Events set to commemorate Sept. 11

■ Year since terrorist attacks has changed lives.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

One year ago this week, Americans enjoyed a carefree Labor Day holiday. Travel, particularly air travel, was considered routine and unremarkable.

Locally, Manchester residents voted in a $35-million bond to build a new high school and renovate the current high school into a middle school. The library was preparing to move into its new quarters at 912 City Road after 67 years on Main Street. The varsity Dutchmen posted the season's first conference victory against Hanover-Horton.

Terrorist attacks were something that happened in far-away Middle Eastern countries. The idea of such an event happening in the United States was unthinkable.

But a week later, everyone's priorities changed dramatically in the course of a sunny September morning, as terrorists flew jetliners into the World Trade Center and the Pentagon the morning of Sept. 11, and a fourth plane crashed in a Pennsylvania field after passengers overtook the terrorist hijackers.

In the weeks following Sept. 11, 2001, everyone's world was forever changed.

Next Wednesday, on the one-year anniversary of these terrorist attacks, several events will be held in Manchester to commemorate the attacks and to honor those who participated in the rescue efforts.

Manchester Community Schools will remember the day in a variety of ways.

The Nellie Ackerson Middle School staff is considering several different ways to observe the anniversary of Sept. 11 and will make an announcement to students and parents on Monday, Sept. 9.

The high school will sponsor an essay and art contest for students with cash prizes to the top essayist and artist. This opportunity for creative expression on a topic that has touched everyone's hearts will be open to all high school students, according to staff member Greg Smith.

The Manchester Area Chamber of Commerce will be decorating the trees on Main Street with red, white and blue bows. In cooperation with the Manchester Township Fire Department, the chamber also encourages businesses and members of the community to gather at 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 11 at the fire hall, 275 S. Macomb St., to observe a moment of silence and a brief commemorative ceremony by the local firefighters.

The International Association of Fire Chiefs has issued a nationwide call for all fire departments across the country to simultaneously commemorate the attacks, to conduct a single nationwide salute to fallen firefighters, law enforcement and civilians, and to the extraordinary response of the entire American fire service. The event is being coordinated take place at the exact moment the World Trade Center events occurred and will be marked by two series of bell chimes, one for each of the towers, at 10:05 and 10:28 a.m.

A presentation of the M-CAT 9-11 memorial tribute quilt to the Village of Manchester will be made at the 10:30 a.m. ceremony at the fire department.

Manchester's religious community also has planned observances for the day. St. Mary's Catholic Church will hold a special Mass at 7 p.m. on Wednesday. An ecumenical candle-light remembrance service conducted by the members of the Manchester area clergy cluster is set for 7 p.m. at the Gazebo in Wurster Park on Main Street. In case of inclement weather, Emanuel United Church of Christ will host the gathering.

Last year, a Sunday afternoon ecumenical service on Sept. 16 brought nearly 500 people to worship and meditate at Manchester High School. All members of churches and the community are invited to attend this event.

Painting the Mill

Revamping the river front

■ A fresh look for Manchester's historic landmark.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

When Karl Racenis and his wife, Pat, bought the Manchester Mill in June 2001, they recognized the value it provided to Main Street's image, and knew the importance of maintaining its historic appearance.

"We had previously thought about buying an architecturally interesting building," said Racenis. "The mill seemed unique and interesting; the river-front location is wonderful, and we liked the idea of being right in town where you can walk to drug store or grocery store."

"It has a lot of potential and interest."

Replacing the outside curbing with railroad ties and putting a new roof over what used to be the grain elevator, in addition to numerous interior renovations, are just a few of the many upgrades performed at the mill. But the latest project was to give the mill a fresh coat of red paint.

A problem surfaced in the question of how to paint the east face of the mill, which faces the River Raisin. Only a small strip of land separates the mill from the river, making the use of a ladder or even scaffolding impractical.

"There's really no solid land there," Racenis said, "and the water is a combination of rock and mud; a difficult surface to anchor in, especially if you're climbing 50 feet in the air."

That's why, when it came time to repaint the mill, the couple chose Akers Painting and Decorating, a Dexter-based firm with experience working with historical buildings.

"They had previous experience doing old buildings in downtown Adrian," Racenis said. "They're familiar with using a crane for accessing difficult areas. That was probably the most important feature."

Last Wednesday, traffic was shifted to one lane over the Main Street bridge while a crane hoisted Akers' painters alongside the mill. But the delays didn't last long; the crane came and went in a day.

"They ended up painting well over half the building that day," Racenis said.

The project actually took the better part of August to complete, however, first power-washing the building and then painting the trim. The most visible change is the white paint on the wrap-around porch, which was previously the same color as

Riverfolk proceeds benefit community

■ Some funds earmarked for next year's event.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

The Riverfolk Music and Arts Festival proudly presented the Community Resource Center with a check in the amount of $13,797 at its Board of Directors' meeting last week.

"Riverfolk was a success on two levels," said festival director Mark Palms. "From a personal standpoint of working with more than 130 volunteers and 25 committee chairs. I got to know the community a little better and forged new relationships in an exciting event.

"It was one of my goals to work together with the community on a project, but I had never really experienced the sense of reward from getting to know so many people on a personal level.

"I think that was a universal response that was a lot of committee members who were brought together by the event—it was a great reward to be able to get to know your community so much better."

The second success was financial, Palms said.

"Prior to the event we knew we were taking a risk—really sticking our neck out," he said. "We invested about $20,000 into the festival and there was a question as to whether we could draw enough people to Manchester.

"Would it rain? Would people come?"

"But the response we got that day was that we'd hit a 'home run' and the majority indicated that the majority of festival patrons plan to come back and bring their friends.

"We're very optimistic about the future."

Palms said that the quality of the event, with juried artists, professional musicians, and even professional hospitality, costs money and takes more work.

"But people recognize the quality," he said. "That's what brings them back."

After spending several months last winter and spring in the planning stages for the event and his summer at a full-time volun-

Bridgewater agenda focuses on roads, land acquisitions

■ Sewer site location still under consideration.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

The Bridgewater Township board faced a wide variety of issues at its Aug. 21 regular meeting, highlighted by an update on the upgrade of a gravel haul route and a closed-session discussion of land purchase for a mechanical sewer system in the Bridgewater hamlet.

According to a report from Chip Tokar of Stansley Mineral Resources, work has begun on the upgrade of Bartlett Road to Class A status, as required by township ordinance.

"Stansley has cut down trees along Bartlett road to begin the road improvement effort and will be working on ditching the northern part of the road," said township supervisor Carol Peacock.

Tokar explained to the board that the ditching and road bed work will begin on the west side of the road and when complete, work will proceed on the eastern (southbound) section.

"That's what is planned for the rest of this year," Peacock said. "This is part of a three-year process subsequent to an agreement reached last year between the township and the mining company."

IN OTHER road improvement news, the township approved a revised road improvement agreement of its own.

"Last month we had approved a contract, but we then realized we had more money to spend than what we had originally committed to," Peacock said.

"Since that time, we revised the contract, and are going to be doing an improvement to the remainder of Logan Road, in the eastern portion of the township."

Two years ago the township improved the western portion of the road, including the laying down of limestone. Other summer road work has included two applications of dust control and having one apron paved at the intersection of Burmeister and Clinton Roads.

THE TOWNSHIP recently made an offer to St. John's Lutheran Church in the hamlet to purchase land for a mechanical sewage treatment plant. At the August meeting, a counter-offer was received from the church, which was discussed in closed session by the board.

"We're looking at our options," Peacock said of the counter offer. "At this point, we're looking to purchase land for the mechanical system."

The board had made a decision earlier this summer to pursue a mechanical treatment system, but agreed to keep its options open for a lagoon system, which had been the township's original plan, in case the mechanical plant option did not work out.

SEVERAL STEPS still need to be taken by the township to make a mechanical sewer system a reality.

"We'll have to apply to the state for a discharge permit for a mechanical system," Peacock said. "This may take as long as four months to receive approval."

"First, we have to purchase a property, or at least have a sales agreement. Then we need to apply for the permit and then it will take time to let construction bids.

"I don't anticipate that we would have any construction beginning until some time next year."

Several residents of neighboring Saline Township and some Bridgewater Township residents were dismayed last spring to learn that the township had been negotiating the purchase of 40 acres of land bordering Saline Township for its sewage treatment lagoon. The ensuing discussions set back the township's original plans to float bonds for the project in May 2002.

"I don't know that we've been set back a full year yet, but we definitely have been delayed," Peacock said.

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE

Doug Parr reported to the board that a recent Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority meeting had revealed the county will stop providing funds for recycling after this calendar year.

"That is something many of our citizens have not been aware of, but it has funded our clean up days in the township we've had twice a year," Peacock said. "It's helped with some other recycling activities, too, at the site in Bridgewater hamlet."

Peacock said the board talked about the need to be able to provide for those activities, without county funds in the future.

"It's just something we'll need to look at," she said.

"We know that cleanup days and recycling are services that are appreciated by our residents, and I think we want to continue."

"It's just that the township will be on its own for funding."

THE BOARD also initiated plans for a dedication service for the new flag pole recently installed at the township hall. A plaque, in memory of Michael and Helen Stimac, formerly neighbors of the township hall, will be placed near the flag pole.

"This is in connection with the purchase of land done last year," Peacock said.

The land directly to the north of the township hall was purchased from the Stimac's heirs.

"The plaque will say, 'In perpetuity for the neighbors and the land they loved,'" Peacock said. "The Stimacs' really enjoyed living in this area."

Village president talks to the community

PAT VAILLENCOURT
VILLAGE VIEW

Since taking office last March, several people have mentioned an idea of having regular articles from the Village President in the Manchester Enterprise. They felt that there are many times when getting additional information, having something clarified or just reading about some things on a more personal level would really be beneficial to the community.

My reaction has always been that we have very good local coverage, that not everyone would agree that these articles were beneficial and that I recognize my limitations as a journalist.

Having been approached again this week on the subject, I gave it serious consideration, received encouragement from friends and decided to give it a try. My request to you, as a reader, is to remember: I warned you I am not a journalist so bear with me if you see grammatical errors; my intent is to help ensure that facts are presented so rumors don't mislead us; and although I am the Village President I am still Pat Vaillencourt. I will try very hard to keep out my personal opinions but I cannot promise to keep out my sometimes overly compassionate, often unrealistic simplifications of how things could be. So, here I go.

I feel it is important to address the issue of the Supreme Court ruling on door-to-door activities. This article is in no way intended to point a finger or condemn the actions of anyone. It is only to help clarify some misunderstandings.

At the Aug. 19 Village Council meeting we received a recommendation from our attorney that, due to the mid-June ruling, we revise our village ordinance. Manchester's ordinance, like many others, required anyone soliciting or canvassing within the Village to fill out a license application. The purpose of the application had been to provide some protection to our residents by making village officials aware of anyone going door-to-door and to ensure that these activities were conducted at reasonable hours.

The ordinance allowed village authorities to question and stop the person if they were not registered. This ordinance was in no way written to take away freedoms. It was not to stop the activity, but only to try to protect freedoms and ensure that reputable persons conducted it.

The intent of requiring everyone to register was to prevent these activities from becoming annoying to our citizens and to help identify and stop disreputable persons from wandering our streets. Rather than offend someone by asking them to register, it was to benefit our authorities by knowing what is happening in our community.

Sadly, in today's world, it is almost daily that we hear of a child being abducted or an elderly citizen being vandalized or harmed. It was felt that this ordinance put reasonable requirements on these activities that could help prevent a tragedy.

The change in the law does somewhat restrict our authorities from questioning and stopping the activities of anyone not registered but claiming to be canvassing.

We are still not completely clear on how the change affects our ability to enforce "reasonable times." However, it does not mean that citizens cannot or should not call our authorities if they are concerned about any door-to-door activity.

I am sure that those who fought to change this ordinance felt they had very good reasons. Evidentially someone, somewhere misused, abused or misunderstood this type of ordinance. So, if you have read that the Village Council was "irked" or "disagreed with the Supreme Court ruling," it is because we feel that this ordinance was in the best interest of our citizens.

It is unfortunate that the intent and benefit of the ordinance was not better understood. The village ordinance has been amended to be in accordance with the new ruling.

Choosing whether or not to upgrade

Microsoft is about to release a service pack for Windows XP. A service pack is an interim release that usually contains bug fixes, or other critical updates.

Microsoft is by no means alone in releasing service packs for their software; every major manufacturer releases interim software to address problems, or other deficiencies in their software. There are often good reasons to upgrade, and often just as good reasons to wait. For the rest of this column, I will describe how I decide whether to upgrade or to wait.

To preface a bit, I have two different computers that I update with two different strategies. I like my main machine to be very stable. As a result, I am somewhat more conservative about this machine. I use my second machine for more experimental software; I am quite a bit more aggressive with applying patches and service packs. For this column, I will discuss my strategy for working with a main machine.

The first main concern on many service packs is that you often must install the entire service pack, or not at all. You need to weigh the entire contents of the service pack before deciding whether or not to get it.

The first type of update is security updates. I always get these as soon as they come out. These almost always are in response to some discovered vulnerability.

BILL WAGNER
COMPUTER SAVVY

One important side note on these types of updates: Microsoft does not send out blanket emails to customers telling them to get security updates. These notices are posted on their website. If you get an email discussing a security update, it is a hoax, usually inviting you to a different site that could download a virus to your machine.

A second related note is that you should take the time to get your virus protection software updated weekly or more often if you hear about a particular attack. Luckily, most if not all vendors release security updates separately from service packs. With security updates, you can get the update for just the security update.

The bottom line: check your operating system and other critical communication software for security updates on a frequent, regular basis.

The next category is bug fixes. These you need to inspect on a case-by-case basis. If a bug fix handles a particular problem that you find critical or even really annoying, go ahead and get the update. If not, wait.

There can be as many as hundreds of bug fixes in a service pack, depending on the size of the software package. Only some of the bug fixes may be critical to you. The rest may not be of any real use. You need to weigh the desirability of the bug fixes you want against the size of the service pack.

The bottom line: how soon you install a service pack depends how badly you need any of the particular fixes.

The last category is new features. It is generally frowned upon to add new features in a service pack.

These interim releases should be limited to critical, or at least important updates.

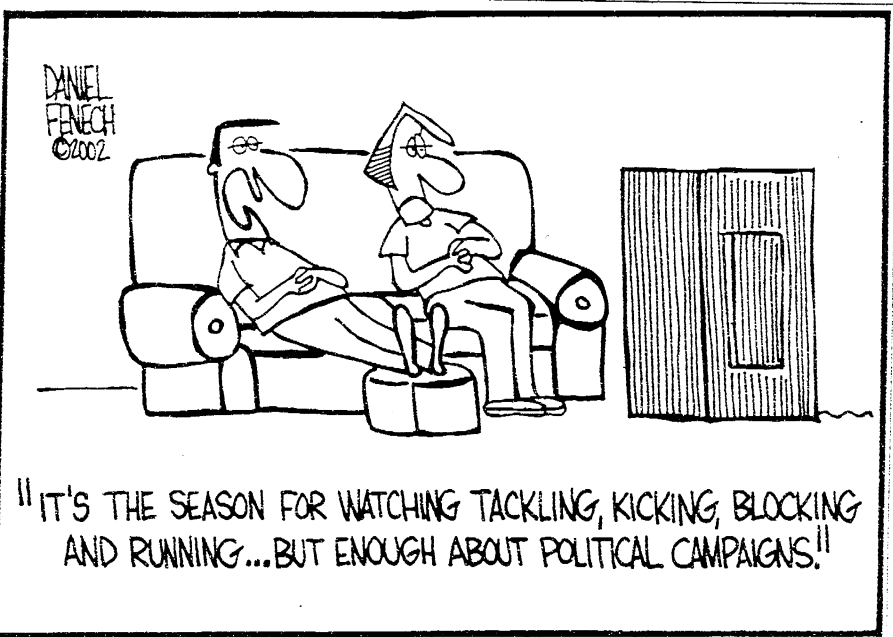

Sometimes, though, all companies sneak a few in. I rarely add service packs with new features. It just increases the chance of new problems in the software.

The bottom line: unless you really need to, avoid installing service packs that contain new features.

So, why should you wait for a service pack, and how long should you wait? Unless you have multiple machines, you should wait until you hear some reports about the stability of a new service pack. With major manufacturers, like Microsoft, Sun or Apple, there will be press coverage about the stability of any new service pack. Read some of that information before you install any non-critical updates.

With everything but security updates, wait until you find you need a particular update. With any non-critical update, get as much information as you can, then evaluate what you need, then install slowly. I usually wait about a month after a non-critical update comes out before I install it on my main machine.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Permits for canvassing have a valid purpose.

To the editor:

Shame on Bob Toler, pastor of North Sharon Baptist Church, for using the "Freedom of Speech & Religion Clause" of the constitution to subvert the very reasonable Manchester Village ordinance requiring door-to-door canvassers and solicitors to have a Village permit. This ordinance was designed to protect citizens from scam artists and criminals who do them harm. These permits allow village officials to identify these people to ensure that they have a legitimate reason for knocking on your door.

These are dangerous times. The news is filled with stories about young children being snatched from their homes and elderly people being scammed or even harmed by these intruders.

Can you imagine the fright to a young mother with children, her husband at work or an elderly widow who sees two strange grown men knocking on her door with no official identification? Let me give you a few examples of this danger. The Boston Strangler, who murdered many young women alone in their homes, gained entrance by wearing a utilities meter reader's uniform.

Many scam artists work in pairs, gaining entrance by selling products or claiming to be taking a survey or even selling Bibles. While the victim is listening to the spiel, one of the scammers will ask to use the restroom and proceed to steal items from the bedroom or home office. Also, there are home robbers who pose as solicitors who knock on doors to see if anyone is home. Getting no answer, they proceed to burglarize the house. I am sure the state and local police can give dozens of other examples connected to dishonest and dangerous door-to-door solicitors.

Would it have been that much trouble for Pastor Toler to have these men get a permit? As a good neighbor and citizen he should be working with the Village and police department to put people's minds at ease.

If he wants to get his religious message to area residents, may I suggest that he use his non-profit mailing privileges to mail the information to these homes?

SENIOR CITIZENS NEWS MSU launches new gardening program

Now that the senior meals are up and scenting the Emanuel United Church of Christ with the welcome aromas of Kim Lee's cooking, it's clear that summer is over and, like all the kids in school, the Senior Citizens' Council is back to working full force.

NANCY HEBB

SENIOR CITIZENS NEWS

All the council, and especially the shut-ins she served so well, will miss Judi Bejma. Working at each meal is Jan Howell, with Margaret Shankland pitching in every Thursday. Rubena Boelter, Mary Smith, and Vernie Kastl take responsibility for recruiting helpers.

Delivering meals on Thursdays are Jeanne and Eric Vanderschalie. Webb Seeger is covering the start of the year, and will continue to act as a substitute. The council needs a full-time volunteer for Tuesdays.

In addition to the individuals above, and many not mentioned but much appreciated, we owe thanks to CROP Walk for their donation. The United Way again has been approached for a $5,000 allocation. DuRussel's Farms and Food Gatherers donate actual foodstuffs, without which the meals would not be as enjoyable.

On Sept. 19, representatives from the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority, Michigan Department of Transportation, and many local transportation and human services groups have been invited to view the Village Hall and senior center. With receipt of the new bus, this is an ideal time to welcome these representatives.

Fast approaching, the Fall

Color Tour is planned for Sept. 21, although the date is subject to change. Leaving the Center at 10:30 a.m., the group will drive to Blissfield, eat lunch, and then arrive at the excursion train ticket office by 12:30. The trek will take one and a half to two hours. Keep your fingers crossed for lots of color!

Deadline for reservations for the trip is Sept. 17. You will order and pay for your own lunch. The train ride cost is $9.00, with another $3.00 for the senior bus.

Thursday: Birthday dinner featuring meat loaf, noon at Emanuel, 12:30 p.m., cards.

Friday: Visit at Cedar Knoll, leaving at 11:30 a.m.

While many people, particularly those who live in northern climates, are thinking about putting their gardens "to bed" for the winter, the Michigan State University Horticulture Gardening Institute (www.gardeninginstitute.com) is launching its off-season gardening activities with a first of its kind container gardening program.

The program is funded by founding-sponsor Proven Winners, an international marketing cooperative that includes some of the world's best propagators. A kickoff event, "Fall, Winter and Virtual Container Gardening," will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Oct. 5, on the Michigan State University campus.

"We encourage gardening enthusiasts and master gardeners in Michigan, throughout the United States and around the world to attend and participate in the dynamic blend of face-to-face events supported by online activities offered year-round on campus and through the Horticulture Gardening Institute Web site," said Mary McLellan, MSU state master gardening coordinator, who is shaping the Web site's content along with Norm Lownds, associate professor of horticulture. "This is one of the only gardening programs of its kind on the Internet, and we have plans for many other innovative activities that will be announced in the coming months."

The kickoff event includes an introduction to the container gardening program, a tour of MSU's ornamental grasses garden, a report on the MSU container gardening trials, an "online learning made easy" demonstration and lunch. Registration fee is $60. For more information and to register, visit www.gardeninginstitute.com.

After kickoff, the container gardening program will hold two additional on-campus events. In April 2003, gardeners can learn about container design "recipes" — "From Apples to Zinnias" — and a proven winners' container plant trial kickoff for master gardeners. In October 2003, they can attend "Container Design: Contest & The Art, Science and Future of Container Gardening."

Gardeners interested in registering for all three events can sign up now for the discounted price of $150. Master gardeners who attend on-campus events receive five educational hours per event toward their advanced certification.

The Container Gardening Program includes a mix of virtual and hands-on gardening opportunities. Proven Winners offers master gardeners the exclusive opportunity to participate in a plant trial program and be among the first to grow new hybrid plants suited to container gardening. Master gardeners who complete this program receive 15 educational hours towards their advanced certification.

Other activities featured on the Horticulture Gardening Institute Web site include contests, practice garden projects and design recipes, online certificate-of-completion coursework for gardening enthusiasts and educational hours for master gardeners. For registration details, visit the Web site.

The online certificate courses are self-paced and will be available starting in October. Gardeners can take one or all of the following courses throughout the year: Container Gardening Essentials, including

- Design, color, form, fragrance
- Container sizes, shapes and planning
- Soils and fertilizers
- Plant material
- Maintenance—watering, pest control
- Specialty Container Gardens
- Flowers—annuals, biennials, bulbs, grasses, vines
- Vegetables trellis, vines
- Herbs
- Trees and shrubs
- Combinations—annuals and vegetables: herbs and flowers

Proven Winners is an international marketing cooperative that includes some of the world's best propagators. They are dedicated to developing new hybrid color varieties that will perform well for both the grower and consumer.

Plants selected to bear the Proven Winners label are new hybrid color and foliage varieties from the world's markets. These plants have been tested in North America and found to be faster growing and more colorful, versatile and vigorous than any other plants on the market.

The Horticulture Gardening Institute is a joint initiative of MSU Extension's Master Gardener Program, the MSU Department of Horticulture, MSU Gardens and the MSU Global Institute. The Horticulture Gardening Institute offers non-credit, personal enrichment programs and a "virtual community" focusing on master gardeners, children, K-12 teachers and gardening enthusiasts.

Master gardeners can pursue advanced certificate programs. Kids can learn about plants and gardening, and teachers can find innovative curricula that incorporate science and imagination. As the site grows, visitors can participate in events, virtual garden tours and innovative horticultural activities that take full advantage of technology.

Seniors get a new set of wheels

■ State and federal funding helps secure new transportation bus.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

The Manchester Area Senior Citizens took delivery of a snazzy new mode of transportation about a month ago.

"It took almost three years to get it," said Howard Parr, who has worked hard on the paperwork for the third senior bus in his years on the senior citizens' council. "About the same as the gestation period for an elephant."

In Parr's experience, senior citizen buses have been obtained on about a ten-year cycle for the group, which obtains government grants to finance the purchase.

Originally, beginning in 1978 the senior citizens obtained a used Dodge van to transport members to appointments and deliver some meals to shut-ins. The first new bus, purchased in 1982, was obtained by the Village of Manchester through the efforts of former police chief and village manager William Zsenyuk, village treasurer Sue Koebbe and former senior citizens president Ray Gonyer.

That bus, a 1982 Chevrolet, burned in a spontaneous fire five years later, along with the Dodge van.

"There was a fire in the unit itself," Parr explained. "The van just had come off the road, when a short started the fire."

"It was gone in 15 minutes—the bus, the van and the building that housed them. Every cotton-pickin' thing."

THE 1982 bus was replaced by a succession of loaners, some of them in rough shape, until 1992. By that time, the senior citizens' group had become incorporated and, with Parr's assistance, initiated the paperwork on its own behalf.

The bus purchased in 1992 has less than 85,000 miles on its odometer, but the body is badly rusted and consequently has pretty well outlived its usefulness for the senior citizens, although the vehicle still runs well, according to Parr. Over the past nine months, the seniors have had use of yet another loaner which had to be returned to the state in early July, leaving the group to fall back on the 1992 model for about a month.

"These buses usually have a seven or eight-year life expectancy," Parr said. "We get a little longer than that out of them because we don't usually run it even 1,000 miles per month—that's much less than most public transportation vehicles."

"These are federally funded programs that help us get the buses. It's really part of the federal rural transportation subsidy. We get the operational funds to run (a bus) under one section and there is also a capital fund to purchase new ones."

THE NEW bus, a 2002 Ford, is slightly smaller than the 1992 model but still holds 16 passengers without a wheelchair on board or 12 passengers with wheelchair occupancy. The prior model would hold 21 ambulatory passengers or 16 with two wheelchairs. The senior group decided on the smaller size because the bus so rarely carries anywhere near a full load.

"We lucked out with this one," Parr said. "We received a grant of $51,000.

and when we bid out the buses, the state put out the bids, which allowed us to use state prices with the vendors."

"Ford had made such a concession that there was a lot of extra money in the grant. So we put every bell and whistle we could get on this bus."

THE "BELLS and whistles" include a V-10 engine, plastic body, color-flo cloth seats, a radio with an amplifier system appropriate for travelogues, fog and strobe lights, electrically controlled heated outer mirrors and a completely power-controlled driver's seat.

"We think we're going to like this one," Parr said.

In the new bus, the wheelchair lift is at the rear to make it easier for ambulatory passengers entering the bus at the front. A CDL driver's license will still be required because of the number of passengers carried.

"But it drives very much like your own car," Parr said. "It's very responsive and an easy unit to run."

The unit is available to all senior citizens and the disabled for rides to medical appointments and the twice-weekly meal program in addition to being used for regular field trips for the senior group.

THE COUNCIL also approves limited use of the bus for the benefit of the Manchester community. For instance, during this summer's Chicken Broil and the Riverfolk Festival, the bus shuttled an average of 450 passengers on each day.

ARE YOUR GUTTERS TALKING TO YOU? HERE'S HOW YOU CAN TELL

By David Bobby, Licensed Builder & Owner of Atlas Gutter Helmet

Customers often ask me how they know if they really need The Gutter Helmet. I answer that their own gutters are talking to them right now. All they have to do is open their eyes and listen!

(First of all, any home with mature trees or pines AND rain gutters needs Gutter Helmet. But don't take my word for it. If you want further proof, look to your own gutter system to tell you.)

#1 Look at the face of your gutters. If you notice dirt build-up and dark vertical lines on the gutter faces, it means that the downspouts are blocked-up. Rainwater, having nowhere to go, just sits in your gutters. The standing water

leeches the tannins and tannic acids from the leaves and pine needles trapped in the gutters. The next time it rains, this nasty brew will wash over your gutters, making them look "dirty" - which they are. But you have a bigger problem going on here than just appearance. As this process occurs again and again the dirt marks and vertical lines get bigger and darker. These natural acids are chemically etching the factory finish on your gutters. Permanent damage can be done to the baked enamel paint finish and no amount of scrubbing will restore it. Gutter Helmet will stop this insidious process the moment its installed. Gutter Helmet will keep your downspouts clear and your rain gutters clean forever - guaranteed. No more spillovers!

#2 Loose or missing gutter spikes or gutters pulling away from the fascia board are signs that the weight and stress of ice, water and snow are damaging your gutters. Your gutters can be knocked completely off the house. Gutter Helmet will gently lift and strengthen your entire gutter system and keep ice and snow and everything else out of your gutters! No more loose spikes or falling eaves-troughs!

There are many benefits* to having a properly functioning gutter and downspout system protected by Gutter Helmet. The First. The Best. The #1 Gutter Protection system in the world. For a free brochure, estimate or demonstration of The Gutter Helmet please call Kelle, the office manager at Atlas Gutter Helmet at 810-227-9164 or 734-954-9033.

Stock dog training clinic set for October

■ Border collies take the field at Bridgewater farm.

"Come bye!" "Away to me!"

These archaic old Scots-English sheep dog commands will carry over a Bridgewater Township field on Oct. 11 - 13 when world-renowned Border collie trainers Jack and Kathy Knox bring their expertise to Michigan.

The stock dog training clinic hosted by Fenview Farm at Hogan and Willow Roads gathers participants from as far away as New York state and North Carolina. Many local dogs will hone their skill during the intensive seminar, as well.

"We still have openings available for dogs and participant observers are welcome as well, providing they understand that this is a training event, not a trial," Kathy Knox said.

Unlike a trial, where highly skilled dogs compete for honors, the training event offers dogs and handlers at all levels—from encountering sheep for the first time to those involved in trials—a chance to learn the unique training philosophy and methods used by the Knoxes. Drawing on a dog's natural instincts, they "ask, don't make" a Border collie do things correctly.

Border collies, recently labeled the world's "smartest" dogs by the media, respond to the Knox method not just because of raw intelligence, but because centuries of breeding for a single purpose, working livestock, honed the breed's instincts and behaviors to control sheep.

"It's a question of telling and showing a young dog. "No, you're wrong, try again," said clinic host Nancy Hebb. "Because the dogs want so much to work and control stock, they will keep trying. It's a process of helping them discover what, deep inside them, they already 'know.' Once a dog discovers its balance or where to be to maintain control, it's a matter of fine-tuning the dog to work with the shepherd or herdsman."

"The dog has to make decisions for itself, while still wanting to work as part of the human/dog team."

Both Jack and Kathy Knox claim the title of National Champion sheep dog handler, having won the prestigious North American sheep dog finals. In addition to winning top sheep and cattle trials, the couple's dogs work all varieties of livestock. Their Missouri farm produces lamb and beef. Jack once even moved a rogue bull bison out of the public area of Yellowstone Park, using two female Border collies.

Those two dogs are the grandmother and great-grandmother of a litter of pups now scampering around Hebb's small Clinton sheep farm. It will be the better part of a year before the youngsters show whether or not they have what it takes to follow in those hard-to-fill paw prints.

"Depending on each dog's nature and maturity, training might start at age six months or a year or even later," she said. "A dog's faults will show up fairly quickly.

Whether or not those faults can be helped through the training process takes a bit longer. Every dog has faults. Some are worth working with, and some aren't.

"Good breeding increases the chance that a pup will be worth putting two years of training into."

As Border collies become more popular for agility, flyball, obedience, and other dog sports as well as for companions, two things happen: more dogs appear who are bred for something other than working stock, so the qualities that make a good stock dog tend to disappear.

"Also," Hebb explains, "people in urban and suburban areas become interested in working their dogs on sheep just for something fun to do. Some go on to compete in trials."

To Jack Knox, however, the dogs are serious business.

"I owe the dogs a debt of gratitude," he said. "They brought me to America from Scotland in the early '70s. Working livestock is serious business, not only fun. More and more ranchers and farmers depend on the skills of these dogs."

Jack and Kathy Knox rarely "team teach" because each is in such high demand as a clinic instructor throughout the country. One might be in California while the other is in Virginia. Michigan is one of the few states where they present a joint seminar.

"The advantages are many," Kathy said. "While one instructor works with a dog and owner, the other simultaneously explains what's happening to everyone watching. There's always an instructor available to answer questions as things are happening."

"Tip" showing the predatory "eye" that controls sheep.

Some people call the Knoxes the "horse whisperers" of the dog world. Like the original "horse whisperer" Monty Roberts, the couple use a round ring area to start young or problem dogs at a clinic.

The similarity between the horse and dog trainers doesn't stop there. Both use pressure, body language and position, eye contact and verbal communication to give the animals freedom while instilling confidence and forming a working partnership. Leashes, special training collars, or treats just don't enter into the picture.

"I like to find an answer for each dog in a clinic," Jack said.

Many times, owners come thinking they need to work on a particular problem, only to find that the problem actually stems from a more fundamental flaw in the dog's training or even its mind.

"These dogs have a mind, and we need to let them use it," Knox maintains. "To get

Discussions continue about Bailey bridge

■ Citizens' group seeks alternatives to unwieldy new construction.

By Nancy Hebb
Special Writer

Bridgewater residents seeking an alternative plan for the Wilbur Road bridge replacement will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at 11491 Hogan Rd.

Ron Hodges, who is coordinating the citizens' group, said that a progress report and update will be presented.

Almost all Wilbur Road residents attended the first grassroots gathering held last month to explore alternatives to a mammoth bridge structure proposed by the Washtenaw County Road Commission. In addition, many Hogan Road landowners and concerned citizens attended.

"Anyone interested is invited to join us," Hodges said. "We've received letters from Governor Engler and personal communication from Congressman Nick Smith's office expressing interest in the situation."

"Individuals are looking into various facets of the bridge project, including alternative designs and funding."

In addition to exploring the speed limit and bridge requirements for the road, which is only three-fifths of a mile long, the group also hopes to have an independent engineer examine the present Bailey bridge to determine its level of safety. Repair is a viable possibility, Hodges believes, but the group wants an unbiased expert's assessment.

"Some people are under the mistaken impression that because of us, the bridge will be closed for a long period of time," he said. "That's definitely not what we want. We want the bridge to stay open, but also to avoid the necessity for taking peoples' land from them for the project, construction of a type of bridge that nobody wants and only truckers would need."

Constructed in the 1950s, the current Wilbur Road bridge is the only known Bailey bridge still in use in Michigan and is a designated historic structure. That designation ensures that environmental studies and procedures for documenting the existing bridge must take place, but it does not protect the bridge from demolition.

As recently as the late 1990s, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and their Canadian counterparts were building Bailey bridges for communities in need of river and wetland crossings. The original load rating of the type of Bailey bridge crossing the River Raisin along Wilbur Road was 30 tons, adequate for any school bus, fire truck or other emergency vehicle used in Bridgewater Township.

Special mass remembers 9-11

The day is being called by many names: "Day of Unity," "Day of Prayer and Remembrance," "Day of Caring," "Bearing Witness to History," "Honoring Heroes," among others.

Here in Manchester, we naturally turn to our deep faith and strong traditions to commemorate Sept. 11, 2001 and the horrifying terrorist attacks that took place on that day.

We look back at the events one year later with the blessings perspective. We will pray for those who were victims and for their families and loved ones, as well as for our country and our world as we seek to address the issues entwined with these events and times. We will seek to make sense out of the senseless while discovering hope in the tragic.

St. Mary Roman Catholic Church on Main Street will have a special celebration of the Holy Mass at 7 p.m. on that Wednesday evening, Sept. 11, 2002, a "Mass of Remembrance." All in the community are invited to attend.

The new pastor at St. Mary's, the Rev. Fr. Timothy D. Krzyzaniak, will preside at the Mass and lead those present in a faith-filled response to this horrific anniversary, finding hope in the Cross and in the promise of Christ.

The Catholic Bishop's Conference reminds us: "As Catholics, we draw on our faith to make this anniversary a time to remember, a time to deepen our commitment to discipleship, and a time to strengthen our active participation in efforts to build a more just and peaceful world."

And as the Psalmist reminds us, "Out of the depths I cry to you, O Lord: O Lord, hear my voice. Let your ears be attentive to my cry for mercy" (Ps 130:1-2).

Free health lecture offered

Chelsea Community Hospital offers a free public lecture series on complementary and alternative medicine. Speaker Aiji Piphon discusses T'ai Chi from 7 to 8 p.m. Sept. 12, at the CCH Health & Wellness Center.

Discover why this gentle form of movement and breath can improve your balance, increase your strength, and decrease your stress! Registration is required for the lecture and refreshments will be served. Please call 734-475-4100 for more information and registration.

Piphon is an instructor and practitioner of T'ai Chi and Qigong. Both T'ai Chi and Qigong focus on the body's energy, which can be used for healing purposes, in martial arts for self-defense, and as a very beneficial complement when used in surgery for healing. Both T'ai Chi and Qigong work to assist the flow of the body's natural healing energy and can be used in concert with medical therapy or as single therapy.

Aiji has taught T'ai Chi for the past 10 years. She has studied with professor Gabriel Chin, originally from China, for 20 years. Along with her teaching, Aiji currently is working with Professor Chin at the University of Michigan doing health research.

answers for a problem, you have to work with that mind and get it past any fears or glitches."

Once an "answer" for the fundamental underlying problem is found, the more obvious symptoms of that problem disappear.

Key to understanding the dog training process is understanding livestock, the Knoxes emphasize.

"I tell people that they must learn to read and understand sheep if they want to train a sheep dog," Kathy said. "If you can't read the sheep, you won't know whether the dog is right or wrong."

It's not, she explains, just a matter of teaching a dog to obey commands.

"I want my dog to be able to read stock and know how to best handle them without me telling it how and when to take each step," she said. "Our training method leaves the dog thinking, using what's bred into it, not just reacting mechanically to commands."

To watch the Knoxes in action, or enter your own dog in the clinic, you may contact the clinic host, Nancy Hebb, at (517) 456-8024 or by e-mail at trainingclinic@msn.com.

NOW THAT the 1992 Champion bus is permanently out of service, the seniors will have to dispose of it according to government guidelines.

"It's our responsibility to get rid of it," Parr said. "And we plan to do that. There are times when we could use it, but insurance is almost $5,000 per year and we cannot afford to use the money we get for operating for two insurance bills."

"It just isn't worth it." Senior citizens' council president Marion Ahrens thinks that every small town should apply for a bus, however.

"The reason we got it originally was because Manchester has no public transportation," she said. "Most of the federal money for these kinds of programs is given to big cities. So Clinton and Tecumseh have both called her to learn about the parameters for such grants.

"We keep the bus busy," Ahrens concluded. "It is a very active part of our senior program."

teer pace, Palms is pleased about the success of the festival on both levels—both personal and financial.

"I learned something," he said, "about what builds a community."

As a teacher in the Napoleon schools, Palms said he has always understood the value of volunteerism, but his involvement in the first annual Riverfolk Festival pointed it out to him more vividly than he'd ever seen it before.

"Just becoming involved can become a solution to nearly everything," he said.

CRC Director Chris Kanta agrees.

"From a community development standpoint, the festival was a huge success and a great shot in the arm for the CRC," she said. "One of my goals for the event was to improve and enrich the community; it certainly did that."

The CRC serves as a volunteer center for the community.

"The festival really pulled the community together," Kanta said. "I'm really proud of that. I think we've developed a core of volunteers that has potential for other events."

Kanta, too, agreed that the sense of bringing together a wide range of diverse people from the community was one of the huge and visible benefits that the Riverfolk Festival provided.

"Those who signed on board to volunteer were first rate," she said, adding to Palms' assertion that the professionalism of the event helped to sell it to the general public. "There was the web page and hundreds of in-kind donations. We're trying to tally those up; it's an endless list of services that came our way."

"It gave everyone an opportunity to meet others with similar interests a chance to share something they may never have shared if it wasn't for this event," she added.

The proceeds from Riverfolk have not yet been designated and Kanta said that much would go back into launching the event next year.

"The enthusiasm is still there," she said. "People are still talking about it a month later. The feeling has continued on and I think that's a tribute to a first-rate event."

A goal that Palms and Kanta share for future Riverfolk Festivals is that more of the young people of the community become involved in the festival and learn about the value and satisfaction of volunteerism.

"We want them to know that their help and their input is valued," Kanta said.

As a result, on Tuesday, a crew of 60 or more workers from Concordia College painted pavilions as part of a county-wide service project.

"The CRC and Riverfolk wanted to find a way to give back to the village for the use of Carr Park," Kanta said.

The Community Resource Center helped coordinate the Concordia volunteers in thanks for the village's generosity in the use of the park.

the rest of the building. Racenis expects the paint to retain its fresh appearance for about seven years; in the meantime, other improvements to the mill and its surroundings will take place.

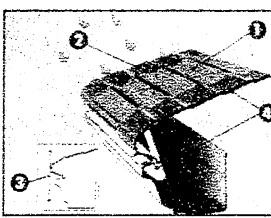

"We need to redo the deck overlooking the river, and the next project is to clean up and spiff up the riverfront," Racenis said. "Then we'll repair the bridge to the island and get that cleaned up so it looks more attractive." For now, Racenis is pleased that the painting project was completed on-schedule, minimizing the disruption of business downtown. "I appreciate the forbearance of everyone putting up with the hassle of the heavy equipment," he said. "The merchants in the mill, as well as their customers all have been very understanding."

Football season begins

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Players of the week

Manchester's varsity coaches named their players of the week for the Clinton game last Friday.

Defensive player of the week: Tyler Harvey

Special Teams player: Jeff Miller

Scout Team player: James Meyer

Chili welcomes visitors to Grass Lake Friday

The Grass Lake United Methodist Church would like to invite Manchester football fans to a chili-soup supper prior to the game on Friday night.

The supper will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. in Wesley Hall. The church is located at 449 E. Michigan Ave. in Grass Lake. The menu includes chili, chicken noodle or cream of potato soup, hot dogs, cake and beverage.

Freshman basketball schedule changes

Freshman girls' basketball has experienced several schedule changes since the original schedules were printed. The team's games will be played as follows:

Sept. 9, at Chelsea; Sept. 12 at Western; Sept. 17 at Hanover; Sept. 23 at Sand Creek (5:30 p.m.); Sept. 26 vs. Whitmore Lake at home; Sept. 30 vs. Hanover at home; Oct. 8 vs. Napoleon at home; Oct. 15 at Madison (5:30 p.m.); Oct. 17 vs. Sand Creek at home; Oct. 21 at Whitmore Lake (5:30 p.m.); Oct. 23 vs. Hanover at home (5:30 p.m.); Oct. 31 at Napoleon and Nov. 5 vs. Western at home.

All games will be played at 4 p.m. unless otherwise indicated.

Nick Davis selected to Vikings team

Manchester's first professional football player is Nick Davis, a 1998 graduate of Manchester High School.

This past weekend, Davis became an official member of the Minnesota Vikings' 53-man roster.

"He will be their kick and punt return specialist and probably will be getting some wide receiver time as well as covering on kicks and punts," said Manchester athletic director Wes Gall. "That's something he hadn't done a lot of at Wisconsin, and it will add to his special teams expertise."

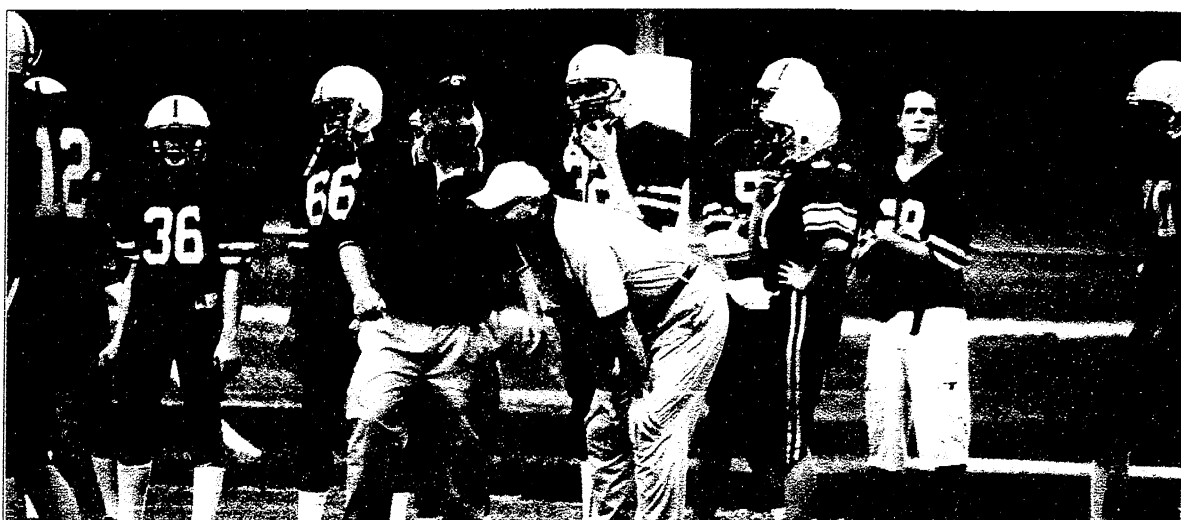

Despite suffering a pulled hamstring in a recent game against Pittsburgh, Gall said Davis is expected to be playing in this weekend's game at Chicago.

Seeking player profile nominees

The Manchester Enterprise will again profile student athletes this year. Player profiles are not limited to members of the senior class.

A coach, teacher, parent or counselor may wish to nominate a player who exemplifies the spirit of athletics both on and off the playing field.

To make a nomination, contact Marsha Johnson Chartrand by e-mail at mchartrand@heritage.com

JV Dutch overpower Clinton

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

The Manchester junior varsity football team opened its season with a 26-0 victory over Clinton last Thursday.

"The Dutchmen were led on offense with Steve Bush and Jesse Hagerman, both rushing for 52 yards," Manchester coach Jim Fielder said.

Manchester's touchdowns were scored by Dan Murray on runs of three and one yards and Jesse Hagerman from five yards out. Linebacker Caleb Bergner scored on a seven-yard pass interception.

Manchester rushed 42 times for 204 yards while passing for 52 yards going 5-for-14.

"We were led in passing by Andrew Little going 5-13 with one extra point," Fielder said.

R.J. Laylor had three receptions for 14 yards and Andrew Way had two recep-

Varsity loses opener to Clinton Redskins

Mistakes, penalties hurt team.

Manchester varsity coach Wes Gall knows one thing: his young team will need to work hard and improve to beat the Grass Lake Warriors this Friday.

A disappointing 14-8 loss last weekend to traditional non-conference rival Clinton left the Dutchmen with a 0-1 record as they enter the conference season.

"We started out the first quarter with an interception right away," Gall said. "That was a good thing—we figured we're close enough we can strike right here."

But the big opportunity for a momentum shift at the beginning of the game went sour when the Dutch missed a handoff on a third-and-two play, losing six yards and the fourth-down play.

"We had a great opportunity, but we didn't get the job done," Gall said.

Undaunted, the Dutch continued to play in good field position throughout the first half.

"We kept putting them right at their goal line," he said. "We made them start from inside their 30, almost every possession in the first half."

"Just before halftime in the second quarter, it looked like we were possibly going to hold them on a third-down play. We called a timeout to save the clock for ourselves, but it ended up it might have cost us the first touchdown 'cause they got out of that mess."

A late hit by the Dutch gave the Redskins 15 free yards and a subsequent score.

"We were stuffing their running games all first half," Gall said. "But they got out on us on two pass plays just before the end of the half."

"It was really a tough thing to walk in at half time. But we went in at halftime knowing we had to make some adjustments—no more penalties costing us the ball."

"We went back out and right away we moved the ball and got a penalty." The same consistency was lacking the whole night, Gall said.

Changing quarterbacks, Josh McCalla took over the second half, moving the ball down the field to Clinton's 10-yard line.

"There we didn't secure blocking for him," Gall said. "The ball got tipped, stopping the drive."

With the Redskins deep in their own territory, the Dutch again allowed them to creep up the field. "We had them where we wanted them, we just didn't finish what we got started," Gall said.

A third-quarter touchdown for the Redskins was again the result of a momentum shift, taking the score to 14-0.

A safety brought the Dutch two points on an interception, and started Manchester's momentum again. A 21-yard pass play from McCalla to Shane Amburgey off a Clinton punt took the ball to the 21-yard line, where a pass to Brett Melcher scored Manchester's only touchdown.

"We tried an on-side kick, and didn't get the ball, and then they ran out the clock," Gall said. "We knew we had to score twice to produce points. We moved the ball fairly well, but we had some missed passes."

For this week's game, "We've gotta step back, look at the mistakes we made and take care of those things," Gall said. "Those things hurt us all evening."

Although his young team didn't run the ball as well as they'd have liked to, it was the penalties that ultimately cost the Dutchmen their first game.

"A few butterflies and we're doing all the things we thought we had taken care of in practice," Gall said. "We just need to reevaluate and get back to work."

"Grass Lake offers us a very good football game, a very experienced team. A lot of the kids were starting last year as juniors and they didn't lose many through graduation last year. They have their offense up to speed at this point in time. Our

Varsity girls drop two games in past week

Shooting woes hurt an otherwise solid team.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

Manchester varsity basketball coach John Wilkins said that for the first week of the season, his girls played very well.

"Except for our shooting, which was horrendous," he said.

"We just are really struggling with shooting the ball right now."

While out-rebounding the Clinton Redskins and running a good offense to leave the shots open, the varsity could not drop the shots that normally would fall into the basket with ease.

The team fell on the short side of a 49-38 decision.

"We have some girls who are very good shooters," Wilkins said. "Unfortunately, they all seemed to take a slump at the same time."

Katie Meranuck led the scoring against the Redskins with nine points Tuesday; Liz Okey had eight points and 11 rebounds;

Cori Chrestensen scored five points and grabbed five rebounds.

Kate Meyer scored four points and Caitlin Sewell two. Sewell also contributed nine rebounds.

On Wednesday, the team headed to Britton where they fell 45-29.

"Britton's a pretty solid team," Wilkins said. "They have a real athletic group of girls—five of them are in their third or fourth year on varsity, and the team has won its conference for the past couple of years."

While a good test for the Lady Dutch, again, the shooting aspect of the game was what suffered.

"We did all the things we needed to, except for making our open shots," Wilkins said. "It's just a matter of getting the girls to start making their shots again."

Meyer led the scoring with 10 points, followed by Okey with seven points and eight rebounds. Michelle Slocum and Fallynne Schlosser each added three points while Chrestensen had three steals.

game against Gabriel

Richard from Ann Arbor.

"They're traditionally a pretty solid team," Wilkins said. "The last two years, we've had good games with them in the district."

"It should be a good game

... and I hope we'll make some of those shots we've been missing from the last couple of games."

After losing a heartbreaker to Clinton to start last year's season, the junior varsity was in control the entire game when it played its home opener on Aug. 27.

Starting off slowly, neither team scored until the final minute of the first quarter, when back-to-back steals by Carolyn Billetdeaux and Lindsay Ellison started the action.

"Lindsay turned her steal into a nice assist for Emilee Sweet, who converted on a three-point play for a 5-3 first quarter lead," Manchester coach Mark Ball said.

In the second quarter, the team took control with a stifling defense, outscoring the Redskins 16-7 for a commanding 21-10 halftime lead.

"The most positive outcomes of the game were the outstanding performances of Brandi Walter and Emilee Sweet," Ball said, "in addition to the job Lindsay Ellison and Kelly Schaible did of running the team as point guards standing in for injured starter Katelyn Gall."

Walter and Sweet led the team in scoring with 10 points each, followed by Shelley Schulze with seven points. Ellison, Sam Mahan and Billetdeaux had four points apiece. Rosalyn Harvey and Bri King rounded out the scoring with three and one point, respectively.

Mahan, Harvey and Emily Little led the team in rebounding with six boards each, and Billetdeaux led in steals with five. Harvey also led in assists with four.

Wednesday, the team met Britton.

"We didn't play with any intensity," Ball said. "We went into halftime tied at 13."

But the only adjustment the team needed was in its intensity level and the girls did just that.

"After halftime we outscored them 11-3 in the third quarter and 12-4 in the fourth," Ball said. "The key was we covered our spots on our press, so we could trap the ball, make steals and pick up the tempo of the game."

After Britton had controlled the slower pace of the first half, the Lady Dutch controlled the faster action in the second.

"Our better athletes came through," Ball said, "as evidenced by our forcing 25 turnovers in the second half compared to only 15 in the first."

Walter led the team with 15 points, two boards, two steals and one block.

Schulze followed up with six points, Mahan had five, Sweet and Ellison contributed four each and Harvey dunked in two.

Sweet led the team in rebounding with five boards and Schaible contributed four steals. Ellison and Schaible each added five assists to their stats.

The junior varsity will meet Green Hills on the home court tonight at 5:30 p.m.

Golf team fares well in pre-season

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

As the Manchester High School golf team prepares for its conference season, four recent tournaments helped to build on this year's varsity squad.

On Aug. 20, the team competed with 16 other schools at Hankerd Hills Golf Course for the Leslie Invitational.

"Each team brought five players and counted the four low scores," Manchester coach Dan Galaska said.

The Dutch finished with a 348 total, good for seventh place overall. Gabriel Richard was the winner of this event and the only Class C school to beat Manchester.

Individually, Jeff Galaska struggled on his way to a front-nine 42, but got hot on the back nine with a 37. His 79 total was good for a fourth-place medal out of 85 golfers. Nathan Smith, still playing with a cast on his foot, posted a good round with an 83. Jon Schaible played solid with a 92, as did Nick Strobl with nines of 49-44 for a 94 total.

The following day, the team competed in the Morenci invitational at DeMor Hills, a par 72 course.

At this tournament, 16 schools brought six golfers each on two-man teams. On the first six holes, each team would play a scramble; the next six holes were best-ball, and the last six were alternate-shot. The three two-man team totals would be added for a school team total, with each two-man team competing for awards. The Dutch posted a team total of 244, finishing sixth overall.

Galaska and Smith posted an even par 72 on the course, good for third-place medals out of 48 teams. Strobl and Schaible followed with an 82 and Mike Taddonio and Zach Neal finished with a 90.

The Blissfield Invitational gathered 16 teams on Aug. 22 for an annual best-ball event.

Manchester finished with a team total of 243, good for 10th place, with Galaska and Smith placing third overall with a two-under score of 70.

Schaible and Strobl posted an 84 and Taddonio and Neal combined for a score of 88.

The team ended the week Aug. 23 playing their fourth 18-hole tournament at Rush Lake Golf Course hosted by Pinckney, finishing 15th.

"The Dutch finished a respectable 15th out of predominately Class A and B schools," Galaska said.

Ann Arbor Huron won the tournament with a score of 306, 37 strokes ahead of Manchester's total of 343.

Jeff Galaska placed sixth out of 100 golfers with a 75, Galaska said.

Smith had nines of 42-40 for an 82 overall score. Strobl played well, as did Schaible, rounding out the scoring with 89 and 97, respectively.

Team USA takes the gold at Japan tourney

Manchester's Schulte named Most Valuable Player.

After their final homeland practice, spent in Manchester on Aug. 3, wheelchair basketball's Team USA traveled to Kitakyusyu, Japan for the world championships of wheelchair basketball—the Gold Cup games.

With two pools of teams, including the USA pooled with Great Britain, Brazil, Korea, Australia, and The Netherlands. The opposing pool included Canada, France, Germany, Israel, Japan, and South Africa.

In early pool play, the USA faced Great Britain.

"It was not a pretty sight," said Tom Schulte, who reported on the game. "Team USA didn't have it together."

The final score: 77-72, in favor of Great Britain, putting Team USA in the loser's bracket right from the start. Team spirit was low. Undaunted, they went on to win their next four games against Brazil, Australia, Korea and the Netherlands, bringing them to second place behind Great Britain for the "A" pool.

In the "B" pool, Canada had beaten everyone and France lost its second-place position to Australia during crossover games, setting the big semi final games with USA vs. Canada and Great Britain vs. Australia.

Team USA would have to beat Canada to make it to the gold cup game.

"At the end of the first half against Canada it looked rough," Schulte said.

The scoreboard had USA trailing 25-17 at halftime. But in the second half, the team came back to tie the game and send it into overtime.

"At the end of the first overtime USA had a chance to win but Eric Barber rimmed a 15-footer," Schulte said. "In the second overtime Paul took over on offense scoring several threes and shutting down Canada's high-scoring Pat Anderson on defense."

Anderson had scored more than 40 points in the game but didn't make a basket in the second overtime. USA won the game, 72-68.

The road to gold was now at its conclusion with Team USA pitted against Great Britain, the team that had dealt them their only other loss several days before.

In the first period of the final game, Great Britain jumped to an early 8-0 lead but with three minutes left in the first half, Paul Schulte went to work sculpting "a masterpiece for the ages," according to his father.

"Having just hit a driving lay-up that was followed by a post-up shot by Waller, Schulte calmly drained two three-pointers, his arm in full extension, and his wrist hanging artistically in the perfect follow through."

The half ended with the USA ahead in a score of 39-32.

In the second half Great Britain brought the score back to within two points, 42-40, but Team USA was in high gear.

The final score read USA

74, Great Britain 61.

Schulte led the team in scoring with 32 points but also had nine assists. He was voted Most Valuable Player of the tournament and consequently will hold the distinction of "best player in the world" for the next four years till the Gold Cup, World Championship Games of 2006.

Paul Schulte will be coming to Manchester on Sept. 20 at the request of Klager Elementary School to speak again to the students about overcoming adversity.

He will be wearing a gold medal.

Tennis ball golf nets $1,200

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand Associate Editor

The varsity football team's second annual tennis ball golf outing was held on "a beautiful day for golf, but awfully hot," said Athletic Director Wes Gall.

Of the 50 or so golfers who participated, the winning team consisted of Kevin and Terry Walter and Curt and Tony Day. Kevin Walter is one of the co-captains of this year's varsity team.

Hole sponsors J. Proctor Co., Boone & Darr, Keith's Barber Shop, Lexus of Ann Arbor, Manchester Collision, John Schaible Masonry, R.D. Kleinschmidt, ACP, Ron and Joann Finkbeiner, Mark and Ruth VanBogelen, Chelsea Community Hospital and Larry Byrnes helped with their generous contributions

The proceeds from the event were earmarked for new home jerseys for the varsity team.

"This was a big change for us in that department," Gall said. "It is a total change from the style we have had since 1978."

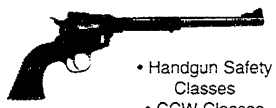

"The kids wanted to go with a more modern jersey that was tight, couldn't be grabbed so easily."

"It's a nice change and the kids will look good at their home games."

Next year's outing will help to replace the team's old travel jerseys.

"We'd like to invite anyone to next year's annual tennis ball golf outing," Gall said. "It is a nice opportunity to enjoy the day with the football players."

Eleven years ago I chose to move to Brooklyn Living Center for several reasons. I was living in New Jersey, and wanted to live near my family. I loved the idea of living in a small town where everyone is so friendly. Brooklyn is such a nice community.

I am a very independent person, and enjoy my freedom. Having my own private apartment at Brooklyn Living Center allows me to do what I want when I want. There is something going on all the time. I can choose to come out for the entertainment, games, or outings as often as I like. I have enjoyed companionship and a sense of security. If I ever need help, day or night, I know there is always someone there.

Scouts honor heroes

By Angela Cooper
Staff Writer

Two local Cub Scouts received a National Certificate of Merit from the Boy Scouts of America at the Cub Scout graduation for their role in assisting an injured man last spring.

The boys, Dylan Clark and Derek Reyst, were playing outside on April 21, 2001, when they heard a dirt bike driving nearby.

When the engine stopped, the boys went to see why.

They found the dirt bike on its side and the driver lying on the ground in obvious pain.

The boys went to get their parents, who came back and helped the man up.

He complained that he couldn't catch his breath, so his family took him to the hospital.

The victim had worn no protective gear other than a helmet and was an inexperienced driver on an unfamiliar track. X-rays showed that he had three broken ribs, a punctured lung, and a broken collar bone.

His injuries required surgery to put a tube into his lung to help him breathe. He stayed in the hospital for three days.

The boys, who are members of Cub Scout Pack 421 in Manchester, were honored for their role in the rescue. Both were seven years old at the time.

Clown Alley

A newly formed group, calling themselves "Manchester Clown Alley," will be performing a clown show at Mott Children's Hospital on Sept. 4 for all the children. "The Alley is dedicated to bringing fun, laughter and joy to these children," said member Rhonda Ash. This group of merry makers (pictured: Ash, left, Sharie Sell, Gigi Voegeding and Lauren Voegeding) is sponsored by the Manchester Kiwanis Club.

VARSITY

defensive secondary is going to have to work; we have to put pressure on the quarterback. Those are the things we need to improve on to be successful this week."

Defensively, Jordan Tallman participated in six tackles with three solos and three assists. Austin Scott was in on nine tackles with five first hits. Harvey led in defense with 13 tackles, nine of them first hits. Ken Schwab had a solo and five assists and Ben Wojtas had a solo and seven assists.

Kevin Walter was in on seven tackles and had a four-yard return on an interception, while Jeff Miller participated on six.

"Offensively, our running game just didn't get under way," Gall said.

With 31 carries for 95 yards, Shane Amburgey led in rushing with nine carries for 28 yards. Jamie Powers, McCalla, Andrew Coutts, Craig VanBogelen and Melcher also carried the ball for the Dutch.

"As a team, we really need to improve on passing," Gall added. "We threw the ball 28 times and had a total of 87 yards and two interceptions."

McCalla led in passing and was four for 12 with 55 yards. Jordan tallman was five for 16 for 32 yards passing.

Receivers included Amburgey, Dyon Evans, Jeff Miller, Melcher, and Walter.

Harvey got credit for the safety sack.

"We need to improve our punting game," Gall added. "We had six punts for 158 yards, an average of 26.3. That's an area we have to improve, we need an average of 31 or 32."

Tomorrow night's game against the Grass Lake Warriors will begin at 7 p.m. on the Warriors' home field.

Heritage Newspapers
ATTN: Heidi Cobb

Dear Heidi:

Just a short note to let you know how happy we have been with the advertising we've been running in Heritage Newspapers. Since placing the ad we have had tremendous response from customers in the coverage area. In fact, we have had such a positive response that we've had to cut back on advertising for a bit so that our sales staff can catch up on phone calls that we've already received.

Thank you for the great service and excellent advertising!

Sincerely,
Heidi Ludwig
