School board adopts 2002-03 budget

■ Future program cuts may be needed, but district in better financial shape than prior years.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

A provision for full-time library aides at the elementary, middle and high school levels was part of the 2002-2003 budget adopted at Monday night's school board meeting.

But other programs saw cuts in funding because of uncertain financial projections for the coming fiscal year.

"There are many variables for the coming years," school finance director Theresa Schenk said. "We'll have a new governor; there may be no increase in state funding the following year (2003-2004) and then we'll be opening a new high school in the fall of 2004.

"I need to get busy and do some multi-year projections."

Schenk said some of her projections will be based on "global assumptions" using intuition about what will happen in coming years.

"It's not an exact science," she said. "Reality can be very different from our projections."

But the 2001-2002 fiscal year is concluding in a sound financial state.

"It's hard because not all the final decisions are made," Schenk said. "But right now I'm projecting a $1.089 million fund balance at year's end—that's a $227,000 increase over the previous year."

The projected fund balance is at about 11 percent of the district's total budget which is considered very good. Just two years ago, in the 1999-2000 school year, the district had a fund balance of just $491,000. Part of this, Schenk noted, is because the community passed the 2000 bond issue which provided for building repairs, computers and new buses.

"That has really helped to give us a healthy balance," she said. "But next year is scarier financially."

Superintendent David Oegema said the cuts to next year's budget were a cooperative effort between staff, administration and board members.

"It's always difficult to make cuts," he said. "But this is a good budget that will work out well for us."

"I am concerned, however, that we'll have to make more cuts in future years."

Taking time now to look into the future, Schenk added, can help by giving the district time to plan and involve people in decision-making.

"When we involve others we can face our problems and work together collaboratively," she says.

At this time, the district will be spending about $130,000 more in the 2002-03 fiscal year than it projects in revenue. Much of the district's income is derived from state funding based on enrollment.

"There is no guarantee of enrollment," Schenk said. "If enrollment doesn't come in as we expect there is some room in the budget to adjust for the decrease in income."

Enrollment is up by 55 students from two years ago and Schenk has projected it to remain stable for this fall.

There also is room for unexpected contingencies built into the budget. This year, for example, the district had to repay $60,000 in property tax refunds—a figure which usually runs in the $8,000 to $10,000 range. Also, interest earnings took a downturn after Sept. 11, decreasing the district's income by $85,000.

"That's why you need a healthy fund balance," Schenk explained. "Swings happen—you can't control them. So we need to be prudent in our planning."

This year's budget shows a decrease in spending on textbooks. This is a one-time cut, possible because the district had made a $93,000 investment in new textbooks during the past fiscal year.

"We're at a point in our curriculum cycle that made this easier this year," Schenk said. "We can't do that every year."

Cutting projected losses in the Community Education Department and the Fitness Facility also helped trim the school's budget for the coming year.

"Both programs still have a ways to go," Schenk said. "I'm continuing to work with the fitness advisory board. They are really becoming focused on a mission. And Community Ed will be opening another preschool program in the fall that should increase their income.

"Programs that should be self-sustaining can't be losing money," she added. "The board is appropriate in holding these programs accountable. The health of the district hinges on the health of these types of programs."

Cutting maintenance, utility and building travel accounts also helped to bring the budget closer into balance for the coming year, along with eliminating a separate alternative education graduation ceremony and cutting the in-school suspension program to a two-hour per day position for the coming year.

But Schenk believes there is good news in all of this.

"Many schools are cutting teachers and administrators," she said. "There will be severe cuts at the state level if the state's economy doesn't improve ... that will trickle down to the districts."

"But enrollment will help us. This district has a lot of community support and collaborative effort—we have a lot going for us. It's an attractive area to move to; with a caring school system and new facilities, we should grow."

"We also have less pressure on our general fund budget due to the 2000 bond. Going into hard times it's good to have that kind of a buffer."

Oegema said he is pleased that the budgeting process turned out so well.

"We're going to continue to offer a strong program for our students," he said.

Youth livestock clubs important to fair

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

What would the fair be like without animals? A long-standing tradition at the Manchester Community Fair includes youth livestock entries, which helps young people to learn responsibility, livestock management and earn some money while raising an animal for market.

The Manchester Steer Club was organized in 1949 with five members. Now in its 53rd year, it has been continuously sponsored by the Manchester Optimist Club in keeping with their creed of service to youth.

Over the years, more than 1,000 members have raised a steer from a calf to market size. The profit from the sale of the beef goes to the boy or girl who raised and trained the steer. Steers are judged on the basis of championship quality: showmanship, best records, and best daily gain.

The Steer Club membership grew steadily in its first 25 years, with a record of 36 members in the club in 1963. In recent years the participation has seenawed and currently nine members are raising steers for the fair: Heather Black, Roxanne Ernst, Kristie Litwin, Erica and Yvonne Lowell, Becky, Emily and Matt Noggle and Amanda Parr.

The Manchester Lamb Club is in its 38th year. Formerly sponsored by the Manchester Jaycees, it is now sponsored by the parents of the members. It is open to any youth residing in the Manchester Community School District, between the fifth and 11th grades, who are interested in feeding and caring for a pair of market lambs from the time of weaning until they are ready for market.

In this three-month period, the lambs are fed, groomed and cared for by the young members. Meetings are held to teach members how to care for and show their lambs, work on educational exhibits for the fair, and learn about the financial aspect of raising lambs.

A set of records is kept for each lamb, which details expenses including food, veterinary treatments and other costs incurred. Quite often the profits from this venture will be used to boost the student's college fund.

This year, the Lamb Club has

Library to add more book shelving

■ Role of standing committees discussed at June meeting.

By Angela N. Cooper
Staff Writer

At the Manchester District Library board meeting June 10, the discussion focused primarily on the role of committees and the possibility of adding shelving in the library.

Board members debated how much control committees should have over the day-to-day running of the library and how much should be left to Library Director Kate Pittsley.

Concerns focused mainly on the director's request for additional shelving without seeking committee approval.

"Letting the director direct is very important, but that doesn't mean the board or committees are a rubber stamp," said Vice President Richard Spring. "All of us have opinions and care deeply about the library."

"We're delighted with the new setting, but the added shelving is potentially a big change. The building and site committee should have some say."

"We need to keep on top of a lot of issues without necessarily controlling them."

Pittsley worked with another librarian and the building inspector to come up with the plans. She explained the arrangement in her monthly report.

Questions came from some board members as to whether such plans should go to committee before the board approved them. Pittsley pointed out that she had carefully researched them and that the sooner the board allowed it to move forward, the sooner the shelving would be added.

"I feel pretty strongly that what our patrons want is more space for more books rather than especially wide aisles," Pittsley said.

With the additional shelving the library would remain compliant with ADA regulations on aisle width, according to Pittsley; the aisles would be similar in width to other libraries.

The board decided to approve the addition if the building and site committee approved and as long as the cost is less than $6,000.

The debate over the shelving segued to a discussion about the roles of committees and concerns about micromanagement.

"This seems like more of an issue for the building and site committee," President Laura Sutton said. "Before, we needed the committees to provide structure and make decisions."

"Now that we have a library director, the committee may want to start planning for a new site because we will eventually outgrow this one."

"Do we need building and site for internal reorganization like adding shelves? To add shelving or furniture, does it need to go to committee?"

Board member John Newman noted that the building and site committee had not met since fall to assist in making these decisions.

The board also decided to present quarterly reports at the meetings of the village and townships they represent.

The two representatives from each area will alternate going to meetings every three months to update the communities about the library.

"Going to meetings can help us find out what the community wants," Sutton said. "If there's something rumbling, we can settle it before it becomes a problem."

A public hearing on Truth in Taxation in regards to the millage was scheduled for last week's meeting, but no members of the public were present at the meeting, so it closed without discussion.

At the July meeting, Pittsley will present a resolution to the board that includes both the millage the district plans to levy and a budget for the coming year.

A public hearing on the budget will be held at that meeting, which is scheduled at 7 p.m. on July 8 at the Village Hall.

Artistic endeavor comes to Manchester

■ Creative space is tiny, but group looks forward to growing.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

A small group of local artists and artisans has banded together to explore the creative arts, bring the community together and fill another storefront on Main Street in Manchester.

"Some of my favorite places to go are the Ann Arbor Art Association and COSI in Toledo," said Laura Earle, one of the artists who has been envisioning this project for up to two years.

"I wanted to create a miniature version of that right here at home, for all the people in the community to enjoy."

The Community Resource Center has provided guidance and encouragement to Earle over the two years that she and others have been ruminating over the idea of starting a family-friendly creative arts organization in the Manchester community.

And now, the idea has come to fruition.

On Monday, the Manchester Creative Arts Trust (MCAT) will open its doors at 122 E. Main Street, featuring a gallery of works by area artists, "make-and-take" projects for aspiring artists and an educational creative play space for preschoolers. MCAT also is organizing special interest groups to connect friends and neighbors who share similar creative interests.

"With entertaining educational programs for the public and business support services for exhibiting members, MCAT seeks to explore good old-fashioned American ingenuity in fresh new ways," Earle says.

The tiny shop next door to the bakery will house the Creative Café, MCAT's family-friendly make-it-and-take-it center. Volunteers will be available to help make the most of projects in clay, animation, mosaics and more. The Gallery will showcase creative works by member artists and the Kitty Corner provides a tiny nook packed with big fun for imaginative preschoolers.

Earle and her husband along with David Allen, an industrial designer and animator who has worked on the television series "Rugrats" and "The Simpsons," and his wife Sue, got together with other parents looking for a creative outlet for their own and their children's talents.

"Most of us are parents of preschoolers," Earle explained. "We met each other at the preschool and on the t-ball field."

"We started getting a lot of 'you should meet so-and-so,' so it seemed logical to get everyone together."

"There are so many very talented artists in this community, some of them nationally known; we figure if we can all work together we can come up with some wonderful teaching and learning experiences for the people around here."

At MCAT, kids and adults can indulge their creative talents and learn about new outlets for their creativity.

What began as a loosely knit group of parents has come together to create an organization that hopes to bring the community together while exploring the creative arts.

"There are all these wonderfully creative people around here but some of them just don't know each other," Earle says. "We thought it would be great to create a catalyst for them."

The initial plans for the MCAT group are to open the gallery, offer some make-it-and-take-it interactive projects for children and adults, and to have the exploratory area for children's creative play.

The variety of offerings that MCAT has already gathered is wide ranging. Musicians, clay and ceramic art, quilting, photography, glass art, painting, writing and even cooking are some of the arts to be explored. Earle even has a couple of young fly-tying enthusiasts that will share their skills with others in the community.

"I met them at Mexican Market Day at the middle school when I was there with my 12-year-old daughter," she says.

And, if you don't see your favorite creative activity on the MCAT "menu," call 428-1644 and let them know. It's likely that they'll know someone who can offer it—and if they don't, they might ask you to come and share your expertise!

Although the space the group currently has is tiny, Earle expects to get creative with it, and perhaps utilize other spaces around town for the variety of activities they offer.

Someone who recently found out about this new endeavor asked Earle what kind of age limits she planned to have on the creative activities.

"I thought about it for a minute, and then I told them. I think we'll have to put a limit of (age) 103," she says.

"After that, they'll have to bring a note from their mother."

Many Manchester area churches hold ice cream socials during the summer months. Be sure to include them in your summer plans—you won't be disappointed.

Generally, a full meal is served including such items as barbecue beef or hot chicken sandwiches, hot dogs, German and American potato salads, baked beans, macaroni and cheese, coleslaw and a beverage. You also can depend on getting a generous portion of ice cream along with a variety of cakes, and in some cases pies, to choose from.

That is, if you still have room! Starting times and menus vary with each social. It is a good idea to check with the church or watch for publicity to get complete details.

This year's scheduled ice cream socials will be at St. Paul U.C.C. in Saline this evening; tomorrow night at Bethel United Church of Christ in Manchester; July 2 at St. James U.C.C. on U.S. 12 between Clinton and Saline; July 10 at Sharon United Methodist Church; July 25 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Manchester; Aug. 7 at Manchester United Methodist Church and Aug. 14 at Emanuel United Church of Christ in Manchester.

See you at the ice cream socials this summer!

SENIOR CITIZENS NEWS

Here I thought I had time to write this, when Del asked, "Aren't you going to write an article this morning?"

I growled. "No, I thought I'd bake the cherry pie that Gordon (our son-in-law) wanted me to bring him in Muskegon tomorrow for Father's Day."

No rest for the wicked! And, while eating my breakfast cereal, I was reading a novel I have been dying to know the end of. All sorts of things to do other than pounding a typewriter, ha.

Then, Donna Pointer called from Ann Arbor to inform me that we wouldn't begin Yoga class in the fall until September 18th (instead of the 11th). All you who enjoy our yoga classes so very much, please mark your calendar!

I did ask, "How are you?" and she replied "Fine, and hello to everyone." She is usually smiling which is contagious to some of us.

Exhibiting at the fair

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

The first day of the fair is filled with excitement for everyone involved. Fair queen candidates, parade marshals, parade participants and kids eager for their first ride on the midway all contribute to the excitement of opening day at the fair.

On the Monday preceding opening day, while the scene at the exhibit building on the fairgrounds may seem confusing, it is in fact a well-organized machine, with dozens of experienced volunteers (and a few newcomers each year) processing the large volume of exhibits entered at the fair.

These dedicated volunteers assist the judges, do intake and cataloguing of exhibits, arrange the exhibits after they are judged, and provide monitoring for the various exhibit areas.

"We have 50 or 60 people who work just in the Exhibit building on Monday and Tuesday of fair week," says fair board secretary Carol Britten.

That's only a fraction of the many volunteers who are needed during the week of the fair.

Judging in the exhibit building begins early in the morning, and must be completed by noon. At noon, the rush of awarding the ribbons, arranging the exhibits and setting up fencing and skirting around the exhibit tables begins.

"We're always on a tight schedule," Britten says. "Sometimes we get done just in time, but we always get done by five."

Promptly at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, the gates of the Manchester Community Fair open and the spectators begin to arrive prior to the parade, which begins at 6:30 p.m.

One of the first stops on everyone's list is the Exhibit Building. Everyone wants to see who entered projects in the different categories and what prizes have been awarded.

A baby photograph contest is always a popular category of entries in the exhibit building. Professional portraits of babies from birth to age 5 are accepted in this category.

The popular Challenge Contest returns from last year. Each year, changes are made to the material list that is required for this year's challenge. Put your imagination to work and make a creative wall hanging—the prizes are substantial in this category which is open to all ages.

In other categories, first prize will be $3.00, second prize will be $2.00, and third place will earn $1.00.

"Although we only award three prizes in each category, we probably have more classes in our fair book than most other fairs in the state," Britten says. "We accommodate as much as we can, and change our categories to reflect the variety of entries we receive each year."

"For instance, macramé was really popular for a time, but if we don't have any entries in a particular category, we'll delete it after that year."

Likewise, if there are dozens of entries in a single class this year, it's likely the board will split the class for next year.

To encourage a high volume of exhibits, the 2002 Exhibitor Awards will include several levels of awards for multiple exhibits. An honor roll of exhibitors who enter five or more exhibits, a ribbon awarded to all who enter ten or more exhibits in different classes, and a trophy to those ambitious souls who enter twenty or more exhibits in different classes, in the Exhibit Building.

"Once you have brought in one exhibit, you might as well bring several," Britten says.

Rules for all contests are printed in the Fair Book, available at most local businesses.

Manchester Community Education is proud of the success of its newest early childhood program, First Steps Washtenaw, using the Parents As Teachers model. The program is based on the Born to Learn curriculum, and all children ages 0-5 may attend with their parents. This year, the program has had 37 families enroll with a total of 59 children, exceeding its goal of serving 29 Manchester families in its first year.

Parents as Teachers is a primary prevention program based on the philosophy that parents are a child's first and most influential teachers. The program's vision is that all parents will be the child's best first teachers, giving all children a better chance at reaching their full potential. The program's activities are designed to help parents gain knowledge of normal child development, good parenting practices and confidence in their parenting skills.

It also gives them professional, community and peer support in their parenting role. This support system helps families raise well-rounded and competent children who are on the right track for achievement in school and in life.

First Steps Washtenaw is a voluntary, non-targeted program offering personal home visits, developmental screening, referrals, facilitated playgroups, parent education meetings and family gatherings and special events. Playgroups are focused on appropriate child development activities for the parenting adult to participate with their child.

In addition, the program links families to community resources. The program serves as a total support system through involvement with families in their homes, at school and in the community. First Steps Washtenaw identifies disabilities and delays as early as possible and encourages language development, intellectual growth and social and motor skills for children.

School readiness results in more academic skills, leading to lower remedial and special education needs. First Steps Washtenaw promotes parental involvement in learning and increases the parent's involvement with a child's education.

The local FSW Manchester program is a voluntary program offered to families of children ages 0-5 through Manchester Community Education. The group has worked to establish a collaboration and referral network, expanding its capacity to coordinate the provision of service and enabling it to provide for services with other parenting, early childhood and adult education services in the community.

The best source of recruitment comes from word-of-mouth, family-to-family referrals. Families are encouraged to visit any one of the play groups to further inquire about the program. Parents can continue to participate in any of the play groups, parent meetings, family gatherings and special events that are offered.

To find out more, please call Barb Bergner, program coordinator, at 428-7804 and she will gladly send a packet of information.

How hydrated do we need to be?

In Michigan, we're surrounded by the Great Lakes on three sides. In Manchester, we are fortunate to have the beautiful River Raisin flowing through our village.

Being close to the water always seems to replenish my spirit. Sometimes I take a few moments during a busy day to stand by the river and get mesmerized by the water running past. On a hot day, feeling the cool breeze off a lake, whether great or small, always changes my attitude toward life.

Perhaps I've taken water—and its subsequent effect on my life—for granted.

So when it was widely advised that we all should drink several glasses of water per day, it made sense to me. So I did it, and I actually felt better.

Now I find out this all could be a hoax, promoted—believe it or not—by the bottled-water manufacturers of America.

Sources from women's magazines to the Colon Health Network and the Georgia Rural Water Journal extol the virtues of drinking at least eight, eight-ounce glasses of water a day.

MARSHA JOHNSON CHARTRAND

AFTER THOUGHTS

Bottled-water makers heavily market their products based on this theory—so commonly held that nutritionists refer to it simply as "eight-by-eight."

The industry's trade group even has a "hydration calculator" on its Web site (www.bottledwater.org/public/hydratio.htm) for people to determine whether they need even more than that.

However, it seems that researchers who have tried to pinpoint the origin of the eight-by-eight rule have come up dry.

These researchers are starting to question the guidelines for exactly how much water we ought to drink. They say that studies found to bolster the eight-by-eight rule were performed on soldiers at high altitude, hospitalized patients, and others in "nontypical environments." For the average American adult who rarely breaks a sweat and works in a climate-controlled office, eight-by-eight may be more than enough.

No one seems to dispute that drinking plenty of water is a good idea. In fact, a recent study published in the American Journal of Epidemiology asserts that drinking water can help reduce the risk of fatal heart attacks.

But I shouldn't be too surprised that the hype is coming from those who have the most to gain. After all, hydration (or a "hydratio" as the industry has coined its own word) translates into sales for the Coca-Cola Co. (DaSani brand water), Pepsi Cola Co. (Aquafina) or Nestle (Zephyr Hills), among many others. No wonder the advice on the labels or the websites of these products tell you to consume at least 16 ounces of fluid before working out and five to eight ounces every 15 minutes during a workout.

In fact, the International Bottled Water Association, which represents the $6.4 billion bottled-water industry in the U.S., has a "hydration calculator" on its Web site, and claims that Americans still aren't drinking enough water.

Sigh. So after being very conscientious about drinking a half-gallon or so, after reading an article telling me that perhaps a liter of extra fluid per day is adequate, barring strenuous exercise, I decided to experiment by decreasing my daily intake of water for a few weeks.

After all, ten years ago, who would have thought that anyone would willingly pay $1 to $2 for a bottle of water, for goodness' sake? When did the water that I've loved my whole lifetime become a "product?" Why should I put more money into the bottled-water producers' pockets?

Water certainly isn't the only source of hydration. However, an argument can be made that it's the healthiest. It's caffeinefree, calorie-free, and it doesn't have any artificial ingredients. Or so we hope.

But as a result of my "experiment," I discovered that I still do feel better after drinking larger quantities of water each day. I don't often buy bottled water, other than to get a fresh one to refill for the next few weeks. I leave them in the refrigerator at home and we have a cooler at work from which I can refill my current bottle a few times a day.

There's got to be something to this replenishing-my-spirit stuff. Maybe it's not such a bad thing to drink plentifully. And there's definitely something to be said about the relaxing qualities of spending time beside the stream, pond, lake or ocean.

Now I just read that after much thought, nutritionists have come up with the following guideline for determining hydration needs: drink enough so you don't get thirsty.

Now there is some rocket science for you. Maybe I oughta become a researcher.

The art and addiction of porch-sitting

Outranking many others on my list of favorite seasonal phenomena, porch sitting threatens to consume far too many dawn-to-daylight and daylight-to-dusk hours. Porch sitting ironically combines the art of watching the world go by and being one with nature; the gregarious urge to see who walks or drives past while luxuriating in a private space.

An invitation to porch sit shouldn't be taken lightly. It implies a willingness to share something special, if not downright personal. My fondest wish is to collect all I love for a good long evening of watching birds, butterflies, bees and flowers (sit still enough and they seem to change) from the vantage point of a chair on the modest cement slab in front of my home.

Perhaps an acquired taste, the delight and skill in porch occupation increases with age. Not introduced to it as a child, I'm just now learning the politics and policies of The Porch. I envy kids growing up in porch culture. I missed out on the youth phase, but I'm making up for lost time as I practice my adult porch sitting.

In town and on farms, young-

NANCY HEBB

SHEEP SHOTS

sters climb porches, jump from porches, and clatter up and down the steps in a great rush to do ... something. Porches serve to launch projects and plans, to stage productions of make-believe. As daylight and youthful exuberance wane, kids climb onto the porch or stoop for their latest efforts at staying awake and alert, pushing off the hour of their inevitable re-incarceration indoors. These late-evening moments are their introduction to a future of actual porch sitting.

From the vantage point of a porch, adult neighbors passing on the sidewalk or road get a nod or a wave or even a word. It requires an actual invitation for walkers to come on up and join the porch sitters. You only accept if you have serious time to spend.

A lot of family and neighborhood togetherness happens on porches. There's a reason old movies place courting couples on porch swings, too. You don't need a soundtrack to know there are birds singing, and you can practically feel the barest hint of blossom-scented breeze on face and neck. Even without music, the mood is set.

The stereotypical old-age pensioner in a rocking chair on the porch exists, but he or she shares the space with a lot of 40-somethings, too. Between 18 and 30-something, the rush to be getting on with this or that precludes porch time. Patios and barbecues apparently win out over the porch, satisfying the need to embrace more than one thing at a time (for instance, cooking and talking or eating and talking and sitting).

Doing next to nothing, or appearing to do nothing, is imperative in serious porch sitting. You know you excel at the art when your heart rate slows down, your blood pressure drops, the corners of your mouth turn up at the sight of a hummingbird, and knots in your neck ease away. Your hearing detects sounds pushed into sub-or unconsciousness at other times.

"Mindfulness" is an offshoot of Zen meditation. It takes you not into another state, but demands full awareness of the state you occupy. Demand might be too harsh: It encourages acknowledgement of exactly what surrounds and occupies you, mind and body. Porches are a good place to practice mindfulness.

Not that you must actually do nothing on a porch. Acceptable porch occupations are legendary. One of my earliest memories involves sitting at my grandmother's feet on her back porch, splitting peas. I spilled a lot of them. I lacked her lifetime of practice that made breaking open the crisp pods and pouring the sweet little orbs into an enamel pan a true porch pursuit.

Husking corn, knitting or crochet work, sipping a drink, anything that is "practically mindless" qualifies as an acceptable porch sitting practice. While you may occupy a porch to read, write, talk, eat, draw, construct something or otherwise do things, your concentration on these efforts disqualifies the time spent as true porch sitting.

In its purest form, porch sitting creates in mind and body the same sort of relaxation brought on by a good massage or soak in a bubble bath. Unlike these simple pleasures or the more serious pills and professionals today's world often employs, porch sitting costs nothing and goes a long way toward reducing head and muscle aches, tension and anxiety. Unless, of course, you feel guilty just sitting still, instead of actually doing something else.

I overcame such guilt by allowing myself my first cup of morning coffee on the porch. Similarly, a tall glass of ice water sipped slowly at the end of a hot afternoon seems reasonable. After walking and playing with the dogs, I find I can porch sit as they snuffle quietly around or cool off by lying in the shade.

Where there's a will there's a way, the saying goes. I will continue to perfect my porch sitting.

I wish you all the same joy this summer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Village president responds to M-52 bypass situation.

To the Editor:

When I made the decision to become involved in "politics," I made a promise to myself that I would not get involved in "the politics." However, as president of the village, an officer in the Southwest Washtenaw Council of Governments (SWWCOG) and a member of SWWCOG's Alternative Route Committee, I feel a responsibility to respond to recent incomplete and inaccurate statements made in information provided to the Enterprise for publication.

I feel very strongly that it is critical that citizens of our community understand individual efforts that are being put forth, funds that are (or are not) being spent and cooperative work that is being done.

The Alternative Route Committee, a sub-committee of SWWCOG, consists of members from Manchester Township, Bridgewater Township, Freedom Township, Manchester Board of Education, and the Village. At our first and only meeting to date, on May 29, it was agreed that we try to do not fully understand our traffic problems. Truck traffic is only one portion of the issue. Our most significant growth is to the west, and perhaps putting an alternative route to the east would not solve our problems.

We also agreed that an alternative route would be long-term, and we need to understand what can be done short-term. We discussed the opening of the high school road and determined that we really cannot say at this time what the impact will be. We questioned how much traffic will still be at the four corners, attempting to turn west, and whether we will just create another problem (potentially more dangerous) at the corner of Hibbard and M-52.

So, in effect, I suppose the project has taken on a new scope, as was stated in the June 13 article. The committee has decided not to limit its efforts to one long-term option, since we have no facts to support that it will be a solution.

Based on these facts, we agreed that bringing in a consultant to advise the group on what type of traffic study should be done, where do we start with the county and the state, and what type of financial support might be available. The total cost for this three- to four-hour, one-time consultation, was $500. This would be about $100 for each unit of government represented if everyone shared the expense.

Everyone agreed to take this back to their respective boards for approval. There was never a suggestion to hire an independent planner for $500 an hour, as was stated in the article.

The committee saw the "complications" referred to in the article as positive reasons why this study should be done. Ensuring that an alternative route be access-free and scenic ensures that it does not become a developer-financed highway that destroys the character of our rural community and hurts our downtown businesses.

Knowing the traffic issues that are now facing Chelsea emphasizes the need for us to start looking at our options and planning for the future. Because the Michigan Department of Transportation feels that the Chelsea bypass would take precedent over Manchester's is certainly no reason for us to "give up."

Fortunately, very dedicated people who volunteered their time to work together for the benefit of our entire community see projects like a traffic study as a very strong way to unite. It is certainly not in any way considered "divisive" by those who are actively cooperating.

After a full 90 days in office, I have now made another promise to myself. As long as I am involved in "politics" I cannot and will not sit idly by when inaccurate statements are made concerning the village and this community that I dearly love.

Pat Vaillencourt
President, Village of Manchester

Thanks from First Steps program.

Dear Editor:

We would like to offer our very sincere thanks to the Kiwanis members who came to the Manchester Schools portable classroom at DuRusel Farms. Seven generous people came out to the farm to assist with the installation of a new sand box and play house, and to clean a new interior play space for young children.

The work crew included Sharie Sell, Shelley Regensburg, Francine and John Hugel, Rhonda and Tom Ash and Pat Vallencourt. Their generosity is very much appreciated during this busy springtime.

The First Steps Washtenaw Manchester will begin offering bilingual playgroups to the farm families on June 12. With a grant from the Washtenaw Intermediate School District we will promote literacy. We will also a bilingual CPR class.

Thanks are also due to Dennis, Rossi and Casey Kitei, who helped build and install the sandbox and donated the play house.

Muchas gracias a todos. venga jugar con nosotros en nuestro centro de jugar.

grown to 18 members and is frequently a family project, with several sets of siblings participating. Blake and Tarah Bondy, Charles and Sarah DeSautel, Breanne and Stephanie Haeussler, Stacy Kempher, Jessica Kirkland, Kristie Litwin, Erica Lowell, Brian Neigebauer, Meagan Payne, Greg Schaible, Shelley Schulze, Katy and Sarah Uphaus and Jennifer and Sarah Wootke are the members of this year's Lamb Club.

The Manchester Swine Club is the newest club, in existence for about 10 years. The Swine Club is also intended to be an educational experience for the students, who must be at least eight years old.

Over a three-month period, the Swine Club members watch their pigs grow from small, wigging creatures to ones weighing a minimum of 200 pounds. Healthy feeder pigs will gain from 1.5 to 1.8 pounds per day, often gaining more than two pounds per day.

During the months before the fair, the Swine Club members participate in projects including creative educational exhibits and learning how to show their pigs. Each member purchases two pigs for entry into the fair. This year's ten Swine Club members are Brad, Jason and Rebecca Alber, Roxanne and Ryan Ernst, Brittany, Matthew and Travis Fusilier, Jennifer Kempher and Kari Litwin. The livestock auctions will be held at 8:00 p.m. next Thursday. Business and individuals can show their support to these young people for their hard work and dedication over the past months, by attending and supporting the auction.

A country smile on fair parade marshal's face

■ Lester McCalla honored for service to fair board.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand Associate Editor

"I must've missed too many meetings," is Lester McCalla's guess as to why he was nominated by the fair board to be this year's parade marshal for Tuesday night's kick off to the Manchester Community Fair.

But those who are familiar with McCalla's contributions to the fair over the year aren't surprised at all by the board's choice.

"He did a lot to establish the pig club," fair board president Gary Bross said. "That was one of his biggest attributes. He's worked very hard on the fair for the past 10 years or more, especially with the animal groups."

"He's also helped to stock and supply food for the Snack Shack each year."

But McCalla is unassuming about his contributions.

"All I know is I wasn't at the meetings because I was laid up for a few months," he says. "Then all of a sudden they asked me to do it."

The 77-year-old McCalla, along with his son Gordon, also a fair board member, were instrumental in starting the pig club several years ago.

"We've always bred Chester White hogs," he says. "My father and older brother and I started in 1927, and showed for 60-plus years."

"My brother and I both went through 4-H; my brother always went to the state fair to show his pigs."

Lester McCalla has been entering the Washtenaw County and the Michigan State Fair since his childhood and the Manchester Community Fair since 1964. Next week, he will be honored by the fair as the parade marshal for his involvement.

"Finally, my son Gordon and I had to quit in 1994. We hated to do it—we had quite a record going in Detroit. There was always a McCalla at the fair."

The elder McCalla grew up on a farm on Saline Road just a mile south of the Michigan stadium.

"It was one of the first farms to be annexed into the city," he recalls.

So the family purchased a farm on M-52 in Sharon Township in 1964 and moved their operation out to Manchester, continuing hog farming for 30 years.

McCalla has three grown children—his son, Gordon, a daughter, Karen Lee McCalla of Oxnard, Calif., and Mary Ann Dettling of Manchester. He also has two grandchildren, Kevin and Keith Dettling.

"He's done a lot of good for the kids of this community, by his support of the livestock clubs," Bross says. "The animal clubs have put money in kids' pockets for their education, first car, or whatever.

"We try to choose someone who's done a lot for the fair or around town."

McCalla has done both. He's also served on the county farm bureau board for several years. And he's instilled a sense of community pride in his family as both Gordon and Mary Ann are currently fair board members.

"They take just as much pride as he does," Bross added.

Still, McCalla says he was surprised to be chosen for the fair parade marshal.

"I had no idea," he says. "I shoulda went to the meetings, I guess."

"I told them I don't want to wear no suit. This is me, right here. A sport shirt and pants, that's dressed up for me."

"Durn few people have seen me dressed up."

He says he's a little happy and yet a bit reluctant to be chosen for this honor.

"My family encouraged me," he says. "They said, 'do it, do it.'"

While he says he doesn't want to brag, he hopes that he's done something worth being honored for.

"I don't think I've made any enemies," he says.

It's likely that next Tuesday he'll actually discover how many friends he has in the Manchester community.

McCalla will ride in the seat of honor in the parade, which begins at 6:30 p.m. and will travel from Wolverine Street down Main to Macomb and back to the fairgrounds along Duncan Street.

Trading life in the pulpit for...

Life in the slow lane

■ Father Charlie prepares to end his five-year tenure in Manchester.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

After five years as pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Manchester, the Rev. Fr. Charles Irvin will be taking on a "relief pitcher" position after the 8:30 a.m. mass next Wednesday.

"Father Charlie," as he is affectionately known both in the parish and throughout the community, enjoys using the baseball analogy for his retirement.

"I'll be in the bullpen," he says of his move to a condominium in Ann Arbor, near Greenhills Academy, where he will be available as a senior priest to parishes throughout the diocese in need of a priest to say mass or provide sacraments.

"I'll have to learn to be a homemaker," he jokes with his characteristic good humor. "I won't have a parish to take care of me. I'll have to pay my own taxes and everything."

The 69-year-old priest looks back on his five-year tenure in Manchester with great fondness.

"It's been a wonderful spiritual experience," he says. "And I'm very grateful, not only to the parishioners of St. Mary's, but to the people of Manchester for the tremendous support that I've received from them."

"St. Mary's was a wonderful place to be as a pastor for the last time. Manchester is sort of a Norman Rockwell slice of Americana; I've been living in a nostalgic place and time."

"For me it's been the kind of parish and the kind of life that I knew as a child and lost ... and I've recovered it here."

AT FATHER Charlie's right hand during his pastorate has been Janet LaBeau Shurtliff, St. Mary's parish secretary and bookkeeper.

"Janet has been absolutely indispensable," he says. "She's more than a secretary; in the business world she'd be called an executive assistant."

"She is engaged in a great ministry—hospitality, caring, a shoulder to cry on, the complaint department. She's the voice of the parish and in some instances she's the voice of the Catholic Church."

"When people are hurt or in trouble—spiritual or emotional difficulty—she's the first voice they hear. She'll spend a significant time listening to people, counseling them and consoling them."

"Then I get to talk to them. I guess you could say that Janet does the prep work and I do the surgery."

"She's my alter-ego. I will be lost without her."

DURING HIS five years in Manchester, Father Charlie has seen many changes at St. Mary's.

"The nature of the congregation is changing," he says. "Lots of young married couples are choosing Manchester for their startup homes. Consequently, our Sunday masses are one huge cry room."

Father Charlie's solution is to include the children in the mass.

"At the offertory, the first thing I do is to ask the little ones to come up to me, with a special basket for them to contribute," he says. "It's always great fun; everyone loves to watch and the kids put on quite a show. They want mommy and daddy to see what they are doing."

IN ADDITION to teaching youngsters about stewardship, Father Charlie says he also wants them to know they are an important and valued part of the life of the parish. And, as he's developed relationships with the youngest members of the parish, St. Mary's youth ministry also has grown. Participation among youth and teens has increased, and Father Charlie says he has tried to be warm and welcoming to this age group—to the extent of inviting them to be part of the parish pastoral council.

"I imagine that sitting at those meetings at those meetings is sort of like purgatory for them," he says with a chuckle.

"The role of the laity is extremely important to me," he continues. "I've really relied on the parish pastoral council, the finance council and the different organizations within the parish. I've tried to foster and empower them."

"It's a pastor's dream that a parish will run itself without him. I've come to the sense that I can leave now with the parish in good hands ... because I'm not indispensable."

He says as a pastor he's always had a motto: "Get out of the way." And his motto must be working.

"When I came, St. Mary's had about 370 registered families—now we have just over 500 families," he says, a fact confirmed by Shurtliff.

He adds that the quality of participation during Mass has significantly increased, particularly in the musical realm as the church recently acquired a baby grand piano and music director Annette Atherton is developing the choirs.

WITH THIS growth has come a challenge. St.

Mary's Catholic Church, a stone structure built in the early 1900s on the village green, has a seating capacity of about 260. With standing-room-only at two Sunday worship services, plus a Saturday evening mass, Father Charlie says that the parish needs a place that can seat about twice that number for a single Sunday mass and for special services such as Christmas and Easter. Other parish functions also could be held in such a facility.

"I've been nudging the congregation to a commitment to finding new property," he says. "The day is fast coming when we'll have a facility with room to have one large Sunday liturgy and retain the Saturday evening and the first Mass of Sunday morning at the historic stone church."

"That building should never be let go ... the parish probably would still hold weddings, funerals and baptisms there."

HE ADDS that he's always had a "guilty conscience" that his parishioners have parked in the neighboring Emanuel United Church of Christ parking lot, although he values the close relationship that has been fostered between the two congregations over the years.

"But the parking situation has always bothered me," he says. "It would be nice if we could purchase the DPW property; that would provide a parking lot and room for a new multi-purpose facility and would solve a lot of problems."

However, the Department of Public Works is not ready to move from its Macomb Street location because the village's City Road facility is not adequate for the DPW equipment and storage at this time.

"That's not to say that we're not also looking elsewhere at property," Father Charlie added.

A PRIEST for 35 years, Father Charlie has served in four parishes, all in the southeastern Michigan area. Starting out at St. Mary's Student Parish in Ann Arbor for nine years, he then was the founding pastor of Holy Spirit Parish in Hamburg. From 1987 to 1997, he served as pastor at St. Francis of Assisi parish in Ann Arbor and for the past five years has been in Manchester.

"I've consciously tried to be the 'village priest,'" he says, "and tried to be open and available to anybody regardless of their religious—or irreligious—persuasion."

"I will certainly miss my mornings at the Bakers Dozen."

Looking back at the changes in the Catholic Church during his priesthood, he says it would take "an essay—or even a book" to cover it.

"It's been a wonderfully exciting time to be a priest," he says. "Challenging ... creative ... inflexible ... and rewarding."

"As awful as the present crisis in the church is, I'm filled with anticipation and hope that we're going to emerge from this much, much better and stronger. Crises have a wonderful way of getting you back to a clear definition of who you are and what you are about."

He says he is grateful for the media's aggressive reporting of the issue.

"The real crisis has been one of leadership and management," he said. "As angry as people are about the priests who have been abusive, they are even angrier at the church's leadership—and, when all is said and done, rightly so."

SHURLIFF WILL miss the gentle man with whom she has worked so closely.

"I'd certainly say I've been blessed greatly by God to be able to work with Father Charlie for 4½ years," she says. "He's a remarkable man with a deep, deep spirituality that manifests itself in warmth, kindness and a loving manner."

"He's the kind of person who makes people realize how accessible God is; how much they love God and how much God loves them."

She relates that at a recent parish pastoral council meeting a council member made the comment that Father Charlie's smile is one that makes others happy just by viewing it.

"It's true," Shurtliff says. "People are drawn to him. It makes a difference. Some of the growth in our parish is because of the growth of the area, but some of it is people getting connected because of Father Charlie and his warmth."

That warm smile will be celebrated at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday at the parish center on Madison Street. Music will be part of the day's celebration as well as the inevitable food.

Fair begins Tuesday with parade and crowning of queen

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
Associate Editor

The Fair Parade will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday and wind its way through downtown Manchester before proceeding to the fair grounds. This is a highlight of the week for the children of the community.

Kids begin to anticipate the parade itself almost as soon as last year's parade is finished. From the screaming fire sirens that pierce the air to the putt-putt of mini-cars driven by the Shriners; from the magnificent horse-drawn carriages and wagons to the bicycles and little red wagons ridden by the children, there is something for everyone to see.

It's obvious why the kids are really here when you see the large empty bags they bring to the curb. After the parade is over, they'll have enough treats to last them until Halloween.

Bike entries by the kids are always fun to watch. Decorated bicycles are another tradition at the Manchester Community Fair Parade. For information about entering bicycles in the fair parade, contact Jim Mann at 428-8388.

Floats also will be judged to the first, second and third places and organizations will receive prizes of $25, $15 and $10, respectively. Commercial floats also are accepted and will receive a trophy and a plaque for first and second-place.

Having the floats pre-registered will help the judges know what to look for. Contact Mann or Carol Britten to register your float. All entries to be judged should follow the theme, The Fair with the Country Smile.

Entries in the fair parade should be at the fair grounds no later than 6 p.m. on June 25 and the parade starts promptly at 6:30 p.m.

The Manchester Community Fair Queen is crowned immediately following the parade's arrival at the fair grounds. Although the program is relatively brief, it is the culmination of a long day for all involved—especially those who organize the program.

Michelle Lobbstaal has been in charge of the Fair Queen contest for several years now, assisted by Carrie Neff.

"Pre-judging is based on poise, personality, smile, attire, and how they present themselves," Lobbstaal said.

Each class at Manchester High School selects three candidates for fair queen and one alternate. These girls will represent their class in the Fair Queen Contest.

The judges are guided by a point system with a total of 100 possible points. Pre-judging counts for 75 percent and 25 points are awarded at fairgrounds after the parade. Speaking, poise and smile determine these final points, and the results can change dramatically in that short time.

Pre-judging takes place from 3 to 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, at Emanuel Church. During this time the girls also vote among themselves for Miss Congeniality, an honor which is bestowed just prior to the crowning of the queen.

At 5:30, it's time for the girls to do touch-ups on their makeup, and the cars pick them up at 5:45 p.m. This is a time of excitement and nervousness for the candidates.

As members of the Fair Queen's Court, the contestants will be asked to answer one question at the fairgrounds, which is the final phase in the day-long judging process.

The judges are selected from surrounding communities and do not know any of the candidates for Fair Queen.

This year's Fair Queen will be crowned by 2001 Queen Lesley Jacob. The Queen and her court will be asked to help present prizes, assist at the livestock auctions, and make other appearances throughout the week of the fair.

Fire trucks—both antique and current—always provide plenty of excitement as the sirens roar through town during the parade.

Potawatami Trail is a hidden jewel for mountain bikers

By Lisa Carolin
Special Writer

If you like to hike or swim, and especially if you're an experienced mountain biker, the Potawatami Trail in the Pinckney Recreation Area, some 20 miles northeast of Manchester, is well worth the trip.

The state park's total area is nearly 11,000 acres of lakes and woods in northwest Washtenaw County.

More than 115,000 riders use the trail system every year, making the park the most popular biking destination in Michigan. There are three single-track trails, collectively referred to as the Potawatami Trail System or the "Poto."

Glaciers from Lake Erie and Saginaw Bay formed the lakes throughout the Dexter-Chelsea area. With sandy and stony soil, the land wasn't good for farming, so revenue from hunting licenses was used to purchase the property.

"The park is filled with interesting microenvironments," said Norm Roller, a forester and a member of the Michigan Mountain Bikers Association. "The Boy Scouts originally laid out the first part of the trail in the 1960s. It was in the early 1990s when the mountain bikers discovered it."

The 17.5-mile Potawatami Trail starts with a hill and nowhere to warm up. It's regarded as challenging even for advanced bikers. The other two trails are the Silver Lake Trail, which is 1.9 miles, and the Crooked Lake Trail, which is 5.1 miles.

There are many hills and ridges on all of the trails, but watch out for hikers. Beginning mountain bikers are advised against using the Potawatami Trail because there have been a number of accidents.

The trail rolls through trees and then climbs through rolling terrain. There are many challenging climbs, and some of the descents have potholes.

The trail passes some beautiful lakes and includes a bridge over a river that runs between Half Moon and Watson lakes. The trail leads to Patterson Lake and eventually Gosling Lake. Silver Lake is a popular site for swimmers and sun-bathers.

"The Sierra Club has outings where they will hike the trail in one day," Roller said. "If you want to hike without any bicyclists, the Loon Lake area is strictly for hiking."

Mountain biking experts say that the Potawatami Trail is moderate to strenuous in difficulty. The challenge is part of the appeal and the beauty is another reason to make the trip. Aside from seven glacier-formed lakes, there are rolling woods, marshes and ponds. The Potawatami Trail helped spawn the Michigan Mountain Bikers Association. The trail is watched closely by the Department of Natural Resources. The DNR recommends against riding the trail when conditions are wet or in any way damaging.

A state park sticker is required and can be purchased at the gate. A daily pass costs $4 and a yearly pass is $20. Other activities at the park include boating, swimming, fishing, camping (reservations required), picnicking and cross-country skiing in the winter.

Summer temperatures range from the 70s to the 80s, with a range of humidity. The bike club recommends wearing breathable clothing, sunscreen and insect repellent. The club also asks that you leave "no trace," which means practicing low-impact biking and staying on existing trails.

Daniel Diener of Goshen, Ind., can attest to the draw of the Potawatami Trail in Dexter Township. Diener says the 17.5-mile trail features beautiful scenery and incredible vertical climbs.

It's also recommended that cyclists don't ride alone or after dark and ride at a safe, controlled speed.

Trails pass through areas open to hunters between September and March, so cyclists should wear orange clothing. A helmet is recommended at all times. Pets must be leashed and attended.

If you have the skill and the desire to tackle the Potawatami Trail, take M-52 north to Werkner Road, turning right, then right onto Island Lake Road. Turn left at Stofer Road and proceed north to North Territorial. Make a right turn (east) on North Territorial and proceed to Dexter Townhall Road. Turning left, go north for one mile to reach the entrance of the Pinckney Recreational Area. The address is 8555 Silver Hill, Route 1 in Pinckney. For more information, call 1-734-426-4913.

This movie was depressing. It seems like there are so many war movies out there right now. This one just makes you wonder why the good tolerate the bad until they are almost too dangerous to conquer.

There is sense to the saying, "Kill the monster when it's little." Audrey gives Black Hawk Down a 6 out of 10 rating.

A great movie ... it kept me hanging on the edge of my chair.

It made me glad, however, that I am not in the military during these difficult political times when military action is sometimes necessary.

Clark rates Black Hawk Down a 9 out of 10.

This Tuesday was the biggest video release date so far this year from the studios, just in time for summer vacation viewing. This week's new releases include "Air Bud: Seventh Inning Fetch," "Max Keeble's Big Move," "Shipping News" with Kevin Spacey, "Hard Cash" starring Val Kilmer and Christian Slater, Cuba Gooding, Jr.'s latest, "Rollerball," "I Am Sam," starring Michelle Pfeiffer and Sean Penn, "Orange County," and "The Majestic" with Jim Carrey.

Sustainability movement comes to Washtenaw County

By Lisa Carolin
Special Writer

The dictionary defines "sustainability" as the ability to keep up, prolong and give support to something.

According to Rebecca Head, director of Environment and Infrastructure Services for Washtenaw County: "Sustainability is when economic development, environmental protection and social needs are all working together."

What does this mean to the residents of Washtenaw County? Head said that sustainability is a big part of how the county is working to plan ahead.

"We are trying to meet the needs of the present without compromising the needs of the future," she said. "This is a philosophy we share with the United Nations."

According to the Centers for Disease Control, the diseases of the 21st century will be chronic illnesses that steal vitality and productivity, while consuming time and money.

"These diseases - heart disease, diabetes, obesity, asthma, and depression - are diseases that can be moderated by how we design and build our human environment," according to the CDC.

For example, urban sprawl doesn't always allow room for sidewalks or bike paths, contributing to an overweight society with heart disease.

Land-use decisions are public-health decisions, Head said. When people live and work in accessible, safe, well-designed structures and landscapes, there are health benefits, such as less stress, lower blood pressure and improved physical and mental health. The idea behind the sustainability movement is to form coalitions between doctors, nurses and public health professionals, as well as architects, builders, planners and transportation officials, so that everybody participates in making environmental decisions.

Those decisions can range from installing a sidewalk in a subdivision to deciding what constitutes safe and affordable housing; providing green space for people to enjoy where they live and work; and rethinking how we travel from one place to another.

In Chelsea, Lynn Meadows helps run a group called Voluntary Simplicity, which shares some similar goals with the sustainability program.

"We make an effort to live with less impact on the environment and to reconnect with the more important things in life," Meadows said.

A number of Washtenaw County businesses now belong to the Southeast Michigan Sustainable Business Forum. The purpose of the group is to provide a learning network to member companies aimed at raising awareness, developing programs and sharing "best management practices."

The forum offers workshops about sustainable business topics. DTE Energy recently hosted a session on renewable energy technology. In addition, there have been workshops on agricultural fertilizing practices that use less energy and toxic chemicals.

Comerica Bank will host a session June 20 about sustainable land use such as brownfield redevelopment, open space preservation, and "green" buildings, sustainable architecture and design.

For information about the Southeast Michigan Sustainable Business Forum, e-mail richard.jplewa@comerica.com.

Getting your new computer guide

There are quite a few deals on Windows PCs these days. Companies change their offerings so often that it is hard to make a definitive statement. So, here are some guidelines to finding your next Windows PC.

Think about obsolescence

No matter what computer you buy, it will become obsolete. You can guarantee that there will be a newer model available within six months. I usually try to get three years out of a computer. Sometimes I get 3½, sometimes as little as two.

When I look at buying a computer, I try to gauge how long it will last and figure out how much per year it will cost me. For example, if a computer that should last three years costs $3000, that is the same deal as a computer that will last me one year and costs $1000. A computer that will last me two years and costs $1500 is an even better deal. Think about how you are going to use your computer

What are you going to do with your computer? The features you need, or want, will depend greatly on this. Are you going to burn CDs? Are you going to play the latest games? Do you just want to run Word and make some documents?

Games take some of the latest high-end features to play well. The cheapest of computers are adequate for word processing, email and surfing the net. Make a list of what you know you are going to use your computer for, and how you might use it. Then, identify which components you need to satisfy your requirements.

Get features where it matters

Get as much memory as you can possibly get in a new computer. Nothing else will improve the performance and the longevity of a computer than massive amounts of memory. Every time Microsoft releases a new operating system, the memory requirements either stay the same, or go up. They never go down. The same is true with every application program you will use: newer versions use more memory.

Disk space is so cheap, that computers now regularly ship with very large disks: 40 Gigabytes is common. The extra cost may be minimal.

Finally, there is the processor. A faster processor will make for a faster computer that will last longer. On the other hand, the latest and greatest processor will be more expensive. I often try to get the second fastest processor I can; the difference in speed is much less than the difference in cost.

Any of the other features depend on what you want to do with your computer: you need a writable CD-ROM drive if you want to make your own CDs. You don't need one if that is not important to you.

Search for Deals

Both Dell and Gateway have daily and weekly specials on their web sites. A little bit of time on your part can save quite a bit of money. Once you have a good idea of the features you want, check their web sites daily to see what deals are there. You should be able to get a good deal on a computer that is pretty close to the features you want by checking their sites daily for a couple of weeks.

Time your purchase

There are two external events that will speed up the obsolescence of your computer: a new chip from Intel, and a new operating system from Microsoft. Never buy a new computer after the new OS or chip has been announced. Yes, prices drop. On the other hand, the speed your new computer goes out of date is even closer.

You may find you want the new operating system, and that upgrade can be a bit painful with a new computer.

Think about building your own

You can find components and save almost 30 percent off the price of a new computer. If you want a do-it-yourself project, it is not all that hard.

Pleasant Lake to tackle long-standing weed problem

Association will petition township for special assessment district.

By Laura Merte
Staff Writer

The "weeds" commonly found in inland lakes are usually thought of as a nuisance, but are in fact a crucial part of the area's ecosystem. The plant life cleans and aerates the water, in addition to providing food and shelter for fish and waterfowl.

Pleasant Lake is a weedy lake," says Frank Lobbstaël, president of the Pleasant Lake Homeowner's Association. "We have excerpts from 1918 news articles describing it as a weedy lake."

But the composition of the lake is changing, and the latest resident, Eurasian water milfoil, is proving to be a tough tenant.

"Right now out there's a lot of milfoil out here," says Cathy Roberts, secretary of the association. She attributes the increased growth to last winter's mild temperatures.

"It clogs up your propeller so you have to constantly clear it for weeds," Lobbstaël says. "It's a nuisance to the fisherman, you can't fish in it because it's so thick. It really hampers all lake activity."

A FAST GROWING aquatic herb with feather-like leaves and small, reddish flowers that extend above the surface, it is very similar to its native relative, northern water milfoil. But the differences are what causes the most problems.

Eurasian milfoil is an extremely adaptable plant, surviving in wide ranges of pH, temperature and salinity. It will thrive in either sandy or muddy lake bottoms, growing in depths from two to 26 feet. Once the plant grows high enough to reach the surface of the water, it will grow across the top of the water, forming a dense canopy that blocks light from reaching below the surface.

As a result, the milfoil crowds out other aquatic vegetation, disturbing the native ecosystem and dominates the lake.

"If it goes unchecked, we'll have a lake full of nothing but milfoil," says Lobbstaël.

Its appearance makes it a popular choice for aquariums, and it is imported for that purpose. In fact, that may be how it was introduced to the natural environment in the first place.

The plant has been in the U.S. since the mid-1900s, and in Pleasant Lake since 1986, according to Lobbstaël. It spreads from lake to lake by boat trailers and fishermen, and even the smallest fragments of the plant can develop into a serious infestation.

"It's something that doesn't belong here," says Lobbstaël, "and if we don't control it, it just gets worse."

THERE HAVE previously been few methods of controlling milfoil. Harvesting the plants using a machine is temporarily effective, but must be done several times throughout the summer in order to maintain a low level of vegetation. Chemical herbicides also provide temporary control, but they are non-specific and kill other plants, in addition to the targeted milfoil. Additionally, herbicide applications must be repeated every two or three years because it does not completely eliminate the problem.

In the last decade, a third option for milfoil control has come to the forefront. A small herbivore, the aquatic weevil, is a type of beetle native to North America which feeds specifically on milfoil. Normally it feeds on the northern milfoil, but shows a preference for the exotic variety when present.

Eurasian milfoil, if unchecked, can crowd out aquatic vegetation, disturbing the native ecosystem and dominating the lake.

"We don't happen to have any (weevils) in Pleasant Lake," said Lobbstaël, referring to a survey of the lake that was taken some time back.

All stages of the weevils' life cycle depend on milfoil for survival. The most serious damage is incurred by the late-stage larvae, which burrow down through the stem of the plant, weakening the structure and causing it to collapse.

USING WEEVILS to control

milfoil is not as easy as it may seem. Because the weevil spends almost its entire life feeding on the plant, it must be carefully introduced in order for a population to be established. This is achieved by "planting" additional milfoil within the existing plant beds. EnviroScience, an Ohio-based company, has been working with Middlebury College in Vermont to refine the technique.

An extensive process, weevils are raised on milfoil in a laboratory, then biologists tie bunches of the "weevil-ed" milfoil onto existing plants underwater.

"It's very labor-intensive," says Lobbstaël, "but it's the only way it will work. You can't just dump a wheelbarrow full of 'em into the lake."

What happens when the weather turns cold? Don't worry, you won't be finding these weevils in your flour bins or cornfields. Weevils produce three or four

What is Relay For Life?

Your American Cancer Society's signature event is a unique, empowering and fun way to make a difference in the fight against cancer.

Held at a local park or track facility, teams made up of family, friends and coworkers join other community teams. During the event, team members take turns walking around the track while others are free to socialize, picnic, play games, dance or participate in planned activities. Of course, some do make time to sleep, which makes Relay For Life America's largest slumber party!

It's an Inspiration

Relay For Life support those who have lost a loved one, offers encouragement to those who are currently battling the disease and celebrates with those who have survived. But most of all, it is an inspiration to all who participate. With 3,000 events held across the country, Relay For Life is sweeping the nation!

Mission Statement

The American Cancer Society is the nationwide community-based voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer, through research, education, advocacy and service.

LAKE

last generation grows small wings and flies to land, burrowing underground until the next spring, when the entire cycle is restarted.

A CASE STUDY by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was the first to conclude that its findings, while preliminary, suggest that the aquatic weevil could be used to suitably control Eurasian milfoil.

Vermont's Lake Bomoseen is, like Pleasant Lake, used recreationally and much of the shoreline is privately owned. Since the early 1980s, Eurasian milfoil has been the dominant species in the lake, crowding out the native plant life and obstructing recreational activity.

In the summers of 1993 and 1994, the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation, in conjunction with researchers from Middlebury College, added more than 20,000 weevils, the vast majority in the larvae stage, to milfoil beds in Lake Bomoseen. Monitoring through 1995 found the weevils thriving in the environment; more importantly, the mass of milfoil decreased in the areas where weevils had been "planted."

Successful treatments of Eurasian water milfoil have been done a lot closer to home, in Lake St. Helen, Paradise Lake and Van Etten Lake. In both cases, stocking weevils in the lakes resulted in a dramatic decline of Eurasian water milfoil over the course of two to three years.

"We've talked to a lot of people that live on those lakes, and they say those weevils are doing a great job," says Lobbstaël.

In addition, Houghton Lake is planning to use a combination of herbicide and weevils to combat the problem.

LOBBESTAEL ESTIMATES that, to effectively control the milfoil, Pleasant Lake will need to be stocked with 30,000 weevils, which is a total cost of $40,000. The Pleasant Lake Homeowner's Association is currently investigating the possibility of establishing a special assessment district in Freedom Township to fund the project.

"Overall we'd see a tax levied to the property owners in the neighborhood of $340 a household, with 120 homes on the lake," Lobbstaël said.

The cost of stocking the lake with weevils is comparable to that of using herbicide on the milfoil, but the population of weevils would provide a long-term method of control, says Lobbstaël.

"If we went with herbicides, we're sure that would work, but it would be an ongoing $40,000 treatment every two or three years," he said.

The association attempted to establish a special assessment district a decade ago to use herbicide for the problem, but failed to drum up enough support.

An informal survey of households on Pleasant Lake indicated support for the biological control, says Roberts.

"For me, it's also sort of a moral issue," she said. The herbicide "affects the fish, reptiles and amphibians, and you get all the weeds that fall to the bottom of the lake when you kill them at once. You get algae blooms, and then you have to do it every 2 to 3 years, but the weevils are supposed to keep it trimmed and it's sustainable."

IF ALL THE required steps for establishing the special assessment district go smoothly, says Lobbstaël, the weevils could be stocked next summer.

"We have to do the petition, then two public hearings," he says. "so if everything clicked we could get the issue on this tax bill (November's election) and then the project would start in spring of 2003."

POLICE BLOTTER

BREAKING AND ENTERING

On the morning of May 28, it was discovered that numerous $20 bills were missing from the cash drawer of a Bridgewater Township construction trailer.

The cash had been locked in a box within a locked file cabinet in the trailer over the weekend. Keys to the file cabinet and cash box were located within the trailer. There were no signs of forced entry to the file cabinet or cash box; however, a small pry mark with minimal damage was found on the entrance door. The case is currently inactive due to lack of leads.

PRESCRIPTION FRAUD

On May 29, an adult female was arrested after she attempted to obtain a prescription for a generic brand of Vicodin at the Manchester Pharmacy.

The suspect was identified after a female telephoned the pharmacy, allegedly from a doctor's office, to call in a prescription for a patient. When a call to the doctor's office was made to verify the prescription, it was determined the previous call was not made from that office, and the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department was called to the scene. The suspect entered the pharmacy approximately 10 minutes after the call to pick up the prescription, where she was stopped by the sheriff's deputy and placed under arrest.

The suspect claimed to feel faint, and Huron Valley Ambulance was called. After confirming the suspect's vital signs were stable, she was transported to Washtenaw County Jail. It was also discovered that the suspect had three outstanding warrants from the Chelsea Police for controlled substance violations.

INDECENT EXPOSURE

On June 2, two adult females were traveling by automobile within the Village of Manchester when they noticed a strange vehicle which parked in a remote location. When the women approached, a naked man jumped out of the parked car and approached them, making lewd gestures. The women drove away, and the suspect fled the scene.

The suspect was described as a white male approximately 45 years old, between 6' and 6'4" tall, with medium to heavy build, and balding with very short hair. A be-on-lookout alert was put out to surrounding jurisdictions. The case is currently inactive due to lack of leads.

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF

Flat tires on Manchester's school buses resulted in a two-hour delay to the school day on June 10. It was confirmed that "BBs" had been inserted into the air valves of a majority of the bus tires, causing a slow leak that rendered the buses temporarily disabled for the morning bus routes.

ANIMAL TRESPASS

At 9 p.m. on June 8, a state police trooper was sent to the 14000 block of Tracey Road in Manchester Township to deal with a complaint of a neighbor's bovines wandering onto another neighbor's property. Troopers have responded to this venue at least one other time regarding a similar complaint, according to investigators at the Ypsilanti Post.

DOMESTIC DISPUTE

During the early morning hours of June 9, troopers responded to the 13000 block of Bethel Church Road in Freedom Township to intervene in a boyfriend-and-girlfriend argument. The argument ended and no action from the troopers was necessary.

Compiled by Staff Writer Laura Merte from the files of Washtenaw County Sheriff Department, Station 4, Village of Manchester and the Sylvan Detachment of the Michigan State Police.

Athletic Boosters set benefit golf outing

■ Defibrillator project to benefit from fund-raiser.

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand
 Associate Editor

An 8 a.m. shotgun start on June 29 will signal the beginning of the Manchester Athletic Boosters' golf outing to support the defibrillator fund for athletic and school events in the Manchester school district.

Golfers should be signed in and ready to golf at 7:45 a.m. at Hickory Sticks Golf Course on Pleasant Lake Road in Freedom Township.

For just $80 per person or $280 per foursome, golfers will receive 18 holes of golf with cart, a steak dinner grilled on location and the opportunity to win prizes, raffle items and bid on auction items.

The longest drive will receive a wall clock and the longest putt will be the recipient of a new putter. The golfer closest to the pin will receive a dozen golf balls, and a guaranteed $5,000 prize will be awarded to a hole-in-one shot.

Other prizes donated by Bridgewater Lumber Co. and the Manchester Athletic Boosters along with a three-day, two-night getaway including hotel accommodations, a golf/ski coupon and a telephone calling card will be awarded at the outing.

A 50/50 raffle cash prize also will be awarded.

Items up for bid will include a round of golf at the University of Michigan course with carts for a foursome and buckets of practice balls at the range. This prize is worth approximately $250. A University of Michigan hockey jersey signed by the seniors from this year's team also will be auctioned off. A round of golf at the Poio Fields with carts for a foursome is another auction item.

Golfers still are welcome to sign up by calling Larry Lindemann at 428-9687 or Kathy Roberts at 428-8370. Additional hole sponsors and prize donors also are being sought.

The boosters are helping the athletic department obtain an automatic external defibrillator for each school building in the district and one to travel with sports teams to away games. This project also is supported by the Kimberly Ann Gillary Foundation, the Judy Ivan Healthy Communities Foundation through Saline Community Hospital, the Manchester High School football team and several individual donors.

Come have fun and enjoy a day of golf while supporting this important cause.

Heart monitoring implemented in fitness classes

By Marsha Johnson Chartrand

Seventh-graders in Gay Thacher's fitness classes learned about using heart monitors to check their heart rates during the final quarter of the academic year at Nellie Ackerman Middle School.

Thacher received grants from the Judy Ivan Healthy Communities Endowment Fund and the Manchester Community Schools' Foundation mini-grant program for the purchase of 30 heart-rate monitors for middle school fitness classes. These heart monitors are used to teach students their exercise maximum heart target zone for their age. Students are taught how to figure what their personal heart-target zone is to be to achieve optimal benefit from exercise.

WEDDINGS

DAVIS-SWAIN

Michelle M. Davis became the bride of Jason D. Swain on Oct. 27, 2001 at the Courtyard by Marriott in Ann Arbor.

James D. Phillips officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Milton and Kay Davis of Manchester with the son of Mark and Cathy Swain of Plymouth.

Kimberly Davis of Tecumseh, the bride's sister, was the matron of honor. Andrew White of Plymouth, a cousin of the groom, served as best man. Bridesmaids included Jacqueline Davis-Green of Manchester, Angela Mast of Grass Lake and Nicole Mehlem of Plymouth. Groomsmen were Rick Swain of Westland and Chip Ostermeyer of Canton. Patrick Davis Green of Napoleon and Luke Mast of Grass Lake ushered.

Connor Davis-Green served as ringbearer and Myria Davis-Green, Destiny Melhem and Sydney Davis-Green were flower girls in the ceremony.

After a Caribbean honeymoon, the couple settled into their home in Lakeport.

CHARTRAND-COPE

Alyssa Chartrand and Noah Cope were married in an afternoon ceremony at St. John's United Church of Christ at Rogers Corners on May 4, 2002.

The Rev. Dr. Nancy Doty officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of David and Marsha Chartrand of Manchester with the son of Ralph and Leisa Cope of Oregon, Ohio.

Following a reception at the Freedom Township Hall, the couple is making their home at Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

SLOW LANE

"I tell everyone who asks that St. Mary's Manchester is the best parish in the diocese," Father Charlie says. "It's also the eating-est parish in the diocese. They're always eating; they love a party."

It will be quite a party, with interesting people in attendance.

"We've invited Father Charlie's friends from far and wide and we expect many of them to drop by," Shurtliff says. "And yes, he's teased us about the food thing ever since he got here."

HE CONSIDERS his successor, the Rev. Fr. Timothy Krzyzaniak, to be a very lucky man.

Asked if the new priest is related to the Krzyzaniak family of Manchester, Father Charlie was unsure.

"The name is unusual," he says. "Everyone thinks they must be related, they just have to figure out how."

"And of course, all Poles are somehow related to the pope."

Krzyzaniak has previously served a parish in Hamburg and according to Shurtliff, "his reputation has preceded him."

"Father Tim is a different person from Father Charlie, but it's a difference that seems quite attractive to people," she said. "The people in Hamburg certainly loved him there."

Krzyzaniak, 44, will begin his tenure in Manchester with the morning mass on June 27.

WHILE HE will remain busy, as he wishes, with his "relief pitching," Father Charlie won't have to deal with boards, boilers or budgets. While there always is a need for additional priests to celebrate mass or preside over penance services, Father Charlie remains free to say no if he needs to.

"He's like a grandpa where he can enjoy it on his own terms," Shurtliff says.

But the hard-working "village Father" deserves a chance to enjoy himself on his own terms. While he says he feels like he's received much more than he's given, it's likely that his parishioners would say otherwise.

"He's an extraordinary priest," said parishioner Brenda Miller. "When I think of going to Mass every Sunday with Father Charlie it was with great anticipation of his homily. He always gave us something great to take home with us, for our heart, our minds and our souls.

"I never felt he preached at us, he's always very self-deprecating in spite of his great intellectual capacity, he never came off as holier-than-thou or smarter-than-thou. He's got a great sense of humor."

Father Charlie Irvin is leaving an indelible legacy at St. Mary's in Manchester.

Supervisor Mann called the meeting to order at 8:02 p.m. All Board members were present: Widmayer, Macomber, Hakes, Turk and Mann, along with eight visitors. Minutes from the Board's 5/13/02, 5/20/02 and 6/4/02 meetings were approved as presented. The Treasurer's report was accepted. Approval was given to the Treasurer and Clerk to pay all normal bills until the end of the fiscal year. An amendment was made to the General Fund budget. Approval was given for payment of bills that have been paid and for outstanding bills.

Michigan State Police reported twenty-one calls in the month of May in Manchester Township.

The Board authorized the Township Attorney to proceed with whatever legal remedies are available to enforce the Washtenaw County court's action against the Huron Valley Night Hawks.

Fire Department activity for the month included five fires, twelve medical, three personal injuries, four miscellaneous and one mutual aid, for a total of twenty-five runs. Annual awards were approved for the Fire Department officers: Manchester Township has not received a signed fire contract from Sharon Township.

Reports were accepted from the Zoning Administrator, Planning Commission and Supervisor. Zoning permits were issued for three new homes in May. The Board accepted the resignation of John Schmitt from the Planning Commission with regret. Supervisor Mann noted that anyone interested in serving on this commission or any other board should submit a letter to the township. Manchester Township will decline to participate in Washtenaw County's Community Development Block Grant entitlement community, an "Urban County."

The Board adopted a resolution, which approved the language of a proposal for the November ballot to ask if the number of trustees to the Township Board should be increased to four, thus increasing the membership from five to seven.

A complete copy of these minutes may be obtained during office hours, which are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to noon. The next regular meeting of the Manchester Township Board is Monday, July 8, 2002 at 8:00 p.m. Submitted by Kathleen M. Hakes, Clerk

Fair has proud history

The Manchester Community Fair has a long and proud history which actually dates back much further than the 58 years since its incorporation.

"The fair was originally affiliated with the schools," said Howard Parr, a former parade marshal and the community's unofficial historian.

Parr and his wife Lenore are both 1937 graduates of Manchester High School and recall the event beginning back in the late 1920s.

"It originated with the Future Farmers and Future Homemakers' Clubs, as an outgrowth of the agriculture program at the High School," Howard Parr recalled. "The fair would be held at harvest time—in September or October—inside the school hallways."

The high school, at that time, was located on the current middle school campus. The old Union School was replaced with the current upper middle building during the 1930s as a WPA project during the depression.

Lenore Parr remembers the halls being filled with produce, clothing, baked and canned goods which had been prepared and brought in by students.

"I remember making homemade angel food cakes when I entered the fair," she said.

Howard Parr mentioned peck baskets of oats, wheat and corn lining the halls in preparation for judging.

The fair was officially incorporated on Nov. 3, 1944, according to keeper of the records Carol Britten.

"Our earliest ribbon we've located from the fair dates back to 1933," Britten said. "But they say it goes back to the late 20s and no one is quite sure how far."

A complete collection of fair books from 1945 on is maintained by the Historical Society and belonged to Howard Parr's brother in law, the late Jess Walker. This is annually displayed in a case at the exhibit building.

Chocolate Almond Wedding Celebration Cake, Wedding Cake Topper and Kisses Rosette Decorations

CHOCOLATE ALMOND WEDDING CELEBRATION CAKE

You will need to triple this recipe to complete Wedding Celebration Cake.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND CAKE:

- 2-1/2 cups (5 sticks) butter or margarine, softened
- 3 cups sugar
- 8 eggs
- 1-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1-1/2 cups finely ground blanched almonds
- 3/4 cup Hershey's Cocoa
- 2-1/4 teaspoons baking powder
- 2/3 cup milk
- 2 teaspoons almond extract

CREAMY BUTTERCREAM FROSTING (recipe follows)

1. Prepare CHOCOLATE ALMOND CAKE. Heat oven to 325°F. Grease and flour one 12 x 2-inch and one 6 x 2-inch round baking pan.
2. Beat butter and sugar in large bowl of heavy duty mixer until fluffy. Gradually add eggs, beating until well blended.
3. Stir together flour, almonds, cocoa and baking powder. Alternately add with milk to egg mixture; beat until well blended. Add almond extract; continue beating until fluffy. Spoon 2 cups batter into prepared 6-inch pan; spoon remaining batter into prepared 12-inch pan.
4. Bake 45 to 55 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in each cake comes out clean and cakes begin to pull from sides of pans. Cool 15 minutes; remove from pans to wire racks. Cool completely.
5. Repeat steps 1, 2, 3 and 4 for second layer of 12 and 6-inch cakes.
6. Grease and flour three 9-inch round baking pans. Repeat steps 2 and 3, but divide batter evenly into pre- pared 9-inch pans.

7. Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in each cake comes out clean and cakes begin to pull from sides of pans. Cool 15 minutes; remove from pans to wire racks. Cool completely. (You will have an extra layer to freeze for another use.)
8. Prepare 3 recipes of CREAMY BUTTERCREAM FROSTING.

CREAMY BUTTERCREAM FROSTING: Beat 1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine, 1 cup shortening and 2 teaspoons vanilla or almond extract in large bowl of heavy duty mixer until blended. Gradually add 7-1/2 cups powdered sugar alternating with 1/4 cup milk until well blended. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup light corn syrup; beat on high speed until fluffy. If necessary, add additional corn syrup, one teaspoon at a time, until you get the consistency you like. About 6 cups frosting.

To assemble: 1. Prepare a cake board or use large serving platter. Place bottom layer of each tier on a cake circle or foil-covered cardboard piece cut to fit; secure each cake to a circle with a few strokes of frosting. 2. Fill and frost 2 layers for each tier. You will now have 3 frosted two-layer cakes: 12, 9 and 6 inches. 3. Place frosted 12-inch tier on cake board securing with a few strokes of frosting. Gently press 8-inch plate or circle into top of 12-inch tier to imprint circle; remove. Cut seven 3-3/4-inch lengths from a 1/4-inch diameter wooden dowel rod. Spacing evenly within circle guide, push rods down in cake to the base. 4. Place frosted 9-inch cake tier on base cake tier; top with frosted 6-inch cake. Decorate cake as desired. About 90 servings without top tier.

Looking Back

From the June 19, 1902 issue of The Manchester Enterprise, edited by Mat D. Blosser.

Brief News Items.

Wm. Kirchgessner has had his saloon painted and papered.
 J. Fred Schaible has had George Bailey lay a cement floor in the new addition to his store.
 Flag Day was not generally observed in Manchester but those who did decorate had the satisfaction of knowing that their displays were noticeable on account of the contrast. Two men who met on the street were wondering if a certain patriotic citizen was crazy, when overheard by the gentleman's "better half" who volunteered to enlighten them.
 Ben Feldkamp has lost 10 or 12 head of cattle within the past three months by some strange disease; he begins to think it contagious and has requested the state veterinarian to come and see about it.

Born.

DETLING - In Freedom, on Sunday, June 15, 1902, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Detling, a daughter.
CORNELL - In Norvell on Friday, June 13, 1902, to Mr. and Mrs. Chancy Cornell, a three-pound son.

Died.

HASCHLEY - In Lodi on Friday, June 13, 1902. David Haschley aged 27 years.
 Deceased was a son of George Haschle and a resident of Manchester. He was a member of the 34th regiment and was among the first of our soldiers who landed in Cuba. About a year ago he married Miss Louise Werner of St. Louis, Mo., who survives him. He was an industrious young man and was working for Uhr and Roller when on Friday afternoon last he suddenly gave up and said that he was sick and could work no more. A physician was called but he grew worse and died the next evening. The remains were brought home and the funeral held at Emanuel's church Sunday forenoon. The pall-bearers being members of the 31st Michigan. Deceased had complained of some trouble with his heart since he returned from Cuba but as he was strong and hearty people only laughed at him. The physician said he had appendicitis.

Severe Wind Storm.

Struck this village last Thursday afternoon. No lives lost but great damage done.
 This village was struck by a severe storm last Thursday afternoon which created great havoc and did much damage.

an inch deep upon the floor of the beautiful dining room of the Freeman house and the proprietors and help could do little to save their property from ruin. Fred Widmayer's hardware store was drenched and presented a sorry sight. Other roofs were lifted.

J. Fred Schaible's new addition received a call and the post office roof was damaged so the water poured through into the office. The rear of Al. Kiebler's market was also flooded.

Windows in the Masonic hall, a plate glass in Fred Steinkohl's store and several glass in W.H. Lehr's store were broken.

The scene on Exchange Place was exciting indeed. All sorts of stuff went flying through the air and the dust and leaves together with the rain and the darkness which fell rendered sight almost impossible for a few minutes.

Most of the teams had been hurried away to the barns for safety but there were three carriages left. Mr. Stockinger's horse and carriage were rolled over and over and it is a wonder that the horse was not killed and the vehicle demolished, but when the clouds rolled by Mr. Stockinger was seen gathering up his belongings. Frank Lerg's rig was also dismantled, as was Mrs. Fred Spafard's. The horse after breaking away from the carriage, ran home. Mrs. S. was at the dressmaker's, so was uninjured but badly frightened.

The streets were strewn with tin and iron from the roofs, boards, shingles, etc. and it is miraculous that people escaped injury from them.

On the east side of the river the storm seemed to go in with renewed vigor and the destruction of shade trees was great. Beautiful trees which were the pride of the owners were uprooted or broken off completely, blockading Beaufort Street in some places. That tall elm tree in front of Mrs. Ayers' place was uprooted and fell against the house, crushing it in like a pasteboard box. Mrs. Ayers who was alone in the house escaped with slight scratches.

The porch on Peter VanGieson's house was torn off and part of the roof was carried some 60 rods and landed in rear of Jas. Kelly's barn. Woodsheds on Mrs. Glotz's and Fred Haschle's places were demolished and the boards scattered far and near. The chimneys on Wm. Anspoker's residence were blown off, the wood shed swept away and trees broken.

The central school building was a good target for the wind but it seemed to stand up well under the severe strain. However, chimneys were blown over and crushed through the roof, the north cupola was blown off and the north roof was raised three or four inches. Several windows were broken but the damage is not great. Luckily the children had gone home, else there would have been great excitement and perhaps injury to some.

Back on Furnace Street the storm tipped Will Haschle's barn over upon his cow, but a crowd of men went to work and with ropes extricated the bovine without serious injury to her.

Scantling were thrust through Fred Haarer's house, but no one was injured. Others lost outbuildings, sheds, etc.

Crossing the Soulesville pond the wind gave Mart Wallace a call and several trees in the old Thos. Morgan orchard were blown over.

The private bridge on the Rehffuss farm was carried away, and on down into Bridgewater the wind played pranks more or less severe.

Wm. Kirchgessner's farm barn was moved several inches, his corn crib, etc. demolished.

Fred Mahrie's horse barn was overturned and destroyed and his large barn unroofed.

The path of the storm was not much more than a block in width. It was a high wind, only dipping down here and there. Had it been a low wind, passing as it did directly through the center of the village, the damage would have been great. As it is it will take several thousand dollars to repair the buildings damaged, while the loss of trees will be felt for many years.

Everybody feels thankful that the damage was no worse.

Mrs. D.O. Stringham and daughter were driving home from Bridgewater and were in front of Mr. Hough's on City Road when the storm appeared. With difficulty she kept the horse from turning around. She was blinded by the storm and though she rode in the midst of the destruction she really knew nothing of what had happened about her until after she reached home. Her carriage and the harness were filled with branches and leaves. How she ever escaped injury is a wonder.

There was a tremendous fall of rain and some hail but all was over in less than an hour.

Four head of cattle in pasture belonging to Wm. Rehffuss were struck by lightning during the storm. They were insured.

Looking back is compiled by Staff Writer Laura Merte from editions of the Manchester Enterprise of 100 years ago. The cooperation of the Manchester District Library is gratefully acknowledged.

UNIVERSITY MUSICAL SOCIETY

The goal of the University Musical Society, located in the Burton Memorial Tower in Ann Arbor, is to engage, educate, and serve Michigan audiences by bringing an ongoing series of world-class artists to the community.

These artists represent the diverse spectrum of today's vigorous and exciting live performing arts world.

Over its 123 years, strong leadership coupled with a devoted community have placed UMS in a league of internationally-recognized performing arts series. Since its first season in 1880, UMS has expanded greatly and now presents the very best from the full spectrum of the performing arts: internationally renowned recitalists and orchestra, dance and chamber ensemble, jazz and world music performers, opera and theater.

Through educational endeavors, commissioning of new work, youth programs, artists in residencies and other collaborative projects, UMS has maintained its reputation for quality, artistic distinction, and innovation. UMS now hosts more than 90 performances and more than 150 educational events each season. The venues UMS operates out of include Ann Arbor's Hill Auditorium, Rackham Auditorium, the Power Center, the Michigan Theater, St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church, and the Lydia Mendelssohn Theater. Additional performances are presented in various theaters in Detroit.

While proudly affiliated with the University of Michigan, housed on the Ann Arbor campus, and a regular collaborator with many University units, the Musical Society is a separate, nonprofit organization that supports itself from ticket sales, corporate and individual contributions, foundation and government grants, and endowment income.

BACI TRATTORIA AND WILDERNESS SPORTS BAR AND GRILLE

"The Old Country" recently opened its doors in new territory.

Baci Trattoria, an Italian restaurant featuring "authentic, home-cooked Italian food in a beautiful, warm atmosphere," is located in a seemingly unlikely place—adjacent to Cabela's.

Baci Trattoria, owned by Jay Kasperek, Terry Baas, Leon Daby, and Jack Crocker, opened its doors June 11. Baci and its sibling, the Wilderness Sports Bar and Grille, share a brick building just inside the gates of Cabela's, and the spot has proved to be a serendipitous choice.

In addition to the huge outdoor outfitter, there also are two hotels nearby and plans for an RV park and an indoor water park are in the works, which should bring even more visitors to the new eateries.

Annette Sharrer is the general manager for both restaurants. Her Italian heritage and experience with her family's restaurants should serve her—and the customers of Baci Trattoria—very well. Pasta dishes and pizza are menu staples.

"We have a homey atmosphere, with an open kitchen and a friendly, inviting staff," says Sharrer. "We make you feel just like you're back in the Old World."

Whether you have a large family or want a cozy dinner for two, "we can accommodate you," says Sharrer.

"We have great prices, too, so come and try us out!"

The Ann Arbor Comedy Showcase stages live comedy shows Thursday through Saturday nights.

"We serve a full menu of alcoholic and non-alcoholic drinks as well as snacks," says Roger Feeny, general manager. "But purchase is at the sole discretion of our guests. There are no hidden drink minimums."

The Ann Arbor Comedy Showcase opened in November 1984 on Main Street as the Mainstreet Comedy Showcase, and moved to its present location at 314 E. Liberty in 1986. In January 2001, the name and ownership changed.

Among the stars that have appeared on the stage are: Tim Allen, Drew Carey, Rosie O'Donnell, Chris Titus, Ellen DeGeneres, Brett Butler, Soupy Sales, Rita Rudner, Judy Tenuta.

"Our live comedy shows feature the best rising stars in the comedy business," said Feeny.

"The Ann Arbor Comedy Showcase is one of Ann Arbor's most unique entertainment establishments.

"Our doors are open to everyone 18 and older. Our crowds are diverse, ranging in age from 18-80, students to professionals.

"We also have continued to bring in what we feel are the next 'Big Stars' to our stage. Our labors to bring in the best talent results in a quality of show that prompted Rolling Stone magazine to call us 'one of the best clubs between the coasts.'"

COUSINS HERITAGE INN

The farmhouse on Main Street in Dexter that houses Cousins Heritage Inn was built in the 1850s. Millard Fillmore's brother reportedly helped build this home along with many other homes in the Dexter area.

Pat and Paul Cousins purchased the home in 1983. The Cousins family and friends restored the building and transformed it into a fine dining restaurant, which opened in March 1984. They operated the restaurant for almost 17 years. In February 2000, Ray Lance approached the Cousins about the possibility of selling him the restaurant. It took Ray six months to convince Pat and Paul to sell. The sale closed in February 2001.

The tradition that Paul and Pat started continues under the ownership of Ray. The superb and changing menus always feature house-made soups, appetizers, entrées, and house-made desserts that fit everyone's culinary taste. Renowned for its fine dining experience, Cousins specializes in "American food with a European flair." Guests praise the many fresh vegetables cooked to perfection and served with each of the entrées. Ray offers an early bird menu Tuesday through Thursday from 5-6:30 p.m. At lunch, patrons may enjoy lighter portions of the same delicious dishes at lunch prices. A monthly English Tea also is popular with patrons.

Catering is available for any size party or event. Sunday Brunch is served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. The large wine list focuses on talked about wines that offer quality and value.

People drive from miles around to experience Cousins gracious hospitality in a warm, comfortable, and relaxed atmosphere. If you haven't been there recently, you need to stop by and see the changes on the menu. Make sure you get information on all the new events while you are there.

DEXTER'S PUB

Dexter's Pub has been a special part of Dexter for the past 4 years. Owner Peter Theocharakis prides himself on excellent food, a great atmosphere, and plenty of hospitality.

Located at 814 Main St. in downtown Dexter, Dexter's Pub features upward of 20 different draft beers from around the world to delight the beer connoisseur as well as a full menu of epicurean delights.

Food specials rotate daily, featuring pasta, fresh seafood, and meat. Each day brings a different theme.

The spring and summer months provide an opportunity for patrons to sit outside on the deck.

Dexter's Pub serves only the finest quality meats and fish, and offers an array of scrumptious desserts, all in a comfortable, customer-oriented atmosphere.

PREGO

Prego. In Italy, it means "you are welcome."

"What a difference a year makes," says Frank Langmesser.

The classically trained chef from southeast Michigan says:

"On Aug. 20, 2001, Prego Italian Grill opened its doors and invited everyone to try a taste of Northern Italy.

"Shortly thereafter, things began to change, not only in our quaint little restaurant, but also in the world around us."

The restaurant is owned by a partnership of "mostly family members" that also have Dexter's Pub and the Memphis Smokehouse restaurants among several other local eateries.

"I'm proud of our upscale Italian menu with its reasonable prices," says Langmesser. "The restaurant seats roughly 110 people, and everything is prepared in-house with fresh ingredients."

Langmesser has spent the last 16 years in the food business, the last 9 as an executive chef. He sharpened his skills at places like the Skyline Club and Chuck Muer's.

Although he admits he isn't Italian—"I'm native American and German," he says with a chuckle—Langmesser enjoys preparing such specialties as roast veal loin with wild mushroom risotto and chicken tuscan with roasted pears.

"As we approach our first anniversary, we invite you back," he says. "Back, not only for a taste of northern Italy but to enjoy dining 'al fresco' on our new patio.

"We also would like to invite you to share in the benefits and fun enjoyed by more than 100 wine enthusiasts who take part in our 'Club Bacchus.'"

"We invite you to eat, drink, and be merry and to share with us those things that have not changed in a year's time—the foundation of our restaurant: family, friends, and food."

Michael's Chop House (IN THE ANN ARBOR SHERATON)

Michael's Chop House, located in the Sheraton Inn in Ann Arbor, has been serving up a variety of tasty foods for 22 years.

Owned by Howard Zetley, the hotel and restaurant employs 150 people. James Koen is the general manager and Jim Hallman is the food and beverage director.

"We serve American food in a relaxed, casual atmosphere," says Koen.

A full breakfast buffet greets early risers seven days a week, with a lunch buffet Monday through Friday.

The breakfast buffet is priced at $7.95 per person.

"We offer a lunch buffet with four hot, hand-carved meats, two homemade soups, a salad bar and fresh bread for $6.50," says Koen. "Our famous Sunday brunch is served from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., with the last seating at 1:30."

At brunch, patrons may choose from a variety of "made-to-order" omelettes, hand-carved prime rib, assorted desserts, and many other breakfast and lunch entrees for $12.95.

METZGER'S

Can't get to Bavaria for brunch? Pining away for brats and German potato salad? Seeking streusel?

Metzger's is the place to go for both traditional German fare as well as great steaks, fresh seafood, healthy salads, and unique daily specials.

Owned by John and Heidi Metzger, the restaurant has been a fixture in the Ann Arbor area since 1928, when John's grandfather first opened the business.

About a year ago, John and Heidi moved to a new location in Scio Township off Zeeb Road, and this year invite patrons to enjoy their favorite menu items in the new outdoor Biergarten, where they may select from the full menu or the new Biergarten fare.

The Biergarten is open daily, depending on the weather.

A variety of daily menu specials will help Metzger's mark its anniversary throughout the month of June.

REDDEMAN FARMS

For the average golfer, an open fairway, smooth green, and well-equipped pro shop make for a nearly perfect golfing experience.

But those extras—including a place to get an outstanding meal before or after a round of golf—can keep them coming back.

Reddeman Farms, located in Chelsea, has long attracted golfers of all ages and skill levels. The club's restaurant provides a place to enjoy a refreshing meal, whether it's after a round or just for lunch.

Located at 555 S. Dancer Road, the restaurant is open seasonally—from March through December—and offers a place for business meetings or private parties as well.

The beautiful country setting with its panoramic views of the golf course and wooded areas are a perfect backdrop for dining, whether it's inside the club or on the outside deck.

In spring and fall, "we offer an 'all-you-can-eat' fish and chicken dinner," says co-owner Patty McCarthy. "There are other dinner options on those nights as well."

Other popular menu items include burgers, soups, salads, sandwiches, and dinners. Outdoor seating is available weather permitting, of course.

"We offer causal and comfortable dining, along with elegance and atmosphere for a formal event," she said. "You are our guests and well be treated as friends as well as our customers."

Three Ways We Can Help

We provide non-invasive, completely painless screenings for vascular disease using the most advanced Doppler ultrasound technology. The screenings will quickly detect arterial abnormalities which can cause irregular blood flow.

We offer three separate screenings:

Carotid Artery/Stroke Screening

This test scans the carotid arteries in the neck for plaque buildup which leads to stroke - one of the most preventable of all life-threatening health problems.*

Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm Screening

This screens for the existence of an aneurysm in the abdominal aorta. The vast majority of people who have an aneurysm have no symptoms.

Peripheral Arterial Disease Screening

This screens for peripheral arterial disease (plaque buildup) in the lower extremities which is linked to coronary artery disease.

Also... Detect osteoporosis in just 60 seconds

 Life Line Screening
Protect your health. Protect your life.

Life Line Screening

Protect your health. Protect your life.

The nation's leading vascular screening service

Saving lives through preventive screening since 1993.

A physician typically cannot order an ultrasound evaluation for someone who has no symptoms of vascular disease or osteoporosis. Life Line Screening enables you to be checked for vascular disease or osteoporosis as part of your own personal prevention plan. We provide non-invasive, painless screenings that can identify vascular disease and osteoporosis – valuable information for your personal physician to help you reduce your risk for stroke.

- State-of-the-art equipment is used with sophisticated color flow ultrasound technology.
- A board certified physician, who is fully insured and licensed to practice reviews and confirms all screening results.

"Vascular screening programs for cerebrovascular disease, aortic aneurysms, and peripheral vascular disease have proven their value in detecting previously unrecognized problems in many individual patients that could have resulted in significant illness or even death."

Robert J. Steefe, M.D.

Board Certified Cardiologist, Cleveland, Ohio

"I participated in all three screenings and felt the staff was very professional, efficient, and gracious. This certainly is a valuable service which I shall continue to provide to Laurel Lake residents and to the community for as long as possible."

Director of Clinic Services, Hudson, Ohio

When you pre-register by phone, we will accept these major credit cards:

Gift Certificates are now available. Ask your customer service representative how to give the gift of a Life Line Screening.

1 Carotid Artery/Stroke Screening $40

Purpose: Visualizes the buildup of fatty plaque in the carotid arteries which leads to stroke.

Procedure: The technologist applies an acoustic gel on your neck over your carotid arteries. A painless instrument, a transducer, will be moved around your neck to visualize the inside of the carotid artery.

2 Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm (AAA) Screening $40

Purpose: Visualizes the existence of an aneurysm (enlargement) in the abdominal aorta that could lead to a ruptured aortic artery.

Procedure: The technologist applies an acoustic gel on your abdomen and uses a painless instrument called a transducer to visualize the aorta.

3 Peripheral Arterial Disease Screening $40

Purpose: Screens for peripheral arterial disease in the lower extremities. Studies suggest an abnormal ABI may indicate peripheral arterial disease as well as a high risk of coronary artery disease.

Procedure: Blood pressure cuffs and a Doppler ultrasound probe are placed on your arms and ankles.

4 Osteoporosis Screening $35

Purpose: Screens for abnormal bone mass density in men and women. Osteoporosis is painless and silent in its early stages.

Procedure: By placing your foot in an ultrasound unit, the bone density of the heel is measured with ultrasound.

Complete Vascular Package (all 3 screenings): $99

Save $30

Sign up for all four screenings and pay only $125!

Life Line Screening is dedicated to providing the highest quality imaging technology at an affordable rate. Our goal is to make people aware of an undetected health problem and encourage them to seek follow-up care with their physician. You will receive your results in 12 to 15 business days.

Insurance Note: At the present time, Medicare does not cover the cost of these screening services. Life Line Screening does not file insurance claims.
