

Schulte and Abbott both credit the quality instruction that Davis provided them in high school with allowing them to participate in the programs they've chosen.

"If we weren't in Frau Davis' classes, we probably would never have had these opportunities," Schulte said.

MANCHESTER BOARD OF EDUCATION NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED 2002-2003 BUDGET

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 17, 2002 at 6:30 o'clock p.m., at Manchester High School Media Center, Manchester, Michigan, the Board of Education will hold a public hearing to consider the district's proposed 2002-2003 budget. 1. The regular Board meeting of Freedom Township was called to order by Supervisor Little. Clerk Schenk, Treasurer Bossory, Trustees Horning and Weidmayer were present as well as several residents at 8:00PM.

2. Little moved to accept the minutes of April 9, 2002 meeting. Horning seconded. A voice vote resulted in all ayes. Motion carried.

3. Treasurer Bossory reviewed the new Treasurer's report format. C&T restoration monies should be accounted for separately. Little moved to accept the Treasurer's report for April 2002. Weidmayer seconded. A roll call vote resulted in all ayes. Motion carried.

4. Audience Participation: Bob Miller noted that Freedom had established schools in 1837, was organized as a township in 1834, and granted its first tavern license in 1841. Several residents commented they had not received official notification about a public hearing through the DEQ for Barret's to build a 58 acre lake. The Township will write a letter to the DEQ requesting a public hearing. The Zoning Inspector also noted that Barret's had been working last week beyond the normal hours of operation. The Township will write a letter in response to this information.

5. Reports: State Police - Trooper Seitz reported 6 incidents in April. Planning Commission - Kuebler gravel pit application was tabled. Fitness Center on Pleasant Lake was approved. Annual gravel pit inspections were held May 18, 2002. Zoning Board of Appeals 1 setback variance was granted. Ordinance Enforcement Officer - asked permission to involve the Township attorney on the junk car problems. The Board agreed this was appropriate. Zoning inspector - 2 new permits were issued. The Planner has not responded yet to the request of the ZI related to deed restrictions. Suggestion to track splits on Equalizer. Library-The Library has joined a new cooperative which will greatly increase its lending collection. 9 of 39 new cards were from Freedom. Currently Freedom has 258 cardholders.

6. Old Business: PDR DeLoof & Little were assigned by SWWCOG to work on the ordinance. The Ecology Center is picking up Lonik's costs to aid Pittsfield. County Commissioner Solowczuk is in support of a model PDR ordinance. September is the goal for completion. Road Commission-Discussion about paving by the town hall. Little moved to amend the General Fund budget for the town hall paving, and deputy clerk salary. Weidmayer seconded. A roll call vote resulted in all ayes. Motion carried. Little moved to approve increasing the Road Commission contract by $3,350 for the town hall paving. Horning seconded. A roll call vote resulted in all ayes. Motion carried.

8. Weidmayer moved to accept warrants 6333-6358. Little seconded. A roll call vote resulted in all ayes. Motion carried.

There being no further business, Supervisor Little adjourned the meeting at 9:40PM.

Respectfully Submitted,

Theresa Schenk, Freedom Township Clerk

MANCHESTER TOWNSHIP PROPOSED SYNOPSIS OF A SPECIAL BOARD MEETING HELD MONDAY, MAY 20, 2002

Supervisor Mann called the meeting to order at 5:00 p.m. Board members present: Mann, Hakes and Widmayer. Absent: Turk and Macomber. The purpose of the meeting was to award bids for roofing and heating and cooling for the township hall.

The Board accepted the bid of C. Schmitt Roofing and Siding for $10,594 to roof all shingled areas of the township hall. The Board then decided to contract with Brooklyn Plumbing & Heating & A/C, Inc. to replace two existing rooftop heating and cooling units for $8,783.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned at 5:18 p.m. A complete copy of these minutes may be obtained during office hours, which are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The next regular meeting of the Manchester Township Board is Monday, May 13, 2002 at 8:00 p.m.

Submitted by Kathleen M. Hakes, Clerk

Approved by Ronald E. Mann, Supervisor

MANCHESTER VILLAGE

COUNCIL APPROVED PROCEEDINGS — MAY 6, 2002

President Vaillencourt called the regular meeting of the Manchester Village Council to order at 7:00 P.M. with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. Council members present: Conaway, DuRussel, Dzengelski, Petsch, Schaffer, Way and Vaillencourt. Also present: Manager Wallace, Clerk Schaible, Ron Fielder, Bob Rhees, Ken Rogge, Bruce Rhees-DPW, Peg Chizmar, Bill Chizmar, Joan Berry, Gary Wiedmayer-DPW, Paul Siano, Marion Ahrens, John Bean, Herb Mahony, Dianne Schwab

The minutes of the April 15, 2002 regular meeting were approved. The proceedings of the April 15, 2002 regular meeting were approved.

AGENDA was approved as amended. PUBLIC PARTICIPATION - Bob Rhees, on behalf of the Men's Club, requested approval of the July 3rd fireworks display at Carr Park. Council granted. Men's Club will hold a rollerblade party at ChiBro Park on May 18 at 7:00.

The Chamber of Commerce requested approval for their flower project downtown.

Motion carried that the Village grant permission to secure flower boxes approximately two inches above and on the river side of the bridge railing and that the Village contribute $400 towards the project.

NEW BUSINESS

M-52 ALTERNATIVE ROUTE - Paul Siano, representing the Manchester Township Planning Commission, requested feedback from the Village council regarding an alternative route for M-52 that would take through traffic east of the Village and straighten out the State Highway. No specific routes have been proposed. Council agreed that it supports formation of a SWWCOG subcommittee to study and proceed with the concept. Council stressed that all issues be addressed, including impact on commerce, and that all voices be represented on the SWWCOG committee.

CAMP BRIGHTON PUBLIC WORKS AGREEMENT - Motion carried that the Village Manager be authorized to sign the agreement with Camp Brighton to provide work crews.

VILLAGE TAP EVENT AUTHORIZATION - Motion carried that the Village Clerk be authorized to sign the Special Event Authorization as a temporary permit for outside services for the Village Tap on May 18, 12 noon to 12AM.

TENNIS & BASKETBALL COURT RESURFACING - Motion carried that the Village accept the Goddard Coating Co. proposal for resurfacing of the courts, costs not to exceed $7,260. Motion carried to accept the Midwest Pavement Contracting Co. proposal for crack repairs at the Kirk Park and Village Hall parking lots, costs not to exceed $2400.

PARK MOWING AND RESTROOMS - Wiedmayer discussed repairs needed at the restroom in Carr Park. Wiedmayer will secure two bids for restroom restoration. Motion carried that the Village hire one employee at $10/hr as needed, not to exceed 32 hours per week, until September 15, 2002.

WWTP FLOW TRANSMITTERS & RECORDER CHART - Motion carried that Wiedmayer and Rhees investigate warranty and maintenance and be authorized to accept one proposal at a cost not to exceed $7,133.

LIFT STATION MAINTENANCE - Motion carried that the Village contract with Standby Power to service the lift station generators and provide yearly maintenance at a cost not to exceed $1317. Motion carried that Standby Power perform the every other year load bank tests on all generators this year at a cost not to exceed $1250.

CORRESPONDENCE

Council acknowledged the following correspondence: Request from American Legion Post #117 for approval of May 27, 2002 Memorial Day Parade. Motion carried granting permission to hold the parade at 12:45 PM with the route specified in the letter.

ACCOUNTS PAYABLE - Motion carried to pay warrants in the total amount of $56,729.34.

REPORTS

MANAGER REPORT - Dwayne Vaillencourt has volunteered to organize a Community Workday to assist in the completion of the park projects.

Motion carried that council go into closed session to discuss pending litigation.

Motion carried that Council return to open meeting.

There being no further business President Vaillencourt adjourned the meeting at 10:45 P.M.

Respectfully submitted,

Julie A. Schaible
Manchester Village Clerk

 Poetry Night with Linda Gregerson

Linda Gregerson will read from and sign copies of her new book, "Waterborne." These stirring poems can be considered tools for staging daily rescues from oblivion. Their occasions are diverse — a barn fire, a wounded deer, a child's determined struggle with a bicycle — but their instinct is always to wrest from the impure world a vernacular of praise. Enjoy this award-winning poet to be followed by Open Mike.

Schulte hangs up his jersey

Paul Schulte, a senior at the University of Texas at Arlington, completed his college wheelchair basketball career this winter with the Movin' Mavs at UTA, by leading his team to a college wheelchair basketball championship. At the University's all-sports banquet in April, Schulte's jersey, #20, was retired and presented to him.

This isn't the end of Schulte's wheelchair basketball career, however. He'll be playing with Team USA this summer, and the team will make a stop in Manchester Aug. 2-4 for practice and an exhibition game before heading to Japan for the Gold Cup.

Optimists plan tri-star baseball competition

At 1 p.m. on Saturday, the Manchester Optimist Club will hold its annual Tri-Star Baseball Contest at Kirk Park. Contestants, boys and girls ages 8-13, will be scored in batting, throwing and base running. Applications are available at the Manchester Pharmacy, Dr. Bates' office or at Kirk Park on the day of the contest. Contestants are welcome to bring their own bats.

Athletic Boosters prepare for fund-raising golf outing

The Athletic Boosters will host a June 29 golf outing at Hickory Sticks Golf Course in Freedom Township. All of the money raised will go to the AED fund, to finance the purchase of defibrillators for each school in the district. Foursomes and hole sponsors are being sought, and both may be reserved by contacting Kathy Roberts at United Bank and Trust's Manchester office, 428-8370. A foursome is $280 and hole sponsorships are available for $125.

Graduate lands spot on K-college team

Academics and athletics weigh equally for Jacob Sawyer.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

"Sports have helped me in every way," says this honor roll student. "They've kept me more organized in everything."

"It doesn't give me time to procrastinate."

And maintaining a 3.6 grade point average throughout his high school years while playing three sports and earning 10 varsity letters, have also helped Jacob Sawyer to earn a place on the Kalamazoo College Hornets' football squad this coming fall.

Sawyer, who played tight end on the Manchester varsity team, is projected as a wide receiver and place kicker by the Hornets.

"I knew I wasn't going to be able to play at a larger school," he said of his choice to pursue Kalamazoo. "I want to get a good education, and I want to play football."

"Kalamazoo is one of the top five schools in the country, academically, and that made it an easy choice."

Sawyer also considered Alma College and Albion College, also highly-ranked academically.

"I liked the atmosphere at Kalamazoo," he said. "It's inside of Western, so it's not like you're going to a small school."

"The college sits on a hill; you look down and the whole city is right there."

The idea of attending a small school in the big city was appealing to Sawyer, who has lived in Manchester most of his life.

He plans to major in legal studies or philosophy, with an eye toward becoming a judge some day. After attending a seminar to get acquainted with college-level courses, one of the counselors with whom he con-

Jacob Sawyer, a three-sport athlete during all four years of high school, received 10 varsity letters. He will attend Kalamazoo College in the fall to study pre-law and also will be a member of the Hornets' football team.

Junior Dutch win 3, lose 2 in final week of the season

■ Sluggers finish with winning record.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

The junior varsity baseball team finished its season with a string of high-scoring games, starting first with a 9-7 loss to Napoleon on May 13 followed by a close 8-7 victory over Hanover on the 15th.

The final conference game went to Addison on May 17 as the junior Dutch lost 8-5 and ended the Cascade Conference season with a winning 10-3 record.

On May 18, the team traveled to Sand Creek where they placed second in the weekend tournament. Freshman Eric Strong pitched the game against Summerfield, grabbing his first shut-out of the season for a phenomenal 11-0 win.

The junior varsity team wrapped up its final game of the season on May 21 against Gabriel Richard in Ann Arbor, stealing an 8-1 victory and bringing the final season tally to 15 wins, 5 losses.

"Our three sophomores provided excellent leadership throughout the year," said Manchester coach Tim Amburgey.

Team captain Jeff Miller, assistant captain Lance Aiken, and Dan Fleck will move to Manchester's varsity team for their junior year.

"We had a very, very young team," Amburgey said, "and I thought that we really grew this year. We performed well."

"I want to congratulate all of the young men for a very competitive season and a will to win."

Looking to next year, Amburgey is optimistic. "As far as the mental game," he says, "we have a lot of room to grow, but we'll have nine returning sophomores next year."

The players' hard work will be rewarded at Tuesday's Recognition Night, held at 6 p.m. at Carr Park.

SAWYER

sulted said her father had majored in philosophy and became a judge.

"I've wanted to do that, but nothing in high school had really gotten me into it," Sawyer said.

Although he's pursuing a liberal arts major in college, some of Sawyer's most influential high school teachers have been in science and mathematics.

"Mrs. (Kristin) Cole was really influential," he says. "It was hard in her classes, but she really taught you something."

He also says that Jim Fielder was a huge influence on him, both on the football field as a junior varsity coach and as a teacher.

"He's been like a mentor to me," Sawyer says. "I liked him as a teacher and he's been great as a counselor."

His parents, Dale and Jayne Sawyer, have been as great an influence on Jacob as Fielder has been.

"Both Mr. Fielder and my dad, have motivated and influenced me," he says. "Both of my parents have really encouraged me through the years to do whatever I wanted to do."

And football is what he's always wanted to do.

"I always had a football when I was a little kid," he recalls. "My dad would tell me to get out and play in the yard and I would go kick it around for a couple of hours at a time."

So it's an exciting decision for him to be able to play football at the next level.

"But I'm also looking forward to being able to take a wider range of academic classes," he says.

For all four years in high school, Sawyer has been a three-sport athlete, also participating in varsity track and basketball for four years. He spent two years playing junior varsity football before being promoted to the varsity squad in the fall of 2000.

He says he might play intramural basketball in college, but what he really wants to do is play football.

This summer, Sawyer won't be procrastinating, either.

He'll be getting ready to play some serious football in the fall.

HOLE IN ONE

Ken Johnson of Manchester shot his first-ever hole-in-one on Memorial Day at Rustic Glen Golf Course. Johnson used his 7-iron at the 10th hole, shooting 81 for his total score. He was playing with Jennifer Johnson.

Varsity baseball ends season in pre-districts

■ Mixture of relief and regret for team and coach after 12-7 loss.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Manchester's baseball season ended a bit short of what the coach and the team had anticipated as recently as the early innings of last Tuesday's pre-district game against Columbia Central.

"We jumped on them in the first inning, scoring four runs," Manchester coach Corey Fether said. "I was thinking we were well on our way."

But then Columbia came alive and scored four runs of their own in the bottom of the first inning to tie the game.

"We scored one in the second and held them, and in the third inning we scored two more, to be up 7-4," Fether said.

Again Columbia came back and scored two runs, leaving the Dutch up by just one run in the fourth inning.

"We got two guys on base with just one out, and then they switched pitchers on us," Fether said. "Up to this point we had 10 hits and had scored seven runs."

"But they brought in the new pitcher and he shut us right down. We didn't have a base runner after that."

Columbia's pitcher kept the Dutchmen off balance with his change up and hard pitching.

"He definitely pitched well, and we stopped hitting," Fether said. "But they didn't."

"They're definitely a very good hitting team."

Jon Schaible had two hits, including a double, while Josh McCalla, Karl Schaible, Adam Little and Beau Bergner each had a single and an RBI in the game. Jeff Panches had two hits, while Derik Dwyer hit a single and walked twice and Chris Loud had a single and two RBIs.

Brent Leverett pitched the entire game and took the loss, ending his senior season with a 7-4 record.

Overall, this year was the varsity baseball team's first winning season in recent memory as they ended up with a 15-12 record, an improvement over last year's 11-12 statistics. Finishing second in the Cascades Conference also was an impressive standing after several slumping seasons.

The team loses seven seniors who all have contributed heavily to the team this year, Fether said.

"But I have seven guys returning to varsity next year, who will need to step up their play," he said. "We'll have to get some contributions from this year's JV players, too."

The junior varsity's solid performance this year gives the varsity "a lot of talent to grow on" for the future," he added.

The team's recognition dinner will be held at 6 p.m. next Tuesday at Carr Park. A family potluck dinner will be featured.

The team also will participate in a summer league, with statistics reported to the Enterprise weekly.

Junior Josh McCalla chalked up a base hit and an RBI in last week's pre-district game against Columbia Central. The early innings for the Dutchmen but Columbia prevailed in the end, 12-7.

Take control of maintaining your beautiful outdoor world

ELIMINATE UNWANTED WEEDS WITH

During the warm summer months, weeds and nuisance grass become very aggressive. Unsightly growth can sprout up along driveways, in sidewalk cracks and between patio blocks. But there's a simple solution to rid yourself of these pesky problems – Green Thumb Weed & Grass Killer. It leaves no residue and is rainproof just two hours after applying. Best of all, it's easy to use and will keep your yard looking neat and beautiful, all summer long!

Perennial plants add glorious garden color year after year

Perennials – the perfect choice for reliable beauty year after year!

Unlike annuals, perennial plants repeat the cycle of blooming and dying back year after year. This gives them ample opportunity for establishing themselves in one spot, allowing them to grow and mature into beautiful, healthy additions to your garden. Because they begin their spring growth while annuals are still warming up, perennials are absolutely essential in cold weather climates. There are many reasons to choose perennials, besides their independent yearly re-emergence. They're interesting for their range of blooms, from tiny flowers to towering stems. There's also plenty of variety in color, foliage, fragrance and tolerance for different growing conditions. Luckily, many of our favorite flowering plants are perennials, such as daisies, hostas, daylilies and ornamental grasses. There are literally thousands to choose from for your garden.

How to get the most from your perennials Traditionally, perennials are planted in either beds or borders, combining different colors and heights for an interesting look. They're also ideal for container planting, though they may need to be wintered over indoors in colder climates. Some perennials are also great to grow specifically for striking, long-lasting cut flower arrangements.
